I grew up near Washington, D.C. I visited the White House many times as a child. I wept when I saw the rubble where once stood the beautiful East Wing that welcomed visitors from around the world to the nation's capital, to the Peoples' House, The White House. Trump has no legal authority to make alterations to the White House without proper authorization. He has not sought approval or permission for the destruction of the East Wing. Stop him now before he destroys more of our historic buildings. Require him to restore the East Wing.

First, I am upset and appalled that the historic East Wing of the White House was demolished almost overnight with no apparent oversight by Congress or any organization with regulatory powers. That said, the “ballroom” needs to be curtailed and contained in any way possible, in size, in artistic and architectural design and financially. The whole project is a debacle and a national (an internal) embarrassment. Please do everything in your power to keep it small and simple. Thank you!

Please, do the responsible and reasonable thing and just rebuild the east wing. Nobody asked for a giant overpriced bunker/ballroom that we, the people will never see. It’s a disgusting display of ego. This administration has gone way too far.

I’m an architect, trained in historic preservation and have worked on projects like the remodel of Carnegie Hall.
The current proposal for the ballroom addition is still too massive compared to the central part of the Whitehouse and the detailing is a fascist take on classism. Start again! Wait till You have the right people to do the job and funding that has less strings attached.

Hello:

[redacted]

My name is Penny Jarrett. I was born and grew up on the outskirts of Washington, D.C. I personally think that Washington, D.C. is one of the most beautiful cities in the United States. The buildings are of simple but beautiful architecture and have sooo much meaning to them. What Donald Trump is doing to the White House and proposing for other construction, is appalling. How could he just "do that" without consent from you or Congress? PLEASE don't let him get away with him building this addition, gold plated monstrosity as it will be a replica of his "gold plated lifestyle" which is disgusting. Also, all the name changes and the horrible Arch that he wants to build. Enough! It will ruin D.C. D.C. is a city of monuments that have meaning for different wars, museums, and monuments to our country's legacy. PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE don't let him do any of these constructions!!!!!

Best Regards,
Penny Jarrett

Dear Review Committee,

[redacted]

The preservation of US History is vitally the preservation of buildings and monuments. The US White House is iconic throughout the world. It is regrettable that the East Wing of the building was destroyed without proper authorization. Any parallel destruction would make the violation of the destruction clear. Imagine tearing down a wing of the Elysee Palace (France), Kremlin (Russia) or The Presidential Complex (Turkey) without any input, review or approvals. The US White House is "the people's house", It does not belong to any of its temporary occupants (US Presidents and their families) to do with as they wish. The East Wing should be reinstated to its previous design. Short of that the Commission, Congress and other entities should exercise their rights to review and approve OR NOT any redesign of the iconic historic US WHite House. Modernization may be warranted, but not for such an out of scale addition and not for such a self-aggrandizing and unnecessary purpose. Please restore the People's House to its rightful place of dignity, history and purpose.

Sincerely,
KM O'Neill, Ed.D.

It is not “modernizing”, it is a serious destruction of U.S. Govt. property and should be punished the same as if done by any other persons ! The contractor should also have known how any such historic property can only be destroyed, by set rules and regulations and also be charged for this very serious violation!
Perhaps the “Trump friends” donations for the gilded ballroom, should be used to rebuild the East Wing!!
It is shocking and disgusting for a president to unilaterally undertake such a demolition. “Lock him up, lock him up, lock him up!”. It is unbelievable to watch the many laws he and his band of criminals violate with little responsibility to our democratic society built by our ancestors, our military who gave their lives and the many costs borne to build this country. I expect our Park Service and historic preservationists to prosecute to the full extent of the law , not join Trump in lawlessness.

Remember the East Wing of the White House? Remember the giant ballroom that the tech billionaires have agreed to fund in its place? The National Trust for Historic Preservation is making a gallant effort to stop this. And we can help.
Thanks to the National Trust, we have until March 4 to submit comments about the ballroom to the National Capital Planning Commission. You can make a comment through the link below (click on Submit Comment). PLEASE NOTE, the project is called East Wing Modernization on the pull down menu.

I want to express my dismay and anger at the destruction of the east wing of the White House. This country never wanted or needed a great ballroom, or any arch for that matter to be built.

The east wing needs to be rebuilt and restored to its former glory. I would also like to see something done about putting a rose garden in place to restore Jackie Kennedy's destroyed garden in some manner. Trump needs to pay the bill out of his own pocket. He has certainly grifted enough money while in the White House .

Trump is making the inside of the White House look gaudy and cheap with all of his gold. The line up of photos of ALL of the presidents is a nice touch providing each president is shown in a respectful and tasteful manner.

Thank you for your consideration in the East wing rebuilding project.

alongside of investors and developers, the fact that Trump doesn’t have to follow the rules and regulations of obtaining proper permits and permissions like the rest of us do, is absurd and unethical. So many other fires to put out in this world right now, and all he can talk about is his golden ballroom. Just so enfuriating.

Hello Commissioners,

We are writing to emphatically oppose the proposed Ballroom Project at the White House. It is appalling that the Trump Administration demolished the East Wing without regard to the history, without permission or oversight.. On that basis only, the building of the Ballroom should be tabled.

If the Ballroom is not tabled, the size, architecture and building plans should be agreed upon by groups such as The National Trust for Historic Preservation, other regulatory agencies and of course the Congress.

The financing of the Ballroom Project should also be carefully reviewed for conflicts of interest.

Thank you for stopping the Ballroom Project until the appropriate groups form a committee and make joint decisions regarding the scope of this project.

We also think that the Planning Commission should address the East Wing Demolition which was done without permits or approvals. We think that the Wing should be re-built prior to any funding going to the Ballroom.

Sincerely,

No one should OK this project. The tenant does not control what happens to the rental property, the landlord does, and the landlord in this instance is We The People of the United States of America. To destroy OUR property without prior permission and consent is theft and destruction of property. Such brazen disrespect should be punished, not rewarded. I demand restitution and restoration of OUR HOUSE.

The tenant should be evicted and forced to find accommodation elsewhere, as his conduct is criminal. I contend that it is a scheme to elicit bribes, and is wholly illegal. And as the tenant does not honor his tenancy, we should not honor the precedent of having him occupy the building during his term.

However, as this action is beyond the purview of the commission, I only stress, once again, that the White House must be rebuilt as was and his outlandish addition cancelled. We have already irreparably lost a 120 year old tree on the property as well as historic rose beds. No flagpoles should be added, no more concrete poured, no more structural damage allowed.

Dear Sir/Madam:

All work on building a structure on the site of the demolished East Wing should be stopped. The current administration did not follow the established process required to substantially change or redo national monuments, historical buildings, or the like. Therefore, the current administration cannot be trusted to repair the damage it senselessly caused and to do so in the legal/correct manner. Any funds collected for the rebuild should be frozen in place and unlocked only when the next administration comes into office and is committed to following the traditional processes that have been used for decades to make such changes.

Greetings,
I would like to know where the employees and board of this commission were when the wrecking ball and bulldozers arrived to tear down the East Wing of our White House. Did you have no warning at all? How could they sneak all that equipment in without anyone noticing? I am really sick about this unlawful and unnecessary destruction of a part of our history. A portion of the White House that held the heart of the people close is totally gone. The replacement of the beautiful East Wing with a tacky giant ballroom with no other relevant purpose but to stroke the ego of a narcissistic man is not viable. I oppose it. He will not pay for it. He never pays construction workers and contractors. You need to make him pay for the reconstruction of the East Wing as it was.

Dear [Recipient Name],

I am writing to express how distraught I am regarding the proposed destruction of the East Wing of the "People's House." While I understand that a larger space may be required, the President's current proposal is deeply problematic. This plan would render the most historic and significant parts of the White House inconspicuous and tiny.

Furthermore, the projected costs have already doubled. Even if private supporters were to cover the initial construction, the taxpayers would still be left to shoulder the ongoing burden of decorating, maintaining, and staffing such an expansive space. At a time when our nation struggles to feed the hungry or provide medical care for millions, we should not be prioritizing the construction of an enormous ballroom for entertaining.

I firmly believe we should not be building a ballroom or an arch that would detract from the beauty of our existing monuments dedicated to great Americans.

Thank you for your time and for considering my concerns on this matter.

The White House is not merely a residence—it is a symbol of our nation's continuity, democratic values, and shared history. The tearing down of “the people’s house” was done without input by the people let alone the legal proper authorities. The historic significance aside, there is no need for a ballroom that is not even to scale of the Whitehouse building. (not to mention this persons tacky taste) . The tearing down of the east wing further confirms Trumps disdain for women as this was the wing used by many first ladies. PLEASE DO NOT LET THIS HAPPEN 😵

Thanks to the National Trust, I can submit citizens feedback on the damaged property That belongs to the people, and was called the East wing of the White House.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding citizens. You may be one of the only guardrails left to help us redirect this ridiculous demonstration of power. If it turns out that we have to allow the president to continue the demolition and rebuild this huge project, the least we can do is make sure that the bunker underneath the ballroom does not contain nuclear codes or things that could put us in danger since we know that there’s now a risk that presidents will not be put out of office without a fight or without threats to the society. We need to have dual control somewhere else so that he could be overridden if anything that happens from down there.

The East Wing Modernization project is an out of scale waste of resources. By demolishing the East Wing, history was destroyed. The proposed Ballroom is out of scale to the White House, lacking taste or design. A total waste of money and an eyesore at our capitol.

It is my understanding that you have opened an investigation into the destruction of the East Wing of the White House .First of all, I am glad you stepped in. The demolition should never have happened and is a disgrace. The fact that Trump wants to build a gignantic ballroom when that money could be used to house the homeless or any number of positive endeavors is sickening. I hope the law will be on the side of preservation and not on his further destruction and changes in the people's house. Thank you for all you are doing.

This project should not be approved. From its inception, it has been in violation of all regulations, laws, approval processes, reviews.
Its funding through private "donations" should be enough to ensure its denial.
The current administration should be required to foot the bill for the East Wing's destruction and for its rebuilding in the same design as the original.

The disgraceful demolition of the East Wing of the White House or People's House should be investigated. All construction of a hideous ball room halted. All the people responsible should be fined, held responsible and severely punished.
I feel like I live in a third world country where the new leaders destroy all history and replace it with their personal monuments. This was an evil deed committed by an evil administration intent on profaning some of America's most revered institutions and buildings. STOP the madness and the trauma.

The east wing was demolished outside of the procedures required by our government protocols and laws. As such, it was done by the person Donald Trump, not the presidency. In order to be done by the president it needed to go through government channels and designated protocols in order to preserve historic sites as well as meet with the approval of the people, who, as citizens, have the right to inform decisions about our property. This, since the decision was made outside of governmental channels, Donald Trump should restore the damaged building at his expense. If proper channels for THAT must be followed, he can pat the costs of the civil suit against him as well as any costs associated with restoring the east wing to its previous condition.

The current President's plan for tearing down the East Wing (and the destruction that has already been wrought) are both horrifying and illegal.

Although the White House has served as a temporary home for incumbent US Presidents since 1800, this National Historic Landmark and National Park is owned by the American people. No US President is the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight was clearly illegal. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing back to its former size and design. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

As a pre-teen, back in the 20th century, I was taken by my Aunt & Uncle to visit the White House. I was told it was the People's House, as I'm sure we all were back then. It's how I always thought of it, until last summer, when the East Wing was suddenly demolished by President Trump, without any permission or input, with total disregard of what the White House means to the American people.

And after, of course, President Trump had promised that nothing would be destroyed for him to build his ballroom.

I am among the many who would like to see the East Wing rebuilt, restored to what it was. If a covered passageway needs to be built from the East Wing to a new ballroom, why then of course - after the proper review and pre-planning - build the necessary passageway or extension from the restored East Wing. And any new ballroom must be approved by the NCPC, and be an appropriate size to compliment the White House.

In addition, the new ballroom is being funded by private donors. It will not be part of the People's House, but a private corporate structure. This feels wrong, it is wrong. There should be transparency to all of the planning and funding.

The White House is a shared civic symbol of the United States of America. It is not the private property of any one administration and should be, needs to be, treated as such. With oversight and standards expected for any other federally significant project. I was so used to seeing the White House that I did not realize how much it meant to me, until I saw pictures of the East Wing demolished. It broke my heart.

I support an enforceable stop work order on any changes to publicly owned properties that have not obtained permits in advance from the proper jurisdictions. Permitting procedures should utilize the accepted guidelines for changes and additions to historic buildings seeking approvals as traditionally apply to public and private property and particularly to the White House compound and all public and private historic buildings in Washington DC.

Because the current president's project proceeded with disregard of all the above safeguards and because the current situation of the White House and immediate surrounding grounds is untenable, I support an addition to the White House that does not overwhelm the historic structure and is built to complimentary scale. In addition, I do not support gold gilding of any sort as part of the finish material unless specifically suggested by a committee of known, respected, architectural historians skilled in such matters of design and who are acceptable to the National Trust of Historic Places.

Thank you.

Thanks to the National Trust, we have until March 4 to submit comments about the ballroom to the National Capital Planning Commission. You can make a comment through the link below (click on Submit Comment). PLEASE NOTE, the project is called East Wing Modernization on the pull down menu.

I emphatically oppose the destruction of the east wing of the White House and any effort by the current administration to replace it with a “big beautiful ballroom “! The bulldozing of a historic building without any oversight, proper planning and permitting, shows the lack of respect for America, its history, and its people! What a travesty this is and will always be remembered as a sad day in history.
This vanity project must be stopped immediately and the East wing must be rebuilt in its entirety! Like a phoenix rising from the ashes!
Thank you,
Chris Jack

With Respect:

I am commenting on the East Wing Modernization Project. It is difficult to discuss the Project without recalling President Trump's attempts to interject himself (or even just his name) into national cultural heritage as an authority on interior decoration, architectural design, construction, renovation, as well as the Arts and battleship production.

Affairs of state (leadership and oversight of party politics, legislation, budget issues, foreign policy formulation and frequently hosting and/or visiting foreign dignitaries, etc.) burden President Trump greatly. To underline his impressive skills, he needs some guidance to avoid tasks in fields that require skills he simply does not possess. Architecture is one of those fields. A review board should provide that direction.

Certainly, he must acknowledge that the White House was not his private architecture/property due to his election; the U.S. government owns and/or supplies housing or offices for officials around the country and world. The bulldozer attack on the White House shot in the media at the public which he serves did not project a sober understanding of his responsibility to our citizens. An outsized, supremely grandiose project will not allow U.S. citizens to forget that slight.

The White House through the years has projected a symbolic message of sobriety and responsibility to World Leaders. Those of lasting reputation certainly valued thoughtful conversation and power far above display of wealth and conceits that have been laid before them in other countries. A White House host shows wisdom when he/she displays with pride a pedigree of conscience and human concern. U.S. quiet power and dignity does not need displays of opulence. The use of a classical style in a building of immense proportions will evoke laugh and ridicule - but that is an opulence he has chosen. It is out of place both next to the White House and in Washington, DC — itself a national capital modest in size.

I believe that fulfilling your responsibilities as a Commission Member is to help President Trump understand the bizarre size of his proposed ballroom and glaring reference to classical culture simply does not project a relevant cultural portrait of the United States. He would have been wise to seek and listen to neutral judgement of its merits, and hold off on leveling an existing building long embraced by the Public.

I sincerely thank you for your service on the Commission.

Thomas Carmichael

The White House belongs to all Americans. It should not be subjected to the whims of one individual, with questionable motives, no foresight, no sense of decorum, no interest in our shared history. I am troubled by what has been demolished--not just the structure, but the contents of historical value. I oppose spending $300 billion on this project, which should not have been allowed to start in the first place. The project should be stopped and not allowed to move forward.Rather, the East Wing should be rebuilt to its former specifications without use of taxpayer dollars!

The destruction of the East Wing of the White House was a travesty. The Presidents occupying "our country's home" away from their personal home have normally followed guidance from the National Park Service, the White House Historical Association and the National Trust for Historic Preservation for any changes. This was not done. Please do not fund or approve changes to this historical American landmark. I oppose the spending of $300 million+ on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. It disgusts me that this has happened - our house has been desecrated...why?

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States. All past presidents understood this, but DT is the one that chooses to tear down what is not his.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

This project started without approval from the National Capital Planning Commission, without the required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization. The $400 million in costs is being fronted by corporations, creating a conflict of interest. This is not how projects in the United States of America are supposed to be run.

The White House is the people's house. It belongs to the American people, and our representatives have enacted laws governing how restoration and modernization projects are to be approved. No president should be able to make this decision single-handedly.

The plans are way too fancy for the White House. It stands for the USA as it was and is. Simple and plain. Not like a Middle East colossal palace. It's a House. Trump asks. No one. He does as he wants. He alone. Let's continue the charm that the White House has.

I am against the new ballroom, primarily because of process. The US is built on integrity and following the laws. We all have to through a permitting process to build a house, and even an addition to a house. The President seemed to follow only a whim before the bulldozers came. It is The Commission's job to address and control this for the Good of the People you serve. That is all the US citizens.

Thank you.

This project was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not what Americans want for the White House, the house of the people. The White House is a place to conduct business and is steeped in historical importance as a landmark of American ideals not a party venue. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

Hello, I am adamantly against the Mr Trump east wing modernization! I do not want a gold monstrosity. I liked the former east wing. The tearing down is a national tragedy. Do NOT do any further action! Leave it alone; leave the debris even! I do not trust this administration. The people of the United States are owed the opportunity to mourn and see this tragedy. Please leave the destruction as it is.
Thank you.

I am writing to comment on the “East Wing Modernization Project.” First of all, the name of this project is misleading. The East Wing is gone, and what is being proposed (and built) has nothing to do with the original East Wing of the White House.

The proposed ballroom, which would replace the East Wing of the White House, defies the government's own standards for additions to historic buildings. It is the same height as the White House and its sheer size, totally out of scale for the property, makes the White House look like a quaint addition. It mimics the architectural design of the White House instead of representing its own time period. It is obvious that this project was designed with only one thing in mind – the personal taste and desires of the president. The design ignores the context – The White House Complex, which is a National Historic Landmark (the highest designation for historic buildings in the U.S.) and a National Park.

I worked in historic preservation my entire career and worked with hundreds of Americans who strove to do their best to preserve our heritage, sometimes at significant cost to themselves. Now we have the president of the United States tearing down the East Wing of the White House, the People's House, without bothering to even get a permit. It is an insult to all Americans that the president has wantonly destroyed one of our most cherished historic landmarks and is building a hideous, 90,000-square-foot, $400 million monument to himself. One person should not be allowed to impose their personal taste on a property that belongs to all Americans. This project should have been offered to the public and experts in historic preservation for ideas and review long before the East Wing was demolished.

If allowed to be built as planned, the White House, a symbol of our democracy, will be overpowered by a monument to the super-wealthy leisure class. This is especially inappropriate when a majority of Americans are suffering from lack of adequate food, shelter, education and healthcare. I adamantly oppose this project.

I am opposed to this project because it did not adhere to proper permits and design reviews by the Historical Preservation society that protects our National treasures. The White House is the temporary residence of the US President, who is hired by the People to execute the executive branch of the government. The occupant does not have the right to unilaterally destroy any part of the building. The funding for repair and restoration of the building and for all expenses already undertaken in the destruction should be charged to Donald J Trump. (Imagine if I moved into Trump tower & started tearing down walls j. Cease and desist on absurd plans for a glass ballroom that would be a snipers dream. The White House represents more than a residency for the President and his family, the White House represents an American Dream of equality. Anyone can grow up and aspire to live in the White House. All funding for this ballroom project should be used to restore balance to the people's house.
Thank you for seriously attending to this matter. The destruction of National Monuments must be taken seriously and should be punished by lawful execution of said laws.

This project has no merit historically, architecturally, or fiscally. The project is on the site of the illegally demolished East Wing and like that demolition, has been carried out in defiance of proper channels. Its enormous scale is utterly wrong given its siting adjacent to the White House proper. Its cost is outrageous. The entire "modernization" is a gross insult to the history and decorum of the People's House and to the American taxpayers who will be paying for it, should it come to completion.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

I would love for the former east wing to be returned to its glory, tho that hardly seems possible. If this must go forward, the architecture and design should be in keeping with the rest of the White House- the PEOPLE'S house, not the house of any president occupying temporary residence.

Two words come to mind when reviewing this ill-advised design: SCALE and BALANCE. This design fails miserably with both concepts. The historic revered Whitehouse should not be diminished by a party venue. Bigger is not better and size matters. Every administration before this one has understood the importance of the Whitehouse as icon and resisted the urge to have a giant ballroom. This is a vanity project pure and simple and a pay to play event. The east wing should be reconstructed to balance and complement the existing historic home, not overwhelm it.

I wholeheartedly object to it's replacement with a proposed massive Trump ballroom which would entirely ruin the character and proportions of the White House as a whole.
The American People deserve better than the tasteless aggrandizement and tarnishing of the People's House as a hideous monument to the ego of the most self-absorbed and worst President in our nation's history.
Regardless of the source of funding for the project, please reject the massive ballroom project proposed by the Trump Administration. Instead, design a renovation of the East Wing that honors the history, character and proportions of the White House to serve the American people and future Presidents and administrations which will use it for the benefit of the country (not for their own corrupt and greedy purposes).

I am a proud 71 year old American who believes in the importance of history. Therefore, I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one , male or female, white or black or brown that is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.
Thank you

I oppose the East Wing Modernization project. It was not planned, there was no collaboration with appropriate agencies, and this country does not need a huge ballroom. The demolition erased an important part of our history. I would like the historical East Wing rebuilt, preferably without using public tax dollars. Perhaps the donations could fun the rebuilding.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

Please don't allow the proposed ballroom to be built. It was devastating when the east wing was torn down. They did so without any approval and now this egregiously designed "ballroom" that they want to build in its place is an absolute slap in the face of democracy. The building should be restored to its original design. No private donations should be allowed to fund our public buildings. I understand Trump doesn't understand a democratic government but that's too bad. Thank you for allowing me to speak.

The East Wing should not have been destroyed before we had a say in the atrocious plans for its replacement. As an American I am appalled at the attempt of our president to remake, rename, and rebrand our shared landmarks that ,like the grandeur of our natural parks, are meant to be preserved for all future generations. From renaming the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, to wanting to add his image to Mt. Rushmore, renaming Airports, Train Stations and on and on we are witnessing an attempt of an Authoritarian self aggrandizement.

The way he has bulldozed the East Wing, paved over the Jacqueline Kennedy Rose Garden, plastered tacky gold plated tchotchkes all over the interior of the White House prove that in addition to seeing himself above any restraints he has no respect for the American People.I urge you to take control of the design of the new East Wing. A new event space isn't totally irrational, given the destruction of the existing structure of the East Wing. Allowing a narcissistic man-child with the design sense of a used car salesman to control the design process absurd.

The world looked on with horror and a broken heart as the Notre Dame Cathedral burned in Paris. To my mind that day was as devastating as 9/11 or the Challenger disaster in 1986. My faith in Humanity was restored when I saw the resurrection of that historic treasure. It is a gift to all the world. What must the world think when it sees the sad low our institutions, our history, our cultural identity have sunk to.

I implore you to not be a willing participant in the desecration of the People's House.

He has no more say regarding the construction or destruction of a national historic treasure than any other American.

However, with this precedent set it warms my heart to think that in four years wrecking balls and bulldozers can erase the abominable stain on our property just as easily as the historic East Wing was erased by the current president. Jackhammers and bulldozers aren't partisan. \u-10179 ?\u-8638 ?

I think that the proposed design for the reconstructed East Wing is a complete travesty. It is both garish and vulgar and does not mesh well with the beautiful, elegant and historical structure of the White House. I would like to see the East Wing rebuilt in the same way that it looked before it was wantonly destroyed and only updated to be in accordance with modern standards and materials. I especially deplore the immense size proposed for this travesty of a ballroom. I do not agree to having my taxpayer dollars pay for such a vanity project.

Trumps proposed plan for the East Wing of the White House should not be allowed to move forward. The scale of the project is ridiculous and not appropriate for the space. Trump has thumbed his nose at the legal requirements and review processes that are in place to protect the PEOPLE'S HOUSE from destruction by those who seek to impose their ideas when they are only temporary occupants.
Not only should Trumps ludicrous plans not be allowed to move forward, but he should also be held financially responsible for returning the East Wing to it's previous condition and should face legal charges for his actions.

Furthermore we have no knowledge of the condition or storage or destruction of the art, furniture and memorabilia that was in the East Wing. This travesty must be corrected. The East Wing must be restored to its former glory and if a few modifications are needed...fine...but this total teardown in unacceptable. Dear Members of the Commission,

When I first became aware of the bulldozing of the East Wing of the White House I was horrified to the point of feeling sick in my stomach. All I could think of was the lost history of this important part of the White House -the People's House.

For a time I lived in Washington DC when people could arrange a tour of the inside including this public space. It was awe inspiring and made me proud of my country. What has transpired is a desecration of the People's House.

I vehemently oppose the destruction of the East Wing, that commenced unlawfully and was an ethically despicable act committed against our history. There were no legal documents acquired or commission to vote and approve this construction.
Furthermore, it is an insult to the people of this country who pay taxes and each and everyone of us are apart of this historic house. It does not belong to this egocentric dictator. We want it fully restored to its original glory at Trumps expense.

I was shocked and appalled when heavy machinery demolished a portion of the White House with no warning, no oversight, and no input from the NCPC and the CFA; I do not support the construction of any addition in the place of the East Wing that justifies overstepping those boundaries. The current president ought to be held accountable for such a bad decision, and made to pay for damages to the East Wing. The most important part of the project to me is that it continues to reflect the historic significance of the White House as not just the home of our Executive, but as a symbol of our country. Since Washington stepped down, a hallmark of our presidents has been the peaceful transfer of power from one administration to the next, and, regardless of personal politics, each president before now has respected the guardrails of the office. Therefore, I do not support any changes to the White House that overtly promote or aggrandize the current president in any way. Modernization is acceptable, as long as it maintains the same look as the rest of the building and does not stand out as an eyesore.

I am opposed to the wanton destruction of the historic East Wing of the White House. This is the people's house, occupied temporarily by each president in turn, and does not belong to any individual president. This project should be stopped immediately and subjected to review by all relevant historic preservation commissions. Also, whatever is built now should NOT overshadow the rest of the building. It must remain in proportion to the architectural environment, and should be appropriately American, not a monarchical gilt encrusted showpiece. Also, the gold flourished recently added to the White House are tasteless and are an embarrassment to our democratic ideals. They must be removed.

Dear Members of the Commission,
When I first became aware of the bulldozing of the East Wing of the White House I was horrified to the point of feeling sick in my stomach. All I could think of was the lost history of this important part of the White House -the People's House. For a time I lived in Washington DC when people could arrange a tour of the inside including this public space. It was awe inspiring and made me proud of my country. What has transpired is a desecration of the People's House.

I want the East Wing of the White House to be restored. It was never properly authorized. It is/was a valuable section of the White House and held a piece of our American history. Furthermore, I believe the cost to build the obscene ballroom, will run way over the projected 300 million pricetag. And nevertheless, the last thing we need to add to the White House is an obscenely oversized ballroom. It is an affront to the citizens of America. It is not for the citizens of America. It will not enhance, nor appear as a piece of pride.
I would liken this ballroom to something of the Golden Cow... idol worship, and without purpose.
The Trump improvements to the White House, are not improvements. The are pure gaudy tasteless and not representative of our heritage or people.
Short version--it is an abhorrent insult.

It was wrong to demolish the East Wing without going through the required procedure. The new construction should match the appearance of the building that was there previously, with very little change. For example, while I would not support an extra floor, it could be a much as 5' taller, if that would not impact the White House. In building the new structure there, it is the visual relationship of the new building to the White House that is of paramount importance to me, and I believe, to most of the American public.

Whatever is not visible, like basement(s), could be larger if necessary.

I cannot support allocating $300 million to a project that began without the required authorization, permits, or design review. A decision of this scale deserves transparency and public accountability. What is being presented as a modernization effort is, in reality, the removal of a significant piece of American history. Preserving our heritage matters, and once it is gone, it cannot be replaced.

For these reasons, I believe the project should be halted and the East Wing restored to its original design. Upholding the law is essential to maintaining public trust, and allowing this project to proceed without addressing the violations involved would send the wrong message to every American who plays by the rules. Responsible stewardship of public resources and respect for our shared history should guide the path forward.

I believe this project is against the wishes of the people. When the east wing was demolished without any plans or authorization it was an illegal act.

The size of the planned ballroom is out of line with the existing structures and should not proceed.

The secrecy regarding the monies that are to be used make these donations appear to be given for political favor.

This project should be cancelled and any monies collected need to be used to restore the East wing back to its design before this illegal demolition occurred.

Since the East Wing was illegally torn down by the President it, he should pay to rebuild it. The ballroom as currently depicted is way to big. The White House is the main building and should never be overshadowed. This building will do just that. Why would any event need to accommodate 999 people. Asking for donations to build it is just inviting corruption and is nothing more than a pay to play endeavor. I strongly appose this project.

I am writing to oppose approval of the East Wing Modernization Project as currently proposed. The rendering provided at this time appears to be inconsistent with the current structure and architecture of the White House. (Actually previous structure and architecture, since the East Wing has already been demolished without public comment or approval of the NPS). Since the White House belongs to the American people not the temporary resident, it is inappropriate for any president to demolish or significantly change the structure and architecture without approval of the NPS and input from the American people.

The plan should be carefully reviewed and altered if determined that the proposed structure does not complement the remaining structure. Since the president claims that private donors are funding this addition, perhaps it could be constructed at Mara Largo as the proposed design appears more consistent with the architecture of this venue.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my concerns and your consideration of my comments.

I am an American citizen with roots on this continent that go back to before this country was founded. The preservation of our nation's history, historic places, and natural areas is of utmost importance to me. The historic sites of Washington, DC, are at the heart of our historic preservation movement, and the White House, as a symbol of our nation, is one of the most important historic buildings in our country. It holds the highest honor possible of being a National Historic Landmark while also serving as a National Park. The destruction of the East Wing of the White House without any oversight, without any public comment, was a completely illegal action. The concept that a ballroom is wanted or needed is completely false, and all proposals for what will be constructed in place of the East Wing are fully out of appropriate scale and design. The White House is owned by the people of the United States, and this citizen is opposed to the unchecked destruction of the East Wing of the White House, and I am opposed to any reconstruction that doesn't involve rebuilding the White House back to exactly what it was.

This project is an abomination and must be stopped. The brazen destruction of the East Wing without any permits or permissions, without any consultation of appropriate historical preservation organizations, let alone the People of the United States, was reprehensible.
There is no need for a ballroom. Our government has no need for lavish parties, especially when it can't even fund health care and one of its goals is decommissioning the Department of Education.
It does need office space, and safety facilities, but a ballroom, that's a hard no.

The East Wing was part of our nation's history. It's the heart and soul of the White House. The decision to tear it down without any input from the public or preservation groups was disrespectful to the entire country. This is the people's house, not the current president's pet project.

There are many other options for an event space. I request that the East Wing be built back to its original footprint and specifications. The modernization can be implemented through new and ecologically friendly materials. I also request that all previous furnishings and art be replaced.

In no way should a ballroom be built in place of the historic East Wing. Doing so is an insult to the American people.

I am against the spending of $300 million on this project no matter where the money comes from (either taxpayer money or private funds). It was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. And yet the destruction of the East Wing goes on.

The pretense that this is a "modernization project" is laughable. Nowhere can we find any study that resulted in a recommendation that there is a need for a ballroom, not to mention one attached to the East Wing.

The president broke the law. Originally he presented a plan for a free-standing ballroom. Then, suddenly, his plan was to attach it to the White House East Wing. He then brought in a wrecking crew and destroyed the East Wing, without any prior authorization.

This is a complete destruction of American history.

Because no authorization was given, because no permits were issued. and because no person or agency approved the final design, this project must be canceled AND the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design.

No one is above the law, and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law is an insult to all law-abiding Americans.

"I oppose the spending of any money on this project, which was initiated without proper authorization, permits, or design review. Somehow, we've managed to survive 250 years without a "grand ballroom" to rival the Palace at Versailles and if this country survives another 250 years, we'd still be fine without this affront to democracy. Meanwhile, US citizens are homeless, starving, sick and without access to affordable healthcare. If someone wants to invest millions of dollars to impress the leaders of other countries, it should be used to show the world that the United States cares about its own people. I want this project cancelled."

this project must be stopped. The white house is the people's house and needs to be treated with reverence. The demolition was an illegal power grab by the current administration. Any construction at this site must be done with careful planning and all processes must be adhered to. We don't need a gold ballroom with tacky embellishments by a soon to be impeached president. This should noit be a political pawn for the people of America to have to sit idly by and witness. STOP this project now. It's unfortunate that it was illegally destroyed, it will be more unfortunate if it is allowed to be constructed without going through proper channels.

I oppose this project, which has been undertaken without regard to lawful process. I believe it to be a large scale exercise in vanity and caprice, one which embodies a violent rejection of history, culture and architectural value. By demolishing the East Wing before proper review and discussion could take place, the nation had been handed a brutal fait accompli in brazen defiance of law and propriety. That the project is supposedly funded by parties with business before the administrative arm of government only makes it more abhorrent.

As a people's house it should be voted on by the people on whether to tear down replace rebuild or add new buildings and so I hope you take these comments seriously. As a retired US History teacher who has ancestors who fought for our republic in every conflict in our nation's history for the idea of democracy and the rule of law, I strongly believe that the unlawful destruction of the East Wing of the White House is an affront to our country's collective memory. I taught my students to respect the meaning of democracy and the symbolic value of the preservation of our past. To do anything besides reconstruct the East Wing as close to what it was would be the destruction of our collective heritage. I once had the honor of taking a tour through the public areas of the East Wing, and it is a memory that I cherish and will forever remember. To deny that to our future generations would destroy the idea of liberty and freedom that the People's House represents. A ballroom can be built elsewhere. History cannot be bulldozed. I oppose with all my being the construction of an architectural abomination upon hallowed memory.

Just bulldozers and wrecking balls.

This project should be halted immediately and a comprehensive review and investigation started, also immediately.
Many different designs and engineering plans submitted making sure the future of the East Wing is consistent with the history of the remaining parts of the White House, with deference placed toward a complete restoration as it was originally.

The destruction of the East Wing without approval of the historic commission was a destruction of the People House. It is not the president's house, he is just a tenant. All work on the White House should follow the standards set up for it, via commissions and permits. The proposed plan for the ball room is an abomination signifying nothing but arrogance and greed. The fact that it is to be paid for by "private donations" screens but offs and bribes. There is no need for a gilded monument to the current president, or a convention hall for greed in the People's House. Appropriate architecture, necessary improvement on scale with the property, and payment through the traditional means should be the focus. Tacky gold leaf and pillars cannot mask poor planning. Anything built in this model will one day be removed. Let's not waste all of our time and money on narcissism.

I am disgusted and heartbroken that our history has been so cruelly disrespected and trampled on. I am all for modernization that makes spaces more accessible and embraces new ideas while acknowledging tradition--but this is not that. The fact that work on this project went ahead without any permits or approval is reason enough to shut down the whole project immediately. What kind of message does that send the American people if we allow people to blatantly break the law without consequence? Are we a country that can just be bought by the highest bidder? I wish to object to the construction of a ballroom on the grounds of the White House. The demolition of part of the People's House was done without permit, and those ordering the destruction of an important landmark should be punished the same way any other citizen would if they initiated a construction project without going through the permitting process.
A ballroom is unnecessary, wasteful and will prove to be an eyesore that dwarfs the majestic and historic White House. I strongly urge that the project be blocked and something aesthetically similar to the former East Wing be built.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns. It should be restored to its previous state. Preservation and history is important! If we need a ballroom it should be built somewhere else on the grounds. I do not think we need one. We've managed almost 250 years without one!

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I am writing to oppose the construction of the White House Ballroom. The beautiful White House belongs to US - the people of the United States, NOT one person. Demolishing a portion of our beautiful house (the PEOPLE"S house), without approval, environmental assessments, congressional authorization or public input was and is completely unacceptable!

The fact that it is bankrolled by huge private companies, all of which have federal contracts, creates an enormous conflict of interest. Additionally, the White House already has a beautiful ballroom. The American people did not ask for and do not want an enormous ballroom that dwarfs "our" house. This project should never have happened and should not proceed unless all the required approvals are granted.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

The East Wing will be rebuilt and that ballroom which would overwhelm the White House will be removed. The food court will be removed and the rose garden restored. The sooner all that is done, the less expensive it will be, but it will be done. The money for the restoration will come from the general public, not the billionaires.

The White House is OUR house. Temporary residents are leasees. Accordingly, no lessor should be rewarded for destroying any portion of OUR HOUSE.
If the current “developer resident” thinks DC needs an event center, he is welcome to build one off-WH grounds.
Meanwhile, I ask that the East Wing be rebuilt to exactly what it is supposed to be. But not to begin before 2029. It was never a “golden “ palace. Restoring to original means just that. Crusty, gaudy has no place there.
I beg you. Deny this monstrous act.

No money, especially tax payer money, should be spent to build an addition to the White House that involves an over sized and unnecessary ballroom. The White House is one of ours national treasures. It should never be demolished like it is now. It is imperative to preserve the White House as it was. It is not his house it's belongs to this country. I believe my opinion is very much the consensus of the people, to put back as it was.
I also believe the hall way that has the horrible pictures of the president and the narrative, should be removed immediately!! Plus put back the rose garden. The American people do not want to see anything he has done to cheapen the People's house.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

Thank you for your attention to this matter!

Additionally, the White House belongs to the American people, not the current resident of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. The White House is also known as The People's House. It is an office building and a home. There has never been a need for it to be a garish or grandiose place. Spaces for necessary events have been sufficient for decades and if there is a need for a change it should not a political one. Any decisions regarding substantial renovations or demolitions should be carefully considered ahead of time and based on detailed plans. Plans should complement and not overshadow or dwarf the current structure. Any decision to move forward on any project should not be a unilateral one.

If we allow this project, which involves the illegal and premature destruction of something all Americans should consider a part of our history and a gift from the American people to our government, to continue, it seems only fair that all Americans should be subject to the same freedoms. All construction permits, SEPA, NEPA, and all other regulations related to land clearing, demolition, and development should be considered null and void. All fees, fines, and other penalties incurred by those who successfully attained, or those who failed to acquire proper permits and approvals should be repaid in full, and should include additional compensation for the wasted efforts, money, and mental fatigue spent performing a ritual that apparently has no real significance or material relevance to our government.

These actions in any other scenario, and by any other agent, would result in penalties including jail time. If these actions are allowed to continue, it can be reasonably surmised that the basis of these regulations are at best hypocritical, and at worst are a blatant signal that we truly have no say in the actions of our supposedly representative democracy.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal. This would be a horrible precedent to set for the future of our country an it's structured.

How was this demolition allowed to happen??

The person responsible for this should be forced to rebuild an exact replica of the East Wing before it was torn down, using they own personal funds.

Absolutely unbelievable this wasn't stopped before the building was destroyed.

I would like to write in support of making the White House and the East Wing historical monuments, which would require any changes to the buildings to be reviewed and passed by committee, not just the Presid,ent of the U.S. And, the committee should not be selected by the President; it should remain a strictly non-political group of architects, historians, and planners. What President Trump has done so far to the White House and grounds is egregious and without respect for any historical context. The protection of these historical buildings should not be changed at the whim of any president.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion

I am furious that the current temporary inhabitant of the White House has acted as if he had the right to destroy a wing of the building before even submitting a plan, let alone getting approval, for its replacement. Although it would serve him right to have to look at the hole he made for as long as he remains there, that might not best serve the people, the owners of the place.
I ask that there be an independent study of what the true needs and purposes should be for a replacement for the destroyed East Wing. Once that has been determined, there must be a request for proposals for a replacement consistent with the results of that study. Submitted proposals must be reviewed and ranked by persons with relevant qualifications for the task. Any funding must come through the regular budgetary process, not bribes paid by billionaire businessmen to the current inhabitant.
Any persons appointed to the commission by the current inhabitant must not be allowed to participate at any stage in the study or the selection of the winning proposal; they clearly were selected for their loyalty not relevant expertise. It seems that ex officio members typically do not participate in the regular business of the commission, nevertheless, Defense Secretary Hegseth and Representative Comer have demonstrated their complete and utter inability to serve the people in a strictly nonpartisan manner.
Chairman Will Scharf must resign. The idea that demolition didn't require permission and could proceed without an APPROVED design for a replacement is beyond preposterous.

If Trump wants to build glory to himself, he should obtain a permit like the rest of the country does. He is not above the law. I don't care that. He raised private funds to build this ballroom. It is not in the American tradition and is designed in the old European style that honors kings and royalty rather than real American values and people. I oppose spending $300 million (no matter where the money originated) on this project which was initiated without the proper authorization or permits. This is not a “modernization” project, this is a completely illegal destruction of a part of the PEOPLE’S house, and razing part of the country’s history, by someone who had NO authority to do so. I want this project cancelled and the East Wing completely rebuilt and restored to its former design, using the money donated for the “modernization” (NOT taxpayer funding!) To allow this illegal project to go forward with no accountability of those who broke the law is an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

Trump should have to pay to fix this mess he made and not one dime of taxpayer money!

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

While the demolition has occurred, there is still an opportunity to ensure this historic building will be honored properly. My fear is without the Planning Commission oversight the building will become an architectural nightmare.

The east wing was demolished without proper applications, permits, and documentation required by law. As much as I would like to be silly about it (“install hypocaustic floors” or “make it an aquarium”), I think the building should be restored to look like it was, but brought up to code for safety and accessibility. I also think the people who ordered its destruction prematurely should be fined. Heavily. The whole situation amounts to pretty extreme vandalism of a historic building.

I am Elias, and I am 15 years old. I personally believe that we should not turn the east wing into a ballroom, but rather into a museum open to the public. I think it would be very interesting to be able to visit the White House itself. You could display different movements in American history and show that our country and government genuinely care about civil rights and minorities, such as Jewish people, women, and LGBTQIA+ members. While I firmly believe that President Trump believes minorities matter, I can name hundreds of students at my school who do not agree that Trump cares about people. The museum could start with some exhibits from outside the country, like the Vietnamese protests during the Vietnam War. As you move closer to the main part of the White House, you could highlight major movements like Black Lives Matter and Antisemitism—the issues with the highest hate crime rates per one million people. Of course, this idea would need to be refined and planned out better, but I think it would be a great way to preserve the historical significance of the east wing and demonstrate that the USA cares about minorities.

I strongly oppose the demolition of the historic East Wing. Any changes to "the People's House" should be done in a transparent manner with approval from the agencies that oversee such work. Destroying this historic building unilaterally is a horrible action. There is also the problem of using private funds for this, thus encouraging those who wish to curry favor with the current administration to donate. There are preservation concerns and environmental concerns. Such alterations should be done with the same oversight as other federal projects. This is not the president's private resident or his own house. He merely lives there while in office. There needs to be some respect.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and the most iconic symbol of American democracy. It has been the home of presidents since 1800 and belongs not to any temporary occupant but to the American people in perpetuity. The current president is, in the most meaningful sense, a tenant — entrusted with the stewardship of a national treasure, not licensed to alter it beyond recognition.

The demolition of the historic East Wing — conducted without prior submission to the National Capital Planning Commission, without Commission of Fine Arts review, and without Congressional authorization as required by federal statute — was a unilateral act that defied the legal framework designed to protect this irreplaceable property. The claim that portions of the project were of "top secret nature" does not explain or excuse the failure to obtain required approvals before demolition began. Previous administrations, including this one in its first term, participated in required review processes as a matter of course. That precedent was abandoned here without justification.

The proposed replacement — a 90,000-square-foot ballroom nearly twice the footprint of the White House itself, rising to match the height of the historic mansion — is not an addition. It is a supplanting. The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation are unambiguous: new construction affecting historic properties must be compatible with existing massing, size, and scale, and must be subordinate to the original structure. The proposed ballroom fails this standard by any reasonable measure.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to exercise its full authority and independence in this review. Any construction approved on the demolition site must be genuinely compatible in form and demonstrably subordinate in scale to the original Executive Mansion. The American people were given no opportunity to comment before the East Wing was destroyed. This review is, at minimum, the process they are owed — and it must be conducted with the rigor and independence the law requires and the People's House deserves.

To the National Capital Planning Commission,

My name is Elizabeth Welch, and I am a graduate student at Goucher College's MA in Historic Preservation program I'm writing to give public comment on the White House Ballroom Construction Project. The White House is "The People's House," a living symbol of American democracy that belongs to the nation, not to any single individual or administration. The recent demolition of the East Wing and East Colonnade, leveled in just three days in October 2025, represents a reckless departure from the stewardship such a landmark deserves. This haphazard destruction of historic fabric, conducted with little regard for materials and no prior formal review, sets a dangerous precedent for our nation's most iconic civic sites.
While a modernized ballroom has been proposed to keep the executive residence a "beacon of American excellence," such excellence must be built on a foundation of transparency and respect for our shared history. Currently, the proposed 90,000 square foot ballroom threatens to dwarf the Executive Residence, fundamentally altering the architectural character and visual balance of the White House complex. Any new construction of this scale must be designed with rigorous oversight to ensure it harmonizes with the proportions of the historic residence rather than overwhelming it.
Furthermore, it is imperative that the NCPC and CFA demand clear, updated plans to protect the archaeological resources and the structural integrity of the main house during construction. The preservation of our national heritage is a core value. Fiscal responsibility and the defense of American institutions require us to protect the tangible history of the Republic from impulsive, non-transparent modifications. We must ensure that this project does not result in the permanent loss of the very history that makes the White House a symbol of our national continuity and excellence. Please consider scaling the Ballroom down and matching the architectural style of the Executive Residence. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Welch

The destruction of the East Wing to make way for a massive ballroom is deeply troubling. The White House is not merely a residence or event space — it is a living symbol of American history and continuity. Altering its architectural integrity for what many see as a vanity project risks diminishing the dignity and heritage embedded in its design.

Dear National Capital Planning Commission:

Regarding the so-called "East Wing Modernization Project," I wish to state that this is not a legitimate modernization but rather an exercise in self-absorption and egomania illegally initiated by Donald Trump. In his machinations to impose a tasteless ballroom onto the White House grounds, he purposely misled the American People regarding the protection of the East Wing during construction. Instead, he soon had it torn down before the sun had even risen, before his actions could be challenged by the design board. I strongly oppose the expenditure of $300 to $400 million on a project initiated without proper authorization, permits, or design reviews. The fact that the funds are donated is irrelevant; any money directed toward this project should be treated as a bribe. These resources, instead, should be used exclusively to rebuild the East Wing to its exact original state. This monstrous ballroom represents the complete razing of American history rather than an update, and it should be cancelled or, at a minimum, significantly reduced in size. Furthermore, no second story should be added to the West Wing. Trump should not be above the law; his design is an architectural aberration that lacks the necessary permits and fails to respect the existing historic structure. To allow this project to proceed without any consequences for those who broke the law is an affront to all law-abiding Americans. Someone needs to resolutely stand up to this man, whose egotistical narcissism has compelled him to attempt to "mark his territory" all over our nation's capital. He and his ballroom need to be stopped. Just rebuild the East Wing was it was.

I oppose a ballroom being built in place of the East Wing. The East Wing was demolished illegally without proper permits, review, etc. I expect there to be consequences for this illegal action. This is the People's House and a gaudy, over the top, monstrosity is not appropriate in any way to replace what was lost. I strenuously object to this project going forward.
A commission should be set up to submit ideas to and the American people should have a say in what the East Wing is replaced with.

To Whom It May Concern,
I do not condone $millions$ being squandered on the White House East Wing project—started without authorization, permits, or proper design review. Who writes the check doesn't matter. This is "America's House," not President Trump's personal property or some glorified vanity project. What's happening is not renovation—it's destruction! Historical integrity has been shredded, national treasures have disappeared, and the law has been openly ignored. President Trump should be made to personally pay for rebuilding, sanctioned, and permanently barred from affixing his name to the restored wing. I respectfully ask this project be canceled immediately, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its original design. Allowing this to continue without holding the guilty accountable insults every president who came before, the Constitution, and every American—past, present, and future. \u-10180 ?\u-8710 ?\u-10180 ?\u-8712 ?

The East Wing of the White House was beautiful, the way in which it was demolished was sinful. No permission was granted, no plans presented, horrible! A ballroom as large as the current president wants is totally unacceptable and not needed, not wanted by taxpayers and would be grossly ugly. Proper procedures were not followed and DJT should be responsible for paying to replace the East Wing in an appropriate manner, it needs to be restored as soon as possible. Please do.not allow his monstrosity to.be built.

I ask that your commission put a stop to further action that would contribute to the building of ANYTHING on that site unless it would be to restore and reconstruct the East Wing to its former dimensions using materials that would appropriately match the originals. Any other construction absolutely must go through the same permitting and design review that any other new government building would require. Nothing less is acceptable. Under no circumstances should anything be built that this site that would distract from, diminish, endanger or overshadow the White House itself. The "ballroom" or data center or whatever it is is completely inappropriate for that location. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. Hello and thank you for your time and consideration -

I am an American citizen living in Nebraska. I would like to express that I am NOT in favor of the so-called 'East Wing Modernization Project' and find that label misleading as well as amusing. We have seen an unchecked and unfit classless fool called Donald J. Trump attack the heart of American symbolism and American owned property. This criminal has no authority to destroy the architecture and legacy historical monuments or buildings that are the property of the United States - NOT HIS. It is appalling that this mobster has defaced the People's House with apparent impunity. What is to stop him from tearing down the entire White House (or any memorial or other government / citizen owned building or property)? Apparently nothing. 'His own morality' ? He has none.

Please know the vast majority of the citizens of the United States are disgusted by this venal idiot ripping apart our irreplaceable national treasures and buildings. I am strongly against this 'modernization' project joke and believe the unfit president should be charged with a crime for vandalism of the White House. Enough is enough. I demand that his vainglorious nonsense be stopped cold by the National Capital Planning Commission. Are you American patriots with a sense of legacy and honor or are you adherents of Albert Speer? Grow a spine and stop this destruction before this lunatic opts to tear down the Mall in Washington D.C. and build a statue garden featuring only himself. This is beyond ridiculous. Stop This Man. I demand the East Wing fake project be rejected immediately and the process of restoring it to the original (pre-destruction date) design. I also think laws should be passed to hold those who mar or vandalize American treasures be banned from office and charged with a crime. Additional laws should be made that this moron (or future morons) have ANY authority to destroy at a whim American property.

While you are at it - remove his embarrassing name from the Kennedy Memorial Art Center ASAP. That is an insulting disgrace and it is difficult to believe you allowed it to happen. Are you just little sycophants serving your 'dear leader' or do you actually serve the PEOPLE of the USA over one temporary elderly goon currently in office? Grow a spine. Stop this nonsense immediately. Remove his disgraceful name from everything he ever touched. Don't bow before a pedophile grifter. We expect your commission to honor the USA - are you worthy of that trust? Prove it. -

Very Sincerely,

Doug Harris

Thank you for taking time to review this message. Since critics of Washington are sometimes apt to label politicians as "blowhards", I propose replacing the demolished East Wing of the White House with a design that incorporates a windmill of whatever design is most efficient and safe. This will save the government money by providing a renewable power option to the White House. In addition, it will serve the symbolic role of signifying that the occupants if the White House are always sensitive to "which way the wind is blowing", signifying their willingness to listen to the masses of people who would otherwise be lost in the storm of other powers attempting to influence the White House.

It is also acceptable if this structure ends up on the roof above other rooms with other functions, so long as the wind mill is a visible and recognizable symbol for decades to come.

As a bonus, if a rotating, tall, turbine-tower style is used, then the superstructure holding it could be strung with lights to resemble a holiday tree during winter months.

I appreciate your attention to this matter.

The legality of Mr. Trump’s actions in directing the demolition of the White House East Wing are apparently open to debate. It seems to me that the National Park Service and the Congress have the responsibility and authority to approve or deny proposals and funding of any such plans. My objection to this “modernization project” is more basic. The White House does not belong to any president or first family. It belongs to the people of the United States. We are the enduring owners of this property recognized around the world.

We know its rooms and corridors. Its artwork. Its gardens. It’s west wing. And yes, even its east wing. We watched as generations of First Ladies inhabited those halls and rooms. And now all of that is gone. Overnight. With no notice and seemly little thought or regard.

I ask and urge that you stop further disrespect of the people’s house by denying any request by the Trump administration to proceed with its plans for building the abomination of a massive gilded ballroom that is neither needed nor wanted. Tens of millions of Americans struggle to afford the most basic necessities of life. We can ill afford this price tag.

Thank you

I strongly oppose the building of an addition to the White House (aka: The People's House) that will dwarf the original building. The lack of prior permissions and permits only exacerbates the injury such a project would cause. The opaque "donation" scheme currently in place for funding screams "pay to play" and must be dismantled. If a ballroom were indeed needed, it should be designed to blend with the existing structure and be paid for from public funds. However, a rebuilding of the old structure is the best possible solution.

The White House belongs to us and we allow the President to live there. He should have to repair the damage just as any tenant in rental property does. He had no right to tear down the building without due process.

Also, who is paying for the major retrofit to the bunker underneath the ballroom? That should not be separated from the conversation about what is being built on street side. Let's make sure that everybody's aware of everything and that all of the costs are considered. He has opened a can of worms, but he should not get away with it unscathed.

Please do not let the current White House administration have anything to do with the design and build of the East Wing. It should be designed as an extension of history and the White House. All modern updates do not need to be shown and, most importantly, should be elegance with decorum.

To Whom It May Concern,

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. Its design and appearance have been a symbol of the American presidency since its completion. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits, and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people, who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

Thank you for your attention to this matter,
Aubree Coats

I am writing to say that I oppose the spending of $300 million on the East Wing project. Instead, this project razes American history, a history which belongs to all of us and not just to the whims of whoever is temporarily in charge. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design.

To have torn down a piece of the most key building in America is beyond shocking and both the building and protections for others like it must be restored.

Thank you for your support of our nation's history in physical form in our capitol.

As an historian, I was devastated to see the destruction of the historic East Wing of the White House by its current occupant. The President of the US does not own the White House which is owned by the people of our great nation. Having lived in a historic house, anytime I wanted to do even the slightest change to the outside of my house (including add a fence, which was accepted and a garage door which was rejected as my old garage had not had one originally), I had to go to our city historic commission with the plans and get them approved before any work could be done. As a historic structure of national importance, the requirements to change the White House should be even greater as the President is only a resident and not an owner of the house. As a result, I request that the perpetrator of the destruction be fined and that the East Wing be restored to the structure as approved previously.
Thank you for taking into consideration the wishes and respect for history of one of the 340+ million owners of this national historic treasure, the citizens of these United States.

Members of the Commission: All visible and public interior and exterior structures and decorative pieces of the East Wing should be rebuilt to look exactly as it did before it was unlawfully destroyed by the President. If the underground part of the structure out of public view needs to be updated, no problem. Trump should be made to pay personally for this rebuild in its entirety, since he is solely responsible for the current mess.

The White House is the People's House, not the personal property of the President. It was designed in 1792 by architect James Hoban through a public competition initiated by George Washington. Its classical composition, with lower East and West wings, reflects Georgian and Neoclassical principles that emphasize balance, proportion, and restraint.

In 1997, the National Park Service issued design guidelines stating that the White House and President's Park are foremost a public trust and an essential part of the nation's heritage. Any changes to this historic site must respect its architectural integrity and symbolic importance.

The proposed project totals 90,000 square feet, including a 22,000-square-foot ballroom designed to accommodate 1,000 people. By comparison, the White House contains 55,000 square feet across multiple levels, and typical events in the West Wing host approximately 140 guests. The scale of the proposal is disproportionate and appears architecturally incompatible with the existing building.

The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation provide clear federal guidance for construction projects affecting historic properties, yet these standards have not been followed. New construction should be compatible with existing massing, size, scale, and architectural features—criteria this project does not meet. These principles have guided preservation of the White House since the 1792 public design competition.

There are serious concerns regarding massing, height, proportion, and overall design harmony. As a national and international symbol, the White House demands careful and responsible stewardship. It is central to the American story and represents the Republic and the values it stands for.

Clearly no effort was made to comply with existing guidelines or desires of the American people. This project is an offensive affront to all Americans. Destroying any part of our national history and the “people’s house” must be handled with care and consideration, not on the whim of a temporary lodger. This project must be stopped immediately and reevaluated under the guidance of a competent non-political committee that serves to preserve history and historic places. I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. I am from the DC area and spent many days in Washington visiting the National archives, monuments and flying kites. Even though many people buy and tear down buildings, the White House belongs to all of us rather than one of us. I was shocked to see the East Wing demolished without permission. It is as if they believed if they tore it down then we would accept a new design of a gigantic ballroom without being heartbroken. Compared to other nations, ours is still young and has such a rich history that has always been part of DC. I hope that the East Wing is rebuilt because it balanced the look of the Whitehouse, held so much history of our nation and is in fact considered a historic building. Please return it to its prior state or at least keep the footprint the same as it was before the bulldozers came in.

The rules and regulations for historic preservation exist to protect the precious patrimony of the people of the United States and it is a travesty of the highest order, an insult and an injury to the people of this country that one, just one, temporary employee of our government (the current U.S. president) has unceremoniously destroyed part of our patrimony and feels entitled to decided what will be built in its place without input from any of the organizations or individuals charged with that sacred duty of protecting our heritage.

I trust that the Commission will safeguard our historic patrimony and make sure that no more damage is done.

Thank you.

The razing of the East Wing of the White House ("the peoples house") we done without proper (any) review, or thought. That this project proceeded without regard to the wishes of the owners (the people) demonstrates more than ignorance of the law; it demonstrates malevolent contempt for the owners (the people) at the hands of the occupants.
This cannot stand. The damage done to the structure is irreparable, and the harm to very political infrastructure that made "the peoples house" conceptually possible is immeasurable. No repair can be adequate. No apology deep enough to heal the wound.
And yet, it must be embarked upon. The East Wing must be rebuilt and restored to it condition as found on January 5th, 2025. The restoration must be undertaken with monies provided by the people of the United States so that in the future no private entity can lay claim to the people's property. Those responsible for the destruction must never be allowed to set foot in the restored East Wing, and their name must be completely expunged from any association with the peoples house from this point forward.

The proposed addition to the White House is an abomination. The destruction of the East Wing was a shock and is still painful. As a part of our history, where many important events have taken place, it should only be rebuilt, not displaced. I strongly oppose the continuation of the damage to 'our' house, and urge stopping the construction of a ballroom. I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, regardless of the source of funds, because it was initiated without the proper and legally required authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of a publicly owned building and a piece of American history.

The skyline of DC will be egregiously spoiled by a structure of the proposed size juxtaposed against the historic White House, West Wing, and Executive Office Building.

The grounds, water table, and groundwater will be egregiously damaged by building a large underground bunker underneath. Keeping such a structure dry in an area with a water table very close to the surface will be a financial and infrastructure nightmare for the government bodies that will be responsible for repairing leaks and resulting damage and for the American taxpayers who will have to pay for it.

I want this project canceled, and the authorities who are now being ignored to be consulted on rebuilding the East Wing to its former design or a new design that is reviewed through the required legal channels.

Furthermore, I want the irresponsible guilty parties held accountable and charged with breaking the law.

No one is above the law in this country and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The use of funds from individuals is inherently unconstitutional. This project undermines the separation of powers by circumventing the role of Congress in approving renovations to a historic landmark. The use of private founders also calls into question the president's ethical standards. Money given to procure favors from the President is not how this nation should run. I live in an historic district and know the responsibility we have to maintain our home according to the historic committee regulations. The president of the United States and his employees also knew the responsibility they had to the country's most valuable symbol of our roots. The company who demo'ed the East Wing also had to know they couldn't knock the building without approval - all construction companies have to know those regulations.

They deliberately didn't seek any approval. Their destruction of the East Wing should be a criminal offense. And they should have to replace it at their own expense.

The exterior should be rebuilt - as it was. If there is modernization required, that can be done on the interior. The WH doesn't need a monstrous ballroom that will dwarf the actual WH. The gaudy look that ballroom will bring to the WH would be shameful and completely unnecessary.

The character of the home should be retained - in perpetuity - and not changed to fit the whim of one occupant - it is the People's House, not one potus'.

I oppose the modernization of the East Wing of the White House. The demolition was an illegal act and did not receive the approvals necessary to make any improvements let alone completely demolish valuable history.

It's appalling to the American people to see historic buildings, national parks, and other historic places being changed to fit the demands of a lawless administration.

We the people want to see the complete restoration of the East Wing and to preserve It's history for generations to come.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

The White House belongs to the American people, NOT the President of the United States! No President should be able to knock down exterior walls without a vote of the PEOPLE. Since Congress no longer represents the people, we should have a vote on any of these current changes including having on the vote putting the East wing back the way it was and making Trump pay for it!

After witnessing the embarrassingly unprepared presentation by the architectural firm now handling this so-called "modernization project" last month, I am even more convinced that this proposed building is an affront to its historic location and our shared American legacy. At an estimated cost of $300 million dollars, what are Americans getting that will represent our country in a deserving way? Nothing. What is proposed looks like a convention center wrapped in a rote Neoclassical gesture that a second-year architecture student might concoct. No amount of cornice alignment will help this monstrosity fit in the area for which it is proposed. It is astounding that it was not even designed prior to the destruction of historic East Wing. There was no vetting, no oversight, no approval, no respect given to the heritage of the White House and its East Wing until now, which seems late but better late than never. Clearly, the entire project is being driven by the unimaginative whims of a developer (the president) who has no sense of history, scale, materiality, or what it means to create a memorable spatial experience with effective sight lines and excellent acoustics. Why not accommodate large state dinners in an area of Washington D.C. that has the space for a cutting-edge venue; somewhere that might even benefit from the attention and focus? Why shoehorn a bloated facility where it can't possible honor the Classical principles of hierarchy and fitness?

That this project is allegedly funded privately is irrelevant. The White House belongs to the American people and its grounds are part of our shared history. Yes, it has evolved, but within reason and with oversight and a process that does not "demolish first and figure out what to build later." If we need a large contemporary venue for state dinners and ceremonial events, build it away from the Mall and do it right… without a convoluted entry sequence and a ridiculous covered walkway. It is the committee's responsibility to stand up for good design by saying NO to this ridiculous proposal. I hope that the president's appointees have some concern for their own legacies and reputations. An improved rendition of the former East Wing (complete with a 21st century bunker) is the only appropriate addition to this site after what has been done.

I am opposed to this administration's bad faith actions to construct an unnecessary and un-permitted White House ballroom when there are so many budgetary needs to help keep community members from falling into insurmountable debt, ill-health, and worse. I support the following message:

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

I am devastated by the destruction of The East Wing. Any reconstruction should meet the guidelines of the NCPC and should not be subject to the taste or whims of our president. The East Wing should be of a size that suits the rest of the building; and the inside of the building should be tasteful. It should not be gold-leafed. The White House is the American people's house. I am totally opposed to the modernization project that began without any concern for process, planning, permits or other authorization. The White House is the people's house and no occupant should ever be allowed to destroy it in the manner taken by President Trump. Even if he himself were to pay for it all, which should not be allowed. The conflicts of interest and potential briberies are concerning. So much history was ignored and quite frankly, treated with total disregard and disrespect in this uncalled for destruction. It was an act of betrayal. All persons and contractors who went ahead and tore down the wing must be held accountable and prosecuted for any violations. It does not matter who was willing to fund this project. We are a democratic republic. An acting "mob boss" does not get to give legitimacy to crazed destruction of our history. He is a temporary occupant. We the people must have a voice. Historical preservation, and hopefully proper asbestos removal were completed prior to the excavators' tear down. Please rebuild the same footprint. Bigger is not always better. This travesty must be put right. As a tax payer, I expect professionalism in planning, historical preservation and exceptional quality in workmanship and architectural integrity. Please be sure all who work to restore our House are paid the wages as required for government contracts. Thank you.

Until last year the White House , with its wings, had been a graceful structure showing the research, planning, and bi-partisan passion to protect and extend its use for future generations. Perempotorily destroying the East Wing without warning was a travesty and stained a record of House Stewardship.

Aesthetically, the proposed ballroom would look awkward and its size overshadow the White House which should always be the focal point on the grounds. If needed, such a facility could be built off-site and serve as a large party site for all federal services.

I urge the commission to commit to rebuilding the East Wing to keep the symmetry of the two wings with the House in the center. During the Truman years the architects had time to methodically rebuild the White House. You may not have that ability, but no doubt there is a wealth of plans you can use.

And, yes, I am a White House history groupie. I watched Mrs. Kennedy give the televised tour, I trooped through it as a ninth grade Minnesota Girl Scout, and I have watched The Residence twice on NetFlix.

Public Comment – Response to the Proposed White House Ballroom and East\u8209 -Wing Demolition

I am writing to register my strong opposition to the planned $400\u8239 million ballroom addition to the White House and the accompanying demolition of the historic East Wing. After reviewing the recent renderings and the surrounding circumstances described in the press coverage, I have three primary concerns that I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to consider before the March\u8239 5 hearing.

1. Irreversible Heritage Loss

The East Wing is an integral part of the White House complex, embodying decades of architectural history and presidential legacy. The renderings show a massive 90,000\u8239 sq\u8239 ft structure built level with the mansion, a scale that would visually dominate and fundamentally alter the historic silhouette of the nation's most iconic residence. Even if select elements—cornerstones, colonnade columns, chandeliers—are "meticulously preserved," the loss of the original fabric and spatial context cannot be recovered. Historic preservation standards require that any intervention retain the character\u8209 -defining features of a landmark; this proposal runs counter to that principle.

2. Questionable Cost and Funding Transparency

A $400\u8239 million price tag for a ceremonial ballroom, financed by a consortium of private donors and corporations, raises serious fiscal accountability questions. While the administration claims the project is "on budget and ahead of schedule," there is no publicly available, independent cost\u8209 -benefit analysis. Large\u8209 -scale demolition and new construction typically generate hidden expenses (environmental remediation, security upgrades, long\u8209 -term maintenance) that can far exceed initial estimates. Given competing national priorities, allocating such a sum to a luxury venue demands rigorous scrutiny and justification.

3. Lack of Genuine Public Oversight and Broad Opposition

The rapid removal of the renderings from the NCPC website, the appointment of political allies to oversight bodies, and the initiation of demolition before any formal review all signal a circumvention of established procedural safeguards. The National Trust for Historic Preservation has already filed a federal lawsuit, and the public outcry—amplified by media outlets such as CNN—demonstrates widespread concern. Proceeding without transparent, inclusive deliberation would undermine public trust in the very commissions tasked with protecting our heritage.

Recommendations

Pause the Project – Issue an immediate stay on demolition and construction until a comprehensive historic\u8209 -impact assessment is completed by an independent preservation authority.

Conduct an Independent Financial Review – Require a detailed, publicly disclosed audit of the projected costs, funding sources, and long\u8209 -term fiscal implications.

Facilitate Meaningful Public Participation – Hold open hearings, solicit written comments, and provide full access to all project documents—including the "East Wing Modernization" rendering package—so that stakeholders can evaluate the proposal on an informed basis.

Explore Less Intrusive Alternatives – Consider adaptive reuse of the existing East Wing or modest interior renovations that preserve the historic envelope while meeting functional needs, thereby avoiding the irreversible loss of heritage.

The White House is not merely a working office; it is a living monument to our nation's democratic history. Any alteration of its fabric must be approached with the utmost respect for preservation standards, fiscal responsibility, and democratic oversight. I respectfully request that the NCPC give full weight to these concerns and act to protect the integrity of the White House for current and future generations.

Thank you for your consideration.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.
The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.
I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

I oppose the building of the ballroom at the White House and support stopping the project and rebuilding the east wing as it was before. The administration had no right to initiate this project without going through proper channels and conferring with the people. It is the peoples' house and should not be treated so cavalierly. The White House'sHouse is a symbol of our democracy and a symbol of the comings and goings of each who have been elected to serve their people. The current resident does not believe or support the values of a democracy and therefore should be prevented from doing any further damage to this cherished building.

The citizens of the United States were not given to chance to offer comment regarding the destruction of the East Wing, and no effort was made to gather design and / or restoration information or input. I am against any plan or design that was not chosen as part of a public submission process or that does not advance preservation goals.

All monies spent to demolish, or "donated" for the "ballroom" to be constructed, should be published with a clear trail as to who made the donation and any relations they may have to anyone associated with the government, any cabinet members or their companies/relatives, anyone associated in any manner with anyone or anything in the Trump Org/families. Further, all contractors hired, consulted, already paid, or on contract should disclose any and all ties to the government, the donors of said monies, the family members/in-laws of any government employees/advisors/volunteers/consultants/elected officials/Trump Org companies or family members. Additionally any contracts signed for future rebuilding of the East Wing need to be voided and set for bidding.

Demolishing the historic East Wing of the White House without review, without permits, and without Congressional oversight clearly violated the law. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park. The American people own it. No president owns the property or its buildings.
"The president broke not only laws but also the trust of the American people.
"I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require any reconstruction of the East Wing to maintain it historic design and size. Anything built on the demolition site must match the style of the original structure of the Executive Mansion, and it must be subordinate in size
"I urge, further, that any reconstruction be funded only with appropriations from Congress and that no private money be allowed for this project. The American people own the land, not any one president or any corporation seeking to buy favor. Do not reward a lawless president.
"If Congress does not approve funding, and if a design keeping with the building's historical character cannot be achieved, the land should be left vacant.

To call this a modernization project is a slap in the face of history! This is nothing but pure destruction of a landmark property. This building does not, and never will, belong to any one person. Any changes to it must be carefully thought out and approved according to law. Damages, unauthorized repairs, must be paid for in total by the person that ordered the work. Fines against the company that carried out the work are also appropriate. No care was taken to protect the environment from the asbestos in the air or that left behind.

This country does "need" a ballroom! The inappropriate size of what is proposed is ridiculous and totally out of proportion to the rest of the White House. The demolition was NOT done legally or professionally and we, the People, lost so much that can never be replaced.

Have we not learned from all the ugly buildings built in the 1960's, only to already be torn down?? Beautiful brick buildings with ugly sterile fronts added on are now being restored to their original glory - but THIS wing is gone!!!

There was absolutely no reason to destroy the wing except a narcissist wanting to put his stamp on the world. It was done with no appreciation for history, no taste, no consideration for law or the proper way to proceed.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.
This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

"East Wing Modernization Project" is a misnomer. The East Wing was obliterated without oversight, comments, consideration or permits, so that the out-of-control individual known as the President of the United States could do whatever he wanted. Who knows what that actually is. I am a Permit Expeditor, someone who assists developers, contractors, insurance companies or others process building permits. I have to go through the Planning, Building, and sometimes the Fire departments just to put up a trash enclosure around a dumpster. It is inconceivable that anyone could just order up demolition equipment and tear down a piece of the US White House with no process, and no consequences.Even at this late phase, this action should not stand. Any assertion that we need to keep building a ballroom "for the security of the country" is ludicrous and suspect. Secure whatever needs to be secured, and take the appropriate time and steps to restore the structure faithfully and properly.

I am writing in opposition to the president's plan to replace the East Wing of the White House with a ballroom. The East Wing holds historical significance to the contributions of First Ladies who have helped shape their spouse's administrations, often leading their own initiatives to make the United States a happier, healthier, and more inclusive place to live and raise families. The White House belongs to the people, and the president is a time-limited occupant of our house. Therefore, no president should make significant changes to the people's house without receiving proper permission. The planned ball room will overshadow and dwarf in size the other buildings that make up the White House complex. The East Wing should be reconstructed to restore the place that honors and serves the spouse of the president and in a size and scale that is aesthetically proportional to the White House itself.

Thank you,

I wish to voice my opposition to creating a monstrous sized ballroom in the area that once was the East Wing of the White House. The destruction was done illegally and with no regard to the feelings and sentiments of the American public. None of my acquaintances have ever expressed a desire for an ornate ballroom as part of the White House.

In addition, the projected $300 million price tag is unjustifiable and simply wasteful.

I believe that the East Wing should be rebuilt in such a manor as to restore the integrity of this historic building, making such improvements as increased insulation, energy saving windows, etc; changes that add value but do not change the aesthetic of the original structure.

I trust that you will take my opinion into serious consideration.

both the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the Planning Commision oversee all design, construction, and supervision. The beauty of the White House and the East Wing MUST be placed under the leadership of knowledgeable historic professionals and architects to ensure that these efforts are not the reflection of one person who only has grandiose visions to reflect his personal tastes. This is the PEOPLE'S house. It does not belong to a president. He is not entitled to destroy and rebuild on a whim.
Please gain control of this project and see that it is done historically and aesthetically correct!

The sudden and unlawful destruction of the East Wing of the White House is a desecration of one of the most significant historical and architectural icons belonging to We The People. To see it ripped apart by a fleet of bulldozers, without discussion or permission from the owners, has caused horror and revulsion across America.

Because Donald Trump is the criminal who has done this, Donald Trump must be barred from any planning of the replacement structure. He must, however, be mandated to pay for it from his personal resources. This is mandatory.

Also mandatory is for the East Wing to be in harmony with the size and style of the rest of the building that he hasn't destroyed yet. It must serve the interest of The People, must facilitate the work of the Executive and must reflect the egalitarianism that is foundational to the United States.

When George Washington so famously refused a monarchial title, choosing "Mr President" instead, he set the country firmly away from emulating the aristocratic model of Europe and emphasizing the president's status of equality with every other American (man). A ballroom is a stupid waste of space, meant for special occasions and easily accommodated by temporary structures. The Common Man does not hold galas. The renewed East Wing should have no gilt, no frescoes, no marbled pillars. And it must provide space for the day to day work of bettering the nation which is the very purpose of the White House itself.

The president is not made more effective by building superfluous entertainment spaces like theaters, gymnasiums, greenhouses, barrooms or, yes, ballrooms. These are not integral to serious government on behalf of all Americans. It should not resemble the flourishes that typify buildings that were meant to admit and serve only the elites of foreign countries, It must exemplify American values and our shared responsibility for the work that supports our common good. Office spaces including an area sufficient to support the First Spouse, improved culinary facilities to encourage good nutrition, child care space for the children of White House workers and to serve as a reminder of the future generations for whom current decisions are being made, perhaps a visitors' area to understand how the White House functions in the People's interest and the changing needs and facilities over time.

To tear down the east wing of the White House to fulfill a president’s personal ego is beyond belief. Also, without consulting Congress or getting an impact study done is just outrageous. This president is trying to build his own legacy instead of helping the country with, inflation, healthcare, affordable housing, etc. He knows once he’s gone, no one is going to name anything after him. He has been. the worst president in the history of the United States of America. So he’s making sure he puts his mark on things, like a cat spraying their territory.

Please keep the White House “The People’s House”. A place the citizens can be proud of and visit. A Ballroom does not fit that mission. Please address the issue of the President overstepping his authority and return to following the rules set for making changes to the White House and other federal properties. Thank you for your attention.

I opposed this vanity project of President Trump and the $400 million budget for it. The project was was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. The current design plans will overwhelm the White House and its grounds and will, as the National Trust for Historic Preservation has stated, "permanently disrupt the carefully balanced classical design of the White House with its two smaller, and lower, East and West Wings." This project should be halted until it can be authorized and redesigned via the proper channels to create a space that respects the historical significance of the White House grounds and the practical needs of the staff and executive branch.

My heart was broken when I saw that the beloved, historic, and irreplaceable East Wing was being demolished. That is not Donald Trump's property to raze; it belongs to the American people. I would like to see it rebuilt and refurnished as close as possible to the original. I would like Donald Trump to personally pay for all of the reconstruction.
We don't need a fancy ballroom for the wealthy to schmooze around in at taxpayer's expense.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.
This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

I believe we need clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability. Private donations to fund this vanity project are bribes. The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project. It's the People's House so our voices should be heard. I can't even describe the sickening feeling I had when the bulldozers razed the East Wing.

Thank you,
Dolores

I watched in horror as the entire history of the East Wing was demolished in less than 3 days by Donald Trump. This destruction was not permitted, authorized or cleared through any government or state offices to occur. The destruction was just a wreckless plundering of a historical landmark.
The East Wing which I myself have visited was the entrance through which visitors entered for tours at the capitol. It was the center of the events for visiting dignataries and the offices of all the former presidents' wives (excluding Melania who decided she didn't want to be a first lady). The entire history of the white house has been destroyed.

Through the public information available, there were no movers in the East Wing prior to it's destruction. The contents have simply dissapeared!

Where are:
1. The records, files and documents that were housed here
2. The artwork and historical statues that were previously located here
3. The historical furnishings that filled the East Wing
No one seems to have any concern of all the contents that were previously housed in the East Wing! These need to be found, accounted for and preserved. If they even still exist. From watching the East Wing bulldozers it looked like all the contents were stil in the East Wing at the time it was destroyed.

On a separate but critical note:
FUNDS:
Donald Trump has continued to accept funds from major businesses and individuals in the US and abroad for the new "ballroom" he wants to build in place of the East Wing.
1. WHERE ARE THOSE FUNDS?
2. Who has control of those funds?
3. Are they in an interest bearing account?
4. Under what "agreement" or "contract" were those funds "given" or transferred?
5. What is owed to those individuals and businesses that sent funds for the new "ballroom?"
6. Have some of the funds sent in for the "ballromm" been spent already?
7. Who is tracking the spending of the funds sent in under the premise they are for a new "ballrom?"
8. Who is tracking who gave funds and how much did they give?

- I oppose the spending of ANY FUNDS on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. The "ballrom" project was not a "modernization" project but rather a complete razing of American history.
- I want this project canceled
- I want the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design.

No one is above the law!
Permiting this project to proceed without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

STOP THE BALLROOM. STOP THE DESTRUCTION OF AMERICA!

The historical significance of the destruction of the East Wing without proper authorization looms large. I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

I do not agree with the razing of the East Wing of the White House for a ballroom of the size proposed by the Trump administration. It will be out of proportion to the original structure. It will be too large, period. Also, too expensive. Every week the price tag seems to rise. And to have it seat 999 people? I don't appreciate my taxes paying for feeding and entertaining that many of the President's closest donors on a regular basis.
He should have followed the same processes every former President has when changing the "People's House"and I'm angry he's destroyed a piece of this country's history. This rebuild should never have progressed this far and all plans should be revised to scale this "ballroom blitz" back. Also, if possible, rebuild part of the East Wing. Just because Mrs. Trump has no interest in actually being our First Lady doesn't mean the next Presidential spouse will feel the same.
He or she may need some office space in the White House.
Sincerely,
Carey Rupert

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

The history contained within those walls belongs to the people and it's disgusting that a small group chose to destroy that history without any input from the American people. We revere George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and other noteworthy Presidents because they NEVER sought to benefit or idolize themselves ad part of their important role; rather, they considered themselves selfless servants to the people and the pursuit of a better republic. What Donald Trump has done is the antithesis of that and he will go down as a disgrace to the Presidency and our country when future generations judge us.

The work on the East Wing with the plan for a ball room, seemed to come out of thin air. I've not heard of the need until president Trump took office. With that short of a time span, and with demolition already in progress, I think HALTING the PROJECT until other stakeholders, (planners, historians, architects, visionaries, need a say before the plan moves forward. The drawings I've seen seem out of proportion. I also wonder why a ball room is needs to be connected to a residence and official work place. If one is needed, lets place it away from the white house so that it can be used by more than just the president, but congress, and other governments leaders.

The White House is the People's House in the United States of America, and as a citizen, I am sending my thoughts about the recent destruction of the East Wing of the White House. I visited the White House in September of 2009 along with my parents and my husband. The person who lives in the White House currently did not have legal right to destroy the East Wing and the project should be taken out of his hands and sent through the proper channels to be remedied. I would ask that the process be thoughtful and tasteful. I would also ask that there is some kind of penalty for the current resident of the White House and that the demolition would be paid for by him. He can certainly afford it. But that's another issue. I would also like an apology from the man who tore down the East Wing since the White House is not his.

When architect James Hoban, who had won the commission to finalize plans for the initial White House building, he drew heavily on Palladian vocabulary focused on human-centered proportions, hierarchical composition, axial symmetry, and measured restraint. The use of harmonic ratios so rooms relate mathematically to each other and to the whole building resulted in a building that felt balanced rather than monumental for its own sake. Furthermore, the control of ornamentation was key to creating a building that felt like "The People's House," using the building as a mean to reinforcing the ideals of American democracy.

The current proposal for the East Wing Modernization Project appears to contradict the long established tradition of careful editing that was key to making the building one of the most enduring symbol of American equalitarian ideals. The East Wing has historically been a secondary deferential element to the main residence. Expanding it with larger volumes or more complex footprints risks turning it into an accumulation of parts rather than a mathematically ordered extension. When the side element starts competing visually with the central block, the hierarchy collapses.

Palladian estates, on which the White House is modeled, depend on a dominant central mass with subordinate flanking elements. If a redesign increases the East Wing's prominence (height, façade articulation, or visual weight), the eye no longer reads the residence as the undisputed center. That violates the piano nobile logic: important things should look important because of proportion, not decoration.

By drifting away from Palladio's rhythmic openings, clear base-middle-top ordering, and restrained ornament, which combined to make grand buildings feel human scaled, the current design is offering an imbalance that may result in the building feeling more bureaucratic than domestic-civic, eroding the centrally balanced message of the White House as a representation of "people and state" and shifting the language towards a more authoritarian view of government.

When entered into the overall design of the Washington DC layout, as envisioned by Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the new addition create further disharmony in the layout of the US Mall. Presenting relative dominance and proportional incoherence in the design, it disturbs a model of America that is based on balances.

The resulting design not only demeans the building's balance but also creates an imbalance in the presentation of what America is about, undermining principles of equality and humility established by the founding fathers. As such, the proposed design could easily be seen as un-American, presenting a distorted view of dominance by one wing over the rest of the state.

Since the existing building has already been destroyed and needs to be replaced, a design that would restore symmetry between the east and west wing would be better suited to the site. If space is of particular concern, much work could be down underground so that the external face of the people's house remain as human-centered as as restrained as it was always intended to be.

Sincerely,

Tristan Louis
Concerned citizen

The ballroom as designed is a gaudy abomination that in no way fits with the historic character of the building. If the building can't be rebuilt as it was, there needs to be a thoughtful decision as to what best serves the needs for the space at this time.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

Additionally, this "ballroom" should not dwarf the beauty of the White House.

Thank you.

Hello. I oppose the destruction of the White House East Wing, supposedly to provide room for a grand ballroom. The muted elegance of the White House has served as the president's residence for more than two hundred years. It is the focus of the DC area and has been visited by millions of children, students and tourists. To construct a large ballroom next to it would be to diminish it in the world's eyes. Large ostentatious buildings are the homes for aristocrats and dictators, not the leaders of a democracy— and not just any democracy but the world's longest surviving.

The East Wing must be rebuilt back to its original structure approved prior to its unlawful destruction. That building was visited by millions of Americans, including myself and was the only part of the White House an American citizen could visit. It also was the home many Presidential family memories that will only exist in pictures and the memories of those who experienced. American historical landmarks should not be destroyed without oversight and agreement by the American people. The millions collected should be used to rebuild the building in it's original form.

This project was started with an illegal action. They did not follow any of the established process and appear to have completely demolished an important part of American history, without pulling any permits. I advocate to restore the East Wing to its previous historically accurate set up and then give any one who wants to modernize it the opportunity to submit plans, which would be approved only after proper review.

As a child I was fortunate to visit the White House with my parents. I was always proud of the People's House and of the memory I had of visiting and thus becoming a part of its history. Ten years ago I was in France and visited Versailles, the house built by Louis xiv. Gold, mirrors, tapestries, and opulence were overwhelming. Although the skill and craftsmanship in the palace was overwhelming, I could not help but think that his is why the people of France supported a revolution. To adorn our People's House" with palatial decor is to deny the roots of what our country has stood for 250 years. Our nation's history and its efforts to provide freedom and opportunity to all the people is not reflected in a building that is modeled after European palaces built for the ultra powerful and ultra rich. I ask that the Planning Committee use its influence to direct a modest renovation that reflects the values of our forefathers as well as those of the population of our country today. We are not interested in impressing princes but in maintaining the spirit of our own American Revolution.

The very fact that Mr. Trump had the East Wing of the White House demolished without permission is all we need to know about the completely untrustworthy approach this president will have toward the building of this project. As a citizen, I want to be assured that whatever the approved plans may be, that they are executed as intended. Given Mr. Trump's track record as a fraudster, I would not be surprised if he ignores the approved plans and builds what he wants anyway. For this reason, I think it would be wise to deny Trump any say in the design and construction of this project. A nationwide competition for the design of the new East Wing should be conducted, with the winning firm receiving the honor of having their design

Nothing the president says or does can change the fact that his megalomaniacal personality will spoil the project if he is allowed access to it's design and construction processes.

I would like this project canceled. I think it’s ridiculous to construct a ballroom. No one wants or needs this ridiculous waste of money and space. It’s so tone deaf to even consider building a “ballroom” when there are so many more important issues facing our country now. I think the “donations” for the “ballroom” are akin to bribes to curry favor with the president. Of course since the original East Wing was demolished without permission, they’ll have to put something up to replace it. If they do it should be of similar size to the original East Wing.

The tear down of our country's East Wing was done without any proper authorization. We still don't know if there were measures made to preserve the paintings, the furnishings, and the irreplaceable historical details of this part of our collective White House. This Wing belongs to all of us, not to the present occupant, who apparently made it his own business, without permits or design approval, to destroy what was not his to destroy, in order to replace it with his own fantasy ballroom.
I oppose, with all my heart, this travesty. This is an incredible waste of money, even if it is privately supplied by someone currying favosr by supplying it. And the current occupant has no right to impose his own will on the rest of us who are law- abiding citizens. Do not allow this project to go forward - it is a slap in the face of every American who loves, serves and is a citizen of this country. The White House offers shelter to those who serve as president, and their families, but only temporarily. It belongs to us, the American people.

Thanks to the National Trust, we have until March 4 to submit comments about the ballroom to the National Capital Planning Commission. You can make a comment through the link below (click on Submit Comment). PLEASE NOTE, the project is called East Wing Modernization on the pull down menu.

The sorrow, disbelief, and at times anger I feel when I consider that someone—whether an individual, organization, or oversight body—may fail to fully preserve and protect one of this nation's most revered structures, the White House complex, is profound. Any decision to spend substantial funds on changes to such an iconic national symbol must follow a transparent, rigorous process that ensures the result reflects not only present needs, but future needs, and our shared national history. To proceed without such care risks conveying the message that decisions about our most important public landmarks are shaped primarily by power and wealth, rather than by thoughtful stewardship on behalf of all Americans.

As someone in my seventies, I recall the lengthy and deliberate processes that have shaped some of our most respected national memorials. The most admired among them were not created hastily or unilaterally; they emerged through years of public engagement, expert input, design competitions, debate, and careful construction. That process itself is part of what gives these places their legitimacy and meaning.

If changes to the East Wing are undertaken without comparable levels of public participation, professional oversight, and careful consideration of purpose, architectural integrity, materials, craftsmanship, and national symbolism, the result risks being remembered not as a distinguished addition to a historic site, but as a project defined by a single administration or personality. That would diminish both the structure and the ideals it represents.

Should construction proceed as currently proposed, many Americans—and observers around the world—may interpret it not as an expression of national excellence, but as a display of concentrated influence and privilege. Our most visible public buildings should instead reflect the collective values, aspirations, and dignity of the American people.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans. Please protect our American institutions from those seeking to tear them down.
thank you.

DJT tearing down the East Wing without oversight or warning says a lot about how he feels about the citizens of the US. That is The People's House, not his. Taking a literal wrecking ball to the structure mirrors what he is doing to our country, tearing it down according to his whims and belief that he is unaccountable in all ways. Timing it immediately after seven million people peacefully protested his presidency was not lost on anyone.

The plans for the ballroom are absurd. Whatever architect worked on this project, caving to his "vision", should have their license revoked and run out of town on a rail. The scale is bizarre. Dwarfing the Whitehouse again sends a message. DJT thinks everything belongs to him and wants to leave his mark. As usual, he believes bigger is better.

Using private donations for the project is fraught with future problems and concerns about undue influence, interference and an improper transactional relationship with wealthy donors.

If you have authority to rein this in, please do so. The Independence Arch needs to be stopped before it starts. Please oversee the "improvements" to the Kenedy Center. I shudder to think what could happen with all of these. The "Midas touch" brand is unattractive, and undignified. "A little goes a long way", is a concept seemingly unfamiliar to him. He is marring the physical balance and beauty of DC. Please hold him accountable to proper procedures.

The North Façade
Prior to its demolition, the East Wing served basically as an outbuilding attached to the White House by means of a covered walkway. The East Wing was subsumed to the visual primacy of the main building. Crucially, the roof of the covered corridor was below the sill line of the White House ground floor windows. Under the proposed new construction, the corridor roof line reaches to the second-floor windows which totally destroys the aesthetics of the White House east façade much like an unattractive growth on a beautiful face. The corridor itself now becomes a major visual element elevated above ground level. What we see is a monotonous string of thirteen blank panels separated by pilasters on bases. The pilasters are too narrow and rather than suggesting a structural function seem more like the side rails of an empty picture frame. Even the dentils hanging off the cornice are out of scale and serve more to remind one of a runny nose than a classical entablature. In sum the corridor is too high and too boring.
The north façade of the new ballroom complex is a blunt instrument that competes with and diminishes the historic presidential home. Whereas the White House has four bays on either side of its portico, the new construction has seven bays, five of which are located on the projecting central pavilion. The design requirement that the cornice match that of the White House results in a prominent and unattractive basement level. Things become really weird when one turns the corner and sees the column bases of the east side temple front below the basement level.
The East Façade
On the east façade there's an octastyle temple front porch accessed by a flight of stairs from street level. When one thinks of classical and neoclassical architecture, symmetry, balance, and harmony come to mind. A fine example is just across the street from the proposed East Wing in the Treasury Building. The Shalom Baranes proposal is more a hodgepodge of elements than anything else. The Temple front is neither centered nor balanced with the rest of the east façade.
The South Façade
This is a total disaster. Initially this decastyle prostyle Corinthian portico contained a pediment, but apparently one commissioner thought the pediment too massive, so the architect removed it. The result is that the façade looks incomplete, similar to the temple of Hera I at Paestum. Decapitating the façade is a symptom of the rush to get something built.

A temple front with ten columns is a major statement. The Pantheon only has eight for example, whereas the Lincoln Memorial has twelve. The curved staircase leading to ground level is completely out of proportion. On the plan it looks like a nineteenth-century moustache.
But the fundamental question is what purpose does this portico serve and the answer is none. Indeed, it could and should be eliminated altogether. Doing so would greatly improve the eight-window east façade especially if the wall space between the windows and temple front matched that of the building's end. I suppose the south lawn facing temple could be understood as a folly much like those fake classical structures decorating eighteenth century English gardens and estates, but even so. Scaling back the East Wing by eliminating this portico would also serve to balance better the South Lawn vista. (Originally the Oval Office and the demolished East Wing were roughly in line.)
The NCPC continues to describe the project (8733) as East Wing Modernization. The Commission met on January 8, 2026, for a pre-submission review of the project. The project was not considered at the February meeting and is on the agenda for the March 5 meeting. The Commission consists of twelve members, seven of whom are ex-officio. The president has appointed the majority of the voting members: William Schary (Assistant to the President and WH Staff Secretary), Stuart Levenbach (Associate Director Office of Management and Budget), and Michael Blair (White House Deputy Chief of Staff). The Mayor appointed two voting members. The NCPC promises full biographies of the members to come soon. Thus, all the public knows is that the majority works for and is beholden to the president. According to the NCPC website, the Commission will consider approving the "preliminary and final site and building plans" on March 5. For information on how to comment of attend Live Stream see https://www.ncpc.gov/review/meeting/
The motto of the Florentine Grand Duke Cosimo I was "Make haste slowly." The NCPC and Commission of Fine Arts would be well advised to do the same.

The East Wing project was undertaken without following any of the procedures for public comment or preservation review. The result is the loss of a national historic building that belonged to all Americans, at the whim of just one. This project is an egregious use of public funds and a highly visible public act of desecration at a time when people are suffering, out of work, and demoralized. It is an attack on the American People's House and an insult to the nation and all of the great leaders that have come before. How do you expect any citizen to honor the sanctity of public works, to not defile statues or tear them down, when our own president does not follow our laws? Such a public wanton display of disrespect is the worst example of leadership and respect for the people and our great history. No further funds should be spent to increase the damage from this project and the perpetrator should be forced to use his own funds to replace what was lost.

Hi there,

I am appalled that Donald Trump razed the historic East Wing of the People's House. He is a guest, a tenant in our house - and he acted without approvals and quickly so no one could "catch" him. Who does that? No previous President! Therefore, much like any landlord would proceed when a tenant vandalizes a property, Donald Trump should have to restore the East Wing to the way it was when he moved in at his personal expense. He has made enough money taking questionable advantage of his presidential stature in crypto alone to be able to easily afford this.

As a private citizen I feel very strongly about preserving our architectural treasures. My husband and I have personally renovated and saved 4 historic homes, reaping no profit in the process. I was appalled when the East Wing was destroyed without the approval process being followed. The renderings that I have seen for construction of an enormous ballroom in place of the East Wing are in no way appropriate. The White House was never intended to be a palace and any new construction needs to be in keeping with the scale of the original structure. I feel that the East Wing should be reconstructed using the same footprint. President Trump should be paying for the rebuild since he had it torn down without oversight. How the space is used is up to the Planning Commission. A fancy ballroom can be built somewhere other than federal property, especially since private dollars are supposedly paying for it.

To the National Capitol Planning Commission:

As a 7th generation Adirondacker, an owner of a home over 100 years old, a member of the Minerva Historical Society, and as a patriotic American respectful of our history, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed construction of a permanent ballroom addition to the White House.

The White House is not merely a residence or an office; it is the preeminent symbol of American continuity. I believe this proposal poses a significant threat to the architectural integrity and historic character of this National Historic Landmark. It also sets a dangerous precedent for how changes to our historic properties are made.

Points of Concern

Irreversible Alteration of the Historic Fabric: In preservation, "necessity" is sometimes offered as an excuse to justify interventions that permanently mar historic structures. The unpermitted demolition of the East Wing of the White House is the very definition of a self-created hardship.

Scale and Massing: I am deeply concerned about the rhythm and scale of the North and South elevations. The White House has evolved, but it has largely maintained its iconic silhouette. A massive addition risks "façadism," where the original structure becomes a mere backdrop for modern expansion.

The Precedent of Permanence: The beauty of the White House lies in its adherence to the 19th-century residential form. Temporary pavilions have successfully hosted state dinners for decades. Converting a temporary need into a permanent footprint is a fundamental violation of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties, specifically regarding the preservation of the building's historic spatial relationships.

A Perspective from the Field

Living in a 100-year-old home teaches you that you are a steward, not just an owner. You learn to adapt your lifestyle to the house, rather than forcing the house to accommodate every modern whim.

If we allow the most important house in the nation to be expanded for the sake of administrative convenience or event logistics, we send a message to every local Historic Resources Commission in the country that historic integrity is negotiable.
Recommendation

I urge the Commission to reject the proposal. Options remain to continue the use of temporary structures that do not leave a permanent footprint, and to choose alternate venues for large-scale events that utilize other historic D.C. assets.
Ultimately, the White House is federal property belonging to the American people, not personal property of the President, who is considered a temporary resident or tenant. We must ensure that the White House remains a residence and a monument, not a convention center.
Sincerely,

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I am writing to register my strong opposition to the planned $400\u8239 million ballroom addition to the White House and the accompanying demolition of the historic East Wing. After reviewing the recent renderings and the surrounding circumstances described in the press coverage, I have three primary concerns that I urge the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) and the Commission of Fine Arts to consider before the March\u8239 5 hearing.

1. Irreversible Heritage Loss
The East Wing is an integral part of the White House complex, embodying decades of architectural history and presidential legacy. The renderings show a massive 90,000\u8239 sq\u8239 ft structure built level with the mansion, a scale that would visually dominate and fundamentally alter the historic silhouette of the nation's most iconic residence. Even if select elements—cornerstones, colonnade columns, chandeliers—are "meticulously preserved," the loss of the original fabric and spatial context cannot be recovered. Historic preservation standards require that any intervention retain the character\u8209 -defining features of a landmark; this proposal runs counter to that principle.

2. Questionable Cost and Funding Transparency
A $400\u8239 million price tag for a ceremonial ballroom, financed by a consortium of private donors and corporations, raises serious fiscal accountability questions. While the administration claims the project is "on budget and ahead of schedule," there is no publicly available, independent cost\u8209 -benefit analysis. Large\u8209 -scale demolition and new construction typically generate hidden expenses (environmental remediation, security upgrades, long\u8209 -term maintenance) that can far exceed initial estimates. Given competing national priorities, allocating such a sum to a luxury venue demands rigorous scrutiny and justification.

3. Lack of Genuine Public Oversight and Broad Opposition
The rapid removal of the renderings from the NCPC website, the appointment of political allies to oversight bodies, and the initiation of demolition before any formal review all signal a circumvention of established procedural safeguards. The National Trust for Historic Preservation has already filed a federal lawsuit, and the public outcry—amplified by media outlets such as CNN—demonstrates widespread concern. Proceeding without transparent, inclusive deliberation would undermine public trust in the very commissions tasked with protecting our heritage.

I recommend pausing the project, conduct and independent financial review, facilitation of meaningful public participation, and exploration of less intrusive alternatives.

The White House is not merely a working office; it is a living monument to our nation's democratic history. Any alteration of its fabric must be approached with the utmost respect for preservation standards, fiscal responsibility, and democratic oversight. I respectfully request that the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts give full weight to these concerns and act to protect the integrity of the White House for current and future generations.

Thank you for your consideration.

This historical building was destroyed without appropriate approvals or authorization. If we did this at my place of employment we would be submitted to harsh penalties and suspension of any additional construction. We do not need a crass ballroom paid for by sycophants pandering to the president. Full restoration as previously constructed should.be paid by the president with personal funds. He has already been allowed to destroy the Rose Garden, he should not be allowed to destroy more history with the East Wing. We the people want the White House restored. This is the people's house. Tenants do not get to tear down and rebuild the house.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M to $400M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

As a designer, I feel the new design, as proposed, is an abomination to the existing historic structure of the "Peoples House", and would dwarf it both physically and metaphorically.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns. And is there a quid pro quo for such donations? The public needs to know.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability. This appears to be nothing but a vanity project by the current administration.

I want to comment on the proposed construction of the 90,000 square foot ballroom. I was horrified that President Trump tore down the East wing of the White House without working through the lawful channels. The White House is a significant historic site and his administration is once again bypassing all the well established procedures for changing, remodeling or adding to this historic site for another ego trip project. The White House is owned by " We the people" and not Donald Trump. This ballroom is a monstrosity and will overwhelm the beautiful White House and its grounds. The president keeps referring to the idea that this is something the American people want. What a ridiculous assumption! I don't know any ordinary citizen that has been longing for a ball room. He should be required to rebuild the original East Wing of the White House using the funds he raised to build his vanity ballroom addition. If he wants a vanity ballroom he and his wealthy donors can find another site and build it with their funds and not with any taxpayer money. The tax payers should be reimbursed for the damages he has caused to the original White House and the wing should be reconstructed! NO BALLROOM CONSTRUCTION!

Replacing, updating, modernizing, upgrading, adding to the White House in a substantial way? An issue like that requires sober and patient research and a measured approach that follows the regulations and laws very very strictly. That has not taken place. A significant part of our nation's house--the People's House--has been destroyed, without our permission, or due regard to the gravity of such a move. Perhaps a grand entertainment space/ballroom would be a desired and welcome addition to the nation's capital. But we did not get a chance to talk about it first! The way this has been done is anti-democratic, and utterly disrespectful to the history of our country, and all the people who have lived and served in that building. This has been done shamefully and shamelessly. Going forward, please, let us try to mitigate the inappropriateness of the proposed project. Please, let us try to do a sensitive and complete rehabilitation of the former East Wing in complete conformance with what was there before aesthetically, albeit with necessary structural and technical updates. If we need and deserve and want a grand ballroom, let's all sit down as a nation and share our dream projects, and get the help of all the historians, architects, archivists, engineers, preservationists, and yes, a broad segment of our leadership both inside an politics and outside of it, And plain simple citizens who respect and care about our history, and let's propose a plan and find an appropriate location in the Capital. And follow the laws to achieve it. Thank you.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is NOT THE OWNER of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a TEMPORARY TENANT whose interventions are LIMITED BY LAW AND BY RESPECT FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly A VIOLATION OF THE LAW. It is also a VIOLATION OF THE TRUST OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli. Changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

Trump has erased a historic building, the East wing.so much was done there. It makes me so sad. To replace it with glitz using corporate money is anti American. It was the People's House. It should never be used as a gold leafed ballroom. It is wasteful and demoralizing to Americans. I oppose this project.

The East Wing was destroyed without proper authorization, permits, or design review. The destruction was started secretly after promising that the new ballroom would not even touch the existing building. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.
I oppose spending millions of dollars on this project, which should be canceled immediately, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The East Wing building needs to be balanced in size perspective when compared to the main White House. It should be smaller than the White House so that it is seen as an adjunct to not equal or even worse, larger than the main White House building. I don't like the sight lines that I have seen so far.

Please ensure that any new building complements the WH grounds and sight lines.

Maybe add underground sq. Footage for some of the needed areas (like office space) apt that the overall size of the above ground building can be smaller.

Even if, as reported, this project is fully funded by private donations (bribes), the Trump Administration had no right to tear down part of The People's House without going through the proper processes, as required by law. The only proper solution would be to rebuild the East Wing on it's previous footprint, if course using those donated funds (bribes). No one needs or wants a tacky Trump ballroom.

To whom it may concern:

I strongly oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

We the people are watching.

I am opposed to the approval to this project. The President has by passed all regulations and permissions from the offset. Not to mention the calculated untruths about the impact on the East Wing. This isn't a modernization it is a total destruction.
The President of the United States of America tore down not just a building, but the protected history of this county. He didn't tear down part of just any house. He tore down the People's House.
He promised he wouldn't even touch it. Then destroyed it. All with out the required approvals, ignoring the requirement to involve experts in historical preservation etc. He did it to a building he doesn't own and has no legal right to live in other than his current elected position.
Imagine a member of the public renting out a home of national heritage significance. They decide it could do with an upgrade and without telling anyone tore down part of the building. What would the consequences be for that individual?
If this is still a country where no one is above the law, then the current President of the United States should face the same consequences as anyone else.
The East Wing should be restored in keeping with what it once was. The People's entrance to their building.

It appears that the decision to demolish and modernize the East Wing of the White House was solely the President’s, with no permission from Congress. The White House is the people’s house, not the private property of one individual to do what he likes. Even if the project is privately funded, the potential for a “quid pro quo” still exists.It seems that the President is determined to memorialize himself while still in office instead of leaving that up to history. If Congress or the courts don't stop this, then my thought is that the so-called ballroom should be no larger and no taller than the White House itself. And space inside it should be allocated for all the office space destroyed.

Dear Commission,

I vehemently oppose the spending of $300+ million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design at the president's cost. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.
Sincerely, Regine Freitag

I oppose the destruction of the East Wing, along with the history of the First Ladies. I also oppose the spending of $300 million dollars on a ballroom that is unnecessary except as one of this President's vanity projects at taxpayer expense. I also oppose using private donations to fund the construction of anything for this President's vanity projects, which are being launched without adherence to any of the rules, regulations, or established norms. I want the East Wing of The People's House rebuilt and restored to its former design. And since this President has profited so much from his term in office, I want him to personally pay for the restoration through some sort of accountability such as fining him for not following the law. No one is supposed to be above the law, and permitting these actions without penalty would be an affront to all law-abiding citizens.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.
I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. Any reconstruction should honor the original intent and visual continuity of this nationally significant site, ensuring that additions or modifications are harmonious rather than expansive or stylistically incongruous.

At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.

The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.

If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed within the existing footprint of the East Wing. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.

Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.

Thank you for your consideration.

This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.

To the National Capital Planning Commission:

I was born in Washington, D.C. and I treasure the city, its history and its buildings and monuments.

I was appalled to see the demolition of the East Wing in October 2025. I oppose the construction of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom. I want to see the faithful reconstruction of the historic East Wing.

President Trump described his plans for a ballroom to reporters on July 31, 2025. "It'll be built over on the east side," the President said. "It won't interfere with the current building." This was not true. The bulldozers demolished the entire East Wing less than three months later. No permits for the demoliton or asbestos abatement were obtained. Much of the debris from the destruction of the East Wing was dumped at East Potomac Park Golf Links, with no concern for the environmental impact of the potentially hazardous materials that may have been contained in the structure. The park is in a flood plain, and the soil and debris can be washed into the river and sent downstream. The fact that there were no permits sought or issued for a government project on a government building is incomprehensible.

There is no need to build a garish White House ballroom. Tricia Nixon and Edward Cox were married in the White House Rose Garden with a reception for 400 guests in the East Room. Princess Diana famously danced with John Travolta in the Entrance Hall of the East Wing during a gala dinner celebrating the first visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the United States in the Reagan Administration. The White House has hosted 19 weddings and more than 300 state dinners, all without a ballroom.

Furthermore, many of the companies and individuals listed as donors to the $400 million project have significant business interests before this Administration, which raises the obvious issue of whether the donors are buying favor with the Administration with their donations.

The merging of a private construction project on a public building means that there may be no bidding on any of the construction contracts, no input on the architectural design, no oversight of even the smallest light fixture in the new ballroom. The only decision maker will be the man whose name will be engraved on the Donald J. Trump White House Ballroom.

Harry Truman presided over a White House renovation project from 1948 to 1952 because the White House was found to be structurally unsound and was in imminent danger of collapsing. The Truman era renovation preserved the building's exterior while updating its plumbing and electrical systems and rebuilding the interior with steel beams.

President Trump's destruction of the East Wing is completely different. It sets a dangerous precedent for all future presidents who decide to remake the White House. There will be no guardrails on any demolitions or additions that future presidents want to undertake.

President Trump, like all presidents, is a temporary tenant in the People's House. If any other tenant bulldozed part of the building in which he or she resided, they would face immediate eviction and would have to pay damages to the landlord. In this case, those damages are owed to the American people. The East Wing must be rebuilt and the White House must be restored to its former historic glory.

Sincerely, Sara Hobson
Cincinnati, OH

I grew up in Northern Virginia and had the pleasure of being able to visit and tour the White House (the People's House) including during the Christmas season. Every visit always included the East Wing. I was skeptical when the first announcement was made regarding a planned ballroom. I, unfortunately, believed the President that the East Wing would be untouched by the planned construction of a ballroom. I was heartbroken the day the unannounced demolition began. I could hardly believe my eyes. Part of our Nation's History destroyed and gone forever. I understand throughout the years changes have been made, and structural modifications may be needed to maintain the integrity of such a landmark. I don't understand how something of this scale and magnitude could happen without some approval or at least comment/oversite by Congress. I also do not understand how a "supposed" handful of wealthy donors can pay for something that belongs to all Americans, rich or poor. How can a donation not be seen as a potential "payment for favor" to the Executive Branch. I would also like to have some transparency with regard to the donors. We need a list of donors along with their actual donation amount. Has this money been received? Is it pledged? Who is managing the financial end of this construction? Where is the accountability and transparency? What money (taxpayer?) and how much has already been spent? Isn't this supposed to be the most transparent President? I am happy this lawsuit is going forward. While it cannot restore the lost East Wing, it might be able to prevent government fraud and abuse. Thankfully, I will always have the memories of my visits to the White House and do not want a ballroom that is not needed nor wanted. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

This is not a modernization project, it is the destruction of a historical building belonging to the people of the United States without legal or moral approval. Those people who are bragging about how they are building a big beautiful ballroom should be forced to get approval and should PAY for it. I am opposed to the destruction of the East Wing. Of course, my opposition means little as the East Wing is already gone. None of the proper authorization, permits, or design review occurred. The president decided he wanted a ballroom and called in the bulldozers. This is not how government should work. The White House needs to be restored to its former glory.

We don't need a ballroom, but do need a government that follows the rules. I would like to see the wing rebuilt, and those who took part in the ordering and participation of the demolition be penalized. Thank you.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.

This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization REQUIRED by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.

The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.

This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.

The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input

I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

Hello -

I oppose this East Wing "modernization" project. This historic extension of the White House was illegally torn down, and the plans to "rebuild" it are ridiculous! It's going to look so out of place, tacky, and end up costing the taxpayers so much money (I bet the "private donors" will fall through with their promise to trump). It needs to be restored to its former glory, and trump owes the American people an apology for recklessly taking it upon his conceited self to dismantle this beautiful wing.

Sirs:

Protecting this nation's real history is extremely important (both the good and the bad).
The People's House, known as the White House, is one part of that history.
Destroying the East Wing and building a ballroom that will dwarf the main building is an insult to the people of this country.
The destruction of the various rooms in the building to suit Mr. Trump, erasing the history of the building, must be stopped.
Construction of a ballroom that will dwarf the original building, along with other building and landscape changes, should be the purview of people who understand history, not an individual who likes sparkly things.
It is, after all, "the people's house."

As an American Taxpayer, I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. The construction of the oversized ballroom needs to be halted and the site returned to its configuration of the east wing. If a ballroom IS needed, the decision needs to go through proper channels. I have major concerns about what the “donating” corporations were promised. There is no way they would have donated out of the “goodness “ of their heart. If they had that kind of CEO they’d lower their prices instead, so they were promised something or were given concessions to do it. What were those concessions? Also, who’s going to be paying the bill when construction goes over budget. Will there be enough donated funds or will tax payers end up footing the bill? I handled construction loans for ten years. We ALWAYS required a 30% reserve to cover any overruns because we knew they were going to happen every time.

The East Wing was intentionally taken down without permit or process as required. I am heartbroken that we have lost this historic wing of our White House - THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE.
The East Wing should be rebuilt with similar size, architecture, and purpose of the demolished wing. It should be complementary to the White House, not an enormous ode to grandeur that overshadows THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE. Those individuals who purposely broke laws and codes (to demolish the East Wing) should bear the entire cost to replace it.
If a "ballroom" is deemed necessary, find another property outside the White House grounds.
Thank you.

The White House is the People's House. It is not the personal property of the President.
• The White House was originally designed with a classical composition, featuring two smaller and lower East and West wings, reflecting Georgian and Neoclassical principles. It was designed by Irish-American Architect James Hoban in 1792 in a public design competition. His design was selected by George Washington.
• Design guidelines for the White House and President's Park were issued by the National Park Service in 1997.
"The White House and President's Park are first and foremost a Public Trust, and important part of our national heritage."
• The current proposed project foot print is 90,000 square feet (SF) including a 22,000 SF, 1,000-person ballroom. The White House is 55,000 square feet (on multiple levels not all on ground floor). Current capacity average for most State Department events in the West Wing is 140 people. The project is grossly out of scale to the White House. There are extreme concerns regarding massing, height, scale aka proportionality and design harmony.
• The East Wing was expanded into the two-story structure (from the one-story addition built in 1902 by Theadore Roosevelt) by Franklin Rooseelt 1942 after Pearl Harbor to include an emergency underground bunker, the Presidential Emergency Operations Center. This PEOC was used, for example, after 9/11.
• When the current East Wing was demolished, it was stated that the East Wing cornerstone, columns, chandeliers and interior wood paneling were documented, stored and preserved for potential integration into the new project. Where are these elements now, and how can we verify that they will be thoughtfully reused?

• Although no formal Environmental Impact Report (EIR) is required as it is exempt under Section 107 of the National Historic Preservation Act (which exempts the White House, the Capital and the Supreme Court building from standard review), questions that a normal EIR would pose should still be answered. These include: impact to traffic and noise, impacts to surrounding land uses including the President's Park, Lafayette Park and the Ellipse. For example, where will the limos, cars and other transportation be staged or parked?
• How will a 1,000-person event work? How will security be provided? What is the guests' demographic, ie. is this going to be considered a venue where tickets are sold for attendance?
• Although the +$300 million project is stated to be funded by private donors, what about the long-term expenses of: security, maintenance, staffing, utilities, programming and scheduling of events? Will these be at the cost of the American people?
• The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation provide clear federal guidance for construction projects affecting historic properties which have not been followed. New construction should be compatible with existing massing, size, scale and architectural features which this project does not. These standards have guided preservation of the White House since the 1792 public design competition.
• Prior to the East Wing's demolition October 2025, the last major destruction the White House endured was in 1814 when the British burned it during the War of 1812. (Architect James Hoban rebuilt it after the fire.)
• This project, and this administration, is not being a good Steward of a national, of an international, icon of historical nature. The People's House represents the Republic

This project is an abomination—its size completely out of scale for the historic People's House. And, knowing the imperial "taste" of the president, it will be completely out of historic character, as well. Moreover, the people do not WANT either a royal ballroom (since we do not abide royalty) or indoor inaugurations that can exclude the public completely from the transfer of power. It is too late to save the East Wing, but not too late to prevent or radically downscale this egomaniac's fever dream.

Destroying the East wing without public input or proper authorization was criminal and should be penalized. Even if he had private donations, this is the people's building and he had no right to tear it down. A ballroom is not in the national interest.

This project violates the public trust. For the President to decide on his own to destroy part of The White House without public input is the height of arrogance and indifference. He does not own that property and, therefore, doesn't have the right to destroy any part of it and build something else. There was no transparency for the American public. All of a sudden, we saw the footage of what the President had done; the East Wing was rubble at that point. What a monstrosity this ballroom will be. Words fail me at this point other than to say again what a horrific violation of public trust he has committed.

No one builds a ballroom for 200-400 million dollars unless they intend to stay there a very long time. Donald Trump destroyed precious American history for his vanity project. It is vital that not only his project is stopped, but that all available blueprints and resources are utilized to restore the wing as closely as possible to its former glory, with no mention or honor of President Trump (seeing as he is the one who destroyed it, anyway).

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project as it currently stands, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. To permit this project to go ahead as currently detailed sets a dangerous precedent of bulldoze now, get your way later.

I'm saddened that so many First Ladies, who provided the unpaid labor as they supported their husband's political careers from their first political race all the way to becoming President, have been so disrespected. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project to be revised into an East Wing rebuild, restoring the East Wing to its former purpose, and updated to meet modern needs for office flow, comfort, electricity, and security.

I want this project completed with tax dollars, not privately donated funds from individuals or corporations in order to preserve the sanctity of The People's House. The White House is not for sale.

I sincerely hope that there is a new understanding and recognition that not every president who is elected

I strongly oppose this project, which did not go through proper channels to obtain permits, manage historical issues or properly review designs. "Modernizing" the East wing into an immense ballroom - while purposely disrespecting its storied history - should not be allowed to move forward. This project should be cancelled and the East Wing should be restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans. I am also opposed to private and sometimes unnamed donors contributing to this project. If it's important enough to be done through proper channels then the American people should be responsible for its cost. Utilizing private and corporate donors opens the door to bribery and "purchased" advantages with the President.

The Trump ballroom project should not be allowed to move forward. Trump's actions bypassing all legal processes should be sanctioned not rewarded regardless of the "concern" for the current vulnerability for the bunker left exposed by the destruction of the historic East Wing. I can't help but believe that very vulnerability was part of the plan to allow the project to move forward as a plan B if there was pushback for the east wing project. The speed with which the historical east wing was demolished bears this out.

The challenges facing the American people deserve the attention and resources of the government far more than a vanity project.

The White House belongs to the people of the United States, not to the president. Its historical significance must be preserved and the damage restored.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

The East Wing of the White House needs to be restored to it's previous form, based on the original drawings and specifications, with all modern upgrades in safety and technology. In no way should a huge, onstentatious, dominating ballroom be constructed. If a design that honors the original design of the White House and the West Wing can be offered that fits in with the surroundings, providing office space for the First lady an her staff and all other offices that used to be housed in the East Wing, that would be an acceptable alternative. However, the destruction of the East Wing as it previously existed was an insult to the American People, and i want to see every single person involved in it to be arrested and fined or jailed for their role in the travesty. I also want to see all objects of historical or artistic signficance that were previously housed in the now destroyed east wing to be identified, found, inventoried, and restored to the reconstructed East Wing.

I did not vote for Donald Trump in the 2024 presidential election, but among those who did, there were zero (0) voters, anywhere in the United States, who voted for him based on a campaign promise from him to tear down the East Wing and replace it with a ballroom or anything else. The White House, I'm informed, is a national park. As such, NCPC has authority over construction and renovation at the site. The White House did not follow the legal requirement of getting advance permit approval for such actions, and offered bogus justification for pursuing the egregious extent of demolition that's already happened. I agree with former NCPC chair L. Preston Bryant, Jr., who has said, "If there's to be demolition, that's part of the project.... The demolition element is inherent in the overall project. Demo is not separated from construction. It's part of it." Yes, that's obvious. The NCPC has approval jurisdiction over vertical construction. The proposed ballroom would be built vertically upward from ground level where the East Wing has been. The only way to construct vertically from said ground level is via doing an East Wing tear-down to start with. That is why Mr. Bryant is correct about the non-separation of the commenced demolition from the contemplated construction. The president and White House are in legal non-compliance with NCPC protocols.

Moreover, I oppose the ballroom idea, totally. It's just another vanity idea like trying to get Dulles Airport re-named for him. What Trump and White House want to do, towards glorification of his ego, is a razing of American history. The project would destroy the architectural balance, the synchronicity, of a West Wing and East Wing. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law, and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The ballroom as planned is ugly and destroys the look of the beautiful and historic Whitehouse. The east wing should be rebuilt as it was and Trump punished by extreme fine or prison or both. Please don't allow the ballroom to be built.

This is an example of the congress allowing a child having his way without any consequences. The child is ignoring the laws and no one is saying “no you can’t do that”. As an American citizen I find this action to be a disgusting example of entitlement by the child who cares nothing for the American people and only about his self aggrandizement.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

Additionally there are other options in the area with capacity to accommodate larger numbers of attendees if necessary.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns. That speaks volumes about the lack of respect for following normal procedures when a change is being considered.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

I personally think that the East Wing should be rebuilt using the "donors funds". I also oppose the destruction of the rose garden and hope it will be restored. There's enough concrete in the city.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I was so horrified to see the destruction of the East Wing. As a retired educator, I know that this was done without any regard to procedures for preservation of historical buildings. This is definitely not a modernization project, but a vanity project to serve one person instead of the American people. The disregard for the American Constitution is APPALLING! My love for true democracy has pushed me to write, asking that the East Wing be restored to its former design and that this administration be held accountable! It was a terrible metaphor to see the dismantling of history! We, the people, are demanding our democracy back!

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

The following points are why I am TOTALLY AGAINST the tearing down of the East Wing.

Lack of Proper Review and Transparency: Opponents and the National Trust for Historic Preservation argued the project moved forward without required, legally mandated historic preservation reviews or approval from the National Capital Planning Commission.

Destruction of Historic Site: The demolition was criticized as a "disrespectful" alteration of a national landmark, removing the historic space that historically housed offices for First Ladies and their staff.

Scale and Scope: The proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom was viewed by some as excessive and out of character for the White House, with concerns it would "dwarf" the existing executive residence.

Questionable Legitimacy and Funding: Critics characterized the funding and approval process as a "Rube Goldberg" method intended to avoid oversight, raising concerns about opaque private donations.

Process and Procedure: Critics, including former officials, argued that the project was handled without consulting the public and was contrary to established procedures for altering federal buildings.

Public and Political Opposition: Polls indicated significant opposition, with roughly 61% of independents and 88% of Democrats opposed to the project, calling it a "desecration" of the "People's House".

Critics argued that the project's rapid, "irreversible" nature was a major issue, allowing little room for proper oversight.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

I do not oppose the continuation of The East Wing Modernization which is currently going on. Instead I'm in favor of it.
Please consider my opinion. The White House has not been exactly as it is now during its entire existence. I would like any items housed in or on the walls of this section of the East Wing to be preserved for display to be viewed periodically and put back in storage as they currently do with things in display throughout The White House including pictures to show how it was before this remodel. I realize none of us want to lose the historical aspect that now exists but I've learned that we must preserve even as we remodel. The reasons I've been exposed to of why President Trump wants the East Wing changed and every reason I've read was a good and firm reason. I encourage each of you who have a deciding vote to know that I'm in support of and am good with the East Room Modernization. I don't oppose it nor want the voters to stop it.

The proposed ballroom to replace the East Wing of the White House is an abomination that would adversely affect the appearance and historic nature of the building. This is the "people's house" and the people did not ask for this. The east wing should be rebuilt to its former footprint; if it is possible to incorporate an event space, fine, but the overall design should not overpower the rest of the historic structure.

I strongly disagree with the continuation of this illegal project and a waste of our tax dollars and and erasure of history. I want the East wing returned to its former state, to the tiniest of details. President Antionette doesn't need a golden ball room while he turns American cities into war zones battling his ICE goons. That is NOT his house. It's our house. And it belongs to our ancestors that built it and funded it with the sweat off their backs.

I oppose the spending of $300 million to build a lavish ballroom, a project which was undertaken without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. To move forward without these permits and design review is to trample on our American history, and on the rule of law. I would like this project halted. I believe our country is better served by rebuilding and restoring the East Wing to its former style. To allow this project to proceed without the required permits and authorizations is not in our country's best interests.

Remember the East Wing of the White House? Remember the giant ballroom that the tech billionaires have agreed to fund in its place? The National Trust for Historic Preservation is making a gallant effort to stop this. And we can help.

Thanks to the National Trust, we have until March 4 to submit comments about the ballroom to the National Capital Planning Commission. You can make a comment through the link below (click on Submit Comment). PLEASE NOTE, the project is called East Wing Modernization on the pull down menu.

Anara Guard's comment on this is beautiful. She gave me permission to post it here, if anyone wants to use her language.

The razing of the East Wing was done on the sly, without any form of review or oversight. It was done this way in order to preempt any discussion of its future.
The White House belongs to the American people, not to any one of its temporary residents and it was never intended to be a palace.
The East Wing should be rebuilt, as it was before this affront to the restrained and refined taste of the structure was foisted on the American people.

NO. Please vote NO.

There was no plan, they sought no permissions. In fact, they insisted that they did not need permission. They said that they would not touch the main building of the White House and they did. They said they would not harm the trees, and they did. They said they would preserve the art, and they did not.

This is unprecedented, and choosing people to be on the review board is unheard of. This must not happen.

Please vote no.

I strongly oppose spending $300 million on the project to build a huge ballroom in place of the historic East Wing of the White House. The East Wing was destroyed without going through the proper authorization, permits, or design review, and certainly without the input of the American people whose house that building is supposed to be. In the President's tearing down of the East Wing, we have lost much that was historic in nature. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former size, design, and purpose. The President broke the law in destroying a large part of this historic building, and he should not be permitted to get away with that. There should be consequences!

Please, please stop this awful project in its tracks. Ordinary American citizens like myself would be happy to contribute to rebuilding the East Wing to its former state. This project was done without the necessary authorization. The project idoes not fit the rest of the White House structures--it is far too big and too gaudy--and worse, the history of the East Wing was obliterated in the razing of the building. I am hopeful that with careful oversight, the wing could be rebuilt in a way that preserves the looks and feel of the former East Wing and reflects its history.

The East Wing should be rebuilt to its former glory using the funds donated for the ballroom. This should be done to restore it to prevent any further gain from these illegal actions. No Name other than the East Wing should be given to it.
America has places of publically owned and built history, they should recieve more respect than simply to be demolished at the drop of a hat.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed “modernization of the East Wing and ballroom addition” project at the White House.

The White House is not simply a residence or event venue - it is a historic symbol of our democracy. Its architectural character reflects continuity, restraint, and service. Altering that character in a significant way risks diminishing the very symbolism that makes it meaningful.

I am particularly concerned about the scale and purpose of adding a ballroom. The White House has never been defined by grandeur for its own sake. It has stood, instead, as a reminder that the President serves the public. Its dignity comes from its history, not from expansion.

There is also the matter of cost. At a time when public resources are stretched across pressing national priorities, investing in a large-scale addition to an already functional historic building feels unnecessary and misaligned with the spirit of stewardship that this house represents.

The White House is often called “The People’s House.” That phrase matters. Its character should remain humble, grounded, and historically intact - a visible reminder that leadership in this country is rooted in service, not spectacle.

I respectfully urge you to reconsider this project and prioritize retuning the East Wing to the size and scope of what it was prior to demolition.

The East Wing modernization and ballroom addition will be a constant reminder for future generations of the chaos and inhumanity associated with this President. What will be demolished next, the Lincoln Memorial, or just the Constitution and the laws of this country?
This humongous ballroom will completely overshadow the White House, and, of course, the Trump name will be emblazoned upon it, as if it is one of their hotels, towers or golf courses. This addition is not for We The People. It is solely for the ego of this President.

It is shameful that a historic building such as the White House was allowed to have part of it destroyed by one man's wishes. The East Wing has such significant place in the US history. Foreign leaders have been welcomed there and tourists got their first glimpse of the inside of the White House when that was the portal for their entrance. There was no discussion, no advance planning or coordination from any historical design committee or agency. It was simply destroyed on the whim of one man. The lavish ballroom that has been projected is completely out of proportion to the White House and all other historic government buildings in DC. It is also completely not needed. I think all parties that were responsible for the destruction should have to fund the rebuilding of the East Wing exactly as it was prior to this terrible teardown.

The White House is the people's house. It belongs to the American people, and our representatives have enacted laws governing how restoration and modernization projects are to be approved. No president should be able to make this decision single-handedly.

Demolition is more accurate than modernization. The East wing was the lady wing. Just as Trump and his republican cohorts have taken away women's access to healthcare, this is another way to try to limit women's influence in politics. Trump is so incompetent he can't even follow proper channels to build a dance hall. At some point, the American people will rebuild it exactly the way it was. In the meantime spend the money on health care and food security for people who need it.

A tenant in the People's House should not have destroyed our house, our history, all for a vanity project. This is egregious behavior. Any one person who occupies the White House should not be able to take over any renovations, any destruction, anything that disgraces the People's House. I cried when I saw the video of the construction equipment tearing the East Wing down. Our monuments, our shared histories of Native Americans, immigrants, Black, brown, all Peoples should be preserved and not rewritten to please one person, one group. History should be expanded, truthfully, and we aren't there yet. The East Wing should be restored at no cost to the American taxpayers. Use the hundreds of millions given for the "ballroom" to go to restoration of the East Wing, and other national treasures damaged by this current administration. Thank you.

I strongly disapprove of the demolition of the American people’s historic East Wing in order to build a gaudy ballroom. First of all, this was done illegally. No one is above the law, not even the president. The White House does not belong to the President, it belongs to the American people. If it needs to be renovated, it should be done in keeping with the historical time period in which it was built and with the proper authorization. I am asking that the ballroom plan be halted and that the East Wing be rebuilt in keeping with the time period. Our history needs to be preserved, not destroyed.

I oppose this project. It began without proper authorization, permits, or a clear, verified funding source. It has done harm to the historic site that is the White House, and any further pursuit of construction (short of fully restoring the East Wing to its pre-demolition state) will continue to have a negative impact on the historical significance of this site. This project in its current form should be cancelled, and the east Wing should be restored to its pre-demolition state at the expense of the person(s) who greenlit the demolition without following legal requirements.

Please do not allow construction of a "ballroom" where the East Wing was demolished. The White House has always been "The Peoples House". It is what separates us from other countries and is a symbol of our democratic governance. To allow any single occupant of the Oval Office or Residence to make permanent changes is unthinkable. This is our collective history and belongs to each and every single American. The East Wing should be preserved and rebuilt to its' prior elegance.

I am opposed to this project as currently developed. There is a clear need for a larger meeting space such as this ballroom. It is way over the needed seating capacity. How we financially support ongoing operations of a facility of this size? The scale of the proposal dwarfs the original White House structure and diminishes it prominence and historical place. It makes it a clear second on the site. Adding to the height of the west wing only makes this worse!

I am a Registered Architect with over 40 years of practice. I have travelled globally and have toured each of the capitals of the USA, Russia, China and Brazil. Our project is trying to complete with these other capitals. Since when do we add some white columns to a white, oversized box and call this great architecture? Please insist on a re design of this project! Respectfully.

My understanding is that no tax dollars will be used to fund this project. But this house is a symbol for all the people of the United States. Billionaires should not buy their version of the White House It deserves a proper modernization, not replacement with a project that is ego driven by the current, but not future, occupant of the Presidency. It should properly reflect real need. If a big room is needed, fine. But it should be required to go through every process that any building representing the United States of America should. That we are sitting with a demolition project is an affront to America. Laws have been broken and no one is above the law. The East Wing was destroyed in the whim of the president to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors. There was no review at all. I oppose this demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project (and growing) is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting president which creates, at the very least, the appearance of influence-seeking and undermines public trust.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project. And please, please, no gilding!

Gentlemen:

I wish to mirror Anara Guard's comment on the destruction of OUR once historic and beautiful East Wing of the White House. She has granted permission to use/mirror her comment on Facebook.

"I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans."

This President acts out of only self-interest with distain and disrespect for the citizens of the US and its treasury. He is NOT above the law despite his efforts to be so.

-He is a pedophile: No innocent person would protest and fight this hard to cover up evidence of his long-term duplicitous involvement with Epstein.
-He is a rapist: A court of law has it deemed it so via evidence presented before a jury.

-He is a con-artist and fraud: Thirty-four felony counts of falsifying business documents in a court of law have established his guilt.
-He is _____: The despicable actions of this President are too numerous to outline. Fill in the blank.

Of all the corrupt, dangerous, and immoral actions of this President, the destruction of the East Wing, and the attempts to "rewrite" our history have broken my heart in ways I could have never predicted. Please stop him and hold him accountable for the laws he has broken and is breaking as I write this to you.

Our time-honored and respected institutions are slipping through the fingers of our democracy. Please hold strong to your duty to protect our history, culture, and uphold the laws that protect them and us from him.

I do not support the destruction of a national monument without using the proper process or channels to review and approve the "modernization". If this was truely a respectful modernization, there would have been due process and transparency.

American tax dollars are better used to help combat the impact of rising food prices for those most in need, housing homeless vets, increasing funds for WIC or reduced lunches for school kids.

This was a cruel and irresponsible use of funds in the face of a nation struggling. The destruction of the East Wing of the white house mirrors the destruction this administration is visiting on the American people.

The government should consider building a ballroom that is smaller, more elegant, and tastefully designed. It would have been far better to plan something modest and refined before proceeding with demolition. Additionally, there is no need for excessive ornamentation such as gold leafing. I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

I am unequivocally opposed to the the unauthorized project in the East Wing. The use of private funds is scandalous. The destruction of our heritage is horrific. The president should use his own funds to rebuild the structure as it was. Instead he is promising favors to the wealthy who contribute. This is the people's house, not the billionaires playground.
We need the East Wing rebuilt as it was.

It's absolutely outrageous that the president demolished a building that belongs to the United States, not him, without any approval, guidance, or regard to the planning commission. I would urge you to immediately stop whatever oligarch plans are into place and make him restore it, through his or his oligarch donors' funds, to its original footprint in a design approved by the planning commission.

I am totally opposed to the destruction of the existing East Wing. I think what Trump did should be punished as criminal trespass to Federal Property and he should be required to personally pay to restore it to its former exterior size, shape and style. If the inside can be restructured to better serve the American people, then that should be done. It is imperative the outside be restored to its pre-Trump appearance. It is appalling to me that anyone can call in heavy duty construction equipment anywhere in DC and just demolish an existing building without the proper permits. It is beyond belief this happened to half of the White House because Trump lied and said the existing East Wing would not be touched.

I strongly oppose this.

I was very disturbed when Trump demolished the east wing without consulting or notifying anyone. He acts with the arrogance and impunity of a dictator

The details that I've learned from various press reports about the planned ballroom are also very disturbing. They're inconsistent with the architectural integrity of the White House and the cost is being paid by corporate interests, which stinks of corruption.

The whole project should be deferred and done with proper care and should not become a monument to Trump.

As a tax payer for 65 years, I request the East Wing of the White House be restored as it was with only structural upgrades required to bring it up to current codes. From childhood we've been proud of our capital and its iconic buildings and structures. The White House has been widely visited by dignitaries and the common person and wonderfully represented our country's dignity and was a welcoming place for others. Keeping the integrity of our historically intact White House is important as so much shifting sand occurs around us. It is grounding. The wanton desecration & destruction was done without proper authority and without approval of the American people. The People's House belongs to the nation and not to its current inhabitant.

In no way does this ballroom benefit 'we the people.' We will not be invited to attend an event there. It will not be my name on it. We won't make money from it. But Pres. Trump will find a way to profit from it. The mere fact that the site was demolished illegally should STOP this project in its tracks. Going forward with this will be a disgrace to anyone's legacy if they vote/approve it. Thank you for your consideration into this matter.

This project began without ANY of the proper authorizations, permits, or design review, and it has no merit whatsoever, whether functionally or architecturally or in any other way.

I want this project canceled post haste. Millions of Americans of good will including me demand that the East Wing get rebuilt TO ITS PREVIOUS DESIGN.

The proposed ballroom project has no place as part of the White House Complex and has already violated historic preservation guidelines. Its scale and mass overburdens the historic landscape. Simply because the East Wing has already been destroyed does not mean that the President and his chosen minions have the right to dictate a new building. There was no documentation of the East Wing and it should be rebuilt as it once stood. This destruction should not be rewarded with carte blanche to further ruin The People's House.

The world recoiled when airplanes destroyed the Twin Towers. Yet, this administration illegally bulldozes historic, national treasures and monuments and no one stops it? The White House is the PEOPLES' house. The simple elegance of the design and the history that happened there are OUR story. The East Wing needs to be historically rebuilt, piece by piece and that concrete slab replaced by the original rose garden. Do it now before they can do any further destruction. We did not vote for our monuments and our historical buildings to be destroyed because of one man's ego. Stop this now before the Washington Monument is replaced by a parking garage.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

1 oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action.
Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.
I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

The destruction of the East Wing of the historic People's House, simply to satisfy the enormous ego of Donald Trump, is a travesty and must be reversed. As with many other actions of this president, the legal requirements and permissions for making such drastic changes were not met, and therefore the action taken is illegal. Furthermore, the White House does not NEED a ballroom, especially one paid for by taxpayers, or, perhaps worse, corporations offering bribes.

I am a land use and environmental attorney who has practiced nationally for more than 45 years.

It is a slap in the face to the entire country to call demolition of a significant part of the White House a "modernization project." Complete demolition does not constitute modernization. It is simply destruction.

In this case, the destruction was accomplished in haste, without mandatory permits or evaluation of its impacts on the publicly owned White House complex. After more than 45 years of advising clients on compliance with federal preservation, planning, and environmental laws, I can testify that demolition of the East Wing was undertaken in violation of law. Worse yet, it was undertaken in flagrant and knowing violation of applicable laws and procedures. There is no question that a private property owner would be charged with intentional violation of law under similar circumstances and appropriately subject to criminal penalties.

The destruction violated a long list of federal statutes and regulations:
1. The President is not unilaterally entitled to demolish any federal properties, especially historic properties, without following proper procedures. In this case, the President followed NO procedures whatsoever, after publicly declaring the East Wing "would not be touched." In other words, the President undertook to demolish property he does not own, and over which he does not exercise sole dominion, in the direct face of his public assurances. In normal circumstances, the demolition company that acted at his behest would also be subject to criminal penalties for failing to make sure the demolition project had appropriate permits.
2. The President failed to comply with NEPA, NHPA, and the Capital Planning Commission requirements in demolishing the East Wing and proposing to construct a new building with NO public review, based solely on his personal desire for a mammoth and unnecessary ballroom. So, demolition of the East Wing was a criminal act and any replacement must comply with all planning requirements. It cannot be stated strongly enough that the White House complex does not belong to any single occupant, but it is the property of the people of the United States. It must be treated as any other federally owned historic property. It is a travesty to allow a single occupant to make significant changes, including demolition, without consulting and obtaining the approval of the people's representatives.
3. To the extent the East Wing "modernization project" consists of a new ballroom, whether the President's current design or any other design, it requires full review by ALL regulatory and review bodies. It must be evaluated in terms of whether it is compatible with the remaining portions of the White House complex, will meet existing unmet needs for both office and entertaining space.
4. Based on publically available information, there is no need for a ballroom of the size proposed by the current President. The existing space has served the country well for more than 200 years. It is nonsense to assert a deficiency because some events are hosted in tents, much like the most high-end parties and weddings in the world. It is simply self=aggrandizement for the current President to insist on unnecessary improvements for the sole purpose of self-aggrandizement.

5. Final plans have not been submitted for review as is required by the same requirements applicable to all federally owned properties. There has also been no assessment of whether the office space destroyed willy-nilly at the President's covert command is actually necessary and best provided at the location of the East Wing. Public information demonstrating the need for a new ballroom has not been provided or assessed.

The White House and associated outbuildings have served the people of the United States for more than 200 years. Carefully planned and reviewed additions have been constructed in accordance with law applicable at the time. The NCPC must apply the same standards to the unpermitted and deceitful demolition of the East Wing and all replacement proposals as applicable to any and all other federally-owned properties. The transient wishes of a single occupant of the White House cannot be allowed to override the interest of all Americans in the future of their properties.

I look forward to the NCPC's decision to penalize the unpermitted destruction of the historic East Wing and to thoroughly analyze any replacement in accordance with the laws applicable to all Americans. Please notify me of all future actions or decisions.

Thank you.

A ballroom for the current occupant of The White House could definitely be a lot smaller. How much space could his balls really need? Even including all of the balls (I'm sure they're all enormous) that are ever within the confines of that building, it can't possibly take up more than 10 square feet, even less if they are put in a blender and liquified first.

How about less parties and more DOING YOUR FUCKING JOB??

P.S. Your job description does not include anywhere the words "TURN A PROFIT" or "CONCEAL EVIDENCE OF THE WEALTHY PEDOPHILES THAT STEAL CHILDREN TO TORTURE, RAPE AND KILL"

I oppose the so-called East Wing Modernization project and the construction of a new ballroom at the White House. This project was initiated without proper authorization, permitting, or required design review, and it resulted in the unlawful demolition of a historically significant portion of the East Wing. This is not modernization—it is the irreversible loss of American history.
I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to reject this proposal, require restoration of the East Wing to its former design, and ensure that the costs of demolition, restitution, and reconstruction are borne by the private individuals who ordered and oversaw this unlawful action. No project, regardless of funding source or political influence, should be allowed to proceed outside the law. Failure to enforce accountability here would undermine both historic preservation and the rule of law

I remember well the old East wing ballroom, having attended many functions there over the years. It was a disgrace, run down, too small, no restrooms, falling apart. Thank God Donald Trump is fixing that with NO COST to taxpayers! How wonderful that we can now be proud of formal events once again once this project is finished.

Donald Trump does not own the White House. He doesn't even rent the White House. He is an occupant with the uneasy consent of the owners of the White House--American citizens. He does not have consent to demolish or even to make permanent changes to the White House. Yet, he has illegally destroyed a significant, historic section of the White House, a property he doesn't even pay rent on. The East Wing of the White House is now a pile of deconstruction debris, and he doesn't even own that. He does not have the right to construct anything on that lot. He does have the right and responsibility to pay damages and to face legal action for his vandalism. We need to see to it that he does.

I absolutely oppose this addition to the White House…the “house of the people.” Protocols and laws/regulations were not followed when this individual decided by himself to tear down both the rose garden and the east wing. I can’t put a lawn mower shed in my yard without permission from my towns: building inspector and the conservation commission. We don’t need another Versailles in DC. and those monies could have gone to better use: health care, environment issues, etc…It will cost Americans to return the east wing to its original state and quite frankly, that should come out of the pocket of the person who decides to get it down to begin with NOT the American people. For ONCE, this person should be made to follow the rules, regulations and laws of this country

I vehemently oppose the building of a new East wing ballroom on the White House, the PEOPLE'S house. There is a legal process to make changes or request them on our historical monuments. What would stop another present from tearing down other national monuments? What if they don't like the Lincoln memorial and think it could be better? Do they just get to tear it down and do what they will? No one is above the law and those responsible should pay the price and restore the People's House to its former historical significance.

First of all, this reason this is even a project at all is that the destruction of the historic East Wing of the White House was initiated without proper authorization, permits or design review. It is NOT a modernization project but rather a COMPLETE razing of American History. The White House is THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE and NOT some pet project to be undertaken at the whim of some ego maniac who wants historic things named after him when he has no business involving himself with things that don't belong to him. It is unconscionable that this historic site be desecrated by a ballroom, or any other such thing, that will not benefit anybody but very rich people who are completely out of touch with the vast majority of everyday Americans.
I COMPLETELY OPPOSE the spending of even one penny, let alone $300 million, on this project. I want this project canceled and the East Wing restored to its former design. NO ONE IS ABOVE THE LAW and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law by destroying a piece of American History would be an absolute affront to all law-abiding Americans.

Donald Trump has illegally demolished a historic building that belongs to the people of the United States. Trump has no respect for anything or anyone but himself, including-- and perhaps especially--those assets of the People that represent enduring American values and history.
In my opinion as a citizen, the East Wing should be restored to its original appearance, retrofitted to comply with modern building codes and regulations, and Donald Trump should be made to pay for it. It should not cost the taxpayers a cent.
Thank you.

I would like it restored to its original design. Honor those women who served our nation. Find another location for the big ugly ballroom which would hardly get any use at all!

I am totally opposed to the planned ballroom being built that would totally dwarf the rest of the White House. It is way too big and way too elaborate. It has not in any way been approved and should not be built without any of these necessary approvals. And I am very much troubled that it is being privately funded, which opens up a massive conflict of interest problem.
The fact that Mr. Trump tore down the entire East Wing of the White House without any approval, for a building he does NOT own or control, should cause him to personally pay to restore it to what it was. This whole action is totally unacceptable and deplorable.

After the heartwrenching destruction of the East Wing, I feel contruction of an extravagant ballroom would be adding insult to injury. Currently, many Americans are experiencing economic hardship and cultural chaos. An opulent, unnecessary ballroom space, to be used only by the privileged and elite, would be an unacceptable outcome, in my opinion.

Perhaps a space could be created that would be accessable to average Americans who visit the White House. It would be much more appropriate. It is, after all, the people's house.

In my view, the ballroom should not be built because there is no need for it. The White House is about the history of America, it is part of who we are. Our ancestors died defending it. Mr. Trump should use his $300,000,000 to build the East Wing back exactly the way it was. The White House is not about entertaining friends, it is about placing the highest value on who we are and what we value. The White House is sacred and should not be destroyed for entertainment.

White House grounds are not under the ownership of the President. Rather, they are provided as the center of gravity for every administration.

In this case, the President wants to build a monument to himself; he cares little for the historical value intrinsic to the White House.

Most importantly, no permission was asked for, no thought given to what the grounds represent and the public opinion spat upon.
We have no need for a 'Ballroom", especially one funded by the very people who are seeking access to the President. Can you say conflict of interest?

BTW, Mr President, you are a tenant. And like in apartment buildings, you don't get to change around the landscaping on property you don't own.

It's outrageous the project got this far. Any further work should be vetted by independent public agencies and carefully monitored. No addition should be allowed that doesn't respect the legacy of the White House and its many occupants.

It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design.
No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

And the taxpayers should not pay a dime for the reconstruction!

To Whom It May Concern:
This $300 million project was initiated without proper authorization, permits, design review, or adequate invitation for public input. Abruptly tearing down the East Wing was an affront to the people of the United States and to American history. This project should be canceled. I would like the East Wing rebuilt with an effort to restore its former design. No one should be above the law. The court system should penalize those who broke the law by abruptly destroying what belongs to the public. This project should not proceed. If the project is completed it will send the message to all law-abiding Americans that we indeed have a double legal standard that allows powerful people to act with impunity. I am very upset about the demolition of the East Wing and I urge a responsible re-examination and further planning about how to correct what has happened, which is simply wrong! Thank you for your consideration.

I strongly oppose this project!

This is a public building and should be treated with respect for the people's house. All major renovations should have approval by a historical commission.

A tacky gilded ballroom should not be attached to the people's house without permission from the people's approval and permission.

Let's get some respect and class in Washington.

It does not intend to modernize the East Wing. The demolition was completed after President Trump had said the East Wing's original was not going to be touched. We did not have time to protest or oppose that unannounced demolition.

In addition, if the design both in renderings and in maquette that the public has seen are the direction this is going, which it seems to be, I find the size and design disrespectful towards the people's house.

Was there a feasibility study? Was there a comprehensive study on the need for such a large "ballroom"? Who determined that need and that size? Did the means to fund it (through donations by individuals and corporations) undergo a rigorous vetting process about the possible conflicts of interests not to mention transparency in the norms of this country?

Until all questions are answered, I like many other citizens, find that this project to be deeply irresponsible and an a front to the spirit of the Unites States.

The redesign and development of the White House East Wing and new ballroom should have followed rigorous, transparent, and lawful procedures because the White House is not simply an office building — it is a national symbol, a historic landmark, and a public trust.

I am deeply bothered by the fact that no such procedure or architectural or historical review took place. But I implore the governing bodies to hold ground and insist on fully participating in any further design planning.

First, the White House complex represents the continuity of American democracy. Alterations to such a symbol should reflect careful stewardship rather than expediency. Proper procedures — including architectural review, historic preservation assessment, and appropriate congressional oversight where required — ensure that decisions respect both heritage and future generations.

Second, procedural rigor protects institutional legitimacy. When development decisions follow established legal and administrative processes, they reinforce public confidence that even the most powerful institutions operate under rules, not preferences. That principle is foundational to constitutional governance.

Third, thoughtful planning ensures functional excellence. The East Wing houses critical offices and public-facing operations. Structured review processes help balance security, operational needs, historical preservation, cost control, and accessibility — all of which require deliberate coordination rather than ad hoc decision-making.

Finally, process is not obstruction; it is protection. It protects taxpayers, preserves history, maintains security standards, and upholds the credibility of the presidency itself.

In short, adherence to proper procedures in redesigning the East Wing is not merely bureaucratic formality — it is an affirmation that America's most visible institution remains governed by law, stewardship, and accountability.

I oppose this illegal project. It is not modernization. Ballrooms are not modern. They're a throwback, to the 1800s. Delegations from other countries do not send people who socialize and dance. This seems like an act of grift. Trying to use the White House as a place to rent out for parties, weddings, or fundraising events. The fundraising events would be illegal if campaign related. The White House is no president's personal home to renovate. This is federal property, governed by rules, laws, and an oversight committee. The destruction of the old wing without approval and proper procedures is despicable. Shame on everyone who participated in it. It should be stopped. It is gross misuse of taxpayer money.

I am not opposed to efforts to modernized public building that have historic relevance that are also actively used for the public's business. I do, however, opposed such efforts that do not seek public input and proper evaluation that considers historic relevance and preservation, architectural appropriateness and consistency with current and future designs, as well as the way stated needs can be met in other ways.

The East Wing project was not vetted by any public process and there is insufficient information about the new design to evaluate whether it is truly needed and appropriate for the overall design of the White House. No further construction on the site should be performed until an appropriate process for review has been established and performed and public acceptance, if not approval, has been received.

Also, any construction should use the normal proposal and bidding process, so that any contractors can be vetted for capability. This will also ensure public funds are used properly and all appropriate codes and building standards are met.

I was shocked and dismayed to see a backhoe destroy the precious East Wing of the White House, without a permit or a plan to preserve the slate roof or mitigate asbestos dust or even a plan for the ostensible ballroom.

I toured the White House with Lorna Daniels and it was a great privilege and an honor to do so.

The American citizenry, which has patriotically revered and supported the White House for centuries, has a say in a decision to alter our national patrimony. The White House's East Wing must be restored and modernized through lawful process. The company that tore it down must be punished.

I oppose any further work on the East Wing Modernization Project, which is a vanity project for the president. I have seen no evidence that the shocking destruction of a portion of the White House was the result of any serious considered thought about the needs of the building, the government, or the American people. In fact everything I have read suggests the opposite. That it is allegedly “privately funded” only alarms me further when I look at the list of contributors to date. We do not need Mega Businesses paying extortions to protect their future business interests because the president has created an unsafe and unstable environment in which to conduct business. Too few Americans realize what is at risk with this model. The project needs to be suspended and go back to square one and go through the process of determining if an event pace is needed and if so, what the actual requirements and purposes are. Personally I am in favor of rebuilding the East Wing funded by the contributions already in the pot. If there is generally a need for an event space, then architecturally it should fit in with the White House and not remotely like any of the garish unsuitable drawings that have been made public. Also, many of us would like an accounting from the president of what happened to the art and artifacts that were in the East Wing. THANK YOU FOR YOUR ATTENTION TO THIS MATTER.

Please do not allow an oversized ballroom that fails to provide balance and focus on the White House. Please keep the dimensions and design consistent with the original East Wing, and avoid catering to the ostentatious, gawdy taste of our current President, who undoubtedly will not be looked at favorably by future historians. Chose a design that reflects the history of the White House and our democracy, rather than a palatial ballroom fit for a King, that the average American will never enjoy. Consider that we are not a monarchy, but a democracy of a diverse population, and that the East Wing is part of the "People's House", not a palace.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service."

If this is accurate, how did the East Wing get demolished to begin with?

The East Wing needs to be brought back to balance the West Wing. Since it is demolished, then it can come back better. However, not at the ridiculous and obnoxious size the current administration wants. What they want doesn't matter. It is what the American people want.

The new East Wing cannot be this enormous eye sore of a building based on whims of a jealous madman who wants to compete with European buildings. It must be understated elegance of America.

The travesty that the current administration pulled off by destroying the historic East Wing of the White House should not be allowed to stand. The destruction was done without any of the legally required steps, reviews, or input from those individuals and organizations who are statutorily given the right to determine what buildings may be built, razed, changed, renamed, or otherwise altered.

The NCPC MUST not allow this travesty of "modernization" to stand. And the individuals who have deliberately broken existing laws MUST be held accountable. I challenge the NCPC to use whatever power it has to bring lawsuits against Mr. Trump for his desecration of this historic building in the People's House, and hopefully to influence those with the power to do so to bring criminal charges against him and all those who worked with him or enabled him to destroy this national treasure.

The East Wing MUST be rebuilt to the same design and specifications as guided its construction, with any and all improvements to amenities, security systems, etc. now available and/or required by law. But its destruction MUST not be allowed to stand--now, or in the future. (I would recommend that on Jan. 20, 2029, whatever travesty might have been erected in its place be razed beginning at 12:01 p.m.; and that the following day construction of the replacement East Wing begin.

I strongly object to the obscene amount of money being spent on a completely unnecessary “renovation” of the East Wing which only serves donald trump’s ego and not the people of the United States.
Pictures of the demolition are a symbolic representation of what trump is doing to this country. Everything he touches he ruins. EVERYTHING! These changes to the People’s House are no exception.

This project was initiated without the proper authorization or permits or design review. Why? Because trump doesn’t follow rules, he pisses on them. Donald trump’s insatiable need for ego stroking must be stopped. So must the plans for this ballroom.

I am devastated by the destruction of the East Wing of the White House, and more so by the planned ballroom to take it's place. My career was in government service, and we all had to abide by laws and regulations. They don't always make sense on a superficial level, but there's good reason for them. In this instance, every possible safeguard was ignored. The East Wing was torn down without notice to anyone. The ballroom design has not been approved by anyone. The White House belongs to all of us, and to destroy it without input or review is willful ignorance. What are you going to do now that it's gone? is the attitude. In the meantime, the President has said his friends are paying the $300 million to build the ball room. First, there's an imminent conflict of interest and second, Congress has the role of creating the budget. This so called ball room is a monstronsity. Its scale is obnoxious as part of the White House. Please stop this project cold and require the appropriate reviews and clearances before the East Wing is rebuilt, to scale, within a reasonable budget, and updated as necessary. As a young woman, I walked by the East Wing every day on my way to work. It made me proud to know what the White House represents. I'd like to think that another young person walking by today will be impressed and grateful for all that the White House means to American citizens as well as the world at large. Thank you for your consideration. Geraldine Lipov

Please take some time and carefully consider input from ALL constituents, not just those who voted Republican. The White House belongs to the American people, and as taxpayers and citizens of this nation, we are all entitled to input on the people's house.

The East Wing should be restored to it's previous footprint. The President's partner/spouse/significant other needs office space to conduct important projects that benefit all Americans. If additional ballroom space is desired, temporary space can be added via tents on the lawn of the White House. The proposed ballroom space would completely overwhelm the existing White House footprint and would be an eyesore to the Washington DC design.

If your only proposal for the ballroom is the one you have submitted, please allow additional time for a BIPARTISAN review of the proposal, including experts in architectural design and history. A rubber stamp of the proposed design is not sufficient and would make a mockery of our longstanding respect for the grandeur of our Washington DC monuments.

The East Wing is a part of US history: it belongs to all US citizens. It cannot be torn down on the whim of an individual. The East Wing must be rebuilt from materials sourced from the same time period in which it was originally built (practical modernization of plumbing and electricity, and elevators for disabled, and fire protection allowed). The East Wing is our historical inheritance and that of generations to come: it must be preserved.
If a ballroom is required, in addition to the East Wing, the design for it must go through the usual vetting process and public comment process. A ballroom must be smaller than the White House in stature and be in a colonial style similar to the White House. The funding must come from usual public buildings funds of the federal government. There cannot be private funds given to President Trump for this project. President Trump cannot dictate the style or size or place for this ballroom. Congress needs to vet these plans, and may change, deny, or approve them.

The East Wing should not have been torn down. IF there is a need for a “ballroom” which is debatable, it should have gone through the correct process and been built in a different location. There is plenty of property around the White House. There was history in the East Wing as well as the Rose Garden that is destroyed now and cannot be returned. IF a “ballroom” is needed, it should be scaled down to fit in and with deference to the rest of the building.

I hope you will demand oversight throughout the rebuilding process to ensure that America's White House returns to its distinguished status. I am disappointed that Trump has done so much damage to the historic reverence of the building by paving the Rose Garden, putting up gawdy embellishments throughout the Oval Office and other rooms, and labeling rooms with fake gold lettering. I appreciate the opportunity to speak up on this subject with the hope that your commission is able to STOP further destruction of our symbolic "House". Thank you!

This is not a personal property of which Trump may customize to his own personal liking. The White House belongs to the citizens of America. We get to decide who lives in The White House, and we should be the ones deciding if it needs construction.

Dear members of the NCPC,

As a taxpayer and US Citizen, I was shocked when the Trump administration tore down the East Wing without going through proper channels. I am writing to ask you, as members of the NCPC, ensure that East Wing modernization and ballroom addition a) are paid or with taxpayer money, b) comports with Whitehouse existing aesthetics, and c) goes through the appropriate vetting process.
As "the people's house" it is inappropriate to use private funds for any part of construction. Ideally the addition would not extend beyond the footprint of the original East Wing so as to maintain the structure's balance. Finally, plans for completing this project should be reviewed like any other project undertaken by past administrations.

Regards, Carol

The destruction of the East Wing of the White House was an affront to the history of that great building, the laws and procedures regarding historic buildings and honestly every First Lady to ever walk those halls. It is not surprising that such a narcissistic, self- promoting buffoon would take it upon himself to flat out destroy part of the White House without any regard for process, history, or honor. Is it also a way for him to try and create a situation to enrich himself, of course. But it's also a way for him to look at his wife and tell her she has nothing to contribute. She should stay quiet and stay in Florida, because women serve only 2 purposes in his mind, pleasure and child birthing. Heaven forbid she have a space for an office and staff so she could work on the periphery with charitable organizations, global health initiatives, or even step up to voice an opinion on policy. Heavens no. So why would she ever need a space when he can overcompensate for his withered manhood by having a giant grifting space built?

The president should be personally, financially responsible for the reconstruction of the East Wing. Any necessary upgrades that should be needed to make the previous structure up to code and to meet current security guidelines should be paid for by the government but the restoration of the previous structure should absolutely happen and be paid for out of Trump's pocket.

I literally am brokenhearted to see the east wing destruction.

My husband and I toured the White House in May, 1963 on our honeymoon, anxious to see the recently-completed renovations by Jackie Kennedy. It was a thrill I will never forget.

I am appalled that this building has been decimated without any consultation with the American people.

To do anything other than restore the east wing is a travesty. It was destroyed without proper authorization, without permits, and with no design review. The project should be canceled and the east wing restored with no design changes. We do not need a gilded ballroom in the peoples house, the existing space has sufficed for generations.

To allow this change to go forward and to spend taxpayer money for it is not acceptable. The administration should bear the cost of the rebuild without resorting to using our money. Having broken the law in tearing down a piece of history it it only right that the people should be made whole by those that stole from them.

Please do not let this project continue, it was not necessary and is only a vanity project of the current administration. It does not serve the people in any way. Only serves those that have the wealth and prestige to be gathered it. From the inception the normal and formal rules to alter a national heritage have been discarded and dismissed as pointless in the urgency to build the addition. All projects require specific requirements relating to the land, water, power resources prior to actual teardown of the structure and building of a new structure. This was not done. Any homeowner knows this when planning to remodel. With the White House itself being a representation of our country there is more to be paid attention to. The White House represents the "temporary" home of any President, past and future. It is not owned by any President. A President is only a renter. No renter has the right to come in and tear down part of the house another owns. Nor can they sell it to another party. I feel that the current President has done that, by using donations of mixed types which are meant to curry favors from our President. The project has a projected cost that is much larger than originally stated. Whether the extra costs is due to lack of forethought or mismanagement is worth more than a nod of the head. I expect our government to be better and wiser than they have been. To have more respect for the long history of the residence, the President, the people and our country. The U.S.A. is not expected to compete with a foreign country, we do not need to have a residence of a Sultan. We need to know that our government is not isolated from the common man or woman. The amount of money spent so far gives no respect to the problems of those who are hungry, sick, homeless, or jobless. It does not fix infrastructures, educate, or make life better. It is only a vanity, lustfull thing. There is no respect from a government that caters to such projects. There is no glory nor rich history in the plan. Just a building that hogs the property, built bigger and grander than the White House itself. In fact, I don't see any planning. Just a scene out of an old Little Rascals episode where the kids decide to put on show. No concern about the plan, just the doing. The White House is like that now, a decision was made, walls torn down, ground dug up. No permission was given, no codes to follow. And unlike the Little Rascals the costs and liability is so much greater. And so far with no approval by any government official or office. I expect our government to stand up and say, "Wait a minute, there is a responsibility to procedure" A responsibility to the country and it's people. Despite all of the current President's urgency we cannot allow to disrespect the history of the White House. I expect Congress to put the halt on the project, to downscale it in the minimum. It is past time for Congress to stop walking on glass. Restore the White House at the current President's own cost. He was not acting for the country and it's people. Only in his own interest to one-up other heads of countries. Restore our White House.

I have spent the last three years historically updating two colonial houses in Connecticut. The projects required a preservation architect and numerous approvals through the state historic preservation office. Asbestos was found and so months of remediation was required by a contractor licensed for this work. How is it the East Wing was demolished without any regard for the approvals required by all others doing this sort of work? President Trump should never be allowed near this project again. I understand that the bunker work needs to continue but the ballroom should never come to be. Please rebuild it as it was and get rid of all the gross, tacky gold stuff that has been added. You Have Until March 4th to Comment on Trump’s White House Ballroom

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

Thank you for your attention to this matter!

I am opposed to the design for the East Wing modernization and ballroom addition. The White House is the people's house. It is a place where citizens of the United States can visit. The ballroom addition feels like an event space for the rich or a temple to a god. Furthermore, in taking the request into consideration, I would like to see some education of the requestor as to what the importance of preserving history should be. There was no process for the American people to comment on the destruction of the East Wing.

While the modernization of the United States White House is long overdue, I oppose the East Wing Modernization as requests were not submitted, designs were not submitted, and historical integrity was given short shrift.
Design approvals were not secured, the demolition was not properly permitted, demolition was not given proper supervision, and the funding does not appear to be above board, but rather another quid pro quo.

Worst of all have been blatant disregards for the law, environmental safety, and historical integrity.

The United States White House is not now, nor never has been, the property of any inhabitant—presidential or otherwise.

The United States' White House does not belong to a president. The White House is the people's house.

The administration's repeated behavior to do whatever it wishes with the White House, as if it is acceptable to charge ahead and ASK FOR FORGIVENESS RATHER THAN PERMISSION, extends from this project to the adherence to the Constitution of the United States.

What has been planned has not been transparent; what lies ahead is anyone's guess, and THAT is not acceptable.

If you think no one is paying attention, pay attention to the millions of Americans exercising their rights to gather in non violent protest.

No tenant, anywhere in the world, has the right to modify or change the building they are leasing without the expressed consent of the owner. The destruction of the East Wing was a willful, unlawful act to coerce the owner to bend to the will and personal benefit of the tenant. Rewarding such behavior would set a precedent where future tenants could destroy history or at the very least, rewrite it in defiance of the will of the people. For most Americans, the news of a ballroom was first presented when the wrecking ball had already begun demolition. The White House is a landmark that the people of this country have paid to build and maintain. There are procedures and requirements in place that govern modifications and it appears that those weren't followed before or since the destruction of the East Wing. I believe this project should be stopped until proper oversight and approvals have been established.

The proposed East Wing Modernization Project is being framed as progress — but progress without transparency, fiscal restraint, and public trust is not progress at all. It is mission drift.

Modernization, in theory, sounds responsible. In practice, we have to ask: modernization for whom? At what cost? And at what moment?

We are living in a time of deep public skepticism about institutions. Communities are asking for accountability, not expansion. Families are tightening budgets. Essential services in cities and counties across the country remain underfunded. Infrastructure, housing, education, and public safety all compete for limited dollars. To move forward with a large-scale modernization project in this climate sends the wrong signal: that aesthetics or administrative convenience take precedence over urgent human need.

Prescience requires us to look beyond ribbon cuttings and architectural renderings. It requires us to consider long-term operating costs, security implications, and the precedent it sets. Once expanded, bureaucracies rarely contract. Once funds are committed, they are rarely redirected to community priorities.

This isn't opposition to improvement. It's opposition to misplaced priorities.

True leadership asks:
• Is this the most responsible use of public resources right now?
• Have we fully explored renovation over expansion?
• Have we meaningfully invited public input, or simply announced a decision?

Modernization without moral clarity becomes excess. Expansion without humility becomes arrogance.

At a time when trust in institutions is fragile, the most powerful statement leaders could make is restraint — choosing stewardship over spectacle, substance over symbolism.

The East Wing does not need modernization nearly as much as our communities need investment. And history will not judge us by how polished our buildings were, but by how wisely we chose to serve the people beyond their walls.

I was appalled by the wanton and unauthorized destruction of the East wing of the Whitehouse. It is my opinion, as a citizen of this country and a co-owner of the "people's house", that Donald Trump had no business to tear down what belongs to ALL Americans in order to put up an ostentatious ballroom that will only gratify his ego and serve as a site for the super-wealthy to rub elbows with, and influence, our politicians. Ordinary people will never be guests at functions there, while the tacky, gilded monstrosity he proposes will literally overshadow what remains of our Whitehouse. I believe that instead of a ballroom no one wants, this administration should be forced to rebuild the East wing as nearly as possible according to the original design of the wing that he callously vandalized and destroyed. Further, I would like propose that we have the concrete "patio" and beach umbrellas scrapped, and that section of lawn returned to a garden as it was before this tasteless "president" took up residency in our house. Thank you for your consideration.

East wing modernization

Dear Members-
I am opposed to the building proposal for the following reasons:
The White House is the people's house- purposefully modest reflecting the focus of the United States of America after the revolutionary war (wresting the power from King George and giving government to the people- for the people-by the people.
The White House is a temporary residence for the president whom the people have elected.

The 90,000 square foot ballroom dwarfs the White House and diminishes it. This is contrary to the theme of our America. There are several large buildings in Washington DC that can serve the purpose of a president wishing to host a large number of guests, and therefore a ballroom of 90,000 square feet is not a necessary addition to replace the East Wing of the White House.

Furthermore, the destruction of the east wing was illegal, unnecessary, and should be replaced with attention to its previous size and style- this preserves the character and cultural significance of our house.
Sincerely
Fairfax Arnold

I oppose this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. From photos of the work that has already taken place, it appears to have completely razed the entire East Wing of "The People's House."

It is not a modernization project; it is the destruction of important American history, and it did not involve any of the normal planning or approval processes. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design, at the expense of the people who tore it down without permission. To permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

I oppose spending $300 million dollars on this project which was not approved through proper protocols and procedures. It is an affront to hard working Americans who are struggling to pay bills to construct an oversized lavish ballroom while destroying a significant and historic portion of the White House. This project should be halted and reparations made to restore the building to its original state.

I do not want a gilded ballroom in this place.
The demolition of the East Wing was an abomination and a vanity project and a blight on this country.
I want the fixtures and materials restored, and the place rebuilt as it was approved and designed and as it has been for over half a century. This is the people's house, not a gilded palace for oligarchs.

I condemn the current administration's wanton destruction of the East Wing of the White House, which belongs to the people, not whoever happens to be in power. I also oppose the construction of the currently proposed "ballroom" monstrosity as it will destroy the proportions of the White House, and has already caused the destruction of national treasures including several historic trees and the historically significant elements of the East Wing (with no accounting for where the materials went or how they will be preserved). I demand that the so-called modernization project, undertaken without undergoing the required review and consultative processes, be cancelled and the East Wing restored to its former condition and new trees planted to replace the historically significant magnolias that were destroyed in the totally illegal destruction of the site.

Calling the East Wing project of modernization is a misnomer. It should be called a desecration. There was a way to modernize without tearing down the historic East Wing.
My mother's family has been in Washington DC for generations, on Capitol Hill and also Anacostia area. I would walk the Mall, and spent so much time in the National Gallery and the Smithsonian, soaking in the glorious history of our country and it's connection to so many beautiful things. I even worked for the Architect of the Capitol for a short period of time. I love DC deep inside. And to raze a historical building like the East Wing is just a desecration. There is no other word for it. Because what are we if we do not hold the history of our country sacred?

The East Wing was razed without any permits, without any input from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and without any respect for the building's history. No plans were submitted and there was no design review. This was a travesty. I strongly oppose spending any taxpayer money on this other than to restore it or at the very least, rebuild a functional wing. Nor do I want to see private "donations" used to build a monument to the current President. We don't need a $300 ballroom.

This project is not only an affront to the citizens of this country, but also to history itself. The fact that no one stopped Trump from circumventing the law and having a wing OF THE WHITE HOUSE demolished - without permits or authorization - is appalling in the extreme. The west wing needs to be restored to its former design and Trump and his enablers need to be held accountable and made to pay for this restoration, as well as penalized in a way that will deter both he and any future presidents from similar thoughts.

This isn't modernization - it's a vanity project for a despot.

The White House is NOT a personal sandbox for a President to modify, redesign, or destroy as he sees fit. The wrecking ball revved up without the permits and plans required before anyone can turn the East Wing into a vanity project.
I strongly oppose any further construction of the $300+million dollar project. It should be rebuilt to be the landmark it was that reflects the pride we used to have in our country.

The President is right, our White House and supporting wings are outdated, small, and certainly do not reflect the current status of the U.S.

Growing up as the child of an architect, working on the crew of a historic preservation project as a young adult, and now teaching history, I have always had an appreciation for America's historic places. I remember working on the site of a residential home in Charleston, SC and being visited by the BAR folks, dressed to the nines and poking around, asking if we were going to put the original bricks back in the wall just so—as they were concerned that we were not following protocol. Today, I live in a neighborhood built in the 1990s, and I am asked to write up a proposal and get the signatures of all of my neighbors if I want to change the color of my front door. Clearly, I understand and recognize the importance and value of proper authorization, permits, and design review for ANY building project. In the case of the destruction of the White House, which is supposed to be the People's House, not the President's house, and certainly not a house for corporate entities, I oppose spending any money on efforts that would alter the original size or exterior structure of the East Wing. This project, which led to the complete razing of a piece of American history, should be canceled, and the East Wing should be rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law. I can't even paint my front door a different color without proper review. Allowing this project to proceed—without penalizing those who broke the law or requiring them to rebuild the original structure—would be an affront to all Americans.

I wonder why this has been allowed to proceed without proper procedures having been followed. Citizens across this nation are obligated by ordinance and Law to follow local, State and National requirements. This current administration has bypassed all constraints that were in place to protect our history and sense of a United country. He has been encouraged to follow his personal need to fulfill his sense of identity and worth.
I first became aware of the history of this site through an On-line special that identified not only the history of this building but it's National security status. In this special it was noted that a bunker was beneath the building and had been used by President Kennedy during the Bay of Pigs confrontation. What frightens me is that the world now knows the location of this bunker as well as the corridors leading to the White House as well as other Governmental buildings.
Sadly, the administration seems to be more interested in pasting his name on every available property, without any sense of history or security beyond the Trump Name.
It is time to take action and put a stop this. If indeed He has commitments and funds raised, I believe that transparency needs to be enacted as to who has committed to this, what amount was already given or promised and where the money is being deposited. Information seems to be an afterthought at this time.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

East Wing Modernization Project

The White House does not belong to Donald Trump to do with as he wants. It belongs to the people of the United States. As one of those people I feel that my home has been ransacked.

Please stop the construction of this hideous ballroom before it begins. The scale is completely out of balance with the rest of the White House. The current plan for the Ballroom will be an embarrassment to the people of the US for generations to come. I do not agree that private funds should be used to build a public building at the whim of the current resident. Please plan a new East Wing that is in keeping with the West Wing. My preference would be to re-build the East Wing to match the the West architecturally.

Thank you for your dedication to making our Capitol city something to be proud of and preserving our heritage.

This project began with the demolition of an 123 year old structure before obtaining required approvals from this Commission, before completing mandatory environmental assessments under the National Environmental Policy Act, and before securing congressional authorization required by federal statute for construction on federal parkland in Washington. To the Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

I am writing to submit public comment regarding the proposed East Wing modernization and the addition of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom to the White House.

While the demolition of the East Wing is deeply concerning in its own right, the proposal to construct a ballroom of this scale is even more troubling. The White House is the people's house. It carries immense historical significance and deep sentimental value for Americans across the country. A project of this magnitude risks undermining the character and integrity of a building that symbolizes our nation's history and democratic traditions.

In my view, such a large and ostentatious addition is neither necessary nor reflective of the public interest. I urge you to carefully consider the historical importance of this site and the broader public sentiment as you deliberate on this proposal.

The ballroom addition should be viewed unfavorably. I remain hopeful that, in the future, the East Wing space can be restored or replaced in a manner that is more appropriate to the dignity and heritage of the White House.

I do not agree with the east wing of the White House having been demolished. This is a historic site and any work done on the ground falls within being a US federal project so whether private donors pay for it or not, federal procedures, regulations and laws need to be followed.
The President may live at the White House but it is a building and historic site that belong to the public. It belongs to the people of America and is one of the most historically significant buildings in the United Stares. Yes, it needs to be maintained however done so with integrity and attention to historic integrity, preserving the significance of the structure, and not on the whim of one presidents desires. This project should have, at a minimum, gone through Congress before any action was ever taken. Plans should have been completed, reviewed, gone through all legal and federal processes, including preservation and historic reviews, as well as public comments before anything was ever torn down.
The east wing demolition is in violation of the National Historic preservation Act of 1966. It was not done in a transparent manner and was not been given the due diligence necessary for the scope of this massive project. There was no consideration for even the basic fact that the balanced and classic design of the White House will be overshadowed with the size of the proposed ballroom. We ask that this project be halted and all historic and federal regulations be considered.

Beyond the corrupt money issue, this destruction of OUR HOUSE was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. I vehemently object to the unauthorized and unreviewed demolition of US history. While the historic East Wing may have needed modernization or renovation, doing so without proper permitting - destroying a facility that belongs to the US people - sets a dangerous precedent. Please protect the integrity of all our history and our rule of law by stopping this project from proceeding without the necessary permitting and oversight.

While my comment is too late and I suspect ultimately won't matter, I'm appalled that Trump tore down the East Wing as if he owns the WH. Please work diligently to ensure that any new building matches both the scale and the architectural style of the remaining house. I'm certain Trump will be exceedingly difficult to work with, and his preferences will not match the historic, quiet elegance of the WH, but be more aligned with the style of a palace or casino. Please stay focused, the buildings will stand long after he's gone and you have a duty to the House, not the man.

Please do not approve this project as it is requested. It was not applied for correctly and is not an improvement to our stately White House, which is the President's temporary home but the permanent home of the American people. The demolition was not approved correctly either, and is an affront to all of us.
Thank you.

The building needs rebuilding and restoring as it was. Donald Trump had no permission nor any authority to destroy an historic site. It underscores his misogyny for one and his lawlessness for another. A ballroom is not needed when so many other things are not being addressed by this administration. Just because Trump claims it is paid for does not make building this insane monstrosity to satiate a titanic ego a worthwhile endeavor. It is most important that the building stands up as it always has as a utilized facility that is historically correct as well as significant. It is the people's house, not Donald Trump's house!

This project should never been started in the first place - the people have no need of a tacky vanity project! Now that the damage is done, the East Wing should either be restored (at the expense of the person who tore it down in the first place) or replaced by a much smaller event space, not a grotesque gilded monstrosity larger than the White House itself.

I totally oppose the attempt at modernization without permits, approvals, or pre-authorization. It was a huge vanity project and an affront to the American people. Please restore the East wing to its former glory and uses, such as offices for the first lady, and do not allow a ridiculously large and un-needed ballroom take over America's White House. The Historical Preservation and architect should have been approved before any demolition was done, and rewarding the destruction of history by allowing the project to continue should not be allowed. It does not need gaudy gold, and if its purposes is fancy parties for the rich and famous, that is not what the White House should represent, as the people's house. The money should be spent on the American people - health care, reducing the federal deficit, maintaining Public Television, and a myriad of other uses that are better than a party room for a president with no morals.

Historically and visually I believe it is important that the White House and other structures in our capital keep the beautiful architectural continuity present for years. I oppose the huge ballroom and it's opulence. I oppose the huge arch that is proposed and am concerned about how the renovation of The Kennedy Center will look as well. Additionally, I am appalled that any President can move forward on projects without oversight both architecturally and financially. If the president's proposed projects resemble the decorating of the current White House it will be anathema to how our beautiful capital looks and what it symbolizes. Carol Condit, R.N.

Public opinion should have been recorded prior to the destruction of the East Wing. At this point, the only thing to do is request that the wing be rebuilt at its original size (providing balanced proportions of the building as a whole) and pay appropriate homage and respect to the historical record of the building. It should be completed in a fiscally responsible way and reflect the quiet humility appropriate for a government by the people, of the people, and for the people. The White House is only the temporary residence for the President of the United States, it is forever a reflection of who we are as a democratic society.

I am opposed to this project because of the way it was handled, tearing down a portion of a historic building with zero advance permission, consultation, or other following of the rules by which things have been done for time immemorial. And because it is going to be - according to plans - a monstrosity of size, not in proportion to the rest of the White House,

That it is to be funded by donations from special-interest billionaires smacks of illegality. That the former portion was destroyed before a replacement was approved and thought through, and so much more, sets this project apart as one that needs to be thoroughly examined, and the backers hauled up short for overstepping the lines of authority. Finally, in a nation that is rapidly alienating previous allies, who will be here to enjoy such a ballroom? When was the last time someone envsioned a need for a building of this type/size and had to modify the event plans because there was no facility to accommodate it?

The White House is 55,000 sf. The proposed addition is almost double that size at 90,000 sf. Funds were "privately raised, or so the American people are told. My comments:

- Any addition to the White House should never dwarf the original structure. The size of the "ballroom" is unnecessarily excessive and will diminish the historic structure and symbolism of the People's House. I am saddened that this project was allowed to move forward without Congressional approval nor input from the American people. The damage is done and there should be consequences for the rushed and thoughtless demolition of our history.

- It is unlikely that this project will cost only $400k. Rarely does a capital project finish on-time or on-budget. How will the cost overruns, caused by change orders, add alternates, and schedule slips, be funded? Were all trades included in the $400k budget estimate? Security, IT, FF&E? If not, what is the budget for items that are not covered by the $400k? How would any additional expenses/cost overruns be funded? Will congressional approval be required to obtain any additional funding?

- What will this project cost the taxpayers of the United States of America?

This is the people's house and therefore the construction should have input from We The People and be taxpayer funded. Not that We asked for it, but now that it has been demolished, We should guide the reconstruction. That could look like a bunch of things, but the important thing is for voters to have a say. Private funding is completely inappropriate and blurs the lines - it creates a conflict of interest. This needs to be handled in a proper, democratic fashion.

As an American who has seen the Whitehouse and appreciates it, the tearing down of the East wing felt heart wrenching. Especially since every protocol for historic buildings was ignored on a fools whim. Please do not let this unwanted ballroom be built without input from the American people or the historical committee who is supposedly has authority to approve or disapprove these changes in these buildings. They are supposed to be conserved and protected for the American people who own them.
It would be my highest desire to have the East wing rebuilt to the original floorplan with all necessary modern updates needed for optimal function and safety.

Demolishing the historic East Wing of the White House without following the appropriate and required processes--review, permits, and Congressional oversight--is a clear violation of the law, as visible as the ugly destruction of this wing of the White House is now. Our White House, the people's house, is both a National Historic Landmark and a National Park. We, the American people, own it. Full stop.

I urge you, the members of the National Capital Planning Commission, to speak for us, for the people. I ask that you require any reconstruction of the East Wing to maintain it historic design and size and to exhibit a design integrity aligned with our best aspirations. If a new structure is to be built, it must match the style of the original structure of the Executive Mansion, and it must be subordinate in size.

Regarding the funding of this project that we are now forcued to design, implement, and complete: it should be resourced only with appropriations from Congress after Congress approves the new design. No private money be allowed for this project. We, the American people. own the land, not any one president or any corporation seeking to buy favor.

Should Congress fail to approve funding, and if a design keeping with the building's historical character cannot be achieved, the land should be left vacant.

Please do not reward a lawless president; please speak for us, all of us.

Thank you.

At a time when more Americans than ever are struggling to put food on the table, pay their mortgages or rent, grapple with poor health care choices, this project is garishly ill timed and poorly thought out, not to mention probably illegal . Stop this colossal waste of money to build a ballroom that nobody needs or wants. Restore and “modernize “ what was there and move forward.

The East Wing was a beloved historical relic and essential part of the People's House. That it was bulldozed by our own president with zero consent from the people or experts is a disgrace and will stain President Trump's legacy long after he is gone. The proposed ballroom to replace the East Wing is a complete waste of taxpayer money and serves only as a shameless monument to the president's ego. The only thing this project should fund is a complete reconstruction of the previous East Wing. Do not allow this project as it stands to move forward. Thank you.

How was the demolition of a historical building done by a person who Does Not own the building? Where were the approvals, research documents and permits? Why isn't there legal action being pursued? The historical building is owned by the nation. Where is the documentation supporting the cost of the Demo and rebuild? Was there ever any money allocated for this project? Where is the money that was stated to rebuild? In someone's pocket?
This entire process should be prosecuted on a Federal level, with costs and penalties aimed at the perpetrators.

The "East Wing Modernization Project" renderings are horrendous. The scale of this project overshadows the White House, the Peoples House, itself and intrudes on the landscape of the White House grounds. To Whom it May Concern,
I completely oppose any continuation of this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a monument to our current President's ego AND a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design and a complete inventory and historical registration of all artifacts/ artwork/ and other items removed from the building before demolition began. If any artifacts, artwork, or items were damaged or destroyed in the unauthorized demolition of the East Wing, I want the current administration and/or the company hired for demolition to pay for the complete repair, replacement, or insurance value of said items. I want to request an investigation into the company that carried out the unauthorized demolition of the East Wing without going through the legal procedures and paperwork, and for them to be fined accordingly for pressing forward without required permissions and permits. The current President needs to be held accountable for bypassing all legal procedures for making such drastic changes to any property that he does own and has historical protections. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.
Thanks you.

We are responsible to those who follow us, and we have a moral obligation to leave them a country that allows them to feel and absorb what has come before them. We do not want to be remembered for arbitrarily destroying a delicate piece of their legacy that was a gentle symbol of the American stability we grew up with, and then quickly replacing it with an out of proportion showpiece. It might be senseless to recreate the East Wing exactly as it was, but a replacement of similar scale and architectural sensitivity that evokes the original, perhaps with improved functionality, would help preserve the balance and symbolism of the site. As for the enormous ballroom, it creates a dissonance with its surroundings that seems to reflect the dissonance that America has created with its international community.

The America I grew up in (I am 81) always seemed to be run in a deliberative way. Its processes were not always perfect, but there seemed to be a good faith effort to drive us toward being a better place. When I witnessed the bulldozers suddenly appearing without notice I felt like I was living in another country where trust in leadership had been lost. There is now an opportunity for this Commission to restore some of that trust.

I am very disappointed that the East Wing Modernization project started with the destruction of the existing structure before proper planning and approval could take place. Our country is not President Trump's personal playground where he is free to change structures around him to reflect his personal aesthetic and bolster his own ego.
I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.

The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.
This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

In my town, when we are considering building a new school or fire station or park, we do a lot of work to determine whether to go ahead and if so, how to create a plan that will work for our taxpayers. A committee of diverse stakeholders - including elected leaders, taxpayers, and people who will be most affected - oversees a public process to gather information, hold listening sessions, and understand the tax implications. If project is determined to be worthwhile after engaging the stakeholders, then there is another process to design and oversee the project to make sure taxpayers interests are being met. It does not appear any of these steps have been followed on the East Wing "modernization" project. The White House is the people's house - like so many in our country I have toured it, and I felt immense pride in our country when visiting our nation's capital and seeing the home of our president and executive branch of government. I am devastated that the East Wing was torn down without authorization and a process to engage all of the stakeholders, including taxpayers, in determining if the changes were welcome and if so, how to do them in a way that reflects our country's values and commitment to Democracy.

It was begun without the proper authorization, permits, or design review, and without regard to the wishes and feelings of the American public, to which The White House actually belongs. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.

I join with thousands if not millions of others who want this project canceled, and desire that the East Wing be rebuilt and restored to its former design. Hello. I am writing today to express my deep concern with the demolishing of the East Wing. The day I saw a video of the bulldozer taking it out, I felt sick to my stomach. This is a part of our history, the Peoples' House. And one person unilaterally decided to make changes that were not authorized and not wanted by the people. A piece of our history is gone, and what is planned to be put in its place is an affront to our country. The White House is a temporary living space for the current president, put in office by the Will of the people. It is not one person's home to remodel, destroy or otherwise change. I fervently hope that there is a way to stop this from moving forward, and moreover, restore the White House to its original condition.

The East Wing project was begun without proper surveying, without permission of the National Park service, without approval from the proper authorities — in short, from the first this project was against the law. The President solicited "donations" for funding but he pocketed that $400 million without paying the companies that did the demolition. The White House is not Trump's personal home or property. It is owned by the American people. Do not Vote to okay the lawless destruction that has already happened. Demand the $400 million the President took to pay for restoration of the historic East Wing as soon as possible.

As an owner of a historic home in the F.Q. Story historic district of Phoenix, I cannot believe that the east wing needs modernization. We consider buildings here from the 20s and 30s to be historic. The White House is much older and a National Landmark, and a recognizable symbol of our country.

No one person should place himself above the law and impose his desires upon the most cherished residence in our country, a residence that is only lent to its occupants. I want to see the money supposedly raised for this unauthorized scheme to be spent on restoring the East Wing to its former condition, until such time as a duly constituted authority approves a plan in keeping with the White House's history and architecture.

The occupant of the White House DOES NOT have the right to demolish any part of that historical building that belongs to THE PEOPLE without permission!! He should be required to rebuild what he destroyed out of his own pocket. This "ballroom" is nothing but a quid pro quo for billionaires to take even more than they already do by BUYING this corrupt president.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

This never had proper review before it was criminally committed to destroy the historic East Wing. Do not allow this to continue and force a vanity project that only suits one person who's a felon, conman, and grifter. True Americans want the return of a building made better than the preexisting East Wing that values women, and Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion should be celebrated. It should fit with the restrictions of size and architecture which the proposed ballroom would not value. This administration will have an end, the citizens would not like the ugly reminder that is currently being shoved at us.

The East Wing was never meant to be destroyed for a ballroom that would overpower the White House. BUlldozing the East Wing tore down our history. THe thought that a huge ballroom for entertainment is of utmost importance when we have many issues to resolve in this country is unAmerican. FInally, the visual picture sent the message that this administration does what it wants and it is power and force over thoughtful decision making. The plan itself is an architectural disgrace, disregarding known surrounding structures (the rest of the White House!) and trivializes the value of any first spouse. The East Wing should be restored in its entirety. No to Trump’s ballroom! One end of the White House should NOT look like a gilded resort or a wannabe Versailles!

Regarding the renovation of the East Wing, please ensure that the exterior is rebuilt as closely to the original design as possible. It is important that the scale remains the same to ensure that it does not dwarf the White House.

While the exterior must maintain its historical integrity, the interior can be modernized accordingly to meet current needs.

Without Taking steps outlined by the institution that oversees such project demolition was illegal and an act of ultimatum vandalism. The proposed ballroom in my opinion is a gilded monument to a president who is comfortable, taking bribes, to an era of presidency this nation will want to soon forget. What are those dollars actually paying for? It's not the building, it's not the furnishings, it's not anything that can be tangibly seen by those visit visiting the grounds of the nations capital. Money is Payment for future promises, favoritism, every dollar is a seed of corruption. Insist that the east wing be rebuilt. At the personal expense of Donald Trump in lieu of imprisonment for destroying a national monument.

The White House is not nor has it ever been a President's private permanent residence to do with it as he/she sees fit; rather it is and always been the People's House. Previous Presidents have made beautiful changes that enhanced the White House--the South Portico, the North Portico, the East Wing, the West Wing, and the Truman Balcony. Today, we can’t imagine the White House without these iconic elements, We the people object to the desecration and garish gaudy cheap looking gold leaf additions that have been initiated by the current occupant,

On behalf of the American people now and future generations STOP THE PROJECT!

I strenuously oppose demolition of the East Wing of the White House and the construction of a privately-funded ballroom in its place. The leveling of a significant portion of the "people's house" was conducted without adequate planning, congressional oversight or public input. The current occupant of the White House is not its owner—we the American people are. His temporary residence there does not confer any right to demolish this or any other historic property, neither at his whim nor at the discretion of his undisclosed donors. The National Capital Planning Commission should reject the planned ballroom and insist on the reconstruction of all parts of the East Wing unlawfully demolished at the order of the current occupant. Further, he should be held criminally liable for the damage inflicted by his actions and held financially responsible for reconstruction.

Those responsible for this act of vandalism, President Trump at the top of the list, need to be held accountable for this crime and at the very least, pay for the restoration of it. Failure to do so proves this committee to be complicit and in violation of the basic concepts set forth in the Constitution to ensure a system of checks and balances before unreasonable decisions are made. The White House - the "People's House - has always been a beautiful, subtle, humble space for the president and his family to live and work. The plans to build a new wing and gigantic ballroom to replace the East Wing, which was tragically and horrifically ripped down without ANY public or professional input, will ruin not just the White House but the entire feeling of our nation's capital.

As a frequent visitor to Washington DC, who greatly appreciates the scale, layout, and timeless beauty of our capitol's architecture, it is appalling to me to think of this monstrosity being built where the sacred East Wing used to be.

Please stop the attack on our history. Please prevent Trump from destroying any more of our beautiful city. Washington's sacred past belongs to all of us, not to a single president.

I stand behind historic preservation. I stand behind doing whatever possible to stop this monstrosity being built.

I strongly oppose this project. The East Wing stood as a monument to history. It was demolished without the consent of the American people and without permission or review from the NPS. Without Taking steps outlined by the institution that oversees such project demolition was illegal and an act of ultimatum vandalism. The proposed ballroom in my opinion is a gilded monument to a president who is comfortable, taking bribes, to an era of presidency this nation will want to soon forget. What are those dollars actually paying for? It’s not the building, it’s not the furnishings, it’s not anything that can be tangibly seen by those visit visiting the grounds of the nations capital. Money is Payment for future promises, favoritism, every dollar is a seed of corruption. Insist that the east wing be rebuilt. I AM STRONGLY oppose to the ridiculous East Wing project. It was initiated without the proper authorization from any of those having the authority to provide permits, or authorize its change of design. President Trump DID NOT follow the rule of law, or the Constitution that limited his powers. A project of this magnitude should have gone through the proper channels, gotten financial and judicial support. It is not a modernization project but a destruction of American property and its history.
This project must be canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design.
No one is above the law, and to permit this project to go ahead, without penalizing those who broke the law, would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.
Donald Trump, and his supporters, must be required to pay for the destruction and the rebuilding, since it was not authorized. THAT WOULD BE DONE TO ANYONE WHO DESTROYED PRIVATE PROPERTY.
NOT! to do this, would send a message that we are OK if someone wants to damage one of our Nation's most Enduring Symbols of Democracy.

Because no normal process was followed, no permits or permission, I believe the East Wing should be restored as close as possible to the way it was originally. President Trump took it upon himself to destroy a historical building that he is temporarily the custodian of so I believe he is responsible for the restoration. The White House was never built with the intention of needing a ballroom to entertain thousands of partying people. Probably this president intended inviting so many people with the purpose of charging a fee to each one that he could use to help his goals. The bigger the "pay to play" system the better for him. I would appreciate your considering seriously how our White House can be restored so the new construction will match the original elegance and style.

This project must be scrapped and President Trump must be charged with destruction of public property. The demolition was done with no historic overview, environmental statement/study or mitigation of hazardous materials. A complete clean up of the site, including mitigation of hazardous materials must occur. The ballroom is not well designed and has not been through historic, permitting, architectural or public oversight or approval. It is not an attractive building and will overwhelm the historic buildings already on site. The funding of the building amounts to bribes to the President through multiple rich donors.
Stop this project in it's tracks until such time as a thorough review of all demolition and building plans has occurred and proper permitting is in place.

Dear NCP Commission,

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.

These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.
The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president.

I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mary Margaret Kirby

I feel that the proposed ballroom is a vanity project that was to be rammed through without review or oversight. Please make sure this doesn't overshadow the original White House. What is currently being touted as essential really isn't. The government works for the US citizens. I don't think a single person was thinking this was needed, let alone a huge party room. The American people must "make do" and tighten belts since prices on everything seem to keep rising, maybe this unneeded ballroom should be a less extravagant and smaller addition that recognizes that the People's House is what is important and shouldn’t be secondary to a huge party house.

Dear Committee, I am writing as a concerned citizen regarding the East Wing project as the lack of oversight and adherence to protocol in making significant changes to the White House. I oppose significant public funds to be used for the destruction of our historical landmark. This is not Donald Trumps personal home and it should be with significant input and oversight by our government to maintain the landmark. I am opposed to a large ballroom that overshadows the current structure and believe any remodeling should be done with respect for historical preservation.

I am wholeheartedly opposed to this project, regardless of funding. That is the PEOPLE’S house, and the fact that the East Wing razing was undertaken without any proper authorization, oversight or consent was a criminal act. While I know Donald Trump will not be punished for this crime (or his many other crimes), he does not deserve to be rewarded by building yet another tasteless, garish, tacky monument to his (completely undeserved) ego. We most certainly shouldn’t have a single dime of taxpayer money spent on this project.

I oppose the East Wing modernization project for a just a few of many reasons;

1) the renderings show a building that is wildly out of proportion to the existing structure. The discrepancy is jarring.
2) by report, proper permissions were not obtained and there appears to be no attempt on the part of the president to obtain them.
3) the source of funding is highly questionable and despite assurances, the taxpayers will likely be on the hook for millions of overruns.

I oppose, in strongest terms, the building of this ballroom.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.
The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.
The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. I am writing to express my strenuous objection to the proposed construction of a ballroom attached to the White House. As a taxpayer, I find the allocation of public funds for such a project to be an egregious lapse in fiscal responsibility.
My objections are based on the following points:
Misallocation of Taxpayer Funds: At a time when the nation faces significant economic challenges, spending millions on a luxury entertainment space is out of touch with the needs of the American people.
Historical Integrity: The White House is a national monument. Altering its architectural footprint for a non-essential addition risks compromising the historical and aesthetic value of the site.
Maintenance and Overheads: Beyond the initial construction costs, a facility of this scale will require permanent staffing, climate control, and maintenance—all of which will continue to drain public resources indefinitely.
While I understand the need for the Executive Branch to host official functions, the existing facilities and nearby historical venues are more than sufficient. I urge the administration and Congress to prioritize essential public services and infrastructure over the creation of a private gala space.
I request that this statement be included in the official record regarding this proposal.

Hello, I am Niels, a student from Germany. I highly commend President Trump’s ambition to construct something so magnificent for his country. From my perspective, this project could serve as a global exemplar, demonstrating that classical beauty in architecture is still achievable in the modern era. Compared to the austerity of modernist new-builds, the proposed Ballroom is truly impressive.

From an external viewpoint, it appears that many Americans and media outlets dismiss the project on principle simply because of its association with President Trump. Many would likely oppose an expansion even half this size, despite the fact that hosting state receptions in temporary tents is quite frankly unworthy of a nation of the United States' stature. Most European nations and many others possess dozens of buildings in every regional capital that are far more representative and grand.

I wish this endeavor every success and would like to offer a few specific technical observations for the Board’s consideration. In my view, the White House has historically lacked harmony due to the disparate styles of the current West Wing and the former East Wing. The proposed new East Wing—and perhaps a corresponding West Wing in the coming decades—could permanently rectify this by creating a symmetrical and cohesive ensemble, provided the proportions are precise. Much like classical European palaces or manor houses with multiple wings, it could be designed to look as though it had been planned this way from the beginning.

Architectural Recommendations:

Fenestration and Symmetry: I believe the current design of the north facade, featuring five windows plus two additional flanking windows, is not optimal. While the two extra windows successfully reduce the perceived width of the building, I suggest utilizing a 4 (+2) window configuration. Since the Main Residence features four windows per side (excluding those obscured by the North Portico), a 4 (+2) arrangement for the Ballroom would achieve perfect architectural symmetry. This could be accomplished by slightly adjusting the intercolumniation (window spacing) or by a marginal reduction in length of no more than two meters.

Proportions and Massing: There is a slight disproportion regarding the length. Even if a matching West Wing were built in the future, the proportions would not yet mirror the balance found in classical three-wing manor houses. Shortening the wing to align with the terminus of the Treasury Building—perhaps by opting for a single-row South Portico—would be highly effective. Given that there is only one story beneath it, the loss of interior space would be negligible. Furthermore, it should be evaluated whether an eight-column configuration (matching the south side of the Treasury Building) would be more aesthetically pleasing.

The Rose Garden Staircase: To preserve the symmetry of the two Rose Gardens, the Board might consider relocating the grand staircase. Rather than placing it directly in the garden, it could run adjacent to the colonnade, originating from the corner of the Ballroom terrace. This would result in a more understated and integrated appearance.

The South Facade and Portico: I suggest replacing the current grand staircase with a double-flight staircase (similar to the McCrery design) situated beneath the portico. This would provide covered terraces on both levels and reduce the overall footprint. This configuration would also allow for the integration of the side terrace with the portico stairs, potentially eliminating the need for the smaller lateral staircase.

Regarding the height, the alignment with the Main Residence is excellent, as is the design of the West and East facades, including the mirroring of the Treasury Building's portico.

With best regards from Germany,

Niels

I am beyond disgusted that this is even a consideration. One man wants his tacky name slapped on every buiding, bridge, road, airplane and waterslide across the nation and he took a bulldozer to the White House to give himself another canvas. HE TOOK A BULLDOZER TO THE WHITE HOUSE!!!

He did it specifically so his ghost would be in photographs for decades to come. If anything is built before 2029, I will lobby until my dying day to see my tax dollars used to raze it to the ground and erase anything that might be considered a legacy of this administration. If he is allowed to build himself a monument by destroying the peoples property, everything within our borders becomes worthless as the precedent is set that nothing is sacred since one guy can tear it down on a whim as a way to tug his own toadstool.

No. Emphatically NO. Rubble is the only fitting monument to this administration and the east wing should remain as such until 2029 when a new administration can figure out what to do with the space. I hear detention centers are all the rage in architecture these days and I'm sure the next administration will have plenty of ex-ICE agents and cabinet members to house in one.

FORMAL OPPOSITION TO THE EAST WING MODERNIZATION PROJECT
Re: Recent Demolition and Proposed Replacement of the White House East Wing

I. Opening Statement
I write in firm and unequivocal opposition to the project known as the "East Wing Modernization," which is, in truth, no modernization at all — but the deliberate and willful demolition of a piece of American history that belongs not to any single administration, but to every citizen of the United States of America, and to every generation yet to come.
This project must be stopped. Those who authorized it without legal standing must be held accountable. And the East Wing must be fully rebuilt and restored to its former design, at the expense of those who destroyed it.

II. This Is Not Modernization — It Is Erasure
Let us be honest about what this project actually is. The White House East Wing is a historic structure of immense cultural, architectural, and civic significance. It has served the American people for generations — as a workplace, a symbol, and a living piece of national heritage. To raze it in order to construct a private ballroom, however lavishly funded, is not an act of improvement. It is an act of desecration.
A ballroom funded by tech billionaires does not belong in the White House. It belongs in a private estate, a hotel, or a corporate campus. The people's house is not a venue for the ambitions of the ultra-wealthy. Its architecture is not raw material for personal vanity projects. The East Wing was not theirs to touch.

III. Flagrant Violations of Law and Due Process
This project was initiated without proper authorization, without the required permits, and without the mandatory design review processes that govern changes to historic federal structures. These are not bureaucratic technicalities — they are legal safeguards deliberately established to protect the American public from precisely this kind of unilateral, self-serving action.
The National Historic Preservation Act, the Preservation of Historic and Archaeological Data Act, and the protocols of the National Trust for Historic Preservation exist for a reason. They exist because our shared history is fragile, irreplaceable, and too important to be left to the whims of whoever happens to hold power at a given moment. Those laws were violated. There must be consequences.
No president, no billionaire donor, no administration has the authority to unilaterally demolish a protected historic federal structure. If this project is allowed to proceed — or worse, to be ratified after the fact — it will set a devastating precedent: that the most powerful can simply bulldoze the law along with the buildings.

IV. Private Funding Is Not a License to Destroy Public Property
It has been argued, or implied, that the involvement of private funding — reportedly in the range of $300 million — somehow legitimizes this project. It does not. Private money cannot purchase the right to destroy public heritage. The White House and its historic components are the property of the American people, held in public trust. They are not for sale, not for renovation at a donor's discretion, and not available as a canvas for the aesthetics of whoever writes the largest check.
The appearance of private funding, in this context, does not reduce the public harm — it compounds it. It raises serious questions about the nature of the relationship between the administration and those funding this project, and whether the White House itself is being offered as a vehicle for their influence.

V. The National Trust for Historic Preservation Deserves Our Full Support
The National Trust for Historic Preservation has stood as a principled, courageous defender of this nation's architectural and cultural legacy. Its intervention here is not merely procedurally appropriate — it is morally necessary. The Trust is fighting not just for a building, but for the rule of law, for the integrity of our shared civic institutions, and for the principle that history is not the property of the powerful.
Every American who values the preservation of our history, every citizen who believes in accountability, and every person who understands that the law must apply equally to all — regardless of title or wealth — should support the Trust's efforts and submit their own comment to this Commission before the March 4 deadline.

VI. Demands for Accountability and Restoration
I call upon the National Capital Planning Commission and all relevant federal authorities to take the following actions:
1. Immediately halt and cancel the East Wing Modernization project in its entirety.
2. Require the full reconstruction and restoration of the East Wing to its original, historically accurate design.
3. Compel those responsible for authorizing this illegal demolition to reimburse the Federal Government for the full cost of reconstruction.
4. Initiate a full investigation into the legal violations committed in connection with this project, including the bypassing of required permits, authorizations, and historic preservation review processes.
5. Ensure that no private funding arrangement — past, present, or future — is permitted to override the legal protections governing historic federal structures.

VII. Closing
No one is above the law. Not a president. Not a billionaire. Not an administration that believes its power exempts it from the obligations every other American must meet. To allow this project to proceed unchallenged and unpunished would be an affront to every law-abiding citizen, every taxpayer, and every American who has ever placed their hand over their heart at the sight of the White House and felt, however briefly, that this is the people's house.

It must be stopped. It must be reversed. And those responsible must be held accountable.

The East Wing belongs to America. Give it back.

Respectfully submitted,

Ben Jay
A Concerned American Citizen

I strongly oppose this project. The opaque way this has been done, with demolition done by fiat, and no - NO - official Input into either demolition or design is a horrific abuse of power. I am extremely worried about the environment impact of the destruction of the East WIng. Please publicly release data on lead and asbestos, both that in existing documents and new testing of the surrounding environment.

Worse, the funding stream
Is being provided by people and companies who have business with the U.S. Government. This is classic pay to play.

Either rebuild the East Wing as it historically was (with inky modernization of materials and wiring as needed) or open it to public input for design - AND subject it to all of the regular rules and regulations that any new construction in DC would face.

Sincerely,

I. Yvette Crumpley

This so-called "East Wing Modernization Project" is an indulgent, self-centered, vanity project designed as an obvious effort to deny the legal right and responsibility of the U.S. Congress to approve or deny projects in the public landscape. The razing of the White House's East Wing was done on the whim of a dictatorial authoritarian who seeks to emblazon his own name above that of the American People.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. I am strongly opposed to this UNAUTHORIZED project. Watching the demolition of the East Wing was like a knife to the heart. So much history has happened there and it is a symbol of our great country and is storied past. I must stress that this is NOT d j trumps personal home. This is the house of the people who therefore must grant THEIR consent for any renovations. The project plan is gaudy and completely out of character with the adjacent buildings. Let's call it what it is: another vanity project for the boy who would be king. I am 66 years old and have been paying income tax since I was 16. I am fed up with watching my hard earned money spent on projects such as this, and of course many others. Proponents may say it is being payed for by the American oligarchs who support the regime, however so far that money has not been found. Seems to me that maybe it's time for " we the people " to just stop paying taxes altogether. After all, no taxation without representation was the battle cry in the fight for independence from the British king. I feel quite disenfranchised since my representatives are being silenced by the razor thin spineless republican "majority ". I have always been proud of my country and have never missed voting. I now feel deeply ashamed of America and this horrible project is a symbol of why. Shame on us! Shame on the Republican Party (or what's left of it) and shame on the pitiful brat in the Oval Office whose ego can never be satisfied. I am embarrassed to be an American at this point. I say stop this project and return the East Wing to its former tasteful elegance.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

The proposal for a gigantic ballroom adjacent to the White House is not in keeping in style or in size with the People's House. Because the destruction of the East Wing which was never agreed upon by any official department or branch of government, restitution should be made to the NCPC for damage to a national building and paid for by the party or person that ordered the illegal destruction, and, if possible, punitive damages should be demanded as well. Such overreach must not be tolerated or excused, be it building, land, or even protective species.

It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

Restore the East Wing to all his glory and erase this Era of Corruption.

The architectural design proposed is offensive. The White House itself needs to be visually the center of the property. The east wing needs to be submissive to the White House and in proportion to the West Wing. The Nazi eagles decorating the building and anywhere on Federal property need to go. This is the United States of America. No gold. Crystal chandeliers with brass hardware, of course. To represent America is to represent rebellion over “royal” luxuries. We have No King but Our Creator.

I wish that this comment period had been available before the East Wing and our country's history was demolished without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. I do not support spending any money on the plan as is and instead want the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. Additionally, there should be some sort of placard on display in the restored East Wing discussing what happened to the East Wing and pointing out that no one is above the law, regardless of what office they hold in the US government.

There is no need for a ballroom to be built at the White House and absolutely no reason to have the east wing demolished because of a president's fascination with his wealth and his desire to flaunt it. Destroying the grounds of the White House for a demonstration of greed is absolutely wrong, regardless who pays for it. There was no effort to handle this matter legally, through the normal channels and like everything else this man has destroyed or altered, a bit of American history goes with it. Please stop this madness.

Much of the historic East Wing and rose garden have already been demolished and the current plans are an abomination, a slap in the face to Americans. The project should be halted permanently. This action not only signals the further dilution of the role of the First Lady by removing traditionally some offices for her, but further the project has not used the appropriate process for alterations completed at the White House. The action have further undermined the tenants of democracy as we have known them.

I am completely against this project without proper authorizaion, permits, review and proper public input. This is a $300 million boondoggle that was initiated on a whim. And now the damage is done. We have no choice but to rebuild and that reconstruction needs to be done correctly and BY THE BOOK. In short, I want the East Wing to be a duplicate of what it was when it comes to anything and everything that is above ground. Do NOT let this this project continue without abiding by the law.

Reversal of this indignation is paramount to our republic. Restore authority to the committees and trustees who are actually mandated to oversee federal projects now.The American people demand a halt to unauthorized destruction of our history.

A ballroom can be built anywhere a person chooses if THEY own the land. The White House belongs to America as a symbol of our democracy, which is why it's called the peoples house. Just because someone is a tenant they don't have the legal right to destroy it and and YOU as acting Landlord, have to make them pay for the damage and rebuilding.

I am absolutely opposed to this project and feel strongly that the entire East Wing should be rebuilt as it was prior to being razed. This is the people's house and should only be "modernized" with the overwhelming approval of the people with plans that have been thoroughly vetted. At present, the plans seem to be continuously changing and it's never been clear that an enormous ballroom would in anyway benefit the country.

Good morning,

I am writing as a US citizen and as someone who lived and worked in the DC area for a number of years, often walking/biking/driving past the White House, to request that plans for a large ballroom in place of the demolished East Wing be denied, and that if necessary for national security to rebuild something there to allow a bunker to be in place underneath, that it be rebuilt in a respectful, historically accurate fashion, and in such a way that it does not overwhelm architecturally the main building of the White House.

Many thanks in advance for your consideration.

I am glad to see this being considered, finally, by this Commission but I am displeased that ground was broken and the East Wing of the White House was destroyed without the consideration or permission of any authority representing the People. I could not add a foot to my front porch without needing planning board written permission and an inspection! I hope this commission will reverse the actions taken with such imounity, and undo the destruction done to the People's House.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The White House belongs to the people of the United States. Destruction of the East Wing was, to me, a case of "ask forgiveness, not permission." If—and that's a big leap—a ballroom is needed at the White House, or if the bunker requires upgrades, all proper permits and disclosures and discussions should be taking place. Any new structure should NOT dwarf the original White House; the footprint and height should be seemlessly integrated into the existing structure, not overpower it. And funding should be secured prior to construction. There should be a complex budget, and requests for proposals should go out to ensure multiple contractors have a chance to bid on each portion of the job. None of this should happen in a vacuum or behind closed doors. Please be vigilant and ensure the integrity and beauty of the White House is maintained.

Thank you,

1. Questionable Priorities in a Time of Fiscal Strain

The United States is operating under persistent federal deficits and a national debt exceeding $30 trillion. In that context, allocating tens of millions of dollars to modernize administrative office space attached to the Executive Mansion raises legitimate concerns about fiscal stewardship.

Even if the funds are drawn from private donations (as some White House renovations historically have been), federal oversight, security, and logistical costs inevitably involve taxpayer resources. Major federal projects rarely confine their true cost to the headline construction figure. Security modifications, temporary relocations, and interagency coordination often drive total costs significantly higher.

At a time when:
• Veterans' healthcare systems face backlog challenges
• Infrastructure repair across the country remains underfunded
• Border and disaster response budgets are strained

Spending on executive office aesthetic or structural upgrades risks appearing disconnected from national priorities.

2. Optics and Public Trust

The East Wing houses offices for the First Lady and staff. While functional improvements may be justified, large-scale modernization projects attached to the White House carry unavoidable symbolic weight.

The White House is not merely a building — it is a national symbol. Any major renovation, especially during periods of economic hardship for many Americans, risks reinforcing perceptions of elite insulation from everyday financial pressures.

Public trust in institutions is fragile. High-profile modernization projects tied to executive spaces can be interpreted as self-serving, regardless of intent. That perception alone warrants heightened scrutiny.

3. Historic Preservation Concerns

The White House complex is a historically significant site. Preservation of architectural integrity is overseen in part by bodies such as the National Park Service and other preservation authorities.

Large modernization projects risk:
• Altering historically significant design elements
• Introducing contemporary architectural features inconsistent with original intent
• Setting precedents for further structural expansion

The White House has undergone renovations before (Truman's full structural reconstruction being the most dramatic example), but those were driven by structural necessity. A modernization driven by administrative convenience is a far weaker justification.

\u11835 ?

4. Executive Creep and Institutional Expansion

Federal institutions have a long history of incremental physical and bureaucratic expansion. What begins as "modernization" often evolves into footprint growth, expanded staffing, and permanent operational scaling.

Critics may argue that:
• Executive branch administrative infrastructure continues to grow regardless of efficiency claims.
• Renovation projects can normalize expanding executive operations rather than streamlining them.
• Modernization may entrench structures that could instead be reevaluated for consolidation or reduction.

A renovation is not neutral — it commits the institution to maintaining that expanded or reconfigured footprint long-term.

\u11835 ?

5. Transparency and Accountability

Major public-facing projects demand:
• Full cost disclosure
• Detailed architectural plans
• Clear articulation of necessity
• Competitive contracting transparency

Without comprehensive disclosure, skepticism is reasonable. The public deserves clarity on:
• Total lifecycle cost
• Private vs. public funding proportions
• Security cost implications
• Long-term operational savings (if any)

Absent demonstrable efficiency gains or structural necessity, modernization risks being categorized as discretionary rather than essential.

\u11835 ?

6. The Burden of Justification

The White House complex is already among the most secure and maintained government facilities in the country. Therefore, the burden of proof lies heavily on proponents of modernization to demonstrate:
• Structural deficiency
• Security necessity
• Cost-neutral efficiency gains
• Critical operational bottlenecks

If modernization is primarily aesthetic, symbolic, or comfort-driven, it fails the test of responsible governance.

\u11835 ?

Conclusion

The East Wing modernization project is not controversial because construction is inherently wrong. It is controversial because it involves:
• A national symbol
• Significant cost
• Executive branch facilities
• Optics during fiscal and social strain

In a democracy facing debt pressure, declining institutional trust, and competing infrastructure needs, even defensible executive projects must clear a very high bar.

If modernization cannot be demonstrated as structurally necessary, fiscally disciplined, and operationally indispensable, opposition is not partisan — it is a principled defense of priority alignment, symbolism, and responsible governance.

The White House complex is one of the most historically significant sites in the United States. Although the East Wing is not as old as the main residence, its modern form dates to the 1940s and reflects wartime and postwar expansions of the presidency. It houses offices for the First Lady and staff and has been part of many major historical moments and public events. Preservationists argue that each structural era of the White House tells part of the story of the presidency and American governance.

Historians and architects argue for preserving rather than demolishing historic government structures. Even later additions like the East Wing contribute to the architectural evolution of the executive complex. Demolition sets a precedent for removing other historically significant additions when renovation might suffice.

The White House is owned by the federal government and managed primarily by the National Park Service (NPS), with operational control shared with the Executive Office of the President.

No single president can unilaterally order demolition of part of the structure. Major structural changes require coordination among:
NPS (which maintains the building and grounds)
The White House Office of the Curator
The General Services Administration (GSA)

A demolition plan should trigger a National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) review, to make environmental assessments or impact statements.

It has not been made clear that the appropriate legal steps have been taken, even though the demolition process is under way. The appropriate channels must be followed before any further changes are made to the East Wing of the White House. It is "The People's House."

I object to the plans to construct a ballroom at the East Wing. I am just one tiny voice. I hope the U.S. Commission of Fine Arts (CFA) and the National Capitol Planning Commission receive (NCPC) many comments similar to mine.

The East Wing has been demolished with little to no oversight nor any environmental review as required by the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The White House and grounds are a National Park and a National Historic Landmark owned by We the People.

This public comment period is a legally required process. According to your website, the public comment process is one of several safe guards to "ensure transparency, accountability, and meaningful public input". Major construction projects in DC must be reviewed by NCPC and CFA and they must comply with NEPA as well as receive congressional approval. The Trump administration has ignored the laws put in place for so many things, that this ballroom project seems minor in the scheme of things. Still, I am compelled to voice my opinion. Maybe someday, there will be accountability.

I object to the project for these reasons:

1. The administration should be held accountable for violating NEPA during the demolition. Fines need to be imposed for this negligence. An investigation is needed to determine the extent of toxic debris that was hauled away; some of which was deposited onto a nearby public golf course. Since there is ongoing, blatant disregard for public safety, there needs to be an independent body given the authority to review the environmental damages, impose and collect fines and monitor the new construction with the authority to stop all work if further laws are violated.

2. Congress, CFA and NCPC must require full disclosure of funding, determine if there is any violation of the Emoluments Act or favors granted (quid pro quo) and put in place a fiscal manager appointed by a judge for the entire project. If this cannot be set in place, the project cannot move forward.

3. There is no need for a 90,000+ square foot ballroom at the White House. Let this empty space be just that- a place that tells its own story; what it was, and how it was illegally demolished- a monument to how not to do things.

4. I will repeat- There is no need for a 90,000+ square foot ballroom at the White House. If something is to be built, let it truly be the "People's House". Build a structure for the people- something that celebrates who we are, not who the billionaires are. Make it a place where children and families can come to visit- maybe a revolving Smithsonian exhibit or an arboretum or maybe an art museum (you can never have too many). Build it to scale so that it doesn't overpower the original White House structure. Include some meeting rooms and offices but make it something we can all have access to.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest. The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

America does not need a ballroom costing hundreds of millions of dollars. America needs healthcare that works, safety and respect for all people living here, and a functioning rule of law. Please stop this rape of our national House.

This project is an atrocity. There was no finding of need and no approved plan to replace it. As such it appears to be a monstrous act of vandalism for which the President should be held personally liable. It should not cost the public one dime. Nor should donated funds from Trump's minions be used. He should personally bear it entirely himself and with no input whatsoever himself.

Whatever is necessary to protect the integrity of the remaining building should be done as a stop gap measure. There after it should be left to the next administration to determine what if anything should be built in its place. Barring that, it should be rebuilt as nearly as possible to its original specs, allowing for modernization where deemed fitting.

We must do everything possible to prevent the creation of a garish, completely unnecessary vanity project "ballroom ". The East Wing MUST be restored to its original state and the President must pay for this out of his own personal monies.

Thank you for providing an opportunity to comment on the White House "East Wing Modernization". The complete destruction of the East Wing, allegedly for a fancy gilded ballroom without reviews or approvals, is not "modernization". It is a shameful action of hubris, an erasure of history, and a costly waste of funds. The White House is not a palace and does not belong to the elected person serving their term. It is the 'people's house'. It belongs to the people of the United States, and all of the presidents before and after any single administration. The building and all of the activities that occurred within it are part of history. It is not and never was meant to be a gilded hall for parties. Updates to maintain or modernize structural elements, security, plumbing, or electrical infrastructure should always follow unbiased external reviews and comments, to assure that the whole of the White House and its historic elements are protected. The demolished East Wing should be restored to its prior configuration.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.

This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.
The immense overreach of this administration and their illegal acts must not be ignored.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.
The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts.

This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.
The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

We are aware that the government is trying to build a secret structure underneath the ballroom.

Since the East Wing was demolished without proper authorization and because established rules matter I want the East wing restored as it was. Alternatively, I would not be opposed to an addition as long as it 1. fits with the existing architectural style of the White House and 2. is in an appropriate scale so as not to dwarf the White House which is actually the people's house. It is entirely unacceptable to have an addition serve as an obvious vanity project to a temporary resident, in this case Donald Trump. If he wants to do something like that he can do so on his presidential library after his term is over and not leave the country with a tasteless behemoth that will require excessive maintenance for decades to come . Trump owes it to the people of the country to abide by the traditions that have determined the style and substance of the seat of power for more than two centuries.
Thank you for considering this on your process of decision-making.

I oppose the modernization project and want the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design, honoring this deeply historic and symbolic icon of American history.

To permit this project to go ahead would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans who must follow local permitting rules when building and modifying their own homes, never mind a national, historic treasure.

Please do not allow the East Wing of the White House to be demolished without a permit. If it is already demolished then it should be restored back to where it was while planning and permitting proceed according to law. I am tired of this supposed highest authority in our land being able to break every law with impunity and brag about it. If I had to so much as put an outbuilding on my property I would have to get a permit that followed all rules and I would be punished and not allowed to built without it. But more and more the worst people in this land are using his tactics to break the law and do whatever they want. Back to the East Wing, if it must be restored please follow not only all laws and rules but also maintain the historic and aesthetic standards of the building and make sure it fits the needs of the people of the US not just the current resident who does not own it. Please do not allow it to be a fortified bunker and do not allow it to overwhelm the scale of the rest of the White House. If he needs a bunker let him go build one on his own property. I am also not sure the people of the US or the world need a gigantic ballroom. They should not be fiddling while Rome burns.

I'm a lifelong Pacific Northwest resident. I have only been in D.C. a handful of times. Once as part of a clergy sabbatical, I was fortunnate to spend a week in the Capitol. Three mornings I got up very early, rode public transportation, and tried to snag a tour of the White House. To no avail. It was far too popular.
When it's said the White House is "The Peoples'" it is not hyperbole or metaphor. It's a fact. Bought, maintained, treasured by and for all of us.

Any major change to this honored part and expression of our national heritage is, of course, under the purview of an oversight board.
It is not the property of, and should not be subject to the whims of a particular administration, and certainly not one person. What has happened to this point is at the least a travesty and a shame. It may be far more nefarious.
Our capitoll is not Versailles. The White House is not a castle. If someone or some group wants to build a monument to ostentatious hubris, let them do it on their own dime, their own property, their own time.
Thank you for stopping this insult and folly.

How can a project not approved by congress or the people have ever been able to move forward!!! I cannot believe that the building had already been demolished with not even final plans of what will replace it. Last I heard they were looking for new company to design it? At the very least there should be consequences for making a decision without authorization. We do not have a king we are a democracy and that makes any decisions for something on such a large scale that affects our most significant building in the country something that should at least have input from our elected representatives. This should be rectified by bringing ideas to the people how to fix this. Maybe it should not be completely rebuilt the way it was but a ballroom is just the most wasteful use of our money as well as something that will ruin the look of the Whitehouse. Especially if it is designed with gaudy fake gold trim. This project was not supported by the people and should be stopped!

I am totally opposed to the continuation of the East Wing Modernization project because it was initiated illegally without any regard to numerous laws, policies, regulations, procedures and/or precedents for the proper protection and stewardship of historic and cultural resources. It is especially egregious because it demolished the East Wing of the White House that is among the most significant national cultural resources in the United States. No one is above the law in this country (including the President) and it is beyond me how the demolition of the East Wing ever happened in the first place.

I would like to see this project cancelled and the White House required to rebuild and restore the East Wing to its former design utilizing the private funds ($300 million) that were donated to this so-called 'modernization' project. Furthermore, those officials who broke the law in undertaking this demolition should be charged in a court of law and, if found guilty, be penalized accordingly. Can you imagine the consequences that would occur to any ordinary U.S. Citizen if they intentionally broke these laws?

I oppose the spending of $300 million on the Ballroom project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. The fact that the East wing was razed quickly, as though it was a crime to tear it down, is an affront to the American people, and a slap in the face of American history. I personally have walked past the White House at night and wondered about the goings on inside. It was a beautifully balanced structure and a symbol of the American experiment. To see it standing broken is beyond disappointing. Therefore, I am urging all members of the National Capital Planning Commission to disapprove the new ballroom, or at least as it is currently proposed. If a ballroom is going to be built, then let the decisions on size and outward appearance be such that they help maintain the existing facade so it is not overpowered by a gaudy Ballroom.

I have heard it said that it's "just a building" but it is OUR (Americans) building. Presidents are simply tenants for their time in office.

As a lifelong historian, I have always appreciated the genius of the Founders in creating our unique American nation. They did not want a nation where an entitled few held all the wealth and power and the masses lived lives of endless toil and misery. They wanted no palaces for those leaders. The executive's home would be large enough to accommodate the necessary work, but it would not be Versailles. And it would be called, "The People's House."

This idea has stood our nation well for nearly 250 years and should not change. An oversized, gaudy ballroom would be a monstrosity and a mockery of what America has always been. The "modernization" project should be halted at once and the White House returned to its previous appearance.

This project has not received sufficient input from taxpayers or historic preservation professionals. The scale of the project is unreasonable as is the cost of the project.

I want this project to be evaluated by architectural historians and I want extensive input from citizens. I don't care if private dollars fund the project. The White House belongs to the people, not any individual President. Stop this project now and require professional review and public input.

Remember the East Wing of the White House? Remember the giant ballroom that the tech billionaires have agreed to fund in its place? The National Trust for Historic Preservation is making a gallant effort to stop this. And we can help.

Thanks to the National Trust, we have until March 4 to submit comments about the ballroom to the National Capital Planning Commission. You can make a comment through the link below (click on Submit Comment). PLEASE NOTE, the project is called East Wing Modernization on the pull down menu.

Anara Guard's comment on this is beautiful. She gave me permission to post it here, if anyone wants to use her language.

Thank you for the presentation on the new East Wing. It appears it was sorely needed. I agree with all comments that it should be scaled so as not to overpower the White House while still considering site lines and safety needs. Maybe it shouldn't be painted the same white. I had some initial concern with how the street entrance across from the Treasury entrance meets up with the White House entrance but I'm sure you have experts looking at the flow of all that. It appears it will be quite elegant. Please keep it timeless with a nod to its long history.

I hope going forward there will be project spokespersons, outside of White House staff, who will be knowledgeable of the entire project who can address the American people. The need for an upgraded site should have been public knowledge long before it was torn down.

Thanks again,

I was furious that that the current occupant wrecked the people's house illegally, treated our property as though it was his, and I'm still furious that there's been no accounting for what happened to all the stuff inside, and there was no conservation of the historical and valuable materials it was made of--the fixtures, tiles, stone, paneling, etc. And the idea that this grotesque bonfire of the vanities oligarch ballroom would rise up like a giant goiter on the neck of democracy..... Not if we can help it.

As a licensed architect committed to the protection of our shared cultural heritage, I ask that this project only be allowed to continue with proper authorization, permitting, and required design reviews. The laws and regulatory frameworks that govern major capital projects, especially those involving historically and culturally significant public buildings, exist to ensure transparency, accountability, and responsible stewardship. Circumventing these processes undermines professional standards, erodes public trust, and sets a dangerous precedent for the treatment of our built heritage. No project, regardless of its scale or ambition, should be exempt from the legal and ethical obligations that protect the public interest. Thank you.

The razing of the East Wing of the White House without regard for proper procedure and without prior consultation with the planning commission and bodies dedicated to historic preservation was outrageous. Plans for this project should be placed under a bi-partisan committee of architectural, planning, and art historical experts who can advise on how the newly built wing can best be designed, built, and function. Strict scrutiny of the funding of this project must be undertaken in order to prevent any form of influence peddling. The White House is a national property that is maintained for public use, and should not become the vanity project of any single occupant.

The destruction of the East Wing to make way for ballroom funded by billionaires is completely inappropriate. The White House is not just the president's house, it is a building for the citizens of this country. Trump has been putting his name all over different staples of our country, or defunding some of the most crucial and beautiful parts of our country, and it has to stop. At the end of the day, the White House belongs to us. The vast majority of citizens of this country will never be invited to this ballroom. This is adding an individual ownership that should never exist.

On the proposed new, not “modernized,” East Wing. Project 8733

The North Façade
Prior to its demolition, the East Wing served basically as an outbuilding attached to the White House by means of a covered walkway. The East Wing was subsumed to the visual primacy of the main building. Crucially, the roof of the covered corridor was below the sill line of the White House ground floor windows. Under the proposed new construction, the corridor roof line reaches to the second-floor windows which totally destroys the aesthetics of the White House east façade much like an unattractive growth on a beautiful face. The corridor itself now becomes a major visual element elevated above ground level. What we see is a monotonous string of thirteen blank panels separated by pilasters on bases. The pilasters are too narrow and rather than suggesting a structural function seem more like the side rails of an empty picture frame. Even the dentils hanging off the cornice are out of scale and serve more to remind one of a runny nose than a classical entablature. In sum the corridor is too high and too boring.

The north façade of the new ballroom complex is a blunt instrument that competes with and diminishes the historic presidential home. Whereas the White House has four bays on either side of its portico, the new construction has seven bays, five of which are located on the projecting central pavilion. The design requirement that the cornice match that of the White House results in a prominent and unattractive basement level. Things become really weird when one turns the corner and sees the column bases of the east side temple front below the basement level.

The East Façade
On the east façade there's an octastyle temple front porch accessed by a flight of stairs from street level. When one thinks of classical and neoclassical architecture, symmetry, balance, and harmony come to mind. A fine example is just across the street from the proposed East Wing in the Treasury Building. The Shalom Baranes proposal is more a hodgepodge of elements than anything else. The Temple front is neither centered nor balanced with the rest of the east façade.

The South Façade
This is a total disaster. Initially this decastyle prostyle Corinthian portico contained a pediment, but apparently one commissioner thought the pediment too massive, so the architect removed it. The result is that the façade looks incomplete, similar to the temple of Hera I at Paestum. Decapitating the façade is a symptom of the rush to get something built.

A temple front with ten columns is a major statement. The Pantheon only has eight for example, whereas the Lincoln Memorial has twelve. The curved staircase leading to ground level is completely out of proportion. On the plan it looks like a nineteenth-century moustache.

But the fundamental question is what purpose does this portico serve and the answer is none. Indeed, it could and should be eliminated altogether. Doing so would greatly improve the eight-window east façade especially if the wall space between the windows and temple front matched that of the building's end. I suppose the south lawn facing temple could be understood as a folly much like those fake classical structures decorating eighteenth century English gardens and estates, but even so. Scaling back the East Wing by eliminating this portico would also serve to balance better the South Lawn vista. (Originally the Oval Office and the demolished East Wing were roughly in line.)

The NCPC continues to describe the project (8733) as East Wing Modernization. The Commission met on January 8, 2026, for a pre-submission review of the project. The project was not considered at the February meeting and is on the agenda for the March 5 meeting. The Commission consists of twelve members, seven of whom are ex-officio. The president has appointed the majority of the voting members: William Schary (Assistant to the President and WH Staff Secretary), Stuart Levenbach (Associate Director Office of Management and Budget), and Michael Blair (White House Deputy Chief of Staff). The Mayor appointed two voting members. The NCPC promises full biographies of the members to come soon. Thus, all the public knows is that the majority works for and is beholden to the president. According to the NCPC website, the Commission will consider approving the "preliminary and final site and building plans" on March 5. For information on how to comment of attend Live Stream see https://www.ncpc.gov/review/meeting/

The motto of the Florentine Grand Duke Cosimo I was "Make haste slowly." The NCPC and Commission of Fine Artswould be well advised to do the same.

As a former member of my town’s planning and zoning board, I am shocked at the disregard of the proper procedures the current administration is exhibiting regarding this project. A complete set of plans should have been presented and approved prior to any alteration or demolition of the East Wing. The only remedy that seems fitting in this case is to require the current administration to rebuild and restore the property to its original condition. To allow any other course of action would be inconsistent with how any other party would be treated. There should be significant fines assessed, and levied on a daily basis until restoration is complete.

Good day,
I feel very strongly about the demolition of the East Wing of the People's White House. Trump lied to the citizens when he claimed he would not harm the existing East Wing. We've all seen what he did! I don't believe he understands that the White House IS NOT HIS HOUSE. It is not his property to dop with as he pleases. If he wants a giant ballroom, let him build on his own property.

No further work should be allowed, and he should be forced to rebuild the East Wing as it was with his own money, even if it means selling off some of his own property to pay for it.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project. It was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing and insulting of American history. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

If the wing cannot be restored to its former structure, it should be repaired, at the offenders' expense, and made into a museum of all the failings and illegal activities of the current administration and their cronies in case we ever forget again that the government serves its people, not the other way around.

I am writing to voice my objection to tearing down and rebuilding of the east wing into a lavish ballroom at the people's house, the White House.
As a homeowner, I am required to pull permits to do work on my home. If I'm in a historic district, I must obtain permission from them as well. To my knowledge, this was not done before a wrecking ball demolished the east wing. It seems to me that this was something down illegally and it certainly doesn't benefit the citizens of this nation.
Please stop this project and make whoever gave the ok, reimburse in full the cost of demolition and reconstruction back to its former historically significant glory.

Trump should personally fund rebuilding the wing according to what was previously there.
I’m still in shock any President can attack government buildings and property without any public input. This destruction shook our country.

I'm writing to voice my disapproval of the destruction of The East Wing and the construction of a $400 million ballroom. Both of these projects were decided without the consent of the people to which the buildings belong. The destruction of the East Wing is symbolic of the views this administration has regarding the rights and laws that are supposed to govern our nation. It was a clear violation of trust as promises were made that the construction of the ballroom would not infringe on the East Wing. The disrespect of the American people by this administration is clearly demonstrated by the violation of trust, shroud of secrecy, and disregard for the laws and rights that are the basic tenets of our democracy. The claim of national security should not be allowed to be thrown around by this administration like a toddlers tantrum in an attempt to get its way. The White House, including the East Wing, are historical landmarks and a testament to all we hold dear, whereas the ballroom is a vanity project to glorify a would be dictator. We the People do not consent to having our White House hijacked by this administration and those buying favor from said administration through unapproved gold gilded ballrooms.
Sincerely,

To the Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

I am writing to formally express my strong opposition to the expenditure of any funds, reportedly currently totaling $300 million, on the ballroom project to be built where the East Wing once stood.

The East Wing was an established and historically significant component of the White House complex and, by extension, of our national heritage. Any action involving its demolition should have been subject to rigorous review, full transparency, and clear legal authorization. Based on publicly available information, this project was initiated without proper procedural safeguards, including comprehensive planning documentation, appropriate review processes, required permits, and presentation to United States Congress for oversight and funding authorization.

This proposal does not constitute modernization; it represents the complete removal of a historic structure. Such action warrants the highest level of scrutiny under federal preservation standards and planning protocols.

It appears driven by personal ego and a desire to leave a self-indulgent, ornamental legacy rather than to preserve the dignity and integrity of a national landmark.

This project is neither necessary nor supported by a significant majority of the American people. I call for its immediate cancellation and for the East Wing to be rebuilt and restored to its original design and historical character.

No individual is above the law. Allowing this project to proceed without accountability would be an affront to every law-abiding American. A failure to impose consequences for such a blatant disregard of legal process would undermine the very principles of governance, transparency, and the rule of law that our institutions are meant to uphold.

Thank you for your consideration and for your role in safeguarding the historic and civic integrity of the nation's capital.

Respectfully,
Cheryl Shaw

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

The National Preservation and Trust procedures should be followed to recreate the East Wing to have modest improvements in keeping with the proportions of the White House proper. I would add that the person, who illegally ordered it demolished, is & should be held solely responsible for the restoration costs. Not donors, not taxpayers.

I oppose this "project." Not only does the money obtained for this project come from unclear agreements between the current Republican administration and those individuals and companies that provided the funds for unknown benefits, the lack of transparency and threat to the historic preservation to our democracy and this nation is GREAT. The actions of the Republican administration have DESTROYED the history and image the White House stands for in this country and across the globe. Maybe that was the point? Nonetheless, these actions must be stopped and those in power and responsible for this tragedy should be held accountable, financially and to the full extent of the law. The White House is the PEOPLES HOUSE not a kings or a dictators and the NCPC should uphold the Constitution and protect what is left of this democracy.

As a citizen of U.S. I would like to say I feel the demolition and destruction of the White House (the People's House) happened without prior authorization. Also without Proper permits and proper knowledge of perhaps lead, asbestos, mold and other toxic and horrible substances that could be released was not taken into account. There was no authorization or review of the plans by the proper jurisdictions. No no no. The current destruction MUST be stopped, reevaluated and the costs currently owing paid personally by Donald Trump since he did this I believe unlawfully. Massive destruction that was unauthorized.

I was so shocked by the sudden destruction of the East Wing. It seemed symbolic of all we are losing in so many areas. The way Trump and his shameless enablers have totally ignored precedent and rules yet again and now the East Wing is totally gone. I can not believe that we all woke up to the news of the East Wing of the White House being demolished after a large portion of the American people publicly expressed their displeasure with the current administration.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

The American public is outraged that our East Wing was demolished with no regard for our laws and our history, and without the approval of the NCPC, the body whose mission it is to preserve our architectural heritage and over see projects in our nation's capital to ensure they meet acceptable standards.

The Administration bypassed the American people and the NCPC with their unauthorized destruction of the East Wing. And the structure they plan to build is still without proper authorization, permits, or design review. The size and scope of the intended ballroom is outrageous and makes it entirely incompatible with the existing White House, dwarfing it, subjugating it and transforming it into a secondary structure.

We've watched with incredible sadness as our historic People's House was criminally demolished. These are public lands and public buildings that are being treated as a President's playground without regard to the NCPC, our laws, our history or architectural suitability. This proposed project should be denied approval by the NCPC as totally unsuitable and the East Wing ordered restored to undo the appalling, lawless damage to our national heritage.

It is unconscionable for an individual, even the POTUS, to tear down a piece of US history - and the property of We the People - without going through proper channels.

Demolition absolutely should require a permit as well as the seal of approval from Congress, the representatives of the People.

The funding mechanism should not make a whit of difference when launching a project of this scale. And beyond construction costs, the gigantic ballroom planned to take the place of the East Wing offices and visitor services will need maintenance and heating and cooling in perpetuity, at the expense of taxpayers.

Stop the project right now and bring in experts and historians to decide where we go from here. It may not make sense to duplicate the old East Wing, and we may actually want a larger ballroom going forward, but a 1000-person capacity ballroom is overkill, and an ego project that will overwhelm the scale of the graceful White House and the West Wing.

It is beyond shocking that no one is being held accountable for this executive overreach.

Do the right thing and start over, going through the proper channels.

Thank you from a concerned citizen.

I strongly object to presented plans for the White House East Wing ballroom in its current iteration. The project is grossly out-of-scale to the White House and historically inappropriate at its location. As presented, the structure would significantly mar the building's classicizing symmetry and will draw the eye of viewers to this modern addition, rather than to the historically rich residence itself. Most Americans will never be able to enter the new ballroom, thus the exterior presentation has the greatest public importance. In its exceedingly large form with a huge profile, the ballroom will substantially change the public's experience of the White House, one of our nation's most significant and unifying symbols. A ballroom is not an essential government structure and suggests frivolity rather than statesmanship. I strongly urge the commission to disapprove and send the project back for reconsideration.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my opposition to the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment that should not be supported by your approval.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

Thank you!

It has removed part of The People's House under the auspices of modernization, when in fact it is a vanity project by the current administration. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.
I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol and owned by the public, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

There is no modernization of the East wing happening, this project needs to called what it is. An erasure of history of the East Wing of the United States of America PEOPLES HOUSE!
As a citizen of the USA I am completely opposed to this outrageous unlawful demolition of my house without proper authorization or notice.
Being raised in a home that was built in 1914 the amount of paperwork and approval to simply alter a paint color of a historical building is deep and complex.

There needs to be an immediate rebuilding and restoration of the East Wing of the People's house and all must be paid for by the perpetrators!

The East Swing is not being "modernized" - it was torn down illegally. Why was a section of the White House demolished without any review or approval? What has happened to the valuable fixtures and furnishings? The rooms and their contents were the property of the American people, who deserve a full accounting of this wanton destruction. Ideally, the East Wing should be restored. In any case, it is essential to prevent the construction of a poorly conceived, disproportionately large "ballroom" in its place that will overshadow the White House.

It is an absolute abomination to tear down a historical building, or part of a historical building, for the sole purpose of appeasing the ego of a Narcissistic person. Even if that person is the President of the US. He destroyed a part of our history... This was done unlawfully. He knows that if he petitioned your organization before he did it, you would have said NO!.

Please to do not give in to this unjust action. We need to preserve our history...

Stop the ballroom construction. The East wing should never have been torn down. Can’t change that , but this ballroom is over the top and distracts from the White House itself. The first architectural plan at least kept in line with the White House still in focus . It shouldn’t be a ballroom at all. It had served as a wing to breath and break from the stress of the job.
The expense of such an ornate atrocity, could feed or house the people of this country who served our country and cannot afford these things. Thank you for the opportunity to address this. Respectfully, Trish Cooley. Minnesota Strong!

My daughter is a principal architect with QuinnEvans Architects, a renowned firm that has a long history of restoration and renovation projects with the federal government. Most recently, they have designed new exhibit space below the Lincoln Memorial, and they renovated the Smithsonian's Air & Space Museum. I know how complex the rules and regulations are that govern every project that is in conjunction with the federal government, and even more so for protected historical buildings. It is painfully evident that none of those rules, regulations, or guidelines were followed prior to the brazen demolition of the East Wing of the White House. There has been a total disregard for the historical significance of the White House, for the esthetic elements and craftsmanship of the building itself. All because of a narcissistic vanity project of the current president. Please do not allow him and this administration to blatantly ignore the process that would be required in any other federal renovation of a historical structure. Do not allow them to disrespect the history of "the People's House."

I write today in strong opposition to any proposal to demolish the East Wing of the White House.

The White House is not merely an office building — it is a living symbol of American continuity, stability, and constitutional governance. Every portion of that structure reflects a chapter in our national story. The East Wing, though often viewed as secondary to the Executive Residence or West Wing, plays an essential operational and historical role in the functioning of the Presidency.

I'll never forget visiting the White House in 1999 with the American Legion Boys Nation program, hearing President Clinton speak in the East Room, and then getting to greet him personally in the Diplomatic Reception room. Watching this historic part of the White House being demolished by a tyrannical individual occupying the office of President was absolutely heartbreaking.

The East Wing housed critical offices, including those supporting the First Family and ceremonial functions of the Presidency. It also served as a primary public entrance for visitors from across the nation and around the world. In many ways, it represented accessibility — the bridge between the American people and their government.

Demolition of such a historic structure sets a troubling precedent. Preservation of nationally significant buildings has long been a bipartisan commitment rooted in respect for our shared heritage. Even when modernization is needed, thoughtful restoration and adaptive renovation should be prioritized over irreversible destruction.

Beyond symbolism, there are practical considerations. The cost, security implications, historical review requirements, and potential disruption to executive operations would be substantial. It is difficult to justify demolition when renovation or expansion alternatives may accomplish operational goals while preserving architectural integrity.

The White House belongs to the American people — not to any one administration, party, or moment in time. Decisions about its structure should reflect stewardship, restraint, and reverence for history.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge decision-makers to reject any proposal to demolish the East Wing and instead pursue preservation-minded solutions that honor both function and legacy.

I am writing to express my strong opposition to this project, regardless of its funding source.

My primary concern remains that this project has not undergone proper vetting through the appropriate channels. It is crucial that all projects of this magnitude, especially those impacting public spaces and resources, adhere to transparent and established procedures for review and approval. Bypassing these channels undermines public trust and due diligence, irrespective of whether the funding is public or private.

Furthermore, I am deeply concerned by the significant escalation in projected costs, which have reportedly risen from $200 million to $400 million. Such a substantial increase, without clear justification or proper oversight, indicates a fundamental lack of planning and fiscal responsibility. This kind of financial mismanagement, whether with taxpayer dollars or private investment, is unacceptable for a project overseen by this commission.

I urge the Commission to cancel this project, and have the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment. The White House is the "People's House." It does not belong to any single person, party, or group. To tear down an entire wing, the president must think he has that power. I question it. The original estimate, the one he proposed, as for $100 and he insisted he would not damage the existing structure. As usual and every time, he openly lied to the American people. This renovation must be stopped until the blueprints and anything related are reviewed by the NCPC. If the NCPC does not step in, Trump will assume he has a license to do what he wants to any other federal structure, monument, etc. in our nation's capital without explanation or restraint. The authority of the NCPC will be destroyed. In addition, the widely circulated rumor is Trump is planning to build a bunker under the ballroom, where he will be able to secure his safety, not from foreign attacks or intruders, but from the people of his own country. Please stop him.

Sincerely,

Robert Ross

The demolition of the East Wing was not authorized, approved in any way, properly permitted, studied or had a design review. This was a destruction of decades of history and an assult on our democracy. The East Wing needs to be immediately restored to its former design. A ballroom is not needed.

The money spent to destroy the East Wing should have been spent on the American people rather than on a vanity project. A ballroom does not benefit the American people or our democracy. I am opposed to going forward with the ballroom and any other construction in or around the White House.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.

I wholeheartedly oppose this project, laughably named the "East Wing Modernization Project," when we are all aware this is merely another Donald J trump vanity project that will not benefit any ordinary American. It is not a modernization project at all but rather, in addition to providing a venue for Donald J Trump to entertain his billionaire cronies, is an attempted erasure of American history.
This is the People's House and it belongs to every American. It is not Donald J Trump's personal property.
This project was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. I want this project canceled and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design--if possible, at the personal expense of Donald J Trump. Destroying a major section of the White House, the people's house and a national treasure, was done without proper and comprehensive thought, planning by historians and experts in dealing with historic buildings so their integrity is honored and maintained as upgrades may be warranted, and the proper permits, design review and authorization that is standard for such an historic structure.

I strongly oppose the spending of $300 - $400 million on this project regardless of where the funds are said to have come from. This is not and never was a modernization project but rather the outright destruction of an important piece of American history.

The project should be canceled immediately and engagement of appropriate and skilled professionals to rebuild the East Wing that was destroyed and every attempt made to restore it to its former design and likeness.

Allowing this project to proceed at this juncture is an affront to the majority of Americans. No one is above the law even the president who is supposed to emulate the best of us and to follow the laws of the land. Permitting this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

Additionally, transparency requires that all funds that were claimed to be donated by a variety of individuals, must be detailed and accounted for in the US Treasury and most likely returned to them if the funds were specifically earmarked for this destruction of the East Wing. If other caveats were involved, then those need to be outlined for everyone to see and understand their details.

Thank you.

our country is suffering and so many are unable to purchase food for their family as well as so many Americans are losing health care, this is a let them eat cake moment. I oppose spending $300 million on this project which was initiated without proper authorization, design review, or permits. This is no modernization project. It is a complete razing of American history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park and is owned by the American people who have allowed presidents to live in "the people's house" since 1800. Whoever happens to be president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon. A president is merely a temporary tenant whose interactions with the property and its structures are limited by law and by respect for the owners, the people of the United States.

The current president initiated the demolition of the historic East Wing without review, permits, or Congressional oversight. This is a clear violation of the law. It is also a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli. The demolition was not necessary and is not a modernization project. People who do not own a building cannot decide to tear it down and build whatever they want in its place.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion and subject to proper authorization, permits, design review, and public comment.

The proposed replacement does not fit the esthetic of the main White House, and you might as well just put up a steel building as erect that monstrosity.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the above project.
I am adamantly opposed to the project as currently designed. I am appalled that the east wing was destroyed before any plans were processed and necessary approvals obtained.
My specific objections/recommendations:1. The east wing should be rebuilt at the same size and scale as what was demolished to remain in scale with the west wing. I have no opinion regarding the interior of the building. If it is desired to be fully occupied by a ballroom and related facilities, I do not object.2. All exterior materials and finishes, including windows and lighting, should match the existing White House.3. All construction should meet current codes, including ADA accessibility.4. If any historical artifacts were preserved, as they should have been, they should be incorporated into the new structure as appropriate.5. Rigorous inspections should take place to insure approved plans are followed.
It is a shame that the demolition of the east wing proceeded without first obtaining full review and approval of the proposed project. However, this should not be a reason to not enforce proper reviews and procedures now.
Regarding rumored future projects, the CFA should preemptively outline very specifically the requirements and timeline any such projects will be expected to follow.
Thank you,

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.
I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project. I would like to see a plan done by NCPC.

The East Wing of our White House needs to be completely restored in it's original style of architecture, in it's original space. I approve of modifications made in order to use the interior space more efficiently, but it must match the old structure. Please do whatever you can to stop this project. Razing the East Wing, without proper authorization and review, goes way beyond “modernization”. It’s essentially a show of force by an autocrat who is erasing history, doling out favors to donors and showing contempt for rules and norms. No President should have the right to do this. Thank you for your consideration.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal and make President Trump pay to restore all that he destroyed.

I believe the committee in charge of the president’s desired monstrosity will pay no attention to this email so I won’t waste too much time on suggestions other than:
STOP destroying. Leave the wreck as it is. Don’t touch anything else.

Let's wait for another administration to take this on.

The fact that the East Wing was demolished with NO oversight and complete disregard to standard protocols and reviews is a travesty. The fact that no officials went out there and STOPPED the destruction that we all watched is infuriating. This is the historic People's House, only temporarily "home" to any sitting president, so I absolutely think the rebuilding needs to proceed ONLY with careful and thoughtfully curated and APPROVED plans and not simply on the whims of the current administration.

My preference would be to build a new wing that is functional and respectful of the rest of the White House, the grounds surrounding it, and the history that it reflects. Whatever "secret" things are being done below ground, I think the above ground building would ideally return to the look of what was so callously discarded. The proposed monstrosity that he wants is completely out of scale and out of character with The People's House.

I don't know what kind of laws have to be put in place to prevent these arbitrary kinds of destruction, and somehow the laws need to be enforced if someone thinks they don't have to be followed. Whatever is built will be there for many years after the current regime is gone. Aesthetics DO MATTER as much as functionality. Don't let one person's idea of what he wants be shoved down the throats of the American People. What was destroyed was a piece of our country's history. What is built will become a part of our country's history. If one man thinks it's a monument to himself, he needs to be curtailed immediately. It should've happened when the bulldozer first showed up on the lawn, but now is the second-best time to intervene for the citizens of this country. Please provide checks and balance, and thoughtful vision, to the out-of-control ideas that are being forced upon us. What a waste of money, resources and history this has become! Thank you.

I thoroughly oppose this 300 (350? 400? constantly shifting) million dollar project. I believe the destruction of the East Wing was unlawfully ordered and done so--and done so extremely quickly-- to provide a vanity upgrade project for the current president that nobody asked for. Further, the haze surrounding the donors and what they received/will receive in return for their investment screams pay-to-play--bribery, in the more succinct term.

Since when was America a country that funds gilded ballrooms to prop up the ego of one gilded president at the exact time that president's administration pledged to sniff out "waste, fraud, and abuse," and further, claimed to have already done so? If a gold-encrusted marble ballroom isn't waste, I don't know what is. Pay to feed hungry children and extend health insurance instead.

This was a beautiful historic building with many memories through many presidents. It was shocking and sad that it was torn down. A building that will dwarf the initial building, the White House, is obscene. Donald Trump just wants to build icons all over the city with his name on it. The new building should be similar to the old East Wing. In fact, I would love to see the East Wing rebuilt just as it was. I am not in favor of the ballroom addition and modernization of the East Wing. This administration failed to get prior approval for the changes to OUR house. The demolition never should have taken place. It is one thing for a guest in our house to do minor renovations like painting, changing the furniture, or redoing a floor. But to tear down a third of the existing White House complex is unacceptable and a great loss of our heritage. With all the current needs of the people in this country, a ballroom is rock bottom on the list. Personally, I think Donald Trump should be forced to reconstruct as closely as possible the East Wing, and it should be paid for from his personal funds.
Thank you for the opportunity to express my thoughts.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.
The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.
I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.
The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.
I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.
The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I strongly oppose the spending of $300 million on the East Wing Modernization Project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of our. American history. This project should not be allowed, should be canceled, and the East Wing should be rebuilt and restored to its former design. As a citizen who loves our nation's capitol, I was dismayed by the demolishing of the East Wing and the plans for an enormous ballroom in its place. Any remodeling should be done after consultation with historic preservation professionals, be in keeping with federal laws, and be transparent to the public. This is not a time for gaudy redecoration; it is a time to remember and celebrate that the US is a democracy. Federal dollars should go to refund the many programs that have been abandoned by the current administration, not for this unnecessary remodel. Thank you for considering this opinion.

It's a horrendous design - totally out of scale for the White House campus. Plus, security costs would be staggering for construction and eventual use. This is a total waste of taxpayer dollars. If the claim is it will be payed by donations, that's a crock of bs. And, if the cost is paid by donations (highly doubtful), it becomes a source of leverage by the donor for contracts, special treatment, and even pardons for their friends. The short answer is no. The long answer is no f'ing way. Thank you for your attention in this matter.

Dear Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

The White House is not a private property. Rather, it belongs collectively to the American people. Its temporary occupants are its stewards--as are you. The White House is as much "the People's House" as the United States Capitol Building. As such, it is only right and proper to undertake careful study of any substantial and long-lasting material changes to this important, public, and symbolic edifice.

I write today to register my concern and opposition to this project. As a professional historian and curator, I understand well the vital relationship between the material, the social, and the symbolic. Place indeed has a place in creating the collective American people. What the current presidential administration has done in its actions in razing the East Wing is to displace the American people's sense of national identity.

The razing of the East Wing was jarringly initiated without proper authorizations, design review, and permits. To say that it is a project to "modernize" the East Wing is a distortion of what has thus far occurred. The East Wing was, simply, demolished. With its demolition, the sense of history associated with the structure and its material appointments has been destroyed. This is not modernization of an extant structure and associated meanings. This is destructive erasure.

I oppose the use of privately raised funds (reported as $300 million) for this project. Not a few of the reported donations are the result of what appears to be political graft and only serves to erode even further public trust in government.

No one is above the law--not the person who initiated this disastrous destruction and not the persons who supported it with donations in exchange for political favoritism.

I hope you will act to correct this autocratic and aristocratic wrong and set a path towards the construction of a democratic East Wing. No ballroom should tower over the history and symbolism of a free people encapsulated in the historic and symbolic egalitarianism of the White House.

Thank you for this opportunity to exercise my duty as a citizen to share my concerns.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. It has been home to our presidents since 1800 and is perhaps the most significant historic site in the United States. Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to be heard and to help shape decisions that affect our shared national heritage.

Donald Trump has moved forward with the demolition of the East Wing of The White House; without Congressional Approval, without approval of funding, without the approval of The People of The United States of America, and without approved plans.

For this reason alone, as well as many, many others brought up by opponents of this project, it is my opinion that this project be rejected by the National Capital Planning Commission. The East Wing should be restored to its previous glory and the funding should be paid for with private funds, either from the President's personal fortune, or the corporate leaders who put him in office. The people should not be forced to pay for his arrogance, his ego, his illegal project, or his atrocity. Tearing down the White House without approval of Congress and The People is yet another overreach of power by this president and his administration. It should not and cannot be allowed.

I am deeply concerned about the decision to spend $300 million on this project, especially given that it was initiated without proper authorization, permits, or design review. That alone should give us pause.

From my perspective, this is not a modernization effort. It feels like the complete erasure of an important part of our shared American history. The East Wing is not just a structure—it represents something larger, and once it is torn down, that history cannot simply be recreated.

I strongly urge that this project be canceled and that the East Wing be rebuilt and restored to its former design. I also believe that rules and laws exist for a reason. No one should be above them. Allowing this project to proceed without accountability for those who bypassed legal requirements would undermine the principles that so many Americans work hard to uphold every day.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.

I submit this comment in strong opposition to the East Wing modernization and ballroom expansion proposal. The White House complex is a protected national asset held in trust for the American people — not a canvas for unilateral, large-scale alteration driven by political ambition or personal legacy projects.

Any demolition, structural removal, or major expansion within this historic site demands rigorous preservation review, interagency oversight, documented necessity, cost transparency, and meaningful public process. Proceeding without those guardrails undermines both historic stewardship and public trust.

A 90,000-square-foot addition would permanently alter the architectural and historical balance of the complex. That level of change requires extraordinary justification, not expedited approval. I urge the Commission to reject or suspend this proposal until full preservation, fiscal, and public-interest standards are demonstrably met. National heritage is not a remodeling project.

To Whom it May Concern:
I believe the destruction of the East Wing of the White House was inappropriately done. First, If all the funds to build the ballroom are donated which I doubt the list and amounts should be made public. Second, who is going to finance the continuing expenses and upkeep of this ballroom which could be an extraordinary expense to the taxpayers. Third, if the destruction was appropriately done why was in done in secrecy under the darkness of night. Fourth. this is the "people's house". Why do we the people and our representative in congress, the senate and house not have a say on the destruction and building of a structure belonging to us, I vehemently oppose construction of this proposed ballroom and more strongly oppose any additional naming of public structures under the Trump name without majority approval of citizens including the senate and congress. I oppose all copyright agreements to the Trump name on any public structure. Trump's name should immediately be removed from the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and it should be immediately reopened under its original given name, the board should be shut down and a new board appointed by congress as this is the people's theatre, it does not belong to Trump!

The way the "modernization" of the East Wing of the Capitol resembles the way DT handles anything, or so it seems. He thinks, on so many occasions, that if he wants something then he should have it, regardless of the outcome, because he rich and can have anything he wants. It is an atrocity to me, to create a ballroom, for who? Certainly not we the people. Maybe an upgrade of the electrical or insulation, heaven forbid renewable energy - he ordered a wrecking ball to it, I did not approve.

I strongly oppose the demolition of the East Wing of the People's House and the building of a ballroom. The project did not go through the proper channels and is a travesty to our historical building. It is not for a temporary tenant to make such a decision to this beloved part of our history.
I support appropriate action by the appropriate committees.

To Whom It May Concern:

I oppose the building of the ballroom at the White House and the hundreds of millions of dollars spent on this illegal and profane project. There was no prior authorization, permits, vetting of involved companies, public comment input or design review. There are policies, process, and procedures that are required by law to be followed for any changes to the White House and its grounds.

What has occurred has been a razing of American history. It is the destruction of the people's house. It is an affront to the American people.

The ballroom project must be cancelled. The East Wing must be rebuilt and restored to its former design and aesthetic.

No one is above the law. To permit this project to continue is to allow illegal actions to continue. Persons responsible for the destruction of the East Wing must be held legally accountable.

Sincerely,

I support TOTAL CANCELLATION of this Trump vanity project. The demolition of the ENTIRE East Wing, after Trump lied and said the East Wing would NOT be touched is just outrageous. Trump does not own the White House and will be gone in three years and hopefully sooner. This is NOT modernization! This is NOT renovation. Trump's desire to build a hideous ball room, that dwarves the main White House in scale, must be stopped. I hope to see Trump ordered to stop all new construction on this project and to restore to the extent possible our historic East Wing. The fact that Trump claims it is being paid for by private donations makes it even more egregious and smacks of attempts to curry favor with Trump. What's next? The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800.

Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. ARE REQUIRED to undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive Congressional approval. This should have taken place BEFORE the East Wing was demolished.

President Trump should rebuild the East Wing (AT HIS OWN PERSONAL EXPENSE, as he has been profiting corruptly from the presidency) to look from the exterior EXACTLY like the original, which he tore down illegally. Updating the above-ground space must be limited to ADA compliance and utility infrastructure. If additional square footage is truly needed. It should be added as a basement level.

The proposed new East Wing fails completely to respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

The White House does not belong to the sitting president. The White House belongs to the people of the United States. As such, our government has processes and procedures that should be followed that provide authorization, permits, and design reviews. The project should be canceled, and the East Wing should be rebuilt and restored to it's former design. If it needs to be enlarged, or if it needs some sort of bunker underneath for protection of the people in the White House, that's fine, and that should ALSO go through the same process of authorization and design review. I'm horrified and embarrassed that the president lied to the American Public and razed the East Wing without any approval or permission.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for the opportunity to speak about the East Wing Modernization Project.

I have several concerns about this project.

First of all, the proposed funding of the new East Wing by donations is a concern, in that it is rare that a corporation or an individual will donate such large sums (now estimated to be $300 million) without getting something in return. It is in effect, selling influence in federal government.

Secondly, the White House belongs to the people, and no part of it should be destroyed without proper consultation and adequate time for public input. This has been entirely lacking. The actions of this administration are not in keeping with a democracy and deserve censure.

Lastly, a ballroom should be very low on the national priority list. There are other venues in the capitol area better suited for that than the White House. The security concerns, let alone parking, make the White House a very poor choice for a ballroom.

Thank you.

I do not support this poorly planned, unnecessary, vanity project and honestly I'm sick to my stomach that the demolition already took place. The White House in its 200+ year history has not needed a ballroom, and therefore it's completely unnecessary at this point in time and at this public expense. For security reasons it seems inviting 600-900 people to a function on White House grounds is a further drain on our precious intelligence and security resources. Please do not allow this project to move forward. Furthermore, I encourage you to make whomever decided to start this project restore the damage that has been done. In any community in the US a contractor or owner that fails to secure the proper permits from state and town officials cannot just cry "my bad" and let the government take care of the mess. The tax payers did not ask for this, the federal government didn't authorize it and therefore the person that decided to start this project should be solely on the hook for all restoration costs whomever he may be.

It's the latest effort to wipe out US history that this administration does not agree with, not to mention wiping out the significance of women in the White House. A ballroom is ridiculous and not needed. The money, time, and energy spent on this should have actually gone to projects to help Americans.

Throughout our nation's history, there have been presidents and their administrations who wished only to enrich themselves at the cost to the electorate. The unauthorized razing of the historic East Wing, along with accepting what is likely quid pro quo bribes for a new oversized ballroom in its place is an ugly example of the aforementioned grift.

The White House has always stood as a symbol: the People's House. The President and his family are welcomed as tenants, not owners.

If a ballroom is needed, discussion should be opened to all people of the United States. Plans should be drawn and presented for review and suitability. Any new addition or construction should be in keeping with the classic elegance of the existing building.

As world leaders are welcomed here, a portico for arrivals and departures would be helpful in the event of inclement weather.

Any construction project at the people's house must reflect all of us, not just the wealthy few who purchased their way in.

No one in the future is going to want his glitzy gold overdone ballroom when there could have been so many much better places. My vote is NO!!!! He CANNOT build the ballroom; it will cheapen the people's White House, and the country will be stuck with it when he's long gone.

I think the destruction of the East Wing of the White House (the people's house) was a horrible mistake and a blight on a historic building. The proposed addition of a ballroom is a terrible idea. It will cost tax payers too much money just to please the whims of one person. It is not a wise investment and despite all the executive orders this person likes to sign to appease his ego, the structure would not be a good use of space or resources.

I oppose the expenditure of any dollars whatsoever to build this new ballroom.

Not only does it erase history, but it is unnecessary, and serves no one except a very few select people.

The White House is a natural treasure. A majority of architects and historians oppose the concept of this ballroom, which would be entirely out of scale with the size and beauty of the White House.

I support restoring the East Wing to its former size and design.

NO PRESIDENT can ever again be allowed to deconstruct, or permanently change, any part of the White House without public review and approval from the White House Historical Commission.

The East Wing - and the Jacqueline Kennedy Rose Garden must be restored to their 2015 state.

The White House is known as the people's house. How dare he tear down any portion of that revered structure? It is not the possession of any one president. It belongs to the people. I do not want any part of it to be changed at the whim of any single president. There has been no consultation with congress. No input from the people. No oversight of the funding. This opens this administration to a possible violation of the Emoluments clause of the constitution. The decision was not an open process. I am not sure how many financial laws were broken or how much money is being donated in exchange for what favors? How much is being spent on the work and how much is going to the pockets of the current president. This whole project stinks of grift. I do not want the east wing turned into a ballroom for the rich and famous. better yet I would like it to be restored to its former status. My heart broke when I saw the devastating tear down of the East Wing of the White House. As a taxpayer, a former DC resident, and an American patriot, I was appalled at the temerity of the current temporary resident of the White House who seems to think he's been conveyed the deed and land for The People's House and can do whatever he wants with it.

He MUST comply with every rule and regulation that has preserved this national treasure from generation to generation, stewarded with care by every president before him, so that whatever becomes of his desecration of the East Wing will reflect the will of the American people - not just his whims and his Home Depot gilt gestalt. I beg you to treat this with the seriousness it deserves, and to ensure than any actions taken to rebuild are done with the input, approval, and oversight of the various committees, rules, and laws that were set up to protect the physical building of the White House.

To Whom It May Concern,

Please don't let Trump build the monstrosity of a ballroom where the East Wing was. It will have his name plastered all over it, like his ego needs another monument to himself.

He is destroying our history. It is the people's house, not his. He is only occupying it for four years.

Any changes he wants have to be approved ahead of going forward. He did not do this. I'm sure this demolition would not have been approved.

Please have the East Wing rebuilt to the original plans for the American people. No one wants the ballroom except for him...

He already paved over the Rose Garden and updated the bathroom in the Lincoln bedroom. He continues to make changes to the White House with no approval. He needs to be stopped.

His changes have all been unnecessary.

On another subject, please don't let him build the Arch to himself. Not necessary. Not wanted. He's wasting government funds that we don't have.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely yours,
Jan Albertie

The new East Wing must be modest in size. Under no circumstances should it be larger than the White House. The White House should be the dominant structure. The historical elements of the old building should all be incorporated into the new building, and the final appearance should be compatible with the historical appearance, just structurally more durable. The more influence Donald Trump has over the building design, the more likely it will be torn down after the Trump presidency ends. Therefore, it is essential that genuine experts totally control the building design, with no influence exerted by Trump whatsoever. The public does not want a building designed by a corrupt madman who has dementia.

This project is unnecessary and will add a behemoth replacement for the old East Wing that only Donald Trump wants. Instead of building a useless ballroom, build a viable replacement for the previous East Wing with comparable function but modern infrastructure as needed. I implore you to cancel the ballroom project outright.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president -- like every president before him -- is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits, and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people, who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

Razing the East Wing of the White House without oversight or public input was utterly unacceptable and in no way "modernization." I want the ballroom construction canceled and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design and use. I am against approval of this project for a number of reasons. 1) This is a vanity project for one person. This project will not benefit the American people in any way as I am sure the "little" people will not be invited in (AKA -Marilago parties.)
2) The project is being done to let rich business people and corporations curry favor with one person. 3) This room will be expensive to heat and cool and will require a lot of maintenance over the life of the room. There is no budget for this. 4) The White House is the people's house. If a big room is needed, we the people should have an opportunity to voice what we want for this residence.

Please stop this project and require those who illegally destroyed the East Wing replace it.

I believe he is singly responsible for this tragic destruction and should be required to pay for rebuilding it to its original form.

The proposed new ballroom wing does not meet the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Preservation. It specifically does not meet Standard for Preservation No. 4; and Standards for Rehabilitation Nos. 2, 3, 4, 9, and 10.

The new wing will dwarf the historic main House and the West Wing, when the side wings should be smaller and submissive to the House. The scale of the new wing will make it appear as the main building section. The renderings show that the proposed ornamentation is bordering on Baroque in its application of several different decorative details. The renderings also show that the wing has the character of an office building and not a residential property.

It is a poor design, and one that does not uphold the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties. I am concerned that it sets a precedent for the destruction of historic resources across the country.

I object to replacement of the East Wing of the White House with a ballroom. The reasons for this are as follows:
1. The plans for the ballroom were not approved by an independent committee.
2. The East Wing of the White House, which was historic, was destroyed without notice and proper consideration. The East Wing should be rebuilt and incorporated into any future redesign.
3. The so called private funding of the ballroom is not proper and could lead to the appearance of the exchange of favors for contributions. Further there has been no proper accounting of these alleged contributions.
4. Trump builds ugly and gaudy structures and any ballroom design should avoid his tacky inclinations.

I kept saying to myself that I couldn't understand how they could have possibly demolished this without appropriate oversight but who am I to question this.
This administration has gone too far by removing the historical significance of buildings, trees and the flower gardens at the White House. We, the people want to be reminded of our history so we don't fall into the trap of repeating our mistakes.

It would detract from the People's House. The former East Wing complimented the White House. Something similar should replace what has been destroyed.

Tearing down the East Wing was a gash to the emotional attachment US citizen's have to our house. Those of us lucky enough to visit walked through the East Wing and now for no good reason it is gone. It was bad enough that our historic rose garden was torn out, but to lose the East Wing too for larger parties is too much.

"Modernization" generally means that improvements are made to an existing structure. Destruction of the existing structure is a desecration of more than a building. We lost part of the People's House to a reckless and vengeful ego unable to relate to any but personal whims.

The destruction of the East Wing, as part of a larger historical site, is criminal. The responsible party should be held accountable for all costs related to the restoration of the outside of the building to its pre-destruction state. As for modernization, the practicalities of repair and updating the interior is logical, but still should respect the architectural origins of the historical structure as a whole. There should be no question as to actions suggested thus far.

The questions that remain are:

How was it that the destruction was allowed to occur so easily and allow one man to act so unchecked?

What policies have since been enacted to prevent a repeat of such an incident?

When will all responsible parties be held financially accountable?

When will the bill be paid for the restoration?

Why has the restoration not begun already?

Do you somehow expect the American taxpayer to foot the bill?

I am very much offended by the illegal demolition of the East Wing and its replacement with a building that dwarfs the White House and can only be described as an architectural monstrosity. If an “official” ballroom is needed, then it should be constructed as a freestanding building somewhere else. An enormous banquet hall that looks like it was designed for Las Vegas is incompatible with the existing structures. Even Versailles is more constrained and site appropriate than this building.

I am opposed to this project. It is not about modernization. It is about unapproved spending of our money.The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. This project violates our trust in a president who cares primarily about himself.This is not noble or financially prudent..My comment is after the fact, but I still want to express my concern about the financial strain produced by the current administration.

The illegal destruction of the East Wing of the White House and the plan for a massive ballroom were undertaken without proper permit or review and as such should immediately be halted. Current modifications that have occurred at the White House, from the tacky gold adornments in the Oval Office, to the so called Walk of Fame, the insulting and politically motivated presidential portraits lining the West Wing colonnade, to the concrete resort style patio formerly known as the Rose Garden are an affront to the dignity and history of the building. The White House is the beating heart of the nation, it represents all of us. It is not the personal property of any sitting President to be permanently modified on a whim, no matter who foots the bill. Therefore it should be demanded that the construction of the ballroom be stopped, and that any future plan should restore its historical appearance.

I believe we have laws and due process when deciding to remodel the "people's house." Trump has ignored the laws and due process in order to build a monument to himself. SHAME! SHAME! SHAME! President Truman did a serious remodel of the entire White House when he was in office because the building was literally falling apart. He followed due process and saved the "people's house." Trump needs to be stopped.

Please do not allow construction of a "ballroom" where the East Wing was demolished. The White House has always been "The Peoples House". It is what separates us from other countries and is a symbol of our democratic governance. To allow any single occupant of the Oval Office or Residence to make permanent changes is unthinkable. This is our collective history and belongs to each and every single American. The East Wing should be preserved and rebuilt to its' prior elegance.

This historical building belongs to the people and was destroyed with none of the required permitting or authorizations. My demand is that it be required to be rebuilt, period and architecturally exact the original structure. This was an abhorrent crime against the physical structure and history of the American people. I write today not just as a concerned citizen, but as someone guided by deep respect for our shared history, democratic process, and responsible stewardship of public resources. Over more than 15 years as an educator, advocate, and community leader, I have learned that trust in our institutions depends on transparency, adherence to the law, and respect for the people we serve.

That is why I strongly oppose the $300 million expenditure on the “East Wing Modernization” project. Launching such a significant effort without proper authorization, permits, or design review violates basic standards of governance and disregards the voices of the people who ultimately pay the bill.

Our nation’s architectural treasures, especially those honoring the roles women and countless others have played in our governance, deserve preservation rather than rushed demolition without open review and informed consent. Destroying parts of this history without due process, while exposing local communities to known toxic substances through improper demolition, undermines public trust and disrespects the legacy that binds us together.

I urge decision\u8209 -makers to halt this project immediately and instead commit to:
- Fully canceling the current modernization effort
- Entrusting the rebuilding or restoration of the East Wing to the next administration
- Establishing a transparent, legally compliant process with community and expert input at every step

Taxpayer dollars must be invested with accountability and integrity. Allowing this project to continue without consequences for those who bypassed lawful procedures would waste resources and send a dangerous message that rules and preservation can be ignored. All public servants and all administrations must uphold the highest standards of responsibility and respect for our nation’s heritage, reflecting the contributions of all genders, cultures, and races.

This project must not move forward until the rule of law, as well as the voices and contributions of the American people, then and now, are fully honored.

Respectfully,
Kimberlee Kelly

I believe the White House should be re constructed as it was. It is a historical building. Much history is/was made within those walls. The ballroom plan is out of proportion to the original building. When history is destroyed a part of our soul is lost. The East wing should be re constructed as it was prior to the demolition. It should be modernized but not without respect to its historical significance. As a citizen I feel like the disrespect of the historical and visual beauty was wrong. It should not have been demolished and the public should have had say before it was torn down.

I oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing because changes to a national historic site should occur through transparent review, not unilateral action. Additionally, this $300M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting administration which creates at the very least the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I am asking for clear disclosure of donor funding, environmental and design review, and public accountability.

The White House is a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project.

I was horrified, extremely disappointed and discouraged to see such a flagrant act of by-passing rules, regulations and oversight in the destruction of the East Wing. The fact that billionaires have pledged financial support does not permit this administration to demolish a piece of history based on a whim. Please do not let this project proceed in its current plan. I respectfully request that consideration be given to rebuilding the East Wing with input from historians, the park service, your commission, multiple architects as well as the people of the United States. A giant tacky ballroom is the last thing we need right now. Instead of building the Trumpstein Ballroom, why not restore the East Wing to exactly as it was? The White House looks much better as it used to look than as it would look with a large, tacky ballroom replacing the East Wing. That, and it would probably be horribly decorated... no thanks to tacky fake gold Trumpstein decor. Also, like Trump's other prposed vanity projects, such a ballroom would likely turn out to be horrendously expensive, and not well planned out- also, it's likely not to be installed, and construction isn't likely to progress far. Just look at the vanity projects Hitler proposed for Berlin before/during World War 2 if you want a historical example of tacky vanity constructions.

I strongly oppose the above project for the following reasons:

1. The proposed new Ballroom will be entirely out of scale with the surrounding buildings and will overshadow the White House, the most important building in Washington.

2. The funding mechanism (soliciting “donations” from companies and wealthy individuals) is a plan that is full of opportunities for graft and influence peddling.

3. The upkeep of this large and unsightly building will be expensive.

4. There is no “modernization” associated with the project that cannot be done without the erection of the Ballroom.

5. The entire project was begun without proper authorization and there are still unresolved questions about historical preservation of the site.

Please reject this application.

Our Current President once again does something illegal and then assumes no one will hold him accountable. No other President would have torn down an historic part of the White House without Congress or the Historical commission's approval. I would hope that the ballroom is not built, but the President is fined and the East Wing is put back as it was before he tore it apart. There is no evidence that he has the funds to build the ballroom without using tax payer's dollars. I am also upset given that the East Wing is the women's wing. Once again, as a woman, I find this President has no respect for the legacy and history of the past First Ladies. I would like to add my disgust for that he is doing to the Kennedy Center and the horrible arch of Trump he is planning for the Capitol Mall. Stop the madness. This is an irresponsible and possibly illegal project. It destroys a historic building that doesn’t belong to you — it belongs to us.

Sure would be nice to see those taxpayer dollars being used for something that benefits the taxpayers. If Mr Trump wants a ballroom maybe he should pay for one to be built at Mar-A-Lago?

Shame on you.

The East Wing was destroyed to make way for a new state ballroom funded largely by private donors, with demolition beginning before review by the National Capital Planning Commission and amid unresolved preservation concerns.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this "modernization" project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project. It is a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. The person who illegally ordered it demolished should be held solely responsible for the restoration costs. Not donors, not taxpayers.

The White House is "the people's house" — a shared civic symbol, not the property of any one administration, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards expected of every other federally significant project. No one is above the law, and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

It very feels very much like another corrupt pay to play scheme. Beyond the corrupt money issue, this destruction of OUR HOUSE was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It goes well beyond "modernization" and is rather a complete razing of American history and more simply another of the President's vanity projects, wasting money to glorify himself. He just took a wrecking ball to our house with the clear intention of claiming "well, now we have to fix it so we may as well go ahead with MY plan." No President has ever used his power of office and the people's money to satisfy his narcissistic need for recognition. This project must canceled. The East Wing must be rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law, especially the President! If a renter from one of his real estate properties destroyed part of the property to build a vanity project, he'd blow a gasket. Your recommendation in lieu of a ballroom should be that the President personally must pay to rebuild the East Wing as close to exactly as it was as possible. Take out liens on Trump Tower in New York, Mar-A-Lago in Florida, along with Bedminster and Trump Doral Country Clubs to ensure that he pays up. Get it done before he leaves office.

I believe the East wing should be returned to its original state (along with any modernization needed internally). The dimensions should complement and complete the original structure. The American people should not be held accountable for the damages done by the current occupants. The cost should be the sole responsibility of the current occupants, no one else. No fund raising, no donations, no taxes. If a ballroom is truly needed, a plan should be submitted and approved and must not detract from the original structure, but complement it. And those approved plans MUST be followed and not altered without approval. The cost for a ballroom, that will benefit only a few, should be born by those few who will get that benefit

This building belongs to the American people and the current occupants should not have unilateral control over what happens to it. This project was started without the appropriate permission and continued despite outcry until legally required to halt. I believe this was deliberate. There was no consultation with historical preservation experts and no attempt to proceed with respect to the history of the building. Therefore I believe that those responsible for the destruction should be required to restore the property to its original condition at their own expense. Only then may they follow proper procedures to request building modernization.

I have owned a home built from 1753-1812 since 1982. I have carefully restored and updated my home to retain its history and authenticity because I believe it is much more than a building. It holds the story of the people who lived in it and that matters. I may only know them from census and property records but I can place them at significant points in history and imagine what their lives were like.

It broke my heart to see the East Wing carelessly destroyed for no reason other than ego. While I can understand the need to move from tents to a more stable site, it should have been planned with respect, not ripped off in favor of a gaudy replica of Mar-Lago.

It is too late to prevent the destruction of an historic building but there is no reason not to replace it with a historically relevant and architecturally consistent design. Please don't let this become a shrine to Trump. We are better than than.

As a taxpaying citizen of this country, I strongly oppose this completely unnecessary ballroom project, regardless of who pays for it. I am appalled and enraged that the East Wing was actually demolished before a complete review, including public and Congressional input, could be conducted. OUR White House (there is a reason we call it the People's House, it belongs to the citizens of this country, not its President) has served our nation's needs with respect to official state functions for many years, we do not need a comically enormous ballroom.

Further, the project was initiated without ANY public input, nor input from Congress. This ballroom is not a "modernization project" but rather a destruction of taxpayer-owned property at the whim of, and as a monument to, a single individual. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. I am completely opposed to the so-called "modernization" of the East Wing, and agree with those who call for the original East Wing to be rebuilt at Trump's personal expense.

The White House is not the personal property of any President, but rather is a historic, nationally-owned property where any elected President merely temporarily resides and does business. The idea that a President would demolish an essential part of the structure without ANY public input and review is outrageous. In this case, it's not Trump's property to do with as he pleases!. Not to mention that his sense of taste and propriety is vulgar. Architecturally, the East Wing should be subordinate to the main central structure of the White House -- not equal to it in height, and certainly not more visually dominant. Further, the plans Trump has announced for private financing are utterly inappropriate, and represent a gift which to my understanding is a violation of federal ethics, not that Trump has ANY ethical bearing whatsoever. Finally, the habit Trump has of naming federally -funded projects for himself would also be completely inappropriate.

If Trump is in a big hurry to build a ballroom, he has any number of resort properties where he can do so, at his expense, of course. In the meantime, this illegal project must be stopped, and the East Wing restored to what it was. Trying to design a new East Wing will take too long, and Trump's impact on the country and the capitol has already been unbearable. Pry his greedy hands off the country already!

The demolition of the East Wing was a slap in the face to the American people. To build a Massive ballroom that dwarfs the size of the White House itself would be adding salt to the wound.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

I oppose spending money on modernizing the East Wing of the Whitehouse. This is destruction of valuable and precious history of our United States and never should have been demolished in the first place, as this did not go through the appropriate procedure for any approval. This is the People's House, not the Trump House! It should be restored as it was for generations to see and visit. We do not need a gilded gold tawdry ballroom! There are far more important things this money could be used for such as healthcare and food for marginalized communities. How shameful.

The proposed White House Ballroom project should not proceed as currently planned. The reported demolition of the historic East Wing of the White House without prior approval or notification raises serious concerns and warrants an immediate pause due to an apparent lack of transparency and good faith in the project’s execution.
Additionally, reports that “private donors” are funding the project in exchange for access to the President create the appearance of impropriety and undermine public trust. This approach is inconsistent with the standards of accountability and integrity expected in the United States.
All plans should undergo thorough review by the appropriate oversight bodies. Potential sites should be carefully evaluated, and any necessary funding should be formally authorized and appropriated by Congress. Furthermore, a comprehensive environmental impact assessment should be completed before construction begins.

If the ballroom project ultimately moves forward, its design should complement and enhance the historic character of the White House rather than detract from or overwhelm it.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts.\u-4 ?

This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.\u-4 ?

people's house, it should be rebuilt and restored to its previous design, and all of the monies that were "donated" by corporations to fund this project should be used for the new restoration. We ask that the commission provide complete transparency throughout this process and that the proper channels of approval be followed. In addition, parties who attempted to subvert the process to renovate historical buildings should be investigated and fined in accordance to the law.

This historical building belongs to the people and was destroyed with none of the required permitting or authorizations. My demand is that it be required to be rebuilt, period and architecturally exact the original structure. This was an abhorrent crime against the physical structure and history of the American people. I would suggest that the demolition was irresponsible and that the new addition is outrageous.
Since it is theoretically being paid for by 'volunteer billionaires', I would like to examine the amounts that each have commited.
As an owner of the People's House, and a tax payer, I have a right to know who's choosing to support this monstrosity.
It is a public building, its funding must be public as well.
Do not allow this to go forwar.

I deeply oppose the approval of this project. The east wing was demolished before appropriate authorization, permits, or design review was completed. No one is above the law. As a homeowner, I would not get away with remodeling a bathroom in my home without appropriate permits and reviews. The permit and review process protects the owners, the future inhabitants, and the integrity of my home, and my community. The same is true for the White House. The current inhabitant of the White House does not own the White House. He is a temporary tennant. Can you imagine a tennant tearing a wing off a rental home? We, the people, own the White House. I support an appropriate and thorough design and approval process. Additionally, taking millions of dollars from "donors" is a financial conflict of interest and a quid pro quo. The White House is not for sale! If this modernization needs to be done, it should be done with sensitivity to the historical nature of the building and the neighborhood, and it should be funded through normal congressional channels.

I want to see the East Wing rebuilt and restored, as appropriate for this historical property.

Dear Members of the Commission,
Peace and greetings and thanks you for your service.

I am opposed to the East Wing Project to add a huge ballroom to the White House.
Not only was it begun without proper permits it is a horrible symbol of the excesses of our current administration.
The White House has sometimes been called the Executive Mansion or President's House but it has also been called the People's House because it is where the President lives ONLY while he or she serves the people. For this ballroom to be added to entertain the wealthy donors of this president while so many Americans struggle with health care, heating their homes and meeting their daily living expenses is an excess we do not need. It is a real insult to our democracy.

Sincerely,
Todd Goodwn, A Concerned American

No. The individual who started this is a malignant narcissist, and his wishes will reflect that. As this is NOT one of his properties it should be left alone (well now, rebuilt with all the history intact.) I worked for over four decades in Mental Health and I know of what I speak. As he will not get any help, let's not let the symbol of the nation's best not be denigrated to the worst and then dedicated to that. He will be dead sooner (if really ill) or later (males tend to live until the late 70's nowadays) but where does that leave the rest of us once hes expired. That he has a disorder which tells him he's in charge of EVERYTHING and that "it's ALL mine", we don't have to live with that delusion. NO a thousand times NO. Let It die, and the next 5 Presidents can decide , through proper channels , how it ought to be rebuilt. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

To whom it may concern:
Upon seeing the destruction of the East Wing of the White House for the first time my initial reaction was one of near vomiting. The impulsive destruction of a historically significant portion of a beloved building was almost beyond belief. My second reaction was one of tears. The fact that this has happened, without any public involvement, or prior approval, was almost beyond belief. Unfortunately & sadly, it has happened. I DO NOT want any gaudy ballroom that pays homage to the worst president in US history. I want the East Wing back, maybe a new & improved version, but the East Wing. I am a citizen. I am a taxpayer. I raise my voice in protest over the unapproved actions of an out of control administration. PROTECT this important part of our history. PROTECT & RESPECT the East Wing in the only manner befitting the glory of not only a building, but everything it stood for & hopefully, will stand for in the future.
A testament to the fact that yes, we were tested as a Nation, but we held firm & came back even stronger & more dedicated to the vision of what it means to be the United States of America.

This structure belongs to the American people. It is our history and a part of our identity. To have recklessly destroyed it without going through proper and legal channels is an attack on us and is a travesty. Donald Trump does not own the White House; he is simply a temporary resident and this is no different from a rental tenant tearing down a part of the home they are renting without the knowledge and agreement of the rightful owner, and using the space to erect a vanity project for themselves. I could not object more strongly to this project! The East Wing must be restored with great care and accuracy to its former beauty as it stood before this attack on American pride and history, and not at the expense of the taxpayers. I am very much opposed to the destruction of the East Wing of the White House in order to build an enormous ballroom. The White House has always been a modest building and was originally intended to send a message to the world: unlike the monarchies of Europe in which the the kings resided in luxurious, massive palaces, our president leads a democratic government of the people and his residence is simply a place for him to do his work on their behalf.

Any President is essentially a temporary resident of the White House. The White House is the historical place wherein he/she temporarily resides, There can be no remodeling without approval and certainly not by way of self assigned importance. That would be the prerogative of a king. In the United States, we do not have kings. Many people have died defending that idea. The destruction of the East Wing is two fold: first, the tear down and second, the defiling by building anew something unfitting of the historical nature of the residence. I write today to urge a careful and total review of the President's plans and a repudiation of his bald face attempts of self aggrandizement. He is a shameful and corrupt steward of all that I hold dear.

What Trump has done to the White House should be considered a crime. It is the destruction of historical property. He did it to put his name on something permanent in the White House. It should be tastefully restored to its former design and decoration. A ballroom has not been needed in 250 years and it certainly isn't needed now. I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project.
This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts. This creates an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.
I urge the Commission to reject this proposal.\u-4 ?

This project has been done out of order. There should not have been any activity done to the East wing before the proposal was presented and public comment was submitted.

It is unfortunate that the East Wing has been destroyed. I now believe that this project is being forced through no matter what the public opinion might be. But that seems to be how the current administration is operating.

I would propose that a new design of the East wing be designed without the 90,000 square foot ballroom. That project then would provide the offices for the First Lady and the secure place for the protection of the President. If a much smaller ballroom was included, it would better fit with the current aesthetics of the White House. The 90,000 square foot ballroom is too large for the aesthetics of the White House.

With all of this being said, I do believe that we have no choice as the President is going to do what the President wants to do without any regard to what these comments will say.

To call this the East Wing Modernization Project is almost Orwellian. The East Wing was demolished, without permission, without historic review, without regard for our history. It is to be replaced by an enormous ballroom, a project that is ballooning in cost and size. Please stop this fiasco and rebuild the East Wing, restoring the White House to its previous footprint.

How can you 'modernize' a portion of a building that has been completely destroyed? Donald Trump and the White House staff responsible for hiring the demolition contractors broke the law and should be held accountable.

The ballroom design overly large, overly ostentatious, and just plain ugly. I am sure that part of the reason they decided to ignore the proper review procedures was the awareness that this monstrosity would pass muster. The plan should be totally rejected and the so called 'donors' be forced to pay for the restoration of the East Wing.

The White House belongs to the people of the United States, not any one President, no matter how highly he thinks of himself.

I oppose the spending of $400+ million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review.

I do not believe that it is a modernization project. The razing of the East Wing was a vicious temper tantrum by a deranged President who was trying to deflect attention from the Epstein Files and the huge nationwide protests that took place days before.

I do not want this project as its been discussed so far to continue. I want the East Wing rebuilt and if possible restored to as close as the original design as possible. I was honored to have attended events at the White House back when President Clinton was in office. The building wasn't just a structure, it was a building that reflected the memories and sacrifices of many honorable people who had served our country. Sure, it could use a ballroom a little larger than the East Room. But not a $400 + Million dollar spectacle that does not conform to the existing White House and West Wing.

No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing the President who broke the law with the destruction of the East Wing would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The East Wing of the White House needs to be rebuilt, and the interior needs to be restored to exactly what it was before this unlawful destruction took place.

Because this destruction was unlawful, every single individual, company. corporation, organization involved in the destruction, needs to be held accountable to the fullest for their actions.

"I'm not opposed to modernization or even expansion of the East Wing of the White House. However, I'm appalled that the Administration would choose to demolish the East Wing and assume they could proceed with a large expansion without going through any of the required (and appropriate) review channels. I believe the following principles should be applied to any construction on the East Wing site:
--The size and extent of construction should consider the size and extent of the rest of the White House, and should not overwhelm or dominate the rest of the structure;
--Modernization should be carried out to allow for functions in keeping with modern technology, with space set aside to house the technology, but again considering the size and extent of the rest of the structure;
--Exterior features, treatments, and finishes should be in keeping with the historic architecture and nature of the remainder of the White House;
--Before any additional work is done, an Historic Structure Report should be prepared using Historic American Buildings Survey standards, and should be retroactive to before the East Wing was demolished;
--Documentation of all historic features demolished should be carried out in accordance with federal standards;
--An interpretive display should be prepared, subject to National Capital Planning Commission and National Trust for Historic Preservation standards, regarding the features demolished;
--Any work from this point forward should comply with all applicable laws, regulations, and standards.
Thank you for your consideration."

I write in strong opposition to the proposed demolition of the East Wing of the White House and the construction of a new ballroom.

This project represents not modernization but the irreversible destruction of an important part of American history. The East Wing is a significant architectural and historic component of the White House complex, and its demolition would undermine the integrity, continuity, and symbolism of one of the nation's most important landmarks.

Equally concerning is the apparent advancement of this proposal without appropriate authorization, permitting, and transparent design review. No project — regardless of sponsor or purpose — should bypass the processes intended to protect our shared national heritage. Allowing such a precedent would weaken public trust and disregard the rule of law that governs responsible stewardship of federal properties.

Spending hundreds of millions of dollars to erase historic fabric in favor of a new construction project is neither justified nor consistent with preservation principles. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal, cancel the project, and ensure that the East Wing is preserved and restored in accordance with established historic preservation standards.

I strongly oppose the allocation of $300 million to a project that moved forward without clear authorization, proper permits, or a transparent design review process. What has been described as "modernization" feels, in reality, like the dismantling of an important piece of American history. Rather than preserving and thoughtfully updating the structure, this effort appears to replace it entirely.

The continually shifting scope of the project only deepens my concern. Costs and plans seem to evolve without consistent public accountability, creating the impression that decisions are being made behind closed doors. From the outset, the process has felt opaque, raising serious questions about oversight, procurement practices, and whether the public's trust has been respected.

The White House is the people's house. It is owned by and funded through the American people — not any single president, political party, or federal administration. Decisions about its structure, history, and design should reflect the will and values of the public, not the preferences of one individual or the influence of unexamined power.

I urge that this project be halted immediately. The East Wing should be rebuilt and restored in a way that honors its original design and historical significance. No one is above the law, and any failure to follow proper legal channels must be addressed. Allowing this project to proceed without accountability would undermine public trust and the rule of law that all Americans rely on.

I object to the expenditure of $300 million on a project initiated without proper authorization, permits, or required design and historical review. This is not a modernization or preservation effort; it is the wholesale demolition of an irreplaceable piece of American history for one mans ego.

This project should be immediately canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its original design. Allowing such an undertaking to proceed without accountability for those who violated established laws and procedures would undermine the rule of law and dishonor the principles that govern our nation. I strenuously object to any further work on replacing the White House East Wing without the full participation of all required oversight organizations, no matter where the funding source. President Trump should be required to provide the full funding for the East Wing replacement as he independently destroyed the existing facility without demonstrating the need for its replacement or even attempting to work within the process for doing so. I further object to any design which is not historically appropriate in scale and style to the White House and also object to any design approach which resembles the fake gold Trumpification that has been done to the Oval Office.

As a graduate of the University of Vermont's masters program in historic preservation I point out that federal laws protecting historic buildings are being ignored here.
As a citizen and proud American I would also point out that the White House belongs to the people of this country. Never before has one of the transient residents of this house forgotten this. The current president's unilateral decision to destroy a part of this historic building should be strongly countered by those charged with preserving our country's history, traditions, values and laws. Likewise, the design for any new building on the site should be subject to proper review as required by law.

The fact that wealthy individuals and corporations have made financial gifts to fund the proposed project raises legitimate concerns about undue influence in search of political pay back, something the authors of our Constitution worked to prevent.
As a person who was taught and in turn taught my child that might does not make right, I protest the abuse of power in full display here.
Bullying on any level should be met with full resolve, and I challenge those with the power and resources to counter this project to push back.

This project is not needed and disturbs the view and historical significance of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.
Our countries founding fathers did not envision a time when a palatial ballroom would be built for an administration that thought of itself as provincial aristocrats, building palaces to honor their kingly ambitions.
This project dwarfs in size all the buildings on this site and can only be seen as a diaspora of ill-conceived thought and planning, to placate the narcissism of the current White House resident.
This project has not followed American historical preservation ideals, with its grandiose facade, arches, and symbols perfectly suited for the Kings of Europe's past and present.
Please, with all due respect, end this project as it stands and restore the East Wing as it has stood for all the many decades.
Thank you,
Kyle

I would like to see the East Wing of the Whitehouse rebuilt as it was. It balances the building and is a historical treasure. This would also give the planners a great opportunity to update the technology. It is sad that the East wing was thoughtlessly destroyed with no planning. It can be restored even better as a tribute to those who cherished it. If a ballroom is needed, it should be planned to blend in with the current buildings. Everything should be approved by the historical group.

DESTRUCTION of the EAST WING of the White House without review, permits, or Congressional oversight VIOLATED THE LAW. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park. The American people own it.

The National Capital Planning Commission should require any reconstruction of the East Wing to match the historic design and size of the original structure and be funded only by Congress. If Congress does not approve funding and a design keeping with the building's historical character, the land should be left vacant.

I object to spending $300 million on this project that was not approved, no permitted and is a vanity project started on what appears to be a whim. If I tore into a house with no permits and no plan I would be required to GET a permit and would not be allowed to move forward without one. If I deviated from the plan I would be required to stop construction until any deviation was approved. And that would be my personal property. This is the people's property and the people's house and the people's history.

No project should move forward until it get the required permits and an approved plan. It should be restored. Awarding this vanity project by allowing it to move forward would be a travesty.

The White House is the people's house that we share with the person, and family, who is elected to the office of the President of the United States. The East Wing is part of the White House, not a looming monument to a narcissist. It does not need to be 5 times bigger than the White House. In fact, it's needs to be rebuilt as it was with safety updates, better wiring, etc. The grounds need to be restored as the beautiful gardens they were. No President has the right to tear down any part of the people's house without the permission and guidance of the NCPC.

To Whom It May Concern,

I oppose spending $300M on the East Wing Modernization Project.

The work appears to have moved forward without the proper authorization, permits, or even a meaningful design review. That is not acceptable for any public project, and it is especially unacceptable at a site that carries this level of national significance. Calling this modernization does not match what is happening. What we see is a loss of history and character that cannot simply be rebuilt later and called “the same.”

I am requesting that this project be canceled. I also want the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design, as faithfully as possible. No one is above the law. Allowing this to continue, without accountability for those who ignored the required process, would be an insult to every law abiding American who is expected to follow the rules.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Our White House, in total, is a well known and respected piece of architecture by people around the world. Its beauty is renowned. I came of age under the Kennedy Administration. I had great admiration for both JFK and Jackie, Jackie's respect for the historical importance of the White House was inspriing. I felt like THAT was what every occupant should feel. The White House is OUR house, the People's House. The current occupant is always temporary, they are transients living rent-free in a house OWNED by the PEOPLE of the USA. Respect for it's history is the least we should be able to expect from transient occupants. The destruction of Jackie's Rose Garden was distressing to me, and many others who loved and admired her.

The East Wing underwent many transformations during it's almost 100 years, it doesn't have the same historical weight as the Main building, but it has formed and shaped it's own history and significance, and there are LAWS on the books about how federal properties are to be maintained, and how any major "construction" or "renovations" are to be reviewed and approved.

The wholesale destruction of the East Wing goes against the laws, the precedents, and the will of the PEOPLE who OWN the property. Modernizing the East Wing might be a worthwhile project, but a BALLROOM that is far outside the guidelines for construction is definitely not an improvement, nor is it needed.

It is horrifying and appalling that a temporary president took a wrecking ball to the people's house, which is (or should be) held in trust by its occupants. The destruction never should have happened, and the plan for a giant gilded ballroom does not serve the interests of the people of the United States. The East Wing should be rebuilt exactly as it was before the destruction by contractors who have been extensively vetted as trustworthy to handle the security-related aspects of the building.

Thank you for seeking input in regard to the chaos created by the current occupant of The Peoples' White House . The West Wing has been demolished before review required by federal law by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act and receive congressional approval. This has not happened; the law has been broken.

Any expansion or additions should respect the historic scale and design of our country's beloved White House. The proposed ballroom is an abomination, gaudy, and disrespects the historic design and scale of our White House. As Commissioners of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, we ask that all means be taken to restore the East Wing.

Commissioners:

Please halt the East Wing Modernization Project and require this project to be vetted by the mandated approval projects. Setting a precedent of allowing no vetting, procedure, and approval will be disastrous. This project could be a liability for the Commission, Washington DC, and the American public. It is for a central public building that hosts critical function but also represents critical aspects of our country. The project must meet safety, design, historical design, function, and regulatory criteria—as all other building projects must. Allowing this to bypass approvals is unthinkable and would be a legacy of lawlessness that we cannot afford to allow.

As this administration has proven itself to be grifting, self-enriching and corrupt beyond anything we’ve ever seen, this project tracks as another pay-for-play for the rich to embed themselves in government for policy considerations and government contracts.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people and home to presidents since 1800. The current president at any given time is not the owner of the property or the structures thereon; the president is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.

The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to require reconstruction of the East Wing in keeping with its historic design and size. Anything constructed on the demolition site going forward must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion.

Thank you for your consideration.

To whom it may concern

As a United States citizen am terribly upset at what has happened to the East Wing of the White House. This project was taken on and earnest and without the proper channels followed to keep historical preservation.

This project being funded by large donating individuals creates a partisan heavy lean as well as giving those involved belief they have some sort of say and control in our White House.

I personally feel that it is necessary for the White House administration to be held accountable for the destruction of the property of East wing, as well as and renovations to be taken through all proper channels and funding before moving forward.

When I first heard about this, it was about the president having a gold-adorned ballroom constructed, which would hold about 900 people. This was supposed to be financed with contributions from very rich donors.

He promised that the White House would not be touched.

Next thing I know, he's having the East Wing ripped down, with no input from anyone.

I was horrified to see the people's National House, our White House, destroyed in this way.

The president doesn't seem to be reined in by anyone. He is acting like a king, a dictator, doing what he wants.

We fought a war to escape from a king's rule! How ironic that we are celebrating America 250, and the president is acting like this, putting his mark on everything.

The East Wing needs to be reconstructed in the same kind of architectural style that it was before this man decided to tear it down.

I don't think we need a fancy, gold-trimmed ballroom om the White House property.

If those who seem to be in favor or having a venue for large gatherings, have it somewhere else in Washington, DC. And our citizens do not need to pay for it.

One last thought - we also do NOT need an arch in Washington, and we do not need Trump's name on any other building anywhere.
An honor like this belongs to someone who deserves it, and he does not.

To the National Capital Planning Commission,

I am submitting this written objection regarding the proposed East Wing Modernization Project.

I strongly oppose approval of this project for the following reasons, which I believe directly implicate federal interests in the National Capital Region and fall within the Commission's statutory review responsibilities.

1. Inconsistency with Federal Planning Principles and the Comprehensive Plan

The proposed ballroom appears inconsistent with the policies and guiding principles of the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital. Federal projects within the monumental core and surrounding federal interest areas must demonstrate clear public purpose, fiscal responsibility, and alignment with long-term planning objectives.

A large ceremonial or entertainment-focused structure raises significant concerns regarding:

• Necessity relative to existing federal facilities
• Duplication of function
• Long-term operational and maintenance costs
• Impact on the symbolic and civic character of the area

The Commission has a responsibility to ensure that federal development advances enduring national interests rather than short-term political priorities.

2. Fiscal Responsibility and Stewardship of Public Funds

As a federally reviewed project, this proposal implicates taxpayer resources — whether directly appropriated, indirectly subsidized, or supported through federal land and infrastructure.

The National Capital Region already includes numerous federally owned and federally supported venues capable of hosting official functions and ceremonial events. The justification for constructing a new ballroom facility must therefore be rigorously scrutinized.

In the absence of clear, documented necessity and cost-benefit analysis, the proposal appears to represent an unnecessary expenditure inconsistent with principles of prudent federal stewardship.

3. Procedural and Legal Concerns

There are serious concerns that this project may not have followed the full procedural path required for federal development in the National Capital Region, including but not limited to:

• Adequate NEPA review
• Section 106 consultation under the National Historic Preservation Act
• Public engagement at the appropriate concept stage
• Transparent cost disclosure and authorization
• Compliance with statutory review sequencing required under the National Capital Planning Act

If these processes have not been fully completed prior to final approval, advancing the project would undermine both legal safeguards and public trust.

The Commission should not approve any action until all required environmental, historic preservation, and statutory reviews are complete and publicly documented.

4. Precedent and Institutional Integrity

NCPC plays a critical role in protecting the long-term planning integrity of the National Capital. Approving a project that appears driven by symbolic or personal legacy considerations, rather than demonstrated federal necessity, risks setting a precedent that weakens planning standards and erodes confidence in federal oversight.

The Commission's mandate is to ensure that development in the capital region reflects national purpose and enduring civic value, not transient political objectives.

Requested Action

For the reasons stated above, I respectfully request that the Commission:

• Defer action on this proposal until all procedural requirements are fully satisfied.
• Require a detailed public justification of need and fiscal analysis.
• Ensure comprehensive compliance with NEPA and historic preservation laws.
• Consider whether this project meaningfully advances federal interests as required under the National Capital Planning Act.

Thank you for your consideration of this comment.

Sincerely,
Erik Cullins

The public was previously assured that this portion of the East Wing would not be altered. The subsequent demolition raises concerns about transparency and the accuracy of information provided to the public. NCPC's oversight is essential to ensure that future decisions are communicated clearly and consistently.

Given the significant needs facing communities across the country, it is important that federal resources be directed toward projects with clear public benefit. I urge NCPC to ensure that any proposed construction at the White House demonstrates a compelling federal purpose and not discretionary expansion.

The proposed structure appears significantly out of scale with the existing East Wing and risks overwhelming the historic character of the White House complex. NCPC's mandate to preserve the dignity, proportion, and architectural coherence of federal landmarks is especially important here.

Thank you for ensuring this project receives the scrutiny it deserves.

The White House belongs to the American people, not its temporary occupants nor one man's outsized ego.

You are stewards of this historic treasure. I've sat on the Historic Preservation Board of my city and know the responsibility you have to protect significant structures. There are few structures as important in the US. The White House represents our nation. It is not garish or ostentatious. It is beautiful and classic and simple. It has a gracious presence and scale. The ballroom is obscene.

The East Wing before it was illegally bulldozed balanced the West Wing. It should be rebuilt EXACTLY as it was. To permit a new ballroom larger than the White House itself reflects nothing but your failure to protect a 250-year legacy in deference to the inflated ego of one narcissist.

It's wrong.

I submit my comments as a Registered Architect in the state of Arizona specializing in historic preservation.

1. The East Wing of the White House was demolished in contravention of the laws of the United States, without rational justification, public input, or legislative authorization. Construction of a replacement cannot be allowed to proceed because illegal actions such as these should not be rewarded.

2. The demolition of the 1902(?) East wing represents a material loss to American History. Whatever comes next on this site must respect not only the original White House but also atone for the loss of the East Wing.

3. Preferably, the East Wing should be reconstructed of modern construction and detailing and of a scale that is respectful of the earlier East Wing as well as the remaining main White House and West Wing.

4. The proposed ballroom is radically out of scale to the historic structures remaining on site and projects much too far in front of the White House facade. The proposed design would irrevocably alter the historic context of the White House.

Merriam-Webster defines the word "ostentatious" as attracting or seeking to attract attention, admiration or envy by gaudiness or unnecessary show. And ostentatious is the word I would use to describe the current plan to modernize the White House and add a ballroom that measures over two acres. The plans I have seen are undignified, garish and out of scale with the rest of the building, a building called "the People's House." I am not in favor of of this action.

I strongly and unequivocally oppose the expenditure of $300 million on this project. It was launched without proper authorization, without the required permits, and without appropriate design review or consultation with the relevant oversight agencies. That is not a minor procedural oversight. iI is a fundamental violation of the public trust and of the established legal process.

This is being framed as a "modernization," but in reality it amounts to the irreversible destruction of historic American architecture and heritage. The East Wing is not disposable infrastructure; it is part of our national story. To demolish and replace it without lawful approval and transparent review is reckless and unacceptable.
Projects of this magnitude are required to undergo rigorous scrutiny, permitting, and consultation under established federal guidelines, including those of the National Capital Planning Commission. Circumventing these requirements undermines the rule of law and sets a dangerous precedent that powerful interests can ignore statutory obligations.

No one is above the law. Allowing this project to proceed without accountability or penalty for those who bypassed required approvals would be an affront to every law-abiding American and to the integrity of our democratic institutions.

I call for this project to be immediately halted, fully investigated, and canceled. The East Wing should be rebuilt and restored to its former design in accordance with all applicable laws, proper permitting, and transparent consultation with the appropriate agencies and the public.

Thank you.

The East Wing of the White House, like the entire White House, belongs to the people of the United States—every citizen who calls the US home. It does not belong to one man or one group of people. Those who see themselves as above the law or above our traditions are mistaken.

The White House stands as a symbol of the USA for the entire world as a model for freedom from a ruler or monarchy—but a home for a people who rule themselves.

It must be restored to its previous grandeur at no cost to the American people. He who destroyed it without permission should pay to restore it,

And the American people deserve to know the truth about the “bunker” underneath—was that been destroyed as well?

As we move past the rule of one selfish, arrogant, self-dealing stain on our history, we expect restoration of this great monument and symbol of America and restitution for these unapproved changes that went through no formal review or even discussion.

We need to erase the ugliness of recent years and bring back America the Beautiful.

I oppose the modernization of the east I want this project canceled in the Eastwing rebuild and restored to its formal design. This construction was begun without following proper protocol of filing plans or requesting permits. There’s also the question of whether or not the actions of the current administration in tearing down the wing violated federal laws, including the National Environmental Policy Act and the Administrative Procedure Act, by bypassing standard review processes, congressional approval, and public input.

I also oppose the fact that the funds are set supposedly to come from private donors. This is all about ethics. By allowing these private donors to contribute, you're basically opening the door way for them to have influence over, not only the design and aesthetics but events and policies that take place within those walls. They're basically buying their way into the White House and into preferential treatment.

The current administration is a temporary one and as all administrations that move in and out of the White House, their plans for the White House should be to improve upon it for future administrations keeping in mind again that this is the house of the people, not their personal residency.

I greatly oppose the Executive Office of the President's (EOP) East Wing Modernization Project, especially the proposed construction of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House complex. The design and scale are completely at odds with the scale of the historic site, and disregard the Secretary of the Interior's Rehabilitation Standards 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, and 10. Regarding standard 1, the defining characteristics of the East Wing and East Colonnade were destroyed and a maximum change was made to the historic character of the White House and the environment of the White House Grounds. Regarding standard 2, the historic character was not retained and preserved. Removal of historic features and spaces were not avoided. Regarding standard 3, the East Wing and East Colonnade were not retained as a physical record of its time, place and use. Regarding standard 4, the historic significance of the East Wing and East Colonnade were not retained and preserved. Regarding standard 5, the historic features, finishes and craftsmanship of spaces within the East Wing and East Colonnade were not retained for repair/rehabilitation or preservation. Regarding standard 6, the East Wing and East Colonnade were not in deteriorated condition that necessitated their complete demolition. Regarding standard 9, the proposed new construction has destroyed historic materials and spaces that characterize the property. Regarding standard 10, the proposed addition overwhelms the historic scale of the White House, and the demolition of the East Wing and East Colonnade has destroyed the essential form and integrity of the historic property and the environment of the White House grounds. The destruction of the East Wing and the East Colonnade were done without CFA and NCPC oversight and an example needs to be made that the EOP is not above the law.

I oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. I am writing to recommend the East Wing of the White House be rebuilt to its previous grandeur. It was destroyed without the proper approvals and the current inhabitants of the White House are not above the law and procedures required of any other American citizen. Furthermore, the person resoonsible for this unauthorized demolition of US property should be made to pay to restore the property to its previous condition. This should not be a burden to the US Taxpayers.

If the President needs a ballroom for meetings with foreign dignitaries he can please find an alternative location for said ballroom.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Cynthia Giroux

1. This is not the best use of the money (wherever the money came from)?
2. This is not the image we should project the the rest of the world. It looks way too much like the ballroom of a palace rather than the meeting place for democratic people, even dignitaries. Reinforcing the fear that the president wants to be king. Not that he does, just that this reinforces that fear people have.

3. This design is much too elaborate and glitzy.
4. BAD idea. Design needs much more discussion.

I am adamantly opposed to this project for the following reasons:

-It has already destroyed a historic portion of the White House, i.e., the PEOPLE'S house, without notice and without the public being allowed any chance to weigh in.
-Was there damage done to the existing underground infrastructure, some of which was used during the 9/11 attacks, and has been meant to keep White House personnel safe & able to work during emergencies? The public certainly hasn't been informed of it and any damage to those spaces is going to be very expensive and delicate to fix.

-Although it is true that other presidents have made significant changes to the White House over the years, I believe it was always with an eye toward maintaining the historical integrity of the building without the absolute disregard shown by the current occupants of the White House for the laws regarding historic buildings, especially THIS historic building.
-My biggest problem with the project is the use of private funding, which reporting so far seems to indicate is all coming from parties with an interest in seeking favors from the current administration. This is a conflict of interest, plain and simple, right out in the open. I might not be any happier if taxpayer funds were being used but at least there is a history of past presidents (or their wives) redecorating and making improvements. I'm old enough to remember Jackie Kennedy's famous rose garden being an addition of which most people approved (which has now been sadly bulldozed and paved over now).
-The American public did not ask for and does not want a gigantic ballroom that dwarfs the White House, to which the public will have little to no access, as a monument to the current White House occupant's fragile ego, especially if it doesn't remotely fit the architecture of the existing building. The demolition of the East Wing (have those contractors been paid yet?) made me sad and heartbroken for the entire country. It seemed to symbolize something more spiritual being destroyed in the country, which will not be rebuilt with a giant ballroom.
-When the ballroom is not in use (which will be most of the time because, let's face it, how often will it truly be needed?), will it just be wasted space? Will it serve any other purpose? If not, it will just be an enormous waste of money (except for the aforementioned conflicts of interest/favors).

The administration may now be seeking National Capital Planning Commission approval but I cannot approve this project myself as the peoples' representatives, i.e., Congress, have had no say in this. Congressional authorization is required by federal law and they have not given that authorization. Maybe they would, maybe they wouldn't, but the administration needs to ask them.

The only vote I have appears to be via this comment. I vote NO.

I disagree with the proposed construction of the East Wing Ballroom. The White House is an important institution belonging to The People. Its very history is a bedrock of our country and founding fathers. While updates and renovations are always needed the scope of this work significantly changes the footprint and design of this historical building. It is my firm belief that the construction of this addition, along with the devastating demolition of the East Wing without going through the National Historical Society and other agencies charged with preserving important historical monuments and places shows a complete disregard for the history of our country. I believe any and all changes and/or additions must go through a complete, bipartisan review. Thank you.

I was appalled to hear about bulldozers destroying the historic East Wing of the White House without any concern about historical significance of the structure. If someone wants to modify the existing structure and build a large ballroom, that is OK if proper channels are followed and the project is well-planned to augment and not destroy a national treasure. I was able to tour the White House several years ago and was impressed by the history and beauty and cultural significance. Frankly I do not see much difference between the Jan 6 rioters who destroyed parts of the Capitol and the bulldozers here that knocked down functional and cultural structure. The East Wing had offices of the First Ladies who are often unsung contributors to our country. I am also appalled that Jackie Kennedy's Rose Garden has been altered beyond recognition. Please protect our national treasures with careful preservation and repair so that they remain useful and enjoyable by the American people. Thanks

Hello

Since the White House East wing was destroyed without the proper approval process by the Trump administration, it is my request that the east wing be restored to the condition it was in prior to its destruction. Also, taxpayer funds should not be used to restore it. Trump should be required to use own personal funds to restore it. In addition, since Trump broke the rules/laws of getting the proper approval processes from Congress and the White House Historical Preservation Society, he should be charged with the appropriate related crimes. No one is above the law even the President. He should set a good example to the public. Whatever the punishment and fines would be to a private citizen had someone destroyed the White House, those should apply to Trump.

To whom it may concern,

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This $400 million construction began without National Capital Planning Commission approval, without required environmental assessments, and without congressional authorization mandated by federal law for construction on federal parkland in Washington. These violations should not be rewarded with after-the-fact approval.

The funding creates unacceptable conflicts of interest. Corporations holding billions in current federal contracts with this administration are funding a construction project at the residence of the president who controls those contracts. This is not charitable giving. This is an investment in access and favorable treatment.

The White House belongs to the American people, not any individual president. I urge the Commission to reject this proposal until full legal compliance is achieved, including congressional authorization and completed environmental assessments. No temporary occupant should possess unilateral authority to demolish historic structures without following the law.

May our voices be heard and our house preserved!

magnificent, historic East Wing once stood. This entire "modernization" project is actually just another line item in Trump's narcissistic agenda, and HE DOESN'T OWN THE WHITE HOUSE! He is a TENANT whose landlords are the American people, and he has no right to obliterate any part of the White House without permission in advance. He not only ignored the law when he tore down the East Wing but also erased part of American history, for no reason except to impose his own hideous sense of style upon THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE. He's already done too many other appalling things to it! Need I mention the absolute abomination he created of the White House portrait gallery? The Lincoln bathroom? The OVAL OFFICE? No. It cannot stand. I want this asinine ballroom project canceled, the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former glory, and the entire project team -- including Trump -- held FULLY accountable for disregarding rules and regulations pertaining to alterations of THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE. The destruction of the East Wing is heartbreaking.
Trump should pay to rebuild it! We don’t need a large tacky ballroom!

I must express my unequivocal opposition to any proposal that seeks to convert the White House East Wing into a so\u8209 -called “Trump ballroom.” The White House is a national symbol that embodies the principles of democracy, history, and collective identity. It stands as the people’s house, not a venue for personal glorification or partisan display. Any attempt to repurpose its historic and functional space for self\u8209 -aggrandizement would constitute a profound breach of public trust and a disservice to the dignity of the presidency and the nation it serves.

This says it best and reflects my views on the subject. What was done to this historical building disgusts me. I grew up in New York and this has always been this family's MO. (Look up Coney Islands Steeplechase building destruction) Don't let them get away with it this time.

I object to construction of a grand ballroom. As a US citizen it is abhorrent to me that we had no voice in the demolition of the east wing. The only reasonable solution to this horrible mess is the reconstruction of the east wing as close to its pre demolition state as possible using modern construction practices and materials.

To whom it may concern,
As a generational US citizen (Colonial Dames), proud daughter of a Battle of the Bulge survivor and a US Army Nurse taking care of the Normandy soldiers in England, I believe I have a right to say the White House belongs to the People, including me. As it is my house I am livid and appalled that someone came in and the East Wing of the White House down without over site or planning, Was there a building permit? An architecture design? A historical design committee to salvage the historical value of the demolished building, as well as the existing building? Was it confirmed the integrity of the existing building would be considered before the demolition? Was there a hazardous waste committee? So many more committees were not part of this decision.

If it had been my personal home and someone came in, demolished part of it without any of the above... I would fire him, I would hire a lawyer to sue such person to put the building back as much as possible with him/her paying for it. I believe this was not the American citizens decision, it should be put back as close as possible and we, the US citizens, should not pay for it.
If you have any questions please contact me.
Sincerely,
Carolyn Watson

My heart skipped a beat and I felt sick when -- suddenly and with no planning -- the East Wing of The White House, the People's House, was demolished. There is a reason and purpose for rules, reviews, discussions, and transparency about Federal buildings, monuments, properties, buildings, etc. This is an "ego project," and an opportunity for the President to enrich himself & family, and allow "buying" federal favor and opportunities by allowing private individuals and companies WHO WILL BE UNDER REVIEW BY MEMBERS OF THIS ADMINISTRATION FOR THEIR ACTIVITIES, to buy-in to things that regular Americans cannot. This cannot be allowed to go forward. If you have nothing to hide, hide nothing. Where is the oversight, the design reviews, the permitting, and the APPROVAL for simply ordering in bulldozers and destroying so much that is a part of the history of this country. This president is not a King and The White House is not his castle. It is a historical building that holds tremendous meaning to the American people. I will continue with this: PRECEDENT. You can be sure that if this is allowed to proceed, there are other politicians with enormous egos who can come up with grandiose ideas about how they want to be remembered. PLEASE PUT AN IMMEDIATE STOP TO THE WHITE HOUSE, and have it restored to its original state. I do not want to live in a country where Billionaires buy favor for their desires and the rest of us go without.

Dear Commission Members,

I strongly oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, whether the funds are donated for it or from any other source. The project was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. In addition, there were no environmental considerations for the people, homes and offices in the immediate area of the potential for asbestos or lead paint residues released as the East Wing was demolished. The project has completely razed our shared American History with no chance of our elected representatives to have a say on behalf of the American people. I demand that this project be immediately canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt (using any funds donated for the ballroom construction, NOT tax payer money), and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans and the very foundation of our republic.

The cost of the East Wing remodeling / ballroom project does not align with cost cutting measures we have seen in other public sectors of government. I suspect that the "donors" supposedly paying for this will not , in the end , be billed. There is talk of an unground security bunker and intelligence center that has not been fully disclosed or explained to congression or the voting public .
Trump's construction project did not go through proper channels for approval or include this war bunker. The White House is or was a "national monument" owned by the people of the USA. When will the land and buildings authority address this radical usurping of power and take control by halting this building project? There have been no funds budgeted for maintenance of thus huge unapproved project for when it is completed.
Do not ignore voters! We are watching this unruly behavior! Especially the people have had government job lay offs, and those experiencing cuts in medical care and SNAP program.
Elections are coming up again soon!!! BEWARE.

If the East Wing Modernization Project includes the huge ballroom, that is the project I wish to comment on. I am so sorry that the East Wing is gone and I am opposed to a ballroom that is bigger than the White House. Unless the East Wing can be replaced, I guess we are going to get a ballroom but it needs to be of a scale that blends with what is left of the White House. The National Capital Planning Commission is much more suited to determine the appropriate size of a ballroom addition than I am. I will respect your decision. Additionally, is there any chance you can convince the President that the Arc de Trump, should not overpower all the beautiful monuments and memorials that we have come to love in DC. Bigger is not always better. Thank you for "listening". Linda Hinson

This abomination was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is a travesty. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing of U.S. history and the design looks more like a brothel than a staid government building that serves ALL the American people. I want this project condemned and the East Wing rebuilt and restored ALONG with the pre-existing ROSE garden. To permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those responsible to the full extent of the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans. This was a lawless act. The person who ordered it, should be arrested and held until the East Wing is restored and until that person pays the entire bill for the rebuild.

I totally oppose anything the size of the proposed east Wing ballroom structure, that will dwarf the existing mansion. Construction of any replacement must be of a proportional size and design and be multi-use, instead of the proposed ' Hall of Audiences" that appears in autocracies and oligarchies.

As a taxpayer subsidizing this construction with my taxes, I demand that this project be keep conservative and with costs reduced to the American people, not an endless budget of bigger and bigger dollars that are unnecessary. If I have to cut my budget to pay for basic utilities and food and rent, why should the government be any different.

As a former employee with US Government, I'm not against renovation and remodeling the Whitehouse but it must be done in the proper way to authorize any changes or additions. The Whitehouse does not belong to any one President or political party. It is the home of our government with rich history. It should always be treated with the utmost respect and its history preserved. The decision to renovate, remodel, or especially to demolish, should not be left to a select few but to be carefully decided upon by the proper branches of our government. What has happened to the east wing is tragic.

I am writing to firmly oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. This project began without required National Capital Planning Commission approval, without environmental assessments mandated by the National Environmental Policy Act, and without congressional authorization required by federal law for construction on federal park land in Washington.
The $400 million cost is funded by corporations holding billions in federal contracts with the administration approving those contracts, creating an unacceptable conflict of interest.
The White House is not private property. It belongs to the American people. No president should have unilateral authority to demolish historic structures and approve construction without following the law and allowing public input.

This project must be canceled. This project was illegally started and is just an ego project. Restore the wing to its prior state and maintain its integrity.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. It has been home to our presidents since 1800 and is perhaps the most significant historic site in the United States. No one should be able to change the structure without proper comment and review. I am horrified at the changes both inside and outside of the White House -- the People's House.
All work should be stopped except as required to ensure the safety and stability of what remains of the building. Purchasing access to the current occupant through donations is disgusting and should be illegal.

I vehemently oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a “modernization” project but rather a complete razing of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. There is no need for a gaudy, tacky ballroom, in the White House. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead without penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

I request that work be stopped immediately on the East Wing Project. This project was begun illegally, without the proper permits and approvals. Work should cease and the East Wing should be restored to its historic beauty as soon as possible. The bulldozing of the People's House was a travesty for our nation. Please amend this wrong.

I cannot believe that the East Wing was demolished before appropriate approval. I think that a heavy fine should be levied and that the East Wing should be replaced as it was at the expense of those approving its demolition.

I object to the destruction of the East Wing for the addition of a ballroom that the White House doesn't need. This project was undertaken with no permits, no public comment, no consultation with the proper authorities on historic preservation of the people's house. Please halt this project, and reconstruct the East Wing to its previous glory. The current president is a temporary resident, a tenant. He's not a king. Stop allowing him to act like one!

Looking at the design boards for this project, the proposed addition looks like a monstrosity. The size and scope are much larger than what is necessary. The addition looks like it will dwarf the White House, which sends the message that lavish events and showmanship are the main purposes of the entire compound. I believe the in history of the White House, not included in the attached documents, the forefathers agreed that the nation's leader would not live in a palace like a king.

From a birds-eye view, I do not like that the proposed building cuts the edge off the ellipse shape/design in the yard that is repeated throughout so many spaces nearby (not 'The Ellipse' but the oval or semi-circle shape itself).

I am also concerned with the interior design aspects, considering the changes the current tenant has undertaken in the White House. Will each future President be allowed to redecorate according to his or her own tastes, with the cost borne by taxpayers? Or will it be labeled "The Trump Ballroom" in perpetuity and no changes to be made ever? As a middle class taxpayer who will never attend an event here, I feel the entire project is a pompous monument to excess and classism (as opposed to classicism).

Thank you.

There was never a commission appointed to oversee this project. Trump took it upon himself to fund it and oversee it. He is not an expert on designing, overseeing it, contracting the right people, managing, and doing the accounting. Look at all his business failures. This is a governmental issue and should be handled by those in charge and experienced. The people of the US will not be able to use this ballroom. It is only planned for the elite millionaires and billionaires. Bring back the East Wing as it was and make it for the American people as it was before. It's tax payer money paying for it and it should be the taxpayers who enjoy it.
There are already many venues where a ballroom party can be held. Utilize those that exist. Our White House is not a place for lavish parties. Trump can have those at his place in Florida and New York. The White House is a place for business and diplomacy. It's also a disgrace to have built it so big. The overall design was an assault to the senses. Thank you for tearing it down.

The demolition of the White House East Wing to build a ballroom should never have happened by the whims of one man. These types of decisions should be made by Congress with input and review from the National Capital Planning Commission and the White House Historical Association.

This $300M-$400M project is being funded by large private donations at the behest of the sitting president and this creates the appearance of influence-seeking or preferential access, and undermines public trust. There should be a disclosure of these "private"donors.

The White House is the People's House, not Trump's personal property, and major alterations should follow the same oversight standards of every other federally significant project.

As an American citizen, I am appalled at the wanton destruction of the East Wing of the White House. This was done without permits, planning, or care to preserve the contents. It now sits as a ruin with a proposal to build a massive ballroom intended to feed the ego of the current WH occupant rather than to represent and serve the greater interests of the nation. This is supposed to be the People's house, not the private property of the current administration. The only remedy is to rebuild and restore the East Wing to its previous grandeur.

Thank you.

Please see my comments for the 02/19/2026 meeting on the East Wing Modernization Project and ballroom addition.

As a community activist for preservation of our historical places, I am against this project primarily due to its erasure of American history and our significant buildings.

Additionally, I am against this project due to the absence of required federal approvals, potential asbestos risks, and the massive, 90,000-square-foot scale of the new, privately funded ballroom.

Destruction of Historic Fabric: The project demolished the 1902 East Wing, including its colonnade, which was first established on the site by Thomas Jefferson. This erases a significant part of American history, with historians describing the demolition as a "wrecking ball to tradition".

Lack of Public and Federal Review: The project moved forward without approval from Congress, the Commission of Fine Arts, or the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC), violating standard procedures for major federal renovations.

Ethical and Funding Concerns: Although privately funded by "patriot donors," the lack of disclosure regarding donors—including potential interests from the crypto and tobacco industries—has raised significant ethical questions about buying access to the administration.

Disproportionate Scale and Design: The proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom is vastly larger than the current, much more modest, 200-person capacity East Room. The new structure is too large, gaudy, and not in keeping with the historical aesthetic of the White House.

Environmental and Safety Risks: The demolition of the 1942 structure was conducted without typical environmental reviews, raising concerns about asbestos exposure to workers and the surrounding area.

Circumventing Oversight: The administration was sued by top historic preservation groups, who emphasized the project bypassed legal, environmental, and architectural review processes.

Thank you.

I am disgusted by what Trump did to the East Wing without asking for any approval. He is single handedly destroying our National Monuments and institutions by tearing down and renaming them at will. He is treating the White House as his personal property. Not only was he happy to turn the Oval Office into a gaudy, tasteless room but he decided that the ballroom wasn't big enough for his giant ego. Everything has to be "bigger and better". I want the East Wing returned to its original glory and I want Trump to have to pay to restore it to its original condition. He's already destroyed the Rose garden and turned it into an ugly patio with tacky tables and chairs. He's saying he's going to remodel the KENNEDY center. Wants to build a 250 foot arch. When is it enough?? When is he going to be held accountable for his actions??? He did not consider the historical value of the East Wing. He took it upon himself to destroy without asking for permission. What more will he be allowed to do?? Please, stop him from turning Washington DC into an ugly version of Mar a Lago or his other tacky hotels and properties!!!!!

To tear down part of our history with no oversight or permission, is disgusting. The White House belongs to the people and Presidents get to temporarily live there. The people were not given a voice in this decision. Let's stop pretending that this is acceptable. Renovations are always needed, but demolitions are not. Rebuild the East Wing and build a ballroom somewhere else.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park, owned by the American people, not its current occupant. The President is a temporary tenant whose interventions are limited by law and by respect for the people of the United States.
The demolition of the historic East Wing without review, without permits and without Congressional oversight is clearly a violation of the law. In addition, it is a violation of the trust of the American people who were given no opportunity to comment on what should have been presented as a proposal and not as a violent fait accompli.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to restore the East Wing to its original design, prior to demolition. Anything constructed or remodeled after the original East Wing is restored must be compatible in form and subordinate in scale to the original structure of the Executive Mansion and only after going through the approved process with signoff and oversight. Do not allow those who desecrated our People's House to get away without consequences to its lawless destruction.

"The People's House" is not a King's Castle, and does not need a massive ballroom. A design that reflects and respects the historical significance of the White House is warranted.

Tearing down the East Wing of the White House is horrific! Isn't there a process that must be followed before bulldozers are activated?Where is the money coming from to pay for this? Who approved it? Our country is facing problems at every front… high cost of living, Epstein Files, Immigration, alienation of long standing world powers, corruption at all levels of government. A great percentage of Americans are WEARY and FEARFUL of where this administration is going, with no regard for the law, the constitution, and the stability that was once the HALLMARK of our nation. The destruction of the EAST WING is symbolic of the chaos we are now living in. PLEASE…. Put it back the way it was, respect this nation's history and the will of the people.

I strongly object to the methods undertaken to build a ballroom at the White House. From razing the East Wing without approval or a formalized plan, to designing a structure that will dwarf the White House, there appears to be an attitude of reckless abandon toward this national treasure.
