

DRAFT Commemorative Works by Proposed Theme for Public Comment

February 18, 2010

Note: This database is part of a joint study, Washington as Commemoration, by the National Capital Planning Commission and the National Park Service. Contact Lucy Kempf (NCPC) for more information: 202-482-7257 or lucy@ncpc.gov.

CURRENT DATABASE

This DRAFT working database includes major and many minor statues, monuments, memorials, plaques, landscapes, and gardens located on federal land in Washington, DC. Most are located on National Park Service lands and were established by separate acts of Congress. The authorization law is available upon request. The database can be mapped in GIS for spatial analysis. Many other works contribute to the capital's commemorative landscape.

A Supplementary Database, found at the end of this list, includes selected works:

- Within interior courtyards of federal buildings;
- On federal land in the National Capital Region;
- Within cemeteries;
- On District of Columbia lands, private land, and land outside of embassies;
- On land belonging to universities and religious institutions
- That were authorized but never built

Explanation of Database Fields:

- A. Lists the subject of commemoration (person, event, group, concept, etc.) and the title of the work. Alphabetized by Major Themes ("Achievement...", "America...", etc.).
- B. Provides address or other location information, such as building or park name.
- C. Descriptions of subject may include details surrounding the commemorated event or the contributions of the group or individual being commemorated. The purpose may include information about why the commemoration was established, such as a symbolic gesture or event.
- D. Identifies the type of land where the commemoration is located such as public, private, religious, academic; federal/local; and management agency.
- E. Includes notes about the sponsor, groups supporting the development of the commemoration and how it was funded (private/public dollars).
- F & G. Year of authorization and dedication, respectively.
- H. Draft Major Themes are the broadest categories of subjects represented in Washington's commemorative landscape. Many commemorations fall into two theme categories, which are equal in weight. Example: Taras Shevchenko / Arts & Sciences and America and the World.
The commemorations are placed in a maximum of two theme categories, with two exceptions: President George Washington and President Abraham Lincoln.
- I. Other subthemes and keywords offer more specific and detailed information about the commemoration.

For a complete list of themes and subthemes, go to www.ncpc.gov.

Sources Include: the authorizing law, if available; James M. Goode's Washington Sculpture: A Cultural History of Outdoor Sculpture in the Nation's Capital (Johns Hopkins University Press, 2008); Sculpture in the Parks (NPS); and other online research.

FUTURE DATABASE

A future database will reflect public comments on this draft and may include a more comprehensive list of the selected works found in the Supplementary Database.

SUPPLEMENTARY DATABASE: Other Works and Outdoor Sculpture for Consideration
Staff Comment: There are a number of other works and outdoor sculpture that may contribute to the themes represented in Washington's commemorative landscape. Some projects have been identified below for discussion.
PART A. SELECTED WORKS LOCATED IN WASHINGTON'S CEMETERIES
Staff Comment: Cemeteries are places of commemoration. Many gravesites in Washington mark nationally significant events and people. Some include outdoor sculpture that may be considered commemorative elements. In a recent study, Arlington National Cemetery (ANC) drew a distinction between "memorial monuments" that contained remains or marked the location of remains in close proximity and "commemorative monuments" that were dedicated to events in history, individuals or units of the armed forces.
American Armored Force	Arlington National Cemetery	From Authorizing Law: "to honor members of the American Armored Force who have served in armored units.
