The interior of the East Wing of OUR White House should provide for necessary and useful activities and services, NOT for frivolous purposes like a ballroom. The exterior should, if possible, mirror the exterior of the West Wing. A "Hidden Bunker" would be pointless since the entire world has been alerted to its prior existence.

I, along with much of the American public, do not support the East Wing Modernization Project. First, the name is misleading. This is not a modernization project, but a vanity project for Donald Trump. He embarked on and started demolition without any public or environmental approval, and the project is bankrolled by oligarchs who want to win Trump's favor. This is just one example of Trump sacrificing the culture and history that belongs to the American public for his own selfish aims.

To Whom It May Concern:

As an author and dramatist of American History for the past thirty years, I write to say that the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House, already irreversible, represents a singular abomination. It is an arrogant erasure that in one fell swoop has changed not only the architectural landscape of the White House, but bulldozed more than a century of precious history.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people. Public input should have occurred before construction made the outcome irreversible. Nothing can now be done to restore that damage -- but time remains to halt and permanently prevent any further desecration of a space the founders intended as "The People's House."

The people's voices were not heard. Now they should be.

Sincerely,
Kirk Ellis

The latest plan is truly awful. Way too pretentious, and the scale is too big. All those columns and that portico are so out of place. This is not Rome or Ancient Greece. Heating that monster would be atrocious and I'm sure the acoustics will be terrible. A bit smaller and simpler would be so much more appealing.

I am writing today to express my concern with the demolition of the East Wing of the White House, as well as the proposed East Wing Modernization Project. The White House is the People's House and we did not ask for a gilded golden ballroom to entertain billionaires. Since the former east wing has already been demolished, I suggest adding a modest building to restore the connection to the White House and make it a wing that serves the people. Rooms with historical value, offices for staff and places the public can visit. We the people will never benefit from a golden ballroom, but we would like to have rooms to visit that hold historical artifacts and historical significance. Turning the East Wing into a golden palace is to make the White House look like a place for royalty and America has no Kings and Queens. We the people want our lives improved, not our tax money wasted on projects that we don't need and will. never benefit from. Each president serves a limited term, and has enough space to conduct the business of the country.

Thank you for allowing my comments.

The project has been surrounded by lies by the president as to its scope, cost and purpose. The fact is, it is only being done as an aggrandizement for Trump and is only for his vanity. The scope of the building is wildly extreme and a waste of money. The assurance that the funding will come from private donors will also probably turn out to be untrue and the operating costs will certainly be on the taxpayers backs for the long term. The East Wing was demolished without proper permits, review, and authorization. My opinion is that it should be reconstructed within the original size parameters, upgrading to current code for electrical and plumbing, and with the underground bunker reconstructed to meet current code requirements. My preference is that it be designed according to previous function and NOT made into a ballroom.

I believe the exterior dimensions and architectural style should be restored. The structure should not be larger, higher, or wider than the White House. The interior should be updated to meet wiring codes etc. and it should be made ADA accessible.The historical significance of the structure should be respected as the necessary safety and system updates are made.
If a ballroom is needed, it should be made to fit the dimensions of the original East Wing, or built elsewhere in the city.

From the models I have seen of the proposed ballroom, which is NOT a modernization of the East Wing, it is too big to stand next to our White House. It should complement the current building and not overwhelm it. I do not understand how the East Wing was destroyed without the People's say on the matter or the Senate of the House. The plans for the ballroom also need to be seen by legitimate construction companies so we can see what and where the proposed $300 million budget will be used. Has there been bids by different companies on the construction, if not, why not?

I believe that the White House does not need a ballroom of the size that President trump plans. The East wing needs to be restored. A much smaller event space that doesn't overpower the White House could be added with restrictions noted by the National Capital committee.
A huge ballroom does not benefit the tax payers, just the rich. Entertaining the rich and famous or a particular political party should not be done on our tax dollars period! I would like to see proof validating the need for this space during the last 20 years. What events warranting this size building were held? How often? What occasion? What cost? Please justify the spending.

I oppose the spending of $300 million+ on this project, which was initiated without the proper authorization, permits, or design review. There will certainly be cost overruns, the current tenant has never built anything within "budget". Further, with the reputation of the current tenant, compromises in quality and craftsmanship are to be expected. For example, Corinthian columns of fiberglass or some other cheap composite instead of hand carved out of marble or limestone. That is beside the point though because I strongly oppose everything about this stupid vanity project.

To the National Capital Planning Commission,
I am writing as an American citizen to express deep concern about the demolition already carried out and the proposed construction of a massive new White House ballroom as part of the East Wing Modernization Project.
I was saddened and alarmed to see photos of historic structures connected to the East Wing being torn down. These spaces were part of our national story — the People's House — and closely tied to the legacy of First Ladies and the historic development of the Office of the First Lady. The loss of these buildings is not a minor change. It is the destruction of irreplaceable national heritage.
I am especially alarmed that demolition was completed in a rushed and largely concealed manner behind large temporary curtain walls, despite widespread public concern that the required review and planning processes had not been completed. This approach felt reckless, dismissive of public oversight, and unworthy of the care that should be shown to a national historic landmark.
I am also concerned about the proposed size and scale of the project. A 90,000-square-foot ballroom risks overwhelming the iconic look, proportions, and character of the White House and its grounds. The White House should remain dignified and historically consistent — not redesigned into something resembling a private luxury venue.
Finally, I am concerned about design trends that prioritize extravagance, including excessive use of gold plating or gold leaf. The White House should reflect the values of a democratic republic, not showy personal branding.
Any construction at the White House must be done with extraordinary care, restraint, transparency, and respect for history. I urge the Commission to require full review, meaningful public accountability, and a plan that protects the historic integrity of the White House for future generations.
Respectfully,

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style as it was prior to demolition with update wiring etc. and modernizations using the original plans to the best of your ability, with the acknowledgement that historic architecture and plants have been irreparably destroyed and lost. Make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past processes for making needed but historically sensitive changes.

As part of the restoration, restore the gardens and grounds, as well as the Rose Garden.

No gilding please! This is not a palace. It is the symbolic house of the people of the United States that is provided in good faith to hold the administrative offices and home of the current executive while they are working in service of our country and all the people therein.

Finally, legal provisions should be made to prevent this type of historical destruction in the future.

As a historian, it distresses me to have this wing torn down prior to public opinion deciding whether to proceed. Certainly it is good to improve the facilities, but public law decrees it is done with full public approval and review.

I am opposed to the projected size of this ballroom as it is not in proportion to the White House public building, and feel the entire proposal needs to be downsized to fit the structure proportionally. Also, the interior needs to have approval of the pubic commission and Congressional Review with both parties in agreement on the final plans and decoration.

The current occupant's plans to rebuild the East Wing must be stopped. He is not a landlord, he is a tenant. His landlords are the American people and he is merely a caretaker while, and only as long as he is physically in residence. The building does not belong to him and he does not have the sole authority to decide to demolish and rebuild it to his own personal specifications. The East Wing was demolished without any of the required reviews, authorizations or permits. Once all of the necessary plans, permits, reviews and authority have been processed in accordance with current statute and laws, it should be rebuilt as it was, appropriately incorporating any needed technology, safety or structure codes. Dear NCPC,

According to the Executive Order on Protecting American Monuments, Memorials, and Statues and Combating Recent Criminal Violence,

> Sec. 2. Policy. (a) It is the policy of the United States to prosecute to the fullest extent permitted under Federal law, and as appropriate, any person or any entity that destroys, damages, vandalizes, or desecrates a monument, memorial, or statue within the United States or otherwise vandalizes government property. The desire of the Congress to protect Federal property is clearly reflected in section 1361 of title 18, United States Code, which authorizes a penalty of up to 10 years' imprisonment for the willful injury of Federal property. More recently, under the Veterans' Memorial Preservation and Recognition Act of 2003, section 1369 of title 18, United States Code, the Congress punished with the same penalties the destruction of Federal and in some cases State-maintained monuments that honor military veterans. Other criminal statutes, such as the Travel Act, section 1952 of title 18, United States Code, permit prosecutions of arson damaging monuments, memorials, and statues on State grounds in some cases. Civil statutes like the Public System Resource Protection Act, section 100722 of title 54, United States Code, also hold those who destroy certain Federal property accountable for their offenses. The Federal Government will not tolerate violations of these and other laws.

The destruction of the East Wing was the destruction of a national monument and the willful injury of Federal property.

I ask that the full penalty of ten years' imprisonment be imposed on the person who implemented this policy.

Thank you for your time.

If renovations, or enlargement, need to be made for preservation, I agree to changes as long as the dimensions are in keeping with the size and style of the current layout. To completely tear down and rebuild a much larger, or taller, building is not in keeping with the style of “The People’s” house. This renovation should never have been started without approval and there should actually be a penalty for moving forward with it prior to getting approval. We the People should not have to foot the bill for an unnecessarily large, gold embellished space that someone will likely want named after themselves, purely for ego enhancement. 1. That it blends into the architecture of the Executive Mansion and grounds.

2. That no one person's name be applied to it in particular. "The President's Ballroom" or something similarly specific is acceptable. Better yet, "America's Ballroom".

3. Adequate facilities should be included in the addition.

Not only should this project not proceed, the East Wing must be restored, made whole, returned to its former state (at the expense of Mr. Trump—this wasn’t the taxpayers’ will and we shouldn’t have to pay for its restoration) before the wreckers came in, and any necessary “modernization” take place only with appropriate oversight, approvals, and due process.

The proposed new wing should not be bigger than the main part of the White House; it should not cost hundreds of millions of dollars; and it should be subject to planning permission and all the regulation that a usual government building would have.

Hearing the president urge speed because the site is now messy and risky is like an arsonist complaining of burned hands.

Bring back the welcoming and administrative spaces of the former East Wing and leave it at that.

To National Capital Planning Commission,

Since the first president to occupy the Executive Mansion moved in, there was an understanding: the Executive Mansion was a residence provided by the American people to the current president as a courtesy and convenience. The structure was never intended to be a grandiose palace designed to impress visitors. It was to be a dignified abode for the current leader of the nation, but a residence that the president was only a temporary occupant of.

In the over two hundred years since then, America has moved from a fledging experiment in self-governance to the preeminent power on the global stage. Presidents, no matter their political affiliation, have conducted their duties, greeting kings, princes and leaders of every stripe. They have witnessed triumph and tragedy, been proud of our nation's accomplishments, and mourned when we have failed to be the best version of ourselves.
And in all of that, not a single president has complained about their need for a space dwarfing the Executive Mansion where they could hold galas, or try to project their desire for greatness. Nor have any of them engaged in the wanton destruction of the Executive Mansion's buildings or surroundings.
Yet now we have a president who, without consulting any responsible body, has taken it upon himself to demolish part of the Executive Mansion's structure. Further, he has reshaped the grounds of the Executive Mansion and engaged in internal changes that deface the house the people of America graciously provided to him.
I therefore offer my opinion on the proposed addition:
It is an unnecessary structure, one that will see only occasional use while costing the American taxpayers untold millions to maintain.
Further, I offer this opinion: If a landlord finds a tenant has damaged, defaced or otherwise modified a structure they are only the current occupant of, they are well within their rights to both evict said tenant, and to seek to recoup the costs of repairing said damage. I would therefore suggest the Commission not only refuse to allow construction of this useless monstrosity, but to recommend that Donald John Trump be evicted from the Executive Mansion, and that the full cost of returning the structure and grounds to the state they were in before his most recent tenure began be borne by said Donald John Trump. I would further suggest that Donald John Trump be banned from entering the Executive Mansion for the remainder of his natural life as a sign of the nation's displeasure for his destructive actions.
Congress, as the responsible party for such matters, should of course find whatever spare office space exists in the Washington D.C. metro area to house Mr. Trump for the remainder of his term. But with his clear tendencies towards destructive behavior, Mr. Trump can not be trusted to maintain the Executive Mansion in the status it deserves.

Sincerely,
Andrew Reynolds

Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure.
The fact that the structure was completely destroyed before seeking the requisite permissions for modification should be reason enough that significant changes and grandiose/unnecessary enlargement be denied. If change is truly warranted, then inputs from former WH occupants and staff who utilized the East Wing spaces should be consulted for suggested improvements vs the whims of a wannabe dictator who has plenty of personally owned properties he can destroy/build/decorate in his usual hideous aesthetic. The People's House belongs to the American public, not a single temporary occupant, and should be treated with stewardship and not as a vanity project.

We have serious objections to this project. First, the scale and look of the "Modernization" is completely incogruous with the People's House for our president to reside in and serve us from during the term of office. Second, the manner in which the demolition of the current East Wing and declaration of plans was carried out without authority or communication with the proper authorities and the pulbic is unacceptable. Third, the funding for the "modernization" is at least suspicious if not considered a bribe, apparently coming from private sources who will expect favors about taxes and policies in return, also unacceptable.

We demand that all construction cease immediately and common consent be achieved. If that is not possible, the funds apparently available should be used to reconstruct a more proper "East Wing Modernization"!

I object to the high-handed, imperious demolition of part of the national property. The President must not be above the law, and his grandiose agenda is not only being illegally pursued, but is also an affront to the citizens of the United States. I feel strongly that the demolished wing must be restored, and that whatever modernization may be needed should be done by proper legal means and in the full light of day.

There is no reason for this upgrade (doubtful it's an upgrade.) We have not seen any renderings or justifications. This is a historic building and should remain under the historical and preservation guard to protect and MAINTAIN.

This project needs to be stopped. Donations should be kept and used to restore the east wing based on historical and preservation input. Then ask for additional public comments.

I strongly urge you not to allow the East Wing modernization project to move forward. The White House, the people's house, is not President Trump's house. He is a steward of it during his administration. While I understand the desire to have a huge event space built so he can hold official dinners and receptions, I question the decision to locate this event space at the White House. There are other federal buildings that could be adaptively reused to serve this function. The scale and style of the proposed addition is overpowering to the original White House and tearing down the original East Wing before telling the American people what he wanted to build there, seems underhanded. Historic buildings have designations for a reason; so individuals can't alter them willy nilly but must follow standards. The National Park Service has developed Preservation Briefs that address the appropriate way to add to, alter and reuse existing historic buildings. The proposed addition doesn't meet these standards. See the attached Preservation Brief

The new addition should be subordinate to the original, not alter historic features and be differentiated from the original. I would argue that non of these standards are being met. I am tired of President Trump thinking that he doesn't have to follow rules that the rest of us have to follow. Being president does not give anyone cart blanche to do anything they want. This is a very dangerous precedent and I urge you not to allow it.

The White House is the American Peoples' house and is not the property of the president who has the temporary privilege to reside there. Any big changes, such as updating or renovating sections of the building need to have approval from Congress and must go through the proper review processes. In the case of the East Wing project, no such approval or review process was observed, and the wing should never have been abruptly demolished the way that it was. This is an historic building and the American people have a right to give input before such major changes are made. While the demolition, as wrong as it was, cannot be undone, we should now have a say in what is built there instead. I am strongly against the proposed plans for a gigantic ballroom that, according to the few plans that were shared with the public, would dwarf the original White House. We do not build monuments to kings here, and the president should not get to build a new Versailles on the Peoples' land. Not to mention the appearance of blatant corruption created by having this project funded through money from private companies. The way this entire project has been handled is unseemly and not in the public interest, and it should not be allowed to continue this way.

To the National Capitol Planning Commission:

As a resident of a nearly century-old home, the former Chair of the City of Albany's Historic Resources Commission, and a professional with two decades of experience in the historic preservation field, I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed construction of a permanent ballroom addition to the White House.

The White House is not merely a residence or an office; it is the preeminent symbol of American continuity. My professional and personal experience leads me to believe this proposal poses a significant threat to the architectural integrity and historic character of this National Historic Landmark.

Points of Concern

• Irreversible Alteration of the Historic Fabric: In preservation, "necessity" is sometimes offered as an excuse to justify interventions that permanently mar historic structures. The unpermitted demolition of the East Wing of the White House is the very definition of a self-created hardship.

• Scale and Massing: I am deeply concerned about the rhythm and scale of the North and South elevations. The White House has evolved, but it has largely maintained its iconic silhouette. A massive addition risks "façadism," where the original structure becomes a mere backdrop for modern expansion.

• The Precedent of Permanence: The beauty of the White House lies in its adherence to the 19th-century residential form. Temporary pavilions have successfully hosted state dinners for decades. Converting a temporary need into a permanent footprint is a fundamental violation of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties, specifically regarding the preservation of the building's historic spatial relationships.

A Perspective from the Field

Living in a 100-year-old home as I do teaches you that you are a steward, not just an owner. You learn to adapt your lifestyle to the house, rather than forcing the house to accommodate every modern whim.

If we allow the most important house in the nation to be expanded for the sake of administrative convenience or event logistics, we send a message to every local Historic Resources Commission in the country that historic integrity is negotiable.

Recommendation

I urge the Commission to reject the proposal. Options remain to continue the use of temporary structures that do not leave a permanent footprint, and to choose alternate venues for large-scale events that utilize other historic D.C. assets.

Ultimately, the White House is federal property belonging to the American people, not personal property of the President, who is a temporary resident or tenant. We must ensure that the White House remains a residence and a monument, not a convention center.

Sincerely,

Colleen M. Ryan

Please DO NOT approve ANY part of the "Modernization" project submitted by this current administration. Not only did they destroy first and submit an agenda only after public outcry, but if any part of this project is approved, they would see it as an open invitation to change the plans, extend the budget, extend the physical building, and overall feel they have been given free rein to do more damage to THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE. What they have already done is beyond sad (and possibly illegal). PLEASE do not give them permission to do more harm to the White House and the surrounding grounds.

It is unfortunate that the President tore down the East Wing BEFORE this NCPC process was initiated. I object to replacing the West Wing with a gaudy, disproportionate, palace-like ballroom. I propose rebuilding the East Wing for it's original use with the same footprint and current updates (electrical, ADA, tecnological). Do not consult the President for design or function purposes. The White House is his temporary residence and he never should have been allowed to destroy the East Wing in the first place.

To the NCPC:

My thanks to the National Trust for Historic Preservation for sending word of the comment period regarding the proposed new eastern wing of the White House. To be brief: If the reports of the American press are accurate, the proposed plans are inappropriate for a presidential residence and workplace in a democratic society. The issue is not simply the gaudy design and scale but also the symbolism, suggesting that the main function of the presidency is to cater one way or another to the American — and foreign — aristocracy who are funding the project. I highly recommend that the plans be rejected and a suitably designed museum in honor of the First Ladies of the United States be constructed on the site.

I oppose the extreme changes to the East Wing of the White House, otherwise known as The People's House. The extant East Wing structure should not have been demolished on the whim of the sitting president. The proposed ballroom and connecting structures would dwarf the rest of the building, require huge ongoing expenditures to maintain, and serve very limited functions that can be managed otherwise. It should not matter if "donations" fund construction - the planned building does not make sense.

Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but bring the building up to code and install functional updates.
Any additions done should reflect and complement the classic architectural design of the current White House, no gaudy cheap looking gold appliques should be used.
Do not include an over size ballroom, any extra space needed should be found in the East Wing floor plan while still staying as close to the original plan as possible.
Replant the Kennedy Rose Garden to its original glory and remove the horrible "motel patio".
The White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations. No one person including a president should be able to change the White House complex without input by the people and congress.

I find the proposed ballroom to be a ridiculous use of taxpayer money. I understand the administration has claimed that this ballroom addition will not be paid by taxpayers but will instead be paid for by donations/sponsors. This is unacceptable and ridiculous and brings the high probability that these "donors" will be expecting a quid pro quo. Since the East Wing was (possibly illegally) demolished without any chance for public comment, I propose reconstructing the East Wing to be historically accurate and include a reasonable event/ballroom space as part of the addition. No where on this project should the name "Trump" be allowed, as this is the peoples' house, not the current occupant. The Rose Garden should also be restored to its previous splendor and get rid of the stupid umbrella tables that make it look like a cheap resort.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment. I was horrified and saddened by the destruction of the East Wing of the Whitehouse. I would like to see it rebuilt in a scale keeping with the original footprint, or at least in scale with the rest of the White House. It should be designed through a competitive process by architects and designers well versed in historical design. All required reviews and proper approvals must be met. If there is a Committee, it should consist of experts in the field and NOT include Trump family members, donors or political appointees. The building should be up to date and up to code. All artifacts from the demolished East Wing must be accounted for. This is the People’s House. It has always been decorated simply and tastefully and not ostentatiously. To whom it may concern,

I am writing to register my shock and horror at the unauthorized demolition of the East Wing and even more horrified at the gaudy, tacky, wholly unnecessary ballroom plans. Not only does it ruin the esthetic of the White House and how it's looked for over 100 years, there is no good reason for it. The East Wing was demolished on a whim of a small petty tyrant and it needs to be put back how it was because the House doesn't belong to him. I understand that like a toddler, he has the need to write his name on the walls and cover them with tacky gew-gaws that the rest of us find ugly, but he is just a temporary resident and he needs to be reminded of that fact. The White House belongs to we, the People of the United States of America. His "proposal" cannot and should not stand.

I am writing in opposition to the proposed ballroom. As proposed, it would dwarf the White House itself. I do not believe we need event space that would so grossly alter the look and feel of the White House. This is supposed to be the people's house, and the current occupant is treating it as his own permanent residence in perpetuity. I also have grave concerns about the taxpayer dollars that would be going to this project (I don't believe all of this is going to be paid for by private donors, and I worry about the favors those donors might be expecting in exchange for this donation). And I have grave concerns about the overall scope and scale of this since it seems to change every time the President speaks of it. I am appalled that the East Wing was torn down and do not believe we need a gigantic ballroom in its place.

Deny current pending WH proposal and design. Request new proposal to return WH East Wing to size, use and exterior and interior design prior to unauthorized demolition. It is assumed new construction will include necessary code updates . No golden nonsense.
Rationale
1. DC already offers significant ballroom venues … Constitution Hall, National Building Museum, among others ..
Use what we have and take care of it
2. The architectural proportions of the proposed design are poorly conceived and ignore wisdom of good design acknowledging its environment and historical context.
3…and while there is a shovel in the area …please restore the Rose Garden… WH should reinforce national standards of eschewing hard scape installation in the urban environment when possible.

To whom it may concern. I am writing to express my disgust for the indiscriminate destruction of the East Wing of the White House and the ridiculous oversized behemoth of a suggested replacement/ballroom in its place. The White House is the peoples house, and it deserves to be treated with reverence and respect. Proportions matter. And a ballroom of that size only serves the egomaniacal interest of the current resident. Historical preservation and architectural consistency and integrity must be upheld. Sincerely, Laurel Hays

I vehemently oppose the spending of $300 million on this project, which was launched without proper authorization, permits, or design review. It is not a modernization project but rather a complete razing and erasure of American history. I want this project canceled, and the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. No one is above the law and to permit this project to go ahead with penalizing those who broke the law would be an affront to all law-abiding Americans.

The East Wing is a part of American history. Destroying it for a modern ballroom is a loss of tradition, heritage, and the cultural legacy of the White House.

A new 90,000-square-foot structure will overwhelm the historic 55,000-square-foot White House, destroying the scale of the original building.

Major changes to national landmarks should not be done unilaterally. This project bypassed necessary public hearings and expert input on historic preservation.

Amidst critical national issues, using resources for a lavish ballroom is out of touch. The focus should be on public needs, not personal vanity projects.

My name is Barbara Segal. I am 76 years young, and an engaged, voting citizen of the United States. The arbitrary, blatantly lawless destruction of the East Wing of the White House is a national disgrace. The occupant of the White House is not the owner of that historic building, but merely a 4 year guest in a building that belongs to all of us. The sheer gall and hubris of the man responsible for its demolition, without so much as a request or application or any semblance of acknowledgment that the structure does not belong to him,is an affront to everything we hold sacred in this country. Not only do I oppose vehemently the construction of a ballroom and a not so secret underground bunker, but I oppose the private funding of this degradation of our history. It is a lawless, criminal flaunting of decorum, protocol and morality. It should be immediately stopped and the parties responsible should be charged with vandalism and imprisoned for the destruction of historical prope! rty.

Good morning

The exterior dimensions and architectural style of the demolished East Wing should be preserved.
Update the wiring etc. and the bunker- and make interior ADA accessible where possible. The new building should NOT dwarf the existing White House.
Guidelines for preserving the historical value are needed, and the White House Historical Society needs to be involved (as has been followed by most of our previous Presidents.)
If a ballroom is really needed, construct it elsewhere in the city.
The White House is the people's house- respect for History, the Constitution and the people's wishes should be paramount!

Respectfully submitted

The White House and Camp David act as seats of power as a sitting President represent the United States of America. America's "home turf." The White House has a rich history and many memories that's treasured by the American people-the People's House. Presidents do not have sole authority to renovate the White House especially demolishing an entire building without submitting plans to the National Capital Planning Commission. How many people were endangered when that building was destroyed? This president should be no different than presidents before him and should be required to follow the same practices as all presidents. The East Wing needs to be rebuilt by reputable builders with guidance from historians. If a ballroom is necessary, it should also be built using a reputable builder (the president has other things that are priorities like reducing the cost of food, gas, energy, etc. He's too busy to overseer renovations.) and architect somewhere else on the grounds. It should be a respectable size not to over shadow The White House. It should be named the White House Ballroom.

The appalling destruction of the 120 year old East Wing of the White House has infuriated many Americans. The White House has always been referred to as “The People’s House.” The reprehensible behavior of the current president is appalling in that he has destroyed history to satisfy his own egocentric desires. I would hope that this project would be condemned and that the current president be ordered to rebuild a similar, historically compliant building, which he must pay for.

The current administration already has demolished the historic East Wing, apparently without the approval of this committee or anyone else. Now the same group plans to replace it with a gigantic, gaudy, gold-plated fiasco of a ballroom that will dwarf the White House and be an embarrassment for decades to come. The White House heretofore has been about taking care of America's business as opposed to hosting the grandest of parties in the tackiest of ballrooms.

Please stop this insanity and do not approve the ballroom as planned. Thank you for the opportunity to voice my thoughts.

I am a lover of history, both throughout the world and especially in the United States, and have a degree in Historic Preservation. I am very annoyed that Mr. Trump would take a wrecking ball to a wing of the White House, given that it is a highly significant historical building. The White House is the people's house, not a private building, and as president, Mr. Trump is a guest and has no right to demolish any part of the White House. I can agree that perhaps the White House MAY need a ballroom, but there are 18 acres of White House property where a ballroom could be built.

I would like the East Wing rebuilt duplicating the original historic fabric of the building.

I believe that the East Wing should be rebuilt to the same scale that it was before. If a ballroom or event space is truly needed it could be built at a basement level or a new structure offset from the actual White House. The historical elements of The People's House should be respected and saved whenever possible.

Our White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800. The White House is the house of the people, and is not owned by whichever president resides in it. The current one has taken it upon himself to ignore all permits and permissions before going forward to destroy a huge chunk of history and leave a gapping hole into what was once a dignified piece of our collective national pride.

The current president must be stopped from doing further damage. He has forgone formal reviews and his so called addition is already out of compliance. The size he proposes exceed standards of both proportion, good taste, and are grossly inappropriate for our formerly modest and stately building. Other countries have their own aesthetics, however, building bigger with gold leaf is not ours. Please, let's keep our White House dignified and not go forward with any further destruction.

It certainly should not be severely altered by a temporary resident. The size and scope of this proposed addition is hideous and should not be allowed to proceed. In fact, it should not be allowed to proceed and further construction should not be allowed to move forward until plans are vetted by Congress, the NCPC and the American people.

Hello, I'm writing in regard to the plans, already underway, to renovate the ballroom of The People's House. In this time of economic uncertainty and with so many people in this nation suffering from job loss, rising food and home prices, it is an insult sprinkled with salt in the wound so many are feeling exposed. This is not how we heal. This is how the privileged float above, untethered to the reality the rest are experiencing. I am vehemently opposed to the idea that donations and decisions without public input should be utilized to renovate a building already superfluous in nature. Invitees to such experiences in this space are servants of the people, not the other way around. Truly, I hope to see the future in which our elected officials understand this and the ballroom is rebuilt to reflect this reality.

I am writing to express my opposition to the East Wing Modernization Project. First of all, the name of this project is a misnomer; it is not a "modernization" when the entire wing has been torn down. Second of all, the numerous procedures and approvals that were bypassed in order to destroy this historic wing is not only illegal, but it is also a complete disgrace to the memory and historic status of the People's House. This building belongs to the citizens of the United States, not the person who currently occupies the White House. Any additional work should involve a non-partisan group that respects the history of the building while also acknowledging that there may be opportunities for making slight modifications in the style and with deference to the architecture of the rest of the building.

I implore you to stop this project until a more respectful and intentional plan with nonpartisan community and stakeholder input is created.

It was destruction of a public monument without prior permission for the purpose of President Trump's ego and wish to create Versailles in the White House. The ballroom is going to be a gaudy gilded attempt at having a place for his billionaire friends can party when they are not at his bloated Florida retreat. All this and more is happening while the middle class is become poor and food, health insurance, children's education, National Parks, and elder care are suffering and our country is falling into a 3rd world category. I am a architect, builder, designer and artist. Whatever His Unscrupulous Majesty envisions for Our White House as an adjacent ballroom addition I'm sure is historically and architecturally irregular and inappropriate. Both in design, details, and scale.

40,000 s.ft. would be wildly delusional and grossly dwarf the current main central structure and actually be a full acre of land! 200 ft x 200 ft! Like a parking lot of space! A soccer field! Or 125 x 300 ft... is a FOOT BALL FIELD!!!! The only appropriate size by scale to the main building is a ballroom slightly shorter and more narrow that the main building's elevation dimensions... like 75 ft wide by 120 ft long by 40 ft high. This is 9,000 sf.

That would fit and be plenty big enough to accommodate a thousand people.
Take the Directors chair away from the delusional Reality TV star. He can't even do the math! 90,000 sf. is

The demolition of the East Wing was done without permission. As far as I can ascertain, permission was needed for that. My comments here are that The East Wing should be restored. The ballroom, if it must be built, should be detached from the main building and in proportion to the existing structures. It's roofline should be below the pediment of The White House itself; as well as it's architecture be in keeping with the Federalist style.
I understand the illegal demolition was paid for by the donors. The donors should also pay for the reconstruction of The East Wing.
Personally I do not need a ballroom at The White House but, as an American, I consider that residence The People's House. The President is a temporary resident. I am sure certain changes are made for each resident for personal lifestyle. What happened with the illegal demolition of The East Wing is not that. It also goes against what the president said in June or so, when he said it would not impose on the existing structure.
I think that ship has sailed.

The East Wing does not need "modernization", and putting an ugly 90,000 square foot ballroom is hardly modernizing anything, let alone the White House. The White House was , and is, an historic home for the Presidents . The contents have always been beautiful pieces of historical significance. Donald Trump has ruined the elegance of these furnishings by adding that cheap, ugly golden crap to many rooms on fireplaces, etc. It is totally ugly and cheapening to the rooms it was added to. The East Wing should never have been destroyed. And never for an ugly gigantic ballroom! I do not want to see the ballroom built and added onto the historic, beautiful White House. He should have been jailed for treason when he sent those awful thugs into the Capital to try to destroy it. I was amazed that no one even tried to arrest him for that treason.

How we got here is horrific. Having the East Wing demolished without any consideration of its historic value and without proper oversight and permissions should be a crime. But we must move forward. So let me suggest the purpose of the faculty’s intended use be reconsidered. Structurally, I would suggest that scale of the building needs to be appropriate for the site and should not compromise the significance of the nation’s executive offices. Architects know this so this decision should be decoupled from any egoistic intent. I believe the space should also have purposes that serve public needs. Our White House is not in the hospitality business, so if a ballroom is needed, scale it to accommodate what is reasonable. This is not the Super Bowl and additional functionality can be flexibly orchestrated with outdoor overflow space. I’d also like to see a museum space included that honors the history of the site. Perhaps a hall space can also accommodate public presentations in a shared use kind of way so the building serves multiple uses. Lastly, I would want the facility to be the epitome of sustainability so incorporate materials and technologies that minimize environmental impacts and reduce energy consumption.

He does not own it, the American people do and we all woke up to pictures of it already being demolished. How can this happen? If he had bulldozed his next door neighbors house, he would probably be in jail, or at least required to pay for rebuilding it. As an American citizen and therefore a part owner of the White House I want it returned to its beautiful former self. This is baffling to me, now that the current President has already demolished the East Wing, without going through the required channels. I pray that our White House can be saved from further, degrading and disgraceful construction. There was no explicit congressional approval for the demolition of the White House East Wing to build a new, larger ballroom. The project began in fall 2025 without the traditional, independent reviews, public comments, or legislative approval typically required for modifications to historic federal buildings. As a taxpayer I'm sickened and just disappointed, beyond belief, with what's happened to date.

I find this type of behavior frightening, disgraceful and illegal. Will there be an investigation and charges brought upon all persons involved in this illegal destruction? Can we prevent the reconstruction, without guidelines and accountability?

This is every American's White House and I pray, going forward, that propriety and order will return to Washington.

I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. Any reconstruction should honor the original intent and visual continuity of this nationally significant site, ensuring that additions or modifications are harmonious rather than expansive or stylistically incongruous.
At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.
The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.
If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed within the existing footprint of the East Wing. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.
Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.
Thank you for your consideration.

Hello,

As a member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation and an American with roots dating back to the 1600s in Virginia, I urge you to not allow the completion of a 90,000 square foot ballroom. This is not Donald Trump's personal residence. The White House has been in existence since John Adams was President and is meant to serve as a temporary home. This is a significant historical building which in essence belongs to all Americans.

It does seem as if there is a need for a new and bigger space, but this particular project seems excessive. In addition, because the residence does not belong to Donald Trump, there should be a historical committee who approves the plans and ensures that the architecture is aligned with the current building. I am assuming that's who you folks are.

Thank you. Vicki L Quarles

As a natural born citizen of these United States, I oppose the current modernization plans for the east wing of our White House, traditionally used as offices for the spouse of the president and their team, and the entire White House used as the primary residence of the president, and their family, for meetings of their advisors, and with dignitaries from other countries, and for visits of the people of these United States during set tour hours.
I oppose the opulent monstrosity planned for the space. I find a huge ballroom for the purpose of expensive to taxpayer, opulent parties unnecessary and wasteful.
I object to the change of the White House facade and believe whoever ordered its destruction, prior to consultation with this committee, be held liable to return it to the original condition at their own expense.
Modernization is unnecessary and wasteful. And, the current space for presidential dinners is quite sufficient.
Thank you for considering my views.

At a minimum, once a final architectural design has been approved that meets historical guidelines, all costs for reconstruction MUST be born by the party responsible for the original damage.

The proposed East Wing project is disrespectful to the People's House. First, the location: its facade is in the same plane as the White House facade and should be set back the same distance as the West Wing is. Second, size: the enormous size of the proposed East Wing dwarfs the White House. As an auxiliary structure to the White House, it should keep the White House as prominent and dominant. Dwarfing the White House diminiahes it as the important building. Third: function: public functions for large numbers of persons can be accomodated in structures apart from the White House complex, and should be. The White House as the center of the nation does not need to host huge events on site. Events at the White House that are related to the function of government should be modest. Huge events are not going to be part of governing, as a reception or dinner for visiting dignitaries is.

Do not approve this disrepectful building project.

As the National Trust has noted, the White House was designed by Irish architect James Hoban, whose winning proposal was selected by President George Washington. Owned by the American people, not by any single president, the building respects Georgian and neoclassical principles. It is a National Historic Landmark, a National Park, and a globally recognized symbol of our nation's ideals.

The proposed massive ballroom for the space that formerly held the East Wing is disproportionate in size to the rest of the White House. It would clash architecturally with that structure and would create an unattractive imbalance with the rest of its architecture. I am also concerned that it would be inaccessible to most Americans and would instead be used exclusively to entertain corporate billionaires, who contributed funds to its construction, as well as wealthy foreigners, including Russia's Putin and oil sheiks in the Middle East.

From all I have heard, the ballroom project is overly expensive, hastily conceived, in poor taste, and ill-considered. The White House is not the private residence of any one person, but the people's residence, held in trust by many national leaders who come and go through the years. Any future changes or improvements to its architecture should be made with that idea in mind.

I am very concerned about the historic integrity of this building. I strongly regret that this wing met the wrecking ball without any consideration from the public due to the impetuous nature of the current occupant.

Please do not allow the gilding of every surface that meets the eye. May there be architectural and esthetic integrity to every aspect of the new building. May it serve the future inhabitants of the building in myriad ways. May it prove accessible for all people. May it make one proud of the building’s beauty, use practicality.

Thank you.

I am against the construction of this project. The President showed no respect or consideration to the American people to tear down the East Wing without any notification. This is the People's House, not Trump's house.

There is no need to build a grandiose entertainment and dining space for the rich. It does not fit the character of the White House and is too big. Nobody asked for this.
The only building that needs to be done is to bring back the East Wing.

If this stupid plan moves forward, I want the next President to order it torn down and replaced with a new East Wing. We need strict laws in place to prevent Presidents from ruining Washington DC landmarks.

The East Wing is part of the people's house: the White House. It does not represent one person or party. It should match the architecture and style of the rest of the building, so that it appears to have been constructed along with the rest of the White House. It should not look like a casino with lots of gold fixtures.

Mr. Trump is a malevolent mountebank, who thinks that a temporary assignment as POTUS gives him 'Imperial' status to put his personal ownership on as many of THE PEOPLE'S rights and property as he can.

Other than hubris, there is no reason for the changes to the White House East Wing; and, the fact that the POTUS has gone begging for private funds to create this monument to his ego doesn't change the fact that it is NOT for the good of the People of the USA.

Private or public, the need for funds to help the CITIZENS of the USA are immense: homeless, mentally ill, the aged, disabled, handicapped, those with limited funds or no job in an economy where affordable housing can't be found.

But, Donald Trump says what the Country needs is for him to have more room to have gala balls? Impeach the bum.

Thank you for reading my comments. I am a citizen of the United States and I am appalled at the wanton and illegal destruction of the East Wing, and shocked and horrified at the ballroom planned to replace it of 90,000 square feet.

We do not need this at all.

I am asking that we stop the plans for the 90,000 square foot ballroom completely and make a new east wing in the same style and roughly the same size as the old one, in the style it used to be. If we need dancing, there are many places in DC where that can be arranged. If we need large conventions, there are again many places in DC where that can be arranged. The East Wing is for the Lady (or mate) of the President to do her work and Jackie Kennedy did a beautiful upgrade to it.

It was smashed flat against the wishes of the US people, and this is technically "our house." It needs to be one unit in design and balance again, not have a monstrously huge, useless appendange attached to one side that will kill the landscaping and only be used once (when it's built). We are not a popular nation now - no one is going to come here to dance or attend a "ball." Even if we use it for big dinners, nobody is coming. We don't need it, we don't want it, so just stop it. Put the original east wing back.

And if I'm saying it, you know another hundred quiet american citizens are also saying it.

Thank you.

February 16th. Presidents Day

Ladies and Gentlemen, I see that ballroom photos & renderings for the East Wing were briefly posted then removed from the NCPC website today: Presidents' Day. I know you are having a hearing on the project soon. I hope you will take the sentiments of citizens into consideration as you deliberate.

What is being proposed is not a modernization project. The size, scale, proportion, height and massing of the new structure will overwhelm the White House This is not a modernization project. Rather, this is the complete destruction of the East Wing, replacing it with a coliseum-sized structure that is labeled a ballroom. What has been lost is lost - along with precious history - especially as it relates to the role of our First Ladies.

Not only am I am saddened and outraged that a wing of THE PEOPLE's HOUSE was abruptly bulldozed this fall. I know it is entirely unsuitable for any part of the new construction to be financed privately - by private individuals, by companies (Amazon, Meta, Apple to name a few) or by cabinet members (such as Howard Lutnick). This is not a private building it is THE PEOPLE"S HOUSE.

I want this project cancelled. I want the East Wing rebuilt and restored to its former design. Thank you.

Do not approve this wasteful project. The east wing was illegally torn down. It's the people's house, not the house of the current occupant of the White House.
The project threatens the historic integrity of the White House and lacks proper legislative oversight. Our hard-earned tax payer dollars should not go toward this project. Nor should it be funded by billionaires who seek to curry favor with this president.

The needless destruction of the East Wing by the current administration goes against all guidelines set forth by the National Historic Landmark and Preservation Commission. I'm not sure if this abomination was ever submitted before the proper review and oversight process was completed . This project should be stopped immediately and replaced with a new design encompassing the input of the American people. The grandiose idea of a ballroom that the American people have wanted for the past 150 years is a delusional and unproven belief by the current administration. I was devastated when it was revealed that Trump had the East Wing totally demolished. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800. Before ANY work/remodeling/or expansion is begun, WE THE PEOPLE should have an opportunity to help shape the decision. I would never agree to what Trump has done to the East Wing. It is my understanding that because of its landmark and National Park status a review of any plans for any work/remodeling, or expansion is also required under federal law. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive congressional approved. Trump chose to circumvent any reviews and totally demolished the East Wing without any review by the American people or approval by NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts. The White House is owned by WE THE PEOPLE, not Donald Trump.

The East Wing should be totally restored to exactly what is was before it was summarily destroyed by Mr. Trump after he told numerous lies about the plans for the ballroom,, saying that the East Wing would not be demolished. As per Mr. Trump's SOP - he lied to the American People AGAIN> Mr. Trump should be sued by the NCPC, the Commission of Fine Arts, and WE THE PEOPLE for the funds to rebuild the East Wing since he decided he could circumvent the proper procedures and reviews.

REBUILD THE EAST WING as it was. Trump pays for all construction as reparation for destroying it without permission.

The current president did not have permission to demolish the East Wing of the White House. Before more history is destroyed without the consent of the People (who own it), I want to have my voice heard in regard to the project before more demolition or construction occurs. While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. The proposed ballroom size would be a tacky monstrosity. This is entirely too large. I'd ask that the project respect the historic integrity of the original White House's design and scale. Please work with the appropriate groups that specialize in historic preservation on behalf of the American people. Thank you for your time and consideration.

The White House is not intended to be a palace. It is the people's house. We have a president who is a temporary resident, not a king. The new East Wing should basically reconstruct the demolished East Wing, of similar size, shape and placement, to maintain overall symmetry and dimensions. And no garish gold filigree.

Certainly DC has suitable spaces available elsewhere in the city should there be a need for a ballroom.

Any President is a temporary occupant of the White House. He has no more right to make structural changes to the historic building than a renter has to make major changes to a rental property. There is a procedure in place to get such changes approved and funded, but the current occupant has assumed Royal rights and has not sought approval from "We, the people" to make changes to "the people's house". Without the necessary reviews, he has created an environmental disaster, including asbestos contamination. He has not submitted any plans for approval, nor has he established the need for a ballroom. If such a facility is needed, it can be build off-site. The East Wing should be reconstructed with modern electric, plumbing and cyber capabilities, anticipating the needs of the future. This should be paid for by either Trump or by the donors who he said would fund his project.
If he is allowed to proceed, he has indicated he has plans for other areas of the White House, for his vain-glorious Arch, and for some of the National monuments. When asked about his plans for the Kennedy center, he said he plans to re-use the steel.When is he going to get around to serving the people who elected him and stop planning projects with his name on them.
Restore the function and appearance of the East Wing. Verify the environment is protected, and block future projects that serve his needs while children starve.

Since we have been forced to take action since the East Wing was demolished without permission, it should be replaced with a modern facility that duplicates the functions that previously were housed in the East Wing. This country does not need an expansive ballroom. This is not a monarch, and the people should not be responsible for a ballroom that they will never be allowed to visit. While the administration asserts that this ballroom will be paid for by donors, the cost of construction is only one part of the costs. The cost of upkeep and maintenance will fall on the US taxpayers for decades to come. Additionally construction should not be paid for by donations to assure that the administration will not trade favors for donations.

It is appalling that the East Wing was torn down for a ballroom that no one asked for, got approval for, or followed protocols for. Regardless of Trump's fabrications, I find that the timing, immediately following the first and highly successful "No Kings" rally, is a temper tantrum along the lines of, "They don't like me? I'll show them!" This blatant disregard for history, including destroying trees that were hundreds of years old, all to feed a petulant and juvenile need on the part of the president to "be somebody" has to be stopped. The perpetrator should be fined, the contractors lose their licenses, and the aforementioned made to reconstruct the building they willfully and illegally demolished. Also, where did all the decorations, artwork, paintings, furniture, etc. go that were in the East Wing?? There must be some accountability here!

I am writing to strongly oppose the proposed "East Wing Modernization" project at the White House.

The White House is known as the people's house. It is a symbol of our country's political system, of our democratic tradition, and of our belief that no one person is more important than any other. Changes to this symbolic, historic structure need to be carefully considered, aesthetically consistent with the existing building, and concerned with creating a more inclusive and egalitarian society.

The proposed ball room is approximately the same size as the historic house and, as seen from the Washington Monument, will be far more prominent than the building that dates from the turn of the 19th century. The scale of this project appears to be designed to negate the humility demanded of the leader of our great country and instead, in the style of France's King Louis XIV, to proclaim the social and economic superiority of the current occupant of the house and of private, corporate wealth.

The proposed ballroom is supposed to be costing the taxpayers nothing and therefore we taxpayers do not have a legitimate interest in protesting this desecration. However, the very corporations that are contributing huge sums for the construction of this ballroom have received huge tax breaks from this administration that quite likely total far more than the value of their contributions. This ballroom is not meant for Americans; it is meant for the wealthiest and most powerful Americans, and likely the wealthy and powerful of other nations. The American taxpayer is clearly not part of this administration's plan to "modernize" the people's house. The optics are terrible, particularly for the oldest and most successful democracy in the world.

The demolition of the East Wing was done without discussion, permission, or careful consideration. This new construction project is clearly being approached with the same disregard for regular Americans. I strongly oppose this project and insist that a different project, to design a modernized East Wing at the scale of the one recently demolished, be organized by a non-partisan commission and open to public scrutiny, and that it must serve the interests of everyday American taxpayers, not just the most wealthy and powerful among us.

Thank you.

Please rejected the proposal to build the gold encrusted "ballroom" that is intended to be no more than a "memorial" to Trump. The current proposal dwarfs the White House and for that reason alone is an unacceptable adverse impact on the White House. The East Wing must be rebuilt to its previous appearance and function. Tearing it down was an absolute travesty. We've lost the history that it represented, which was largely the history of the First Ladies who worked there. I'd say that the proposed design is inconsistent with the White House, but the design changes so often that I don't know specifically

Dear Commission Members,

I write to voice my opposition to the preliminary and final site and building plans for the East Wing Modernization Project as submitted. The White House as it now exists is perhaps the most important and most iconic historical structure in the United States. Any plans for altering it or adding to it in any way should proceed carefully and only after taking into account the site's profound historical significance. I strongly encourage you to seek - and accept - the input on this proposal from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, as the nation's foremost source of expertise on historic structures and sites, as well as from the appropriate Congressional Subcommittees before voting to approve the plans as submitted.

I am writing to urge the National Capital Planning Commission to oppose in the strongest terms possible the East Wing Modernization Project:
1. The Trump Administration must not be allowed to continue to disregard the federally-mandated review and congressional approval process for permanent changes to National Historic Landmarks and National Parks.
2. President Trump is a temporary occupant of one of the most recognizable symbols of our government, and his lack of respect for the historical significance of the home matches his disdain for previous occupants.
3. Funding for the new construction has not been appropriated by Congress, which in normal times would ensure transparency, public accountability and oversight. Private funding from donors seeking political favors or special access runs afoul of federal ethics rules, creates a patronage system and sets a dangerous precedent for future administrations.

Please reduce the physical size and stature of the proposed East Wing Modernization Project. The modernized East Wing should not be larger than the White House as a way to reduce its significance. The White House is a national treasure and is considered the 'People's House" where the elected official who was elected to represent the United States lives temporarily. Any project that minimizes the importance of the White House should be no larger or taller than the White House itself.

Let us apply common sense to this effort. This project is not a monument to any elected official's ego. It is a testament that the elected official has considered the value and contribution to improve the functionality and security of the East Wing's proposed use and determined what is prudent in the highest and long lasting good of the "People's House."

That being said, I'd ask that any additions to the White House be in keeping with the scale, stature, and gravitas of the existing structure. The addition should be to scale - no need for 90,000sf, perhaps something like 20,000sf, much more appropriately sized as an addition to a 50,000sf building. As a citizen, I would hope the addition will be complementary to the existing building as well. The proposed East Wing Modernization Project designs will have a hugely negative effect on the White House and grounds. The size of the building, particularly the height will dwarf the White House and destroy the current balance of the the White House complex. The bulk of the building should be below grade and total height no higher than the West Wing. The East Wing should be recreated exactly as it was prior to its demolition. Upgrades to wiring, technology, utilities would be allowed but the footprint, outside dimensions and facade, and inside dimensions and facades should be identical to those that were destroyed. This should also include the original Rose Garden.

In addition, history notes regarding the importance of the East Wing to the First Ladies should be woven into the reconstruction.

If an area for more space for meetings is needed, then that plan should be voted upon by the citizens of the United States. It could be included on the ballot with the next presidential election. That would give time for options onsite and offsite to be considered.

I am appalled by what that orange excrement has done to "The People's House".
The destruction of the rose garden was horrifying enough, but adding a HUGE monstrous tacky casino style auditorium is truly heartbreaking. We can dig up the resort style patio and replant roses, but please don't allow further desecration of our historical landmark.

The East Wing was destroyed in record time and without public input - the whim of a self-centered individual willing to ignore laws and history.

It should be built back essentially as it most recently was, with consideration of its history and with adjustments as agreed upon by those close to the situation, with necessary expertise, and able to make rational and realistic suggestions for improvements in design. I urge that the wing include as many solar panels as possible, to reduce costs and remind us of where legitimate, positive power comes from.

I am deeply offended by the destruction of the White House. The public has not been advised of the full scope of the project and the project as it has been described is grossly out of proportion to the remainder of the building. I am not convinced that a ballroom is a reasonable addition to the White House. It seems far more reasonable to have a ballroom at a separate location that can be secured SEPARATELY to the White house. If there IS a ballroom addition I feel that it should be FULLY IN KEEPING with the scale and design of the original structure. It should ABSOLUTELY NOT overshadow the current building and I feel that it is 100 ESSENTIAL that the National Capital Planning Commission is FULLY INVOLVED in the plans. NO ABSOLUTELY NO secret designs that are not FULLY DISCLOSED to the NCPC.

- ANY completion of the project should FULLY involve the NCPC
- NO ALTERATIONS that are not approved by the NCPC should be allowed.
- The project should be PROPERLY PLANNED and the architectural plans should be FULLY VETTED by the NCPC before a presentation should be made to CONGRESS FOR APPROVAL and disclosed to the public.

The White House is the PROPERTY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE and should be treated as such. It is not and has NEVER been the property of the administration.

I urge the Commission to carefully review the impact of any new construction on the former East Wing site to the existing White House. I deeply regret that the East Wing was demolished without thorough review and input from the National Capital Planning Commission and the public. This site does not belong to the sitting US president but to the people of the United States. Presidents come and go, but the long legacy and history of the White House must endure. The precedent that this illegal demolition sets could mean that future presidents could demolish or alter buildings at will, and we would lose the integrity of our national historic sites. The Commission must reclaim its rightful authority.

It's bad enough that you tore down the East Wing without waiting for an approval or permits, but the ballroom project is an expensive afront to the aesthetics of the People's House. At the very least, reduce the scale so that it does not dwarf the current building, which is an iconic American structure. And stop with the hideous and tacky gold ornamentation you are adding to every inch of the place. It is not your personal property to deface.

As a long time preservationist- I have seen how it has brought new life to our historic downtowns. I have also witnessed destruction of a building or a portion of one that has a long lasting impact. This is the case of the wonton demolition of the east wing with an inappropriate and out of scale proposed addition.

We cannot reverse the demolition but we can require that the architects revise the design so that is in keeping w the remaining portion of the historic White House.

Please insist on redesign.

Re: the White House East Wing renovations -
The White House was designed to represent a young nation who wanted to govern itself vs. be governed by a monarchical system. The building's simplicity and style reflect that governing theme. The East Wing renovation should mirror the West Wing in size, scale, and architecture to visually balance the main structure and keep adherence with it's original design plan. Honor the historical significance of the overall White House. Updates to mechanical and security systems are, of course, required; however, a bigger size and more marble or gold effects do not equal 'better'. The White House should remain personal and intimate. We don't need a huge ballroom attached to the White House! Larger events requiring multiple hundreds of guests could be held at other facilities in DC. Since it is a government city, I am sure they could find ways to ensure adequate security for attendees.
The U.S. has a very bad habit of tearing down history to make way for the next big thing vs. adjusting so both old and new work in harmony. The White House and its wings should remain as is - visually in balance with the architectural design of the city, and a consistent symbol of our national people's house.

Because it was torn down without proper considerations, it must be rebuilt to the same size and style as it was originally. Yes, updates need to be made but they should be functional i.e. up to curent codes (security, electricity, accessiblilty). The interior style should reflect the style of the White House - no gold - this is the people's house and should reflect that, not the monstrosity that the White House has turned into. The ballroom should be built elsewhere in DC. not on the White House property.

As National Trust President and CEO Carol Quillen has stated: “The American people deserve an opportunity to provide comment and shape the project.”

I object to the Project for two reasons:

1. Since permanent destruction of the existing East Wing was executed before seeking approval or public comment, continuing this project only encourages similar behavior in the future. Current and future Presidents will see this evidence that it is better to proceed before asking permission, effectively neutering any controls by NCPC or Congress.

2. This is a public works project funded by private dollars without the involvement of Congress. As such, it creates the appearance, and quite possibly the reality, of private entities seeking to influence or gain favor with the Administration. If private entities are interested in donating $400M to the country, then choosing how best to allocate those funds to best serve the People is a task for Congress which holds the power of the purse for just this reason.

I urge the NCPC to withhold approval of this Project.

I object to the Trump Administration's current plan to erect a ballroom on the White House grounds on legal, aesthetic and cultural grounds.
First, it is clear by federal statute that no "building or structure" can be built on any federal public grounds in the District of Columbia "without express authority of Congress," and another statute calls for yearly appropriations for the "maintenance, repair, alteration, refurnishing [and] improvement" of the White House. It is clear that the pre-emptive tearing down of the East Wing without prior permission of congress or consultation with any legitimate historic preservation body, plus the current proposed planning and funding of the new structure, is all an attempt to pull an end-run around legal requirements. Additionally, taxpayers will be required to sustain this new structure and we should not be committed to funding any portion of it without approval of elected officials in congress.
Aesthetically, the publicly released images of the proposed ballroom dwarf the White House and create a visual rebuke of our nation's history. It appears designed to be a giant block overwhelming the modest grace of the historic White House – and, symbolically, the modesty and decorum of prior occupants. It is clear this structure is designed to comport with the President's inflated sense of grandiosity, obsession with size and adornment over utility and efficiency. Refusing to allow review or input from the public displays a sense of entitlement, dominance and ownership to which officials elected by the people are not entitled.
Culturally, the destruction of the East Wing and its replacement with an overwhelming, grandiose structure without public input displays the Trump Administration's sense of entitlement, dominance and ownership which is antithetical to the notion of democratically elected officials acting in the people's interests for their term in office.
The private funding of the project is another means of keeping the people in the dark about the true costs of the project; maintaining building codes and standards; the choice of contractors and commitments made – or broken – with them; and any favors granted to the donors as a result of their funding. Transparency, prior approval, public comment and careful consideration before committing of funds is the approved process in a democracy.

To whom it may concern,
I am strongly opposed to any change to the east wing in the first place, and my suggestion would be to replace it just as it was. Because there is no opportunity for public comment I believe this should be marked as illegal, and a full restoration should be made from the ground up.

Because our current leadership has made that virtually impossible, the next best suggestion I have is to involve a strong national historic preservation committee who can put some guard rails on this project so that it does not turn into a gold encrusted palace of meaninglessness.

A lot more consideration should have been made before a single piece of molding was touched in the people's house.

It has been home to our presidents since 1800 and is perhaps the most significant historic site in the United States. The East Wing should never have been demolished and most certainly should not be rebuilt as a self-glorifying gilded palace ballroom. It should be reconstructed and restored as closely as possible to its of-the-people appearance before the demolition to help the people of our nation feel connected to our history and remind visitors to our nation's capital of our commitment to democracy. Restoration of the East Wing, as it was, would demonstrate our respect for our democratic heritage and our rejection of the idea that kings or autocrats should ever rule our country.

The plans that I have seen for the east wing modernization project are totally inappropriate for the historic White House. The addition would dwarf the Whit House and would shift the emphasis of the total building from the seat of executive governance to a ballroom to entertain special interests. The plan is not in keeping with the structures that should support our form of government to a modified plan of executive over-reach and special interest powers.

It is dismaying that the East Wing was destroyed without deliberation, review, or public comment. I hope the proposed Ballroom replacement will not suffer the same rushed, thoughtless process at the site of the people's house. A good first step would be an assessment of need for a ballroom. Before despoiling the White House grounds with an inappropriately scaled monstrosity that has been proposed I would ask why is this necessary? What are the alternatives? Could this be at another location? Could it be built underground? Aren't there already other venues in town that could meet the occasional demand for large crowds it purports to support? What event justifies hundreds of millions for thousands of attendees? The White House serves as an executive residence and as the offices for the executive branch. I see no compelling reason to turn it into an entertainment emporium for lobbyists. Will Congress also have access to the proposed ballroom to confer with their constituents? The Supreme Court to entertain their litigants? If not, why not?

To the National Capital Planning Commission,
I am writing as an American citizen to express deep concern about the demolition already carried out and the proposed construction of a massive new White House ballroom as part of the East Wing Modernization Project.
I was saddened and alarmed to see photos of historic structures connected to the East Wing being torn down. These spaces were part of our national story — the People's House — and closely tied to the legacy of First Ladies and the historic development of the Office of the First Lady. The loss of these buildings is not a minor change. It is the destruction of irreplaceable national heritage.
I am especially alarmed that demolition was completed in a rushed and largely concealed manner behind large temporary curtain walls, despite widespread public concern that the required review and planning processes had not been completed. This approach felt reckless, dismissive of public oversight, and unworthy of the care that should be shown to a national historic landmark.
I am also concerned about the proposed size and scale of the project. A 90,000-square-foot ballroom risks overwhelming the iconic look, proportions, and character of the White House and its grounds. The White House should remain dignified and historically consistent — not redesigned into something resembling a private luxury venue.
Finally, I am concerned about design trends that prioritize extravagance, including excessive use of gold plating or gold leaf. The White House should reflect the values of a democratic republic, not showy personal branding.
Any construction at the White House must be done with extraordinary care, restraint, transparency, and respect for history. I urge the Commission to require full review, meaningful public accountability, and a plan that protects the historic integrity of the White House for future generations.
Respectfully,
Virlinda Severance Foster

To call the destruction of the historic East Wing a "Modernization" is a travesty. To destroy a balanced wing of the White House and replace it with the enormous monstrosity of a ballroom is a perversion. Clearly, the vision is to create the trappings for a King. It is not appropriate for a democracy where a president works for the people.
Not a penny of public funds should be used to restore the East Wing. The privately raised funds should solely be used for this purpose.

To Whom it May Concern,

I am horrified that the East Wing of the White House was destroyed !

It is an incorrigible action that this Administration felt they did not need to follow the correct and necessary channels to make changes to the American peoples's property.

The idea that the White House needs a BALLROOM is simply frivolous.

Sincerely,

Respectfully, I suggest the modernization of the East Wing of the White House is a thoughtful and necessary step forward, and I fully approve of it. The White House is not only a historic landmark but also a living, working institution that must adapt to the evolving needs of modern governance, security, technology, and accessibility.

The East Wing, which houses key offices including those supporting the First Lady and various administrative functions, plays a vital operational role. Modernizing this space ensures that staff can work more efficiently, securely, and comfortably. Upgraded infrastructure—whether technological systems, communications capabilities, or structural improvements—helps the Executive Office function at the highest level.

Importantly, modernization does not mean erasing history. Responsible updates can preserve the architectural integrity and historical significance of the White House while equipping it for contemporary demands. Careful renovation respects tradition while acknowledging that a 21st-century government requires 21st-century tools.

Investing in the East Wing demonstrates a commitment to stewardship—protecting an iconic symbol of American democracy while ensuring it remains functional and resilient for future generations. Progress and preservation can coexist, and this modernization reflects that balance.

Being the fact this building and modernization is being funded by private donations, and NOT put on the American Taxpayers as a burden, I see no reason whatsoever that to delay the construction. The finished project I believe will be, in my humble opinion, a magnificent addition to the White House for centuries to come!

The proposed ballroom project serves no useful purpose except to bolster the President's bloated ego! Even if taxpayer money will not be used in its construction, upkeep and staffing will require taxpayer funds. The project will damage one of our most historic buildings! The President should modify Mar-a-Lago instead. Indeed, as is obvious from the changes he's already made, Trump has horrible taste. What's next--covering the whole White House in gold paint? If this project is allowed to continue, it should be known as the "Trump Dump"!

The White House is an important national historical treasure. Additions, renovations must be undertaken carefully, thoughtfully and not on the whim of whoever its current resident may be. The new "ballroom" wing neither honors the historic architecture nor improves the function of public events. It is out of proportion, gaudy and utterly out of sync with the rest of The People's House. It must not be allowed to go forward as proposed. And if there is any way to fine or gain restitution for the blatant disregard of law exhibited in its sudden destruction, I hope it will be found and invoked at the highest level allowed by law.

I respectfully submit the following comments regarding the East Wing Modernization project currently under review by the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC).
While modernization and infrastructure upgrades are often necessary to ensure safety, accessibility, energy performance, and long-term operational viability, it is critical that any proposed changes carefully balance functional improvements with preservation of historic character and architectural integrity.
The East Wing is part of a nationally significant civic and cultural landscape. Any exterior alterations, material replacements, security enhancements, or landscape modifications should:
1. Preserve Historic Character
Ensure that defining architectural features, sightlines, and public-facing elements remain intact and visually consistent with the original design intent.
2. Minimize Visual and Spatial Impact
Avoid design interventions that alter massing, scale, façade rhythm, or the public experience of the building and surrounding grounds.
3. Ensure Transparency in Scope and Phasing
Provide clear documentation of what elements are being replaced versus restored, including renderings that accurately depict visual impact from key public vantage points. The project should also comply with the legal requirements: project review by NCPC and Commissions of Fine Arts; comply with National Environmental Policy Act; and obtain congressional approval.
4. Maintain Public Access and Experience

To the greatest extent possible, construction phasing should minimize disruption to public access, pedestrian circulation, and adjacent civic spaces.
5. Incorporate Sustainable Design Thoughtfully
Sustainability upgrades should be integrated in ways that complement, rather than compete with, the building's historic and civic context.
Given the prominence of this project within the National Capital Region, it is essential that the Commission apply rigorous design review standards and ensure that modernization efforts enhance long-term stewardship without compromising the building's architectural and symbolic significance.
Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments on this important project, after all, the American people own the White House.

Respectfully submitted,

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes, ensuring new structure is compatible with and does not compromise visual and historic integrity of the White House building and grounds. Include complete catalog of historic and cultural resources impacted by project and demolition. Also include environmental impact, with particular attention to lead and asbestos.
If a ballroom is needed, provide justification and construct it elsewhere in the city.
Make entire project transparent to public, including, but not limited to: justification, cost benefit analysis, complete project budget (including soft costs), funding sources, design, bidding process, selection process, and construction.

There are significant issues with the construction of the proposed 90,000 square-foot ballroom. First, the construction violates the legal requirements for historic preservation, since no entity was consulted before the historic East Wing was demolished. Second, the demolition of the East Wing was an insult to Americans and women in particular, since the East Wing is known for being the workspace of the First Ladies. Third, the project is being funded by private donations, and there is no transparency or accountability for who is donating, and who might be expecting favors in return for donating. And fourth, the scale of this ballroom could disrupt the symmetry of the White House. An entity like the National Park Service needs to take over this project to ensure that whatever is built is proportional and in keeping with historic preservation guidelines. And public money should be used to rebuild the People's house, so there is no suspicion of corruption.

The White House is a cherished national treasure, and changing its historic footprint without thorough public review, transparency, and authorized planning is unacceptable. The East Wing represents a significant part of our nation’s heritage, and its modification should not be handled as a private project. I am concerned by reports that these renovations are occurring without necessary approvals from the National Capital Planning Commission or the Commission of Fine Arts, bypassing essential historic preservation laws.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. If a ballroom larger than what was previously in place is needed, either construct it elsewhere in the city or nearby location (e.g. Maryland or Virginia). A Whitehouse ballroom would only be used on occasion. Rather than build a new ballroom (whether that be at the Whitehouse or nearby), it would be more fiscally responsible to rent space in a nearby location on an as-needed basis. The size should be compatible in scale to the west wing and main house and balanced visually. The style should be conformed to the original style of the main house and should not include any gold filigree.

I write to you in the fervent hope that the historic aspect of the White House will not be compromised further (beyond the unfortunate demolition of the East Wing) by the massive ballroom structure that has been proposed. The Secretary of the Interior's guidelines make clear that any addition to a designated historic structure must be in keeping with, among other things, its size and scale. Any and all of the ballroom designs proposed to this point are way out of proportion with the James Hoban (c.1800) core and the West Wing of 1901 (and its modest expansion of 1909).
The care with which the exterior of the White House was preserved in the late 1940s, even as substantial but necessary changes were made to the interior to shore up its structure, is indicative of the thoughtful consideration and respect shown this historic building throughout its more than 200-year existence. Let's honor that approach.
As a professor emerita of American architecture and visual studies, I have studied the White House (and its inhabitants) for over 50 years. I find the current proposal to be completely inappropriate and without consideration for its former inhabitants – and our nation's heritage.

The White House's modest outlines have always been a symbol of the simplicity and egalitarian principles we long strove to uphold.

I am horrified by the tasteless, gaudy desecrations the current occupant has already visited upon this once widely respected edifice. "Ballrooms" have always been tented creations for festive occasions near this site, such as inaugural celebrations, and not a part of a serious governing mission nor the deliberately unpretentious home of a family, for which the building was designed.

Some of the most egregious destruction unleashed by this tasteless crew of thugs has been visited upon the realms particular to the first ladies of our history. The wanton demolition of the Rose Garden, which featured roses created in honor of many of those first ladies, in favor of an ugly cement patio dotted with patio umbrellas, reminiscent of the occupant's unappetizing motels, was among the first assaults against decency. The unpermitted bulldozing of the East Wing, once the domain of our first ladies, (none of whom, until now, tasteless and moronic enough to steal a predecessor's speech for her own,) is testament to this vast and thoughtless contempt for women. I, therefore, would support the creation of a museum space on the site of the East Wing celebrating the history of our first ladies.

I have never doubted the survival of our democracy until now. I believe the strongest, most stable aspect of our government is the functional existence of checks and balances administered independently by three co-equal branches of government, each of which is constrained by the other two as well as by its own precedents and regulations. It appears to me that the destruction of the existing east wing of the White House without Congressional oversight and approval is another in a long list of this administration's intentional bypassing of the other allegedly co-equal branches. I am grateful that there is an invitation for public comments. I am opposed to the destruction of the historic east wing for the following reasons.
It is expensive and unnecessary. With families struggling to make ends meet, elderly people on fixed incomes suffering from inflation and tariffs, young couples unable to afford housing, who in the world would think: "What we need right now is a four-hundred-million-dollar block-long, exclusive ballroom for billionaires!"???

My protest of the demolition of the East Wing is easy; it's illegal. To quote the National Trust for Historic Preservation:

"This is a legally required federal review process, and public participation is essential. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must be reviewed by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), and receive congressional approval. These safeguards exist to ensure transparency, accountability, and meaningful public input."

The White House, of which the East Wing was a part, is a national monument and belongs to the people, not to the administration who passes through every four or eight years. Additionally, the plans for the renovation show a wildly imbalanced architectural layout, as the White House is a classical structure, and the ratio of its wings are important to the aesthetic and structural integrity.

The White House is one of our country's sacred spaces. In the 35 years that I have called the Washington, D.C. area home, I have witnessed countless school children, families and guests tour the grounds and spaces around the White House in awe and reverence. My husband was honored to work at the White House when we moved to the area decades ago.
My personal experiences do not make me unique in the heartbreak I experienced at the demolition of the East Wing last year. For the People's House to be desecrated in such a cavalier and reckless manner was horrifying. So, too is the gargantuan ballroom that is proposed to be constructed in its place. I am glad to have the opportunity to comment on this construction before an outcome is inevitable.
The scale of the project, in cost, size and design is astonishing in this economic moment when so many Americans are struggling for basic daily needs: health care, housing and affordable food. The size and presentation of the White House have always been modest- a reflection of humility and not of ostentation – and of the values of the country. A new wing should honor this long tradition as well as the moment we are in.
It would be fantastic for the new East Wing to provide mixed uses for the many visitors and taxpayers who come to Washington, D.C. every year – school children, community groups and individuals looking to better understand the history of our country. Design should be welcoming to people of all abilities – and have carefully incorporated accessible design features for persons with disabilities – both physical and sensory.
A ballroom serves so few – and for such a narrow purpose. My hope is that a new wing will be thoughtfully planned with the input of citizens, historians, architects and artists. Design should re-define the purpose and function of the space and consider opportunities for using it for civic engagement and learning – as well as for celebrations. Welcoming to many and modest in its design.
Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Dear NCPC Committee Members:

The proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House is too large.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800.

While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

same time, the East Wing should be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. First, what I see happening is NOT a modernization of the East Wing. That has been totally destroyed. Now, lets think of what that building has and still means to the people of this country. It is totally unacceptable to have it destroyed by one man's warped vision. We do not need a 90,000 square foot ballroom that is taller than the rest of the white house. It is just his plan. Next to be destroyed will be the rest of the building so he can build another Maralogo in Washington.
History is very important, and our country's history is being slowly destroyed, bit by bit.

"East Wing Modernization Project" -- it sounds so innocuous, doesn't it? Sadly, the reality is that phrase is a misnomer for the wanton destruction of a large part of the White House. It absolutely beggers belief that no one stepped in to stop our so-called leader from knocking down a third of the structure in his ridiculous quest to put his mark on as many places as possible in every possible way his feeble mind can dream up.

History will remember him, I'm sure, though I doubt very much it will be in the way he hopes.

But back to the White House. Clearly, what's done is done, and the building can't be returned to how it was. And yet, the ridiculous situation djt has created may prove to be an opportunity to create something new, not in line with his ideas -- which are so grandiose they'd look out of place in Versaille -- but a design aligned with the rest of the building, one that provides a graceful nod to the previous structure, while using modern building methods to create somethiing for the ages. A little less of the gilded fortress djt envisions and a lot more of the elegance and simplicity that existed before.

Whatever happens, I beg you, please, PLEASE, do whatever is within your power to take the reins of this project that has been forced upon our country and don't let djt's plans come to fruition.

Thank you.

This is a travesty. The building is simply a monument to a fascist, dottering man. The project was not planned in any way like it should have been. Part of the White House which had historic and cultural significance is now gone because of the republican administration. This is a shame on our government and our country.

Restore the East Wing to its original footprint and architectural character.

Use the current demolition phase as an opportunity to modernize critical infrastructure — including electrical, plumbing, and life-safety systems — and improve ADA accessibility where feasible before restoration is completed.

Any updates that are necessary but historically sensitive should follow established preservation review processes to ensure consistency with prior modifications and respect for the building's significance.

If additional large-scale event space, such as a ballroom, is required, it should be constructed at a separate location within the city. The White House is a historic public asset — the people's house — and alterations should prioritize preservation over expansion.

I remain shocked and appalled by the unauthorized destruction of the East Wing of the White House, and I am absolutely opposed to the proposed ballroom. Not only is a ballroom completely unnecessary, its funding mechanisms are wasteful of public and or an unmitigated opportunity for grift. This administration has already destroyed the beloved Rose Garden, while adding excessive amounts of Vegas-style gold trim and ostentatious gold tchotchkes all over the place in a manner that is inconsistent with the traditional, understated style of the White House. Stop already.

This is disgraceful. The time for open comment should have been before the bulldozers arrived. We are not a monarchy with a need for a "Cinderella" setting for our kings and queens. My understanding is that there is a process to be followed before instituting any changes in the facilities. This was not followed. This is disgraceful behavior from people who have no sense of history nor do them have common decency or

Hello,
I have a few items for consideration regarding the White House East Wing remodel project that I would like to have considered for the record.

1. A moment of public comment and review seems like it should have been considered prior to demolition of the East Wing.

2. Due to the speed of the demolition, was abasteos testing completed and abatement complete?

3. I have not seen the availability of multiple contractor quotes or mention of the RFP period.

Thank you,

The handling of The East Wing is an abomination and as far as I can tell illegal. The White House is THE PEOPLES HOUSE and should never have been touched without going through proper channels. I implore you to put a hard stop to this undertaking and proceed with approved plans that do everything possible to preserve the history of The East Wing. In its current form it is nothing but a gaudy vanity project.

The people's house is the White House. It is Not the personal property of a tycoon who has demonstrated little if no regard to its history, its existence or its place in the hearts of the American people.
I wholeheartedly support efforts to prevent future damage to the White House, its grounds and the area surrounding it.
I hope its restoration is successful and needed so that once this disaster of an administration is gone the White House will return to the people and be a sign once again of freedom for Americans and repair the damage to our allies.

This project should not exceed the original footprint of the East Wing and the design should blend seamlessly with the rest of the White House structure. Allowance should be made in the new structure for the display and/or preservation of items of historical significance formerly displayed in the demolished East Wing. Thought should be given to the purpose and necessary use of space in the structure that is in keeping with the concept of "the people's" house, as opposed to any one individual's vision of how his or her personal space should be configured, used or constructed. Creating a huge, single purpose space that could be constructed in an offsite location, is not, in my opinion, appropriate on the White House grounds. An occupant of "the people's house" has his or her own personal property to do with according to their personal taste and needs. The People's House is a temporary residence for its chief occupant(s) and as such should not be torn down or materially altered without careful planning and consideration by those entrusted with its preservation. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Because the White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service, first off I wish to comment on the absurdity of somebody coming in to destroy the East Wing, and choosing an architect and builder before informing the NCPC and the American People and getting our approval. Secondly, please rename this project to reflect reality: from what I can see so far this is not a modernization, it is complete destruction followed by a brand new building. The guy proposing this should be penalized heavily if he did not follow the rules before destruction took place. My main points as the plan goes forward:

Please provide the American public with information on why the white house needs to host 600 person events--that sounds more like a campaign rally than the type of event that a president would be hosting. This addition should be proven to be a benefit to the people and to the values of our nation before anything else can go forward. Second, the architect, builder, and everyone else involved should be chosen after a bidding process and every aspect must be completely transparent. Third, this huge project should be transparent in terms of the environmental impact on the White House area itself as well as bigger environmental considerations. Buildings should take secondary place to habitat and even green, outdoor space in a small area like the White House; at the least those should be major considerations and WE should be informed. We the people should also be able to see the actual design before it is approved: I did not find the details for that.
Thank you.

The federal buildings in Washington, D.C. are of great beauty. The Capitol building, the Supreme Court, the White House, the Smithsonian buildings, the monuments, etc., are all built to be dignified and stately, with appropriate scale and design. The proposed White House ballroom is of gargantuan size and would totally overwhelm the White House itself. The original White House building should be the prominent feature, and should not be diminished by an oversized ballroom. A 90,000 square foot ballroom will not be compatible with a 55,000 square foot White House residence. If an event space of that size is proven to be needed, it should be located at a different site that would be suitable for such a large building If it is to remain attached to the White House as currently planned, it needs to be greatly reduced in size. The White House is an historic landmark and we should be respectful of its importance. I also fear that the interior design of the ballroom will be gaudy and flashy, which would be totally inappropriate and incongruent with the White House. The White House is not meant to be a palace, with gold adornments predominant throughout. Let us not forget it is the People's House, and is not the residence of a monarch. We should not allow a ballroom that would be fitting for a palace to be attached to the People's House. I am already sickened that the East Wing was destroyed without warning, and shockingly without the appropriate permits that are a requirement. This was ignored by our president. He tends to do what he wants and ignores laws, traditions, norms, and regulations. The president did not have the right to do what he did, and the destruction is already complete. Let us at least adhere to required regulations when considering the design of a ballroom. Let's not make a mistake by allowing an oversized, gaudy golden ballroom to be placed next to the People's House. Thank you.

The proposed "modernization" of the East Wing is a ballroom to seat 900 guests. Essentially, the proposed "modernization" is out of scale with the White House proper. The symbolism of the relative sizes suggests that entertaining is as important as the remainder of functions performed by the White House -- frankly, entertaining is the least of its functions. The proposal represents just one of the behavioral traits of the current President, who also, with little rationality, intends to build an arch that is not only not needed, its scale minimizes the Lincoln Memorial to one of our, if not the, greatest Presidents. Also, the personal renaming of the Kennedy Center interferes with the original intention of naming the facility to honor a fallen President, a World War Two veteran and who devoted much time in establishing the need for presentation of the arts. The changes being proposed reflect more of the personality of the current President -- an do not reflect the values of the majority of the American people.

I am dismayed that President Trump went ahead without securing appropriate permission and tore down the East Wing so he could build his ballroom. He seems to forget The White House belongs to the people of the United States. His claim that the ballroom would be funded entirely by donors sends up all kinds of red flags. The list should be made public. Not only did he fire the original architect because he disagreed when told, the ballroom (that Trump proposed) was out of scale with the White House. I find this incredibly disturbing. I don't know what more to say, but everything about this is awful.

Trump needs to be held accountable for the damage he has done to the People's House.

The White House is the house of the U.S. citizens and the East Wing was improperly taken down with the Trump-ordered wrecking ball without the U.S. citizens' approval. I am not for a ballroom to be built that will over-shadow the rest of the White House and include our current leader's gold-plated opulence. I feel that the current administration should be held responsible for putting back the once historic East Wing as it had been. And if any changes should need to be made, they should be pre-approved prior to construction being started. Lastly, the private funding that had been promised for the ballroom construction should be accounted for and not go into enriching the President's personal wealth.

The new building plan has also been created without public input or expert planning from the National Parks System, the people of the District of Columbia, the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, or even Congress. The unannounced ambush of the White House's East Wing was an assault on the United States of America. The President did not go through proper channels because he knew he'd be denied, so he did what he's done all his life: forced, without asking...AKA rape. Only this time, the rape was against our (our = We The People of the USA) shared national heritage. The unasked-for East Wing demolition felt visceral, an attack from a man who thought his election win meant he could steal whatever he wanted, in this case the White House itself. But no, it is OURS, not HIS. And HELL, NO, no further damage should be allowed.

Dear sir or madam,
The East Wing should be restored to its original proportion, style, and perspective. Realizing that the demolition that was committed illegally has presented an opportunity to bring the building to current codes and ADA compliance is secondary to reestablishing the purpose of the structure. It has been and should be a feature of - and an asset to - good governance. A public meeting space of grandiose proportions should NOT be allowed on the White House property. As you exercise the responsibilities of this commission, I urge you to provide the guidance that enables the 'peoples house' to remain a functional platform for governance and diplomacy - not a gaudy edifice to commemorate an individual more focused on his agenda than the needs of his electorate. Additional efforts to restore the Rose Garden would be TRULY appreciated if possible.

As an architect specializing in historic preservation, I have a few comments about the East Wing Modernization Project.
1) The proposed addition is too large and dwarfs the significant and historic building it's attached to - the White House.
2) The design is inconsistent with the requirements of the Secretary of Interior Standards - materials, size, design style, location - for an addition to a significant and historic building. I don't think it meets any of the requirements for an addition to a historic building. This proposed addition needs to follow the legal and proper route of a design review and recommendations from the NPS staff with experience in historic preservation architecture and any controlling historic district commission there may be for this particular property - just like every project I work on.
3) Massive personal fines should be applied to the person who gave the order of demolition without going through the proper channels for demolition of a historic structure. There was no Section 106 created, reviewed, or approved. Whenever I've been part of a demolition of a historic building, it's been approximately 6-12 months of back-and-forth, documentation, public hearings, mitigation, archival documentation, and finally approval. Why didn't this project follow the same legally required process? Fines should be required - at least in the amount of what was lost - millions of dollars - personal dollars to rebuild what was there. Not to build some huge addition that isn't appropriate next to the White House. NO PUBLIC DOLLARS should be allowed to be spent on any of this since the public wasn't allowed to have their voice as is the legal requirement in a Section 106 governmental project where Federal dollars are to be spent.

Though it seems that the demolition happened without much forethought or consideration of public sentiment or concerns, that ship has sailed. The modernization of the East Wing of the White House would have been better conducted as an in situ renovation, but the demolition certainly provides an opportunity to do modernization correctly. I fully support the complete reconstruction of the East Wing that matches the appearance of the original externally with interiors that best fulfill the demands of a modern presidency. An auditorium or other such grand room for purposes of receiving or entertaining visitors and hosting small special events would be useful and beneficial, but it should not exceed the footprint or dimensions of the previous East Wing structure. I absolutely disagree with any plans that cater to the over-sized ego of an authoritarian narcissist. NO GRAND BALLROOM.

Additions to historical properties should be compatible in scale to existing structures and subordinate to the original structure. The proposed 90,000 square foot ballroom dwarfs the historic executive residence and commercializes it in a way that is aesthetically inconsistent, even garish- and more importantly, it invites corruption by way of its financing.
This proposed monstrosity ensures the Epstein Administration, the president in particular, can accept bribes in the form of "donations" from private corporate sponsors. It ensures they can enrich themselves now and in the future. The executive residence is an historic RESIDENTIAL space, NOT a commercial one. It belongs to the citizens of the US, not the Trump family. It is not a good optic for them either when most of us are faced with a cost of living that exceeds income growth. We are losing health care benefits or paying substantially more for less; Coffee prices have nearly doubled; Meat is sky high$$$; Home and auto insurance have both increased in the last year; And we have had a 13% increase in our energy bills. How will COAL fix this? Consumers (voters) look at this as a vanity project, not an investment in our future.

Considering the unauthorized destruction of the East Wing brought about the need for this, these are my thoughts. I approve the construction of a ballroom to repair the scar left by the demolition but it should not be so big as to dwarf the size of the Whitehouse. The scale of the project design is completely out of proportion to and dwarfs the historic White House. It destroys the overall symmetry and balance of the White House complex and is completely out of keeping with Federalist architecture design balance.

the ballroom would be by far the largest room in the White House and the grand entrance shown in the current design is completely out of keeping with the balance preserved in the 1800's building. All renovations done to date on the White House have been balanced and in keeping with the original design balance and standards. The designers should be required to scale back the dimension of the project to create the appropriate balance with the rest of the White House.

My comment is regarding the ‘supposed’ modernization of the East Wing of the People’s House….our White House at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. It is the ‘temporary’ home of whoever is the President of the United States….but it is ALWAYS the property of the American people. As such, we the people , demand that no one…no President …can unilaterally decide to destroy part of our house, without the approval of commissions and boards specifically put into place to guard OUR home. Donald Trump decided, on his own, that WE need a massive ballroom on the site of OUR home. WE THE PEOPLE..DO NOT AGREE. In addition to the mere fact that Donald Trump UNILATERALLY decided to destroy the historic section of the East Wing of our White House, he has proposed a monstrous addition that will dwarf the historic residence. It will be out of scope and out of alignment with a house that represents THE PEOPLE . WE do not want the Palace at Versailles . This is not King Louis XIV.!

Therefore, I implore the National Trust for Historic Preservation to do all it can to stop this . Additionally, I implore the NCPC & the Commission of Fine Arts to require under federal law that this massive destruction and new construction be reviewed and forced to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act and that it receive congressional approval PRIOR to any further progression of this project.
Donald Trump is not a king. We do not have a dictatorship . Therefore, any change to a historical landmark OWNED BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE must be subject to review by our representatives to insure compliance with the laws in place for protection of our historic property.

I am under the impression that the East Wing is gone. Already destroyed without consideration of the consequences to our history. The idea that a ballroom larger than the White House is to be built in its place is an insult to ALL of the citizens of the United States. I have traveled to several European countries and in Canada and no where else is there such disregard for the past. Only by looking to the past can we be sure we are anchored in the principles on which our country was founded.

As for the plans for the new ballroom…what Lowe's catalog was the president looking at? I have seldom seen such a gaudy, cheap, low class room in my entire life. I would be ashamed to admit that this was part of my culture. And I am sure the citizens of the United States are going to be paying top dollar for the embarrassment of crap. Will it even be up to code? The history of the perpetrator and chief shows that code violations are common in his buildings.

In conclusion, I feel that the ballroom violates everything it means to be proud of my country. Desecration of the East Wing and violation of the laws and guidelines governing normal decency seems to be the norm in the current White House. I can't wait to move on to a better America where the rules of law and decency are respected.

Question: Is it possible to use the money from the ballroom to rebuild the East Wing?

The proposed East Wing expansion (Ballroom) has several areas that cause me concern. Our White House is the most significant building in our history and the addition is not in keeping with the scale and proportions. It too large and it creates an imbalance with the current building. There are several possible ways that this could be resolved is by reducing the height of the ceilings (38' to even 30' would still give the grand impression but reduce the footprint. The lower floor (first) could be lower in elevation so that then the total height of the building is less. Second the windows on the three sides do not repeat the style of the White House which is less graceful and doesn't enhance the building.

This project should be one large renovation project (West Wing, Lafayette Park, visitor center and the Ball room) so that it can all be cohesive and not have future 'surprises." I don't understand how the architect or project lead can suggest that they may want to put a second story on the West Wing connector to keep the symmetry whereas he said the East Wing had to be torn down because it wasn't structurally sound for additional construction. Sounds like they want to tear that down as well (eventually).

How have they started to dig out the foundations before the plan has been approved? That makes a farce of the approval process.

I do appreciate that the trees will block a lot of the view of the addition but still believe it is too big. Sincerely.

The ballroom addition to the White House should not be allowed. It is larger than the rest of the White House itself and completely changes the character of an iconic national landmark. It makes no difference that it is not funded by taxes--it is funded by individuals who expect (and will have) special access to the President to advance their personal and business agendas. The working class individuals who voted President Trump into office will not be attending balls there, and the whole idea of a massive ballroom seems like a tribute to the advancement of income inequality.

It would be a huge step toward healing what's wrong with America if the potential donors to this project were to invest their money instead into affordable housing, a tiny step toward sheltering the 700,000 unhoused people in the U.S. today.
Thank you for allowing my comments.

he destruction of the East Wing of the White House represents more than a construction decision — it represents a profound disrespect for the American people. The White House is not private property. It belongs to the citizens of the United States. No president, regardless of party, has the moral authority to treat it as a personal possession or reshape it without transparency, legal process, and public accountability.

The East Wing is part of our national heritage. It symbolizes the continuity of American democracy. Any action taken without proper authorization and oversight undermines that principle and erodes public trust.

Congress must act. If taxpayer dollars were used irresponsibly or without proper process, there must be consequences. The American people should not be forced to bear the financial burden of reckless decisions. Those responsible should be held financially accountable.

Public office is a position of stewardship, not ownership. No elected official is above the law, above Congress, or above the people.

The replacement east wing project must comply with all existing federal building codes, historical codes, and federal public bidding and construction rules and regulations. It must be visually in scale appropriate to the historic White House. Suggest the actual ballroom area be below grade since this type of room usually does not have operable windows…this would allow the upper levels to be the reception and support functions. Beneath the ballroom could be emergency shelter, supplies and the commissary….reimagine it could be a positive functional addition. The existing White House must remain the prominent structure.

I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition as part of the East Wing Modernization Project.

The White House is not simply a functional government building—it is a National Historic Landmark, a National Park, and one of the most important historic sites in the United States. Owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service, it has served as the home of our presidents since 1800 and stands as a powerful symbol of our nation's history and democracy. Any permanent alteration to such a significant site demands the utmost care, restraint, and respect for its historic character.

While I understand that expanded event space may be considered necessary, the scale of the proposed ballroom is deeply concerning. At 90,000 square feet, the addition would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence itself. Additions to historic properties should be compatible with, and clearly subordinate to, the original structure. A ballroom of this magnitude risks overwhelming the historic complex rather than complementing it.

Historic preservation principles emphasize that new construction within landmark sites must respect existing scale, massing, and architectural integrity. A structure larger than the Executive Residence does not meet that standard. Once built, such a substantial alteration cannot be undone, and the long-term impact on the historic character of the White House complex could be irreversible.

Before moving forward, I urge the Commission to reconsider the size and scope of this proposal. If additional event space is truly required, it should be designed in a way that is modest, compatible, and deferential to the historic White House—not competitive with it.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide public comment on this important matter. I respectfully ask the Commission to prioritize preservation and ensure that any changes to this nationally significant site honor its history, scale, and symbolic importance.

Sincerely,
Linda Moran

I understand that it is too late to prevent the destruction of the East Wing, but I sincerely hope the construction project will now be required to follow established rules and guidelines. I do not believe the majority of Americans want any US president to disrespect the history of The White House (or any historical building)! Revise or renovate to meet current needs, while respecting both the history and the rules established to protect that history, yes. The current president and his team have ignored both and must be held accountable. The "people's house" is already permanently altered by the demolition of the East Wing, and now must be protected from oversized, ego-driven projects that further disrespect both history and current Americans.

Thank you for allowing Americans a voice, and for working to protect historical places.

He said the advisors told him, "Sir, this is the White House. You're the president of the United States. You can do anything you want."

Please do not allow the degradation of the people's White House to continue. It will already cost a significant amount of money to repair and restore the white house when removing the gaudy decor installed by the current tennant. Basically under the cloak of night, this president dismantled, for his own ego, centuries of established procedure and decorum where building changes are concerned. He seems to feel exempt from established oversight by the proper agencies. We are heartbroken at the loss of the Rose Garden, the bastardization of The Kennedy Center and this desecration of the White House.

I would like to express my concern over the lack of proper process in the destruction of the White House's East Wing. All federal projects are subject to review under Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, and this process was not followed as far as I can tell.

The NHPA was enacted to help preserve America's historic legacy, which was being bulldozed by the interstate system. For an Administration that claims to want to celebrate America's history on our 250th anniversary, they are working hard to destroy it. The White House stands as the most important symbol of so-called American exceptionalism, and to see it in ruins is a testament to the way this country's institutions are being treated in the name of "Patriotism."

I urge you to follow the correct project review process under Section 106 before further harm comes to this nation's symbolic House. Further construction should be following the Secretary of Interior Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties, which considers the scaling and complementary architecture.

I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. Any reconstruction should honor the original intent and visual continuity of this nationally significant site, ensuring that additions or modifications are harmonious rather than expansive or stylistically incongruous.

At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.

The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.

If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed within the existing footprint of the East Wing. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.

Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.

Thank you for your consideration.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed construction of the new East Wing Ballroom on the White House Executive Grounds.

The White House and its surrounding landscape form one of the most historically significant architectural and cultural settings in the United States. Any substantial alteration to this setting must be undertaken with the highest degree of care, deliberation, and respect for preservation principles. In this case, I am concerned that the proposed project does not meet those standards.

First, the scale of the proposed structure is deeply troubling. A ballroom of approximately 90,000 square feet would substantially exceed the scale of the White House itself, which is approximately 55,000 square feet. Such a disparity risks creating a severe visual imbalance, shifting the architectural focal point away from the Executive Mansion and toward the new construction. The White House has historically been the symbolic and visual centerpiece of the Executive Grounds; a structure of this magnitude would inevitably diminish that role.

Second, the design concept appears inconsistent with the historic character and visual integrity of the White House campus. The grounds have long been defined by carefully balanced proportions, open sightlines, and a landscape plan intended to reinforce the prominence of the Executive Mansion. Introducing a structure of this size and prominence would alter those relationships in a way that cannot be easily reversed.

I am also concerned by reports that the existing East Wing was demolished in a manner that appeared hasty and undertaken without sufficient transparency or demonstrated compliance with established historic preservation procedures. Decisions affecting nationally significant historic resources should proceed through clearly documented review processes, allowing for public understanding and meaningful oversight.

While I recognize the need for functional event space and modern facilities, such needs must be balanced against the obligation to preserve the historic, architectural, and symbolic integrity of the White House. Alternatives that are smaller in scale, less visually dominant, or located in less sensitive areas should be seriously considered before proceeding with construction of this magnitude.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Commission to withhold approval of the proposed East Wing Ballroom in its current form and to require a redesign that is more consistent with historic preservation principles, appropriate scale, and the long-standing visual character of the White House and its grounds.

Respectfully submitted,

Steve Pittleman

I strongly urge the Commission to require the restoration of the East Wing to its original architectural design.
The original structure was a vital component of the site's historical integrity. Replacing it with a modern interpretation or leaving it in its current state diminishes the cultural and aesthetic value of this landmark. Restoring the wing to its authentic, pre-demolition design ensures that the architectural legacy of the National Capital is preserved for future generations.
I request that the NCPC prioritize historical accuracy and architectural continuity in its final recommendation.

I am writing to express my strong support for the restoration of the East Wing of the White House and my equally strong reservations regarding the proposal to construct a new ballroom on the grounds.

The East Wing is a historically significant part of the Executive Residence, serving not only as a functional space but also as a symbol of continuity, tradition, and national heritage. Restoring it—rather than replacing or overshadowing it—honors the architectural integrity of the White House and ensures that future generations can appreciate its original character. Preservation of this kind is not merely an aesthetic choice; it is a commitment to safeguarding the cultural and historical identity of one of the most important buildings in the United States.

In contrast, the proposed ballroom raises several concerns. While I understand the desire to modernize and expand event capabilities, constructing a new ballroom risks altering the historic landscape of the White House in ways that may be difficult to reverse. The addition of a large, contemporary structure could disrupt the balance and symbolism of the existing architecture, potentially diminishing the very qualities that make the White House a national treasure. There are also practical considerations—such as cost, security implications, and long-term maintenance—that warrant careful scrutiny before moving forward with such a project.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge decision-makers to prioritize the restoration of the East Wing and to reconsider the ballroom proposal. Preserving the historic fabric of the White House should remain a central guiding principle in any future planning.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter and for your continued stewardship of our nation's most iconic residence.

Sincerely,
Dawn Scheffer

I am writing to respectfully urge you to preserve the historic character, scale, and architectural integrity of the East Wing of the White House.

The White House is not simply a government building; it is a symbol of continuity, restraint, and constitutional balance. Its Georgian and neoclassical design reflects proportion, symmetry, and dignity rather than grandeur for its own sake. Any changes to the East Wing should carefully honor that tradition.

Expanding the East Wing beyond its historically appropriate scale risks altering the visual harmony that has defined the White House for generations. The beauty of the building lies in its measured proportions, understated elegance, and architectural coherence. Growth for functionality is understandable, but it should never come at the expense of historical authenticity.

Preserving the East Wing in a manner consistent with Georgian design principles — balanced façades, appropriate massing, and restrained ornamentation. The addition of the proposed gold filigree should be kept to a bare minimum if any at all. It does not add to the aesthetics, it cheapens it. This ensures that the White House remains a symbol of democratic modesty rather than excess.

Future generations deserve to inherit a White House that reflects its architectural heritage and the values it represents. I respectfully ask that any proposed changes prioritize preservation, historical scholarship, and architectural integrity.

Thank you for your consideration and for your service to our country.

First of all I would like to comment that calling this a "modernization project" is a gross misnomer.
The demolition of a portion of the White House that belongs to the People of the United States is a National loss.
The project was designed and constructed (on-going) without the required oversight by required regulatory and oversight agencies. These include the Congressional Aughorization (Property Clause), the National Capital Planning Act, the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), Hazardous Materials Protocols, Historic Preservation Laws and the Administrative Procedure Act.
At the current 90,000 square foot project size and a projected cost of $400 million the cost per square foot is a staggering $4,444. A web-based search yielded a cost estimate to design and build a 5 star hotel in New York City at between $677 and $871/square foot. This leads me to question exactly what is being built? Is it truly a grand ballroom decked out in gold leaf like the current Oval Office or is there something else going on?
The depictions of the new building show a building that is totally out of scale with the White House and the West Wing. It is ugly and out of keeping with the aesthetics. I deplore and mourn the loss of the East Wing. I would like to see the project halted and a new East Wing rebuilt to match the one that was lost.
Thank you for this opportunity to submit my comments.

We would like to see the East Wing put back the way it was with more modernization done to it. Do you have the planning paperwork done at this time? We would love to see the concepts of how this will be completed. And we don't need a ballroom but a larger meeting room would be great for all the meetings to be held there US Presidential Inaugurations could be held indoors where it is warmer and we could create an outdoor electronics on the walls of building so that people could see what is occurring just like they do in Philadelphia on the buildings at 4th of July or Christmas. We do need to have this restored as soon as possible as the WHITE HOUSE has stood for freedom, liberty and for the people of our great county. I urge decision\u8209 -makers to reject the proposal to build a new White House ballroom. This project does not reflect the priorities or needs of the American people. At a time when families across the country are facing real challenges—housing insecurity, rising costs, strained public services, and aging infrastructure—directing public resources toward an extravagant event space is neither responsible nor justifiable.

The White House is the people's house. It is not a private social venue for any president's friends, donors, or family members. A ballroom offers no meaningful public benefit and risks becoming a space used primarily for exclusive gatherings rather than serving the broader public. Taxpayer dollars should be invested in strengthening communities, improving essential services, and addressing the issues that affect everyday Americans.

Rejecting this project is an opportunity to demonstrate fiscal responsibility, rebuild public trust, and reaffirm that government spending must serve the common good—not private events or political prestige.

The tearing down of the East Wing was so egregious, almost done surreptitiously in the middle of the night. The White House is not trump's personal space; it belongs to all US citizens and is a part of our country's history. Its destruction was morally wrong and undoubtedly illegal. The "plans" for construction of what seems to be his personal ballroom will undoubtedly be gaudy and full of trumpian gold. It will be completely inappropriate as the residence of our country's presidents, if he is not stopped.

While the wrong-headed and cruel destruction of the East Wing cannot be undone, we ask that the rebuilding be done at a scale and a style appropriate to the White House. Take the design out of the hands of trump and put it into the control of qualified architects who put the history of our country's House first and foremost. The National Capital Planning Commission must have complete oversight of the project.

There was plenty of other, unbuilt space on the White House grounds for another of Trump's ego projects. D.C. has plenty of ballrooms. It doesn't need one more. It certainly doesn't need to be a bloated, asymmetrical attachment to the White House, which does not belong to Trump. This asymmetry will have none of the charisma of Han Solo and Chewbacca's ship, the Millenium Falcon, which manages to make a slight amoung of asymmetry look good.

The White House as it stood was symmetrical, and there's a natural beauty to that. Going back to prehistoric times, the human males who passed along their genes were the ones who pursued women who were far more likely to be able to carry a child to full term and survival. These women were and are almost completely distinguished by bilateral facial symmetry.

So at least guys have a natural preference for symmetry. Trump just wants to be in everyone's face about how big a man he is. He didn't wait for proper procedural approval before he started tearing down what others bullt, generations ago.

Trump is a horrible, stupid bully, elected by horrible, stupid bullies, and he needs to be opposed in every way. He's even trying to bring back "battleships," over 80 years after aircraft carriers made big targets like those obsolete. Two Arleigh Burke destroyers (weighing almost 4 times as much as World War 2 destroyers) can carry as many missiles as one of Trump's ego ships which he wants to saddle with his name. That's avoiding putting all our eggs in one basket.

The only East Wing modernization that has any good reason to be carried out is a rebuilding of what Trumpster Fire tore down.

I am opposed to the replacement of the east wing of the White House with a large ballroom. The history and dignity of the east wing is completely at odds with the glitzy, oversized proposed ballroom. The offices that served the First Lady and others who serve, the historical significance of that wing are despoiled by the foolish and foppish ballroom that will overwhelm the entire White House. The proposed funding via quid pro quo is despicable and well beneath what Americans can and should expect from the president. No ballroom is needed. Period.

It is horrifying that this administration took a wrecking ball to part of the White House and the history of that location, especially as it regards the contributions of First Ladies and women's history. People must have known and how did people go along with removing items and ensuring they were well preserved without alerting others or getting an injunction to stop the work crews? The average American was not sitting at home wanting a ballroom, we want healthcare and safety from our government. We want peace and yes the preservation of the arts and culture of this country. This destruction is a symbol of how far the administration is willing to go in plain sight and ignore protocols and laws.

The White House is not simply an event venue — it is one of the most recognized historic buildings in the United States and a symbol of our nation's continuity, restraint, and constitutional governance. Major structural expansions of this scale risk undermining the architectural integrity, historical character, and symbolic meaning of the property.

First, the scale of the proposed addition appears disproportionate to the existing structure and grounds. A ballroom of this size would fundamentally change the spatial balance and visual footprint of the White House complex. Historic landmarks should be preserved with minimal alteration, and any changes should be modest, reversible, and clearly justified by necessity rather than convenience.

Second, I am concerned that this project does not appear — at least from what has been publicly shared — to be following the normal preservation review standards, regulatory processes, and oversight typically required for major changes to historic federal properties. Projects of this magnitude should clearly demonstrate compliance with historic preservation law, environmental review requirements, and transparent public process. The current administration has not, in my view, provided sufficient clarity or reassurance that these standards are being fully respected. Regardless of political affiliation, adherence to established rules and review procedures is essential.

Third, the financial cost — including construction, security adaptation, and long-term maintenance — deserves careful scrutiny. At a time when many national priorities compete for limited resources, a large ceremonial expansion sends the wrong message about stewardship and fiscal discipline.

Fourth, there are already numerous suitable federal and public venues in Washington, D.C. designed to host large-scale events. Using existing facilities preserves the historic character of the White House while still meeting event needs without permanent alteration.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge decision-makers to reject or significantly scale back the proposed ballroom addition and instead pursue alternatives that protect the historic structure, legal process, and symbolism of the White House for future generations.

This is about the Ballroom. First, I am very saddened that the East wing has been demolished. It has long and significant historical meaning, especially in serving as the offices of the First Ladies. I do not believe a single person, President, should be able to solely make a decision to destroy such a large portion of "the People's House". It is one thing to destroy a rose garden (which I also thought was wrong) but to completely destroy a large part of the White House needs to be more than one person's decision. Now about the ballroom. Yes, this may be needed but it should in no way be larger than the White House itself. It needs to compliment and be much smaller than the White House itself. Again, The White House is "the People's House" and this building needs to be front and Center and the main and largest area that people see and look at when they visit Washington DC, not a big, large box on the side of the building. Moderation is beauty, Restore the East Wing to the original state including the rose garden. A corporate purchased ballroom has no business at the White House which should not have any corporate alliances. I strongly oppose the building of the 90,000 square foot ballroom where the East Wing used to be. First, even if donations are used to fund this project, a ballroom of this size is not needed and will require significant funds to maintain. Also, having donations fund this project provides significant opportunities to expect something in return by the donors. Second, the East Wing was a historical structure. It should be rebuilt as closely as possible to the prior version to restore the historic place for our children. Third, the huge ballroom will over shadow the White House and ruin the beautiful symmetry of the historic structure. Please do not allow this project to move forward.

Our hearts are broken over the destruction of the East Wing of the White House (and the rose garden). No one has the right to do what he did to it. The White House belongs to us. It is our history. It should be rebuilt and replaced exactly the way it was before he tore it down. We the people do not need a golden ballroom. (We also do not need a monument built by the current president to honor himself; and no one should be allowed to touch the Kennedy Center, which is a memorial dedicated to our murdered president, beloved by many). The destruction of the East Wing of the White House was a clandestine act of domestic terrorism perpetrated by President Donald Trump. The extent to which NCPC can make effective comments should be fully and robustly realized to make a statement about our historic buildings and the importance of preservation to national identity and culture. The east wing should be rebuilt to its previous design. The reasoning for tearing it down in order to make a large, massively tacky ballroom is ridiculous. There is no real need for Presidential balls, and no need for a massive ballroom on the White House grounds.

White House Ballroom

The White House is “the people’s house”. I have toured it a few times, and its beauty and history are impressive. Rooms are often named after long-deceased Presidents. That is why it is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park.

The idea that a ballroom will be built without approvals based on architectural and historic research is a desecration of our history. I understand that there was no research of the soil taken from that area of the building to permit research on the building’s original construction and the use that was made of the land prior to the White House being built. Who approved that? Is it too late to do that sifting of the soil that was removed?

The idea of a living President having a ballroom built to his questionable standards and to be named after him, is ludicrous. Our country has too much history to be proud of.

Approval should be denied until the proper research is completed and appropriate approvals granted by the National Park Service.

Judging by what he's done to the Oval Office, his gargantuan plan for a 55,000 sq/ft ballroom will be the ultimate monument to gaudy excess forever attached to his name and shown around the world by newscasts whenever news emanates from Washington D.C. By first wrecking the East Wing to force the issue, his crass and plastic notions of style and elegance would inexorably stain the White House in a more permanent way and in an aggrandizing manner unfit for the capital of the United States.

This addition has been poorly planned thus far. The building should never have been demolished before plans were in place and approved. The plans for this are simply too large. It would dwarf the rest of the White House residence, making it look small and insignificant. We cannot trust this administration to have the preservation of history in mind when it tackles projects, as evidenced by the remodeling of a bathroom. It went from historic to modern monstrosity. Still grieving over the demolition of the White House East Wing without proper process or oversight, I am writing to urge the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the National Capitol Planning Commission to do all in their power to prevent the construction of a massive vanity project/oligarch bunker and to scrutinize not only use of public funds but contributions by Epstein class individuals and groups seeking to curry favor and buy power. Any addition to the White House, including modernizations should be in keeping with the original period design and the scale of what is left of the existing building. The White House is not a dictator's palace but the people's house, a symbol of our fragile democracy.

I remember first visiting the White House as a child during the Kennedy administration, thrilled to see historic rooms and the tasteful redecorations influenced by First Lady Jackie Kennedy. Our Senator had given my family special passes, so we toured with a small group, not rushed or crowded. There was so much to be proud of then. It was a dignified and welcoming building, where beauty and power walked hand in hand. I want today's children to have the same feeling--not awe at some kingly grandeur of empire, but pride in the beauty of a prosperous republic. Please do all you can to preserve the dignity, history, and purpose of the people's White House.

If possible, I would urge you to consider how to incorporate the memory of the East Wing's history, the first Ladies who had offices there, and our nation's historic dedication to freedom for all. I am worried that the current white nationalist branding is being imposed on the White House making its name an unfortunate double entendre. Please do all you can to reflect ALL of the people in choice of designers and those who carry out the design. Thank you for attending to these comments!

There was no call from the Public for a ballroom. Therefore, the initial talking points were built on a lie. From what I could see, the East Wing began to be demolished in a fit of pique, resulting from a large demonstration against the current resident of the White House, No Kings Day.
We expect our presidents to have the best interests of our people in mind when they make changes in the White House. The additions this resident has made have in no way opened more spaces for the people, invited collaboration, or been necessary. They have instead turned gracious spaces into gaudy trophies of ownership. I was under the impression that the White House, along with the House of Representatives, is considered the People's House, especially the East Wing.
The people did not ask for this. And the people will not be invited into it. It is a vanity project, for a man who does not believe in our Constitution. Please refuse any permits for this project, and restore the East Wing to its former beauty.
Thank you for the chance to comment.

This project is way too big. It should not be equal in size to the White House. It is an affront to the nation. It takes away from the majesty of our heritage building. The project needs to be scaled down significantly and in keeping with the architectural style of the White House.

Build it back to basically what it was before, with updates for technology and other modernization as needed, without tacky gold embellishments, and definitely with an office for future First Ladies or Gentlemen, who will actually do something worthwhile. Send the bill to the current occupants of the residence, who never should have torn it down without proper consultation in the first place. And while you're at it, unpave the Rose Garden and restore it to its former appearance and proper use. And please never allow this travesty to happen again.

As a concerned US Citizen I am deeply concerned about the spending of this administration on building a "ball room" in place of the historic east wing. I feel this is not necessary and should not be built. It may be too late to preserve the east wing of the white house but there are so many other historical sites and parks in the USA which money would be better spent on.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.
If a larger ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city.
Must not extend the most recent footprint.
Any additions done should reflect and complement the architectural design of the current White House.
The White House should be restored to its original look along with the once beautiful Rose Garden.

Do not allow special interest funds to influence or pay for the rebuilding.
The White House is the people’s house.

Hi.
The White House is supposed to be "the People's house". I do not consent to have the East Wing turned into a gaudy gold ballroom. We are not in the Great Gatsby era.
The structure should not be built bigger than the main building. My own HOA has that same rule. It's common sense for any architecture committee.
Also, isn't that Wing supposed to be where the 1st Lady stays? Even though this current President doesn't have a loving spouse who wants to live with him, future ones will. And there will be future presidents. That being said, when you are in a house temporarily, you should make things neutral since not everyone has the same taste. Please do not decorate with all gold like he's been doing. It's awful.

Lastly, if there's money leftover (because you rightly chose to scale down the renovations to an appropriate level), you can use it FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE. I know, crazy concept! The President doing something "for" the people instead of "to" the people.
Thank you

Calling the demolishing of the East Wing "Modernization" is absurd. This unnecessary vanity project by the current occupant of the White House, the PEOPLES house, is truly an affront to the American people. The gauche and gaudy ballroom plans are offensive to the dignity of the White House. Since the first president with an iota of taste will demolish such a monstrosity any way, it is a ridiculous waste of even more taxpayer funds on it (or bribes by private sector businessmen helping to line the pockets of the Crook-in-Chief). The East Wing should be restored as well as the lovely rose garden.

A massive, modern addition runs the solemn aesthetic of the original building. The amount of historic architecture and salvageable materials already lost thanks to the slapdash wreck job is a tragedy. I am vehemently opposed to turning this living landmark into a gaudy Vegas knockoff which attempts to cheaply imitate the royal past of Europe. That is not American. That is not class. Adapt the interior if you must, but put it back together how it was on the outside. And for Gods sake reinstate the rose garden.

I find it appalling that the East wing of the White House — The PEOPLE'S HOUSE — was destroyed without any chance of public comment. To build a BALLROOM!? How is this beneficial to the People of the United States? No one asked for this. And this coming at the same time as the DOGE chainsawing so-called "Waste, Fraud and Abuse" throughout the federal government.

This project reeks of Waste, Fraud and Abuse and should be stopped until hearings can be held regarding how part of the White House was destroyed without going through the proper procedures.

The final design needs to fit with the design, scale, and overall appearance of the White House. In my opinion, the following are reasonable constraints to achieve the goals.
1. The New East Wing should follow the general footprint of the now demolished East Wing, not to exceed original exterior area by more than 10%.
2. The East Wing building should not exceed the height of the original building.
3. The East Wing entrance facade should retain the general character of the original to maintain harmony with the overall esthetics of buildings on the grounds.
4. Any office, utility, or other non-public functional spaces displaced by the new interior design should remain on the property by placing them underground. No additional detached or semidetached buildings should be allowed on the property.

Dear NCPC,

I would like to echo the expert opinion of the National Trust:

"While the National Trust acknowledges the utility of a larger meeting space at the White House, we are deeply concerned that the massing and height of the proposed new construction will overwhelm the White House itself—it is 55,000 square feet—and may also permanently disrupt the carefully balanced classical design of the White House with its two smaller, and lower, East and West Wings. The federally recognized Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation offer clear guidance for construction projects affecting historic properties. The Standards provide that new additions should not destroy the historic fabric of the property and that the new work should be compatible with existing massing, size, scale, and architectural features."

The proposed expansion is in no way, shape, or form, in line with historic preservation standards, and to move forward with anything similar to the proposed plans would be one of the most unfortunate and inappropriate things to happen to a historical building of this significance. It would set a precedent that demonstrates a lack of respect for America's history and the field of historic preservation as a whole.

Please do not approve these plans as proposed, and require that any addition maintain the historical character of the White House as we have come to know it today...or at least before such a big chunk was recently demo'd.

Sincerely,
Haley Mahoney

I do not know if the East Wing of the White House needed modernization or not. I have never been there. However, the manner in which this project was undertaken was completely wrong. There should have been a proposal that was presented to the public and discussed. After all the White House belongs to the American People. We should have been informed of the specific need for the project, presented with design elements to consider, and approved by the appropriate agencies. None of this happened. Instead it was just bulldozed down..

Now, as to the ballroom that is intended to be built, I have just one comment. It is ridiculous.

Commissioners,

Demolition of the previously existing East Wing part of the White House, a historically significant structure, without local, state, or federal oversight and project review is to be condemned and must be punished - it is especially sad and disturbing that our current Federal government disregards the basic principles of historic preservation, and rejecting professional advice and guidance regarding stewardship of one of the most famous historic buildings in the US.
This said, I understand that a new structure is to be proposed on the same (enlarged) footprint, attached to the White House.
I have reviewed the proposed plans for a new East Wing "addition" and offer the following comments:

* Size and massing are completely out of scale - overwhelming the historic White House
* Architectural design (exterior) - pseudo neo-classical style is inappropriate
* "Ballroom" - strangely oriented towards street and not towards garden

My recommendations are to scale down the addition, moving the offices and service areas underground, eliminate the ridiculous exterior stairs, and re-orient the ballroom to face the garden, allowing guests to step out.
The facade design should be simple and contemporary, and not to compete with the White House style.

The current resident of the White House needs to be reminded that this is the American people's house and not his.

Thank you for taking my comments!

I strongly oppose the East Wing Modernization Project due to its massive, incompatible scale. Adding a 90,000-square-foot ballroom—nearly double the size of the Executive Residence—is an architectural overreach that permanently disfigures a global symbol of democracy. This project prioritizes 'event space' over the historic integrity and visual balance of the White House. I urge the NCPC to reject any plan that does not significantly reduce the footprint and height of the proposed addition.

Furthermore, the East Wing project has been characterized by a disturbing lack of transparency. Beginning demolition before public comment or independent historic review sets a dangerous precedent for federal landmarks. This project is being rushed through without adequate study of its impact on the National Mall's cultural landscape. The Commission must halt further progress until a full, transparent Environmental Impact Statement is completed."

The proposed East Wing expansion represents an irreversible loss of our nation's heritage. According to preservation experts, this 'modernization' will severely compromise the original design intent of the White House grounds. Converting a historic landmark into a massive modern banquet hall ignores the building's primary role as a historic residence and office. I request the NCPC demand a 'No Action' alternative to preserve the East Wing's historic character for future generations.

This project is a travesty in all directions. You have destroyed a historic structure without preserving its history or involving historians or the many stakeholders in the People's House.

Now that your destruction is complete, you want to bury the remaining White House in the shadow of an overblown, over-sized, and completely unnecessary vanity project that undermines the dignity of a White House that was intentionally designed to be modest, in keeping with democratic norms, and nothing like the gilded, wanna-be Sun King aspirations of the current president.

End construction of this disastrous "modernization" project. Restore the gardens and rebuild an East Wing that is harmoniously in keeping with the original designs and visions of the People's House.

Having already obliterated the Rose Garden, there appears to be no going back. While public input on that particular historical preservation issue was seemingly never even considered, we can at least make sure that this new expansion is constructed in line with historic preservation best practices. Notably, for the outside, it should be in fitting with the scale and general aesthetic of the rest of the White House: the same patterns, materials, facade rhythm, etc. I don't know if this input applies to the inside of the building as well, but I would hope that the decor and aesthetic is more conservative rather than ostentatious and gaudy. Not everything should be gold-plated - that just looks bad. Gold should be used to accent rather than being the focus. Thank you for your attention on this matter!

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this matter. The total destruction of the East Wing of The White House was a shocking reality after we were told by President Trump it would not be destroyed. The space had functioned as the office of the presiding First Lady for decades. The history of those halls, the amazing women and their work on behalf of the American people, has been physically erased. The beauty of the classic architectural details of the space were elegant and stately. A perfect representation of our country in this most treasured of buildings. The proper oversight should have been given to the project to protect the integrity of The White House which is The People's House.

In the first Trump administration, we witnessed the changes of the Rose Garden. Were the proper overseeing bodies involved in these changes? To remove the trees installed by Jackie Kennedy was heartbreaking to many. Thankfully, they were planted elsewhere on the grounds, but the loss of a beloved First Lady's fingerprint on the White House is a sad commentary on the Trump administrations decisions.

This current term of the Trump administration has seen the Rose Garden turned into a patio of tables with umbrellas. It looks like a country club poolside area. Very unattractive for such a stately building. Changes and updates are necessary to any historic structure. The oversight of departments and organizations with historic knowledge and structural background are an integral part of any changes.

Please stop any further work or construction on the East Wing Project until review and recommendations can be made by reputable experts of a historical nature. These should be separate entities from the current administration. A bigger ballroom is not always a better ballroom. The history of The People's House and the continuity of architectural integrity needs to be protected.

To some, size over substance matters. This appears to be the sentiment of the current administration. I believe substance matters. Gold details everywhere is not who we are as a people. The White House is not a palace. It is the People's House.

Sincerely,
Jeanne Anderson-Klanchar

Reduce the size of the proposed East Wing ballroom.

Plan a more modest structure that compliments the remaining portions of the White House. The administration’s proposed building is too large. This area should be multifunctional:
Include areas/hallways for changing exhibits of artwork.
Include a Visitors Center to educate visitors about the history of the building.
The larger space should be able to be sectioned into smaller spaces to allow meetings to be held comfortably and concurrently.
All areas to be ADA compliant.
All areas to be as secure as possible.
Decor in this space to be modest and tasteful reflecting the history of the building. No cheap, dime store, spray can “gold” glue on decorations as currently on display in the Oval Office.

Since 1902, the White House has been modified to suit the needs, tastes and evolving demands of the presidency. There have been significant structural changes such as creating a West Wing, gutting and rebuilding the interior, adding a swimming pool, redesigning the Rose Gardens, tennis and basketball courts etc. With President Trump wanting to construct a large privately funded ballroom which would replace the East Wing is fundamental in hosting events for future administrators and I am in full support of this project.

The proposed White House ballroom needs serious rethinking. At most it should be halted entirely. At least it should be modified radically to shrink the footprint and reduce the height.
I have always been happy to show friends visiting from Europe the White House because its modest size and relative simplicity epitomize the republican (small R) ideals on which the country was founded. It contrasts strikingly with the princely palaces of Europe. Now to propose a regal ballroom goes against those ideals in order to assuage the fragile ego of one would-be prince.
A great power that wears its power modestly and demonstrates that modesty architecturally is one to be admired, not feared; one with whom to ally. The regal ballroom goes against American traditions and ideals. It should be halted before more damage is done.

The Trump administration lied about their intentions, and they should not be the ones to rebuild it.

We don't need a huge ballroom, it is out of scale for the complex, and it will likely be built with Russian listening devices.

This project should remain a large hole in the ground until this fascist is out of office. Then a reasonable plan should be developed to restore the East wind so it is compatible with the historic White House.

Funds raised for the project should be confiscated, and Trump should have to pay out of his own pocket for this restoration, and for removing all the gilded crap he's applied all over the structure.

Plans should also be made to restore the Rose Garden.

The White House and/or Federal Historical sites should never be destroyed from its design just to suit the whims of the current resident. Small changes - swimming pools, basketball courts, gardens (except the Rose Garden) - changes that do not alter the structure of the building. I'm not happy with that patio and flag poles either!

This ballroom is unwanted, unnecessary and we will only have to tear it down. It is ugly, hideous and an eyesore - not to mention an unnecessary addition for something that might only be utilized 4 or 5 times a year!

The reckless nature with which the People's House (the White House) has been transformed in the last 13-and-change months (as of the day I write this on Feb. 16, 2026) has paid no attention to legal requirements or to any care to match the existing style and scale of the existing building. The damage done must be reversed as soon as possible to the previously existing size, scale, and footprint.

No ballroom is necessary here - there are rooms which have previously been used for state functions in the existing building that have proved to be adequate for at least the previous 225 years. This entire project appears to be a cover for corporate and individually megawealthy donors to provide contributions to President Trump in implied exchange for future favors or consideration.

The contractors who engaged in the demolition before any sort of plan was in place and reviewed should be forced to reconstruct the East Wing in its previous condition, at their own expense, and then subsequently barred from further federal contracts.

I strongly oppose the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House.

The White House is one of the most important historic buildings in the United States. It is not simply an event venue—it is a National Historic Landmark that embodies over two centuries of American history, leadership, and identity. Any permanent alteration must honor and protect that legacy.

At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence itself. An addition of this magnitude would fundamentally alter the scale, balance, and architectural hierarchy of the property. Additions to historic landmarks must be subordinate to the original structure, not larger than it. This proposal risks overwhelming the very building it is meant to support.

As a professional designer, I understand the importance of accommodating modern functional needs. However, good design solves problems without compromising what makes a place significant. This proposal fails that basic test. Once built, the damage to the historic integrity of the White House cannot be undone.

The White House has endured for more than 200 years because each generation has exercised restraint and stewardship. That same responsibility applies now. I urge you to reject any addition that compromises the scale, dignity, and architectural integrity of this irreplaceable national treasure.

for one of the most iconic buildings related to our history and national heritage, the project must go through the standard review process for such projects. This includes and must-be professional objective and inndependent evaluation of the proposed ballrom structure including its direct and indirect effects on the adjacent White House and grounds.

I believe the proposed new ballroom is disproportionately large and likely to unbalance the look of the White House as a whole. I'm also concerned that the style and decoration will not match the existing structure or be compatible with its image.

I would prefer to see the East Wing rebuilt with similar dimensions and architectural style to what it had before. Updated infrastructure and accessibility could be achieved while maintaining a historically compatible style.

If a new ballroom is truly needed, it could be built somewhere else nearby, preferably in a dignified architectural and decorative style.

Future updates to the White House should be planned and approved before anything is destroyed. They should be done with sensitivity to the history of the building, and no one person should dictate a preferred decorative style.

The proposed changes should not be allowed to go through. The White House belongs to the people of the US and changes were made without the acceptance of the people. These changes are a mockery. They are vulgar. They do not fit the design of the White House. The East Wing should be restored to what it was previously.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style to the prior dimensions that existed before demolition, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.

This building should never have been demolished in the first place. It's the people's house. But now that he has lawlessly done so, something must be done to restore the dignity and honor of the White House. That is not a ballroom, nor is a building that dwarfs the original White House footprint or structure.

There should be no part of the East Wing larger than the original footprint, including the ballroom. All design and style should be matched to the existing structure. I'd further argue that, as the portion of the white house that opens to the public and has, since Eleanor Roosevelt, served as a home to first women, the building in some way honors the history of women in the US and, more importantly, the US government.

Washington, DC is my birthplace and I spent all of my years prior to adulthood as a Washingtonian. As such, I am appalled by the wanton destruction of the East Wing and the history it held. But that's the past. I hope my words can contribute to the future. Building an enormous (ornate) ballroom that is larger than the White House and the West Wing combined is an abomination. Whatever is built to include the offices of the First Lady and her staff and to accommodate all the functions of the former East Wing while making a ballroom to satisfy the current president's desire should be considerably smaller than current plans describe. Moderation and understatement should rule. Make us proud of our White House, not embarrassed by ostentation.

The east wing should be restored to the same size and architectural design as the one torn down. It did have a function before it was destroyed and there is absolutely no need for a giant, garish ballroom in the people's house. In addition, the size proposed does not make sense for the lines of this historical building. There are other venues to use for larger events. This should have never been torn down without permission.

1. Do we need or want a ballroom? and who and how does this decision get made?
2. Whatever replaces the torn down East Wing - it should NEVER be larger, higher, wider, flashier etc than the White House itself. It must be made to fit the site proportionately, as well as stylistically!

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

Greetings!
My first request is to stop construction until it is established that the current administration has followed all laws and norms that would enable them to destroy the people’s property. I am the owner of the property known as the Whitehouse, as are you and all Americans. No one asked our permission.

The President’s actions to destroy the East Wing are even more egregious and illegal than if your neighbor destroyed your home without permission.

Secondly, the American people have not been informed of the whereabouts and conditions of the precious historical objects, including art, sculpture, historic furniture, rugs, wall hangings, and documents, etc, that were removed from the East Wing. These objects are priceless and arethe property of the American people. If they have been damaged, Donald J Trump should be held responsible for costs, as well as any legal consequences.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully submitted.

The felonious president tore down the East Wing of the White House in a fit of pique. He did not have the authority or permission to do so. Don't reward him now with his tacky, oversized ballroom; it will only serve as his monument long after he's left office, hopefully in disgrace within the year. Please restore the East Wing to its previous state, with minimal changes (except perhaps improvements to its energy efficiency). Thank you for your consideration.

The willful destruction to appease ego is horrifying and it tells the world what kind of country the United States is right now in a nutshell. This project was started with lies and continues with lies and we the people are left holding the bill both emotionally and financially which is par for the course with this administration. As a citizen, we are each a small owner of the history that is being destroyed and as one of those owners, I request that all attempts be made to restore the portion of the White House that has been destroyed. As an American citizen in her mid 70s, I was appalled when the east wing was torn down without the concent of the American public. I realize that most homes do need to be remodeled over time. But this is not a remodel. It is the total destruction of the home of our Presidents. A symbol of our democracy and the country we live in. Though I am not a politician, I believe that an appropriate size dining area to entertain 100 people is just fine. The new standard of this administration to make everything opulent and over sized and guilded in gold does not represent the hard working people in this country. We have no funds for the everyday needs of our citizens so I see no reason for a ballroom for the President to entertain his billionaire friends and donors. It is a pointless waste of money, be it our tax dollars or donations. This oversized ballroom is your neighbor putting up a mega mansion in a neighborhood of mid size homes. An attempt to show everyone around them that they have more money and care nothing about the neighborhood itself. Just the ability to try and outshine and shout “LOOK AT WHAT I CAN DO). Please let us continue on the path that makes sense. A home that a President occupies for 8 years. Where he and his family life in comfort. It is not meant to be a vacation home for the rich and famous. A place that shouts “LOOK WHAT I DID” while the country around you, that you are suppose to be fighting for are suffering with no insurance, no immigration policies that make sense, cutting aid and education benefits for those who could benefit the most. That is where most people would like the focus of our country to be. Not on a dining space that we will never sit at.

I am appalled that the East Wing was torn down without the consent and input of the American people. I am also horrified by the reason for destroying that part of the building: to build a gilded palatial ballroom. The White House is supposed to be the people's house, not a vanity project or ostentatious display of wealth and privilege. The awe that the White House inspires, and should inspire, is not based on shows of wealth. It is based on the fundamental beauty of the notion of a government of the people, by the people and for the people. As such, my comment on the ballroom is: no. Absolutely not. The historic space that is the east wing should be used for the betterment of the people, not the partying of the rich and privileged. Now that the historic building that was the East Wing is gone, perhaps instead some space for modest offices and a set of rooms the public could use to learn American history during White House tours. And a vegetable garden. With solar panels so the White House is energy self sufficient. Thank you.

It is farcical to term the destruction of the historic East Wing, under cover of darkness, a ‘‘modernization’’. This is the symbolic home of the American people, not the personal possession of anyone currently occupying it. Seeing its destruction, the historic moldings in ruins and carted away like so much trash was traumatic, shocking, outrageous. Where were the architects who should have advised and guided? Where was the voice of the people who have a say in our national collective treasures? Why is our White House, including historic gardens, being treated like personal property of one man? Where are the plans for the ‘‘modernized’’ East Wing? This is my most strenuous opposition to the devastation of a national treasure.

The proposed plans are too large, dwarfing the actual White House. The planned second story hallway takes windows and light from the White House. It can still all be done, but in a smaller, more architecturally thoughtful way.

And while it’s done now, the history of the East Wing should have been preserved. You can deconstruct a building and still have many parts of it available for re-use or preservation (including inside the new structure - take a look at the preservation work that was just done with Save The Tiles after the Altadena fires). There are many museums and I’m sure many schools that would have loved a brick from the East Wing.

The NCPC should recommend denial of any design submittals by the Trump Administration due to his illegal and unethical demolition of the historic East Wing. Approval of any design will send a message that Presidents can break the law and then ask for forgiveness by submitting a consolation prize/design. Any new construction project should be under the purview of the next President's Administration assuming s/he is ethical and follows the law regarding changes to the White House. This entire process by Trump has been outrageous and should not be rewarded with approval of any new construction.

No President should have the power to make major changes to the "Peoples House" without a vote from the people; and certainly not to the extent that we have been witnessing. I don't care about women's high heels - bring back the grass and Jackie's Rose Garden. I don't want the White House to be a gilded palace. And I certainly don't want this absurd ballroom.. If it is built it should be torn down immediately after we democratically elect a real president. This so-called President can have his "balls" and parties at his house and not ours.

The White House belongs to the American people, not a single man with an unnecessary vanity project. No other president is claiming there is a need for a huge ballroom.

The east wing should be rebuilt to house whatever is the actual greatest space need—offices, security needs—whatever is an actual need for carrying out the people’s business.

And it should be rebuilt with an architectural style, interior design, and size consistent with the style of the White House and West wing.

Legislation is necessary to prevent a single person from demolishing federal buildings, and erecting monuments to himself.

First, thank you for following regulations and procedures on this matter. Second, no one person is above the process for protecting the country's historical landmarks. And that is the fundamental element of concern for me. Historical buildings cannot and should not be tampered with or destroyed at the whim of one person, regardless of their position or desires. Third, a person in a leadership role, a role model, should accept and honor that responsibility. Our current leadership lacks this as demonstrated repeatedly. Saying a building won't be touched and then it is torn down completely the following week would cause most people to be fired immediately. And we should not simply accept it and suffer the loss of history because one person wished it to be that way.

National Capital Planning Commission –

These comments are submitted for the proposed ballroom addition to the White House. (I am not certain if "East Wing Modernization Project" is correct.)

This work has been undertaken, including the demolition of the East Wing of the White House, without following a public process, until this opportunity was initiated by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

In addition to protesting the initial demolition I am very concerned about the proposal shown during the January 22, 2026 hearing.

The Secretary of Interior's Standards for additions to historic structures require that the addition be Subordinate, visually secondary, to the original structure. Adopted design guidelines for Landmarks and Historic Districts for communities throughout the United States include this requirement when addressing height, form and mass.

The proposed 90,000 sq. ft. ballroom addition overwhelms the White House and the cornice line is at the same level, a clear and substantial violation of basic design principles for additions to historic structures.

The proposed design is not in compliance with the most basic standard for additions to historic structures, and the White House, the People's House, demands adherence to these standards. The proposal as shown on January 22 must be denied.

Thank you.

I write to object to approval of the White House East Wing Ballroom project. This project proceeded wthout going through specified approval steps, demolishing the existing East Wing without advance notice and under cover of secrecy behind opaque screening.
The White House is the People's House, not a monument to the current president. While federal law and legislation allocates a budget for repair and maintenance, there is nothing left of this wing to repair or maintain. The project is totally out of bounds as well as out of scale, dwarfing the rest of the White House. And funding by billionaires also tears at the fabric of the polity--this should remain the People's House in its funding .

With the changes in the personnel on the Commissions involved in approval to the president's own politicized picks, the good of the country is likely to be subordinated to the whims of the current White House occupant. It would be good to see some integrity, spine, and public interest on the part of the Commission in standing up against this outrageous project.

I think the new ballroom is ludicrous! It's ugly and much too big for the property! If the place were filled with political dignitaries, none of them would feel that their voices were being heard or respected.

I think the plans for the ballroom should be tabled until a more modest and well thought out plan is made. Although I haven't seen the interior floor plans yet, I do have a few questions such as… Will it be environmentally friendly? Will it stand or sink into the marsh ground? Will it and the people inside be defensible? Where will the kitchens be? Where will all the guests' vehicles be parked? How will Washington, D.C.'s infrastructure handle so many people converging on the White House? Throughout its lifetime, how much will it cost taxpayers in upkeep (staff, heating, cooling, guarding, etc.) both when it's in use and while it's vacant? Who will pay for all the guests' food? How much will it cost to renovate President Trump's tacky, gaudy, glitzy, pseudo-glamorous decor after he leaves office?

Basically, I think it's ill-advised to build the ballroom as it's planned now. It's too big and grandiose. It doesn't fit the property or the aesthetics of our Nation. It will get very little use, mostly stand vacant and be of no (and/or minuscule) use to 99.99% of the people of this country who are paying for it. (And make no mistake, we, the taxpayers, are actually paying for building and maintaining it because the donors contributing zillions of dollars to the building of this mostly useless monstrosity are charging higher prices to cover their donations!)

The gargantuan White House ballroom project is an illegal vanity project which destroys the charming aspect of the White House itself, which is a historical monument and cannot be changed on a unilateral whim. The private donors are now in a position to use their donations to bribe the president to attain their legislative aims. The project should be scrapped and the construction which has been completed to date should be torn down. Our White House is sacred and should be treated as such by all persons. Any demolitions should be carefully reviewed and approved or disapproved previous to any structure being altered or destroyed. I object to the demolition of the White House East Wing that has been done to this date (today, Monday February 16, 2026). Restore the East Wing back to its original splendor and function. Include outdoor space for a garden for reflection and quiet gatherings. No grand ballroom nor gold accents which would be ostentatious and lack the welcoming charm that the East Wing brings to visitors to the White House. Obviously some modernization would be needed keeping in mind fire/safety codes, accessibility as well as convenience. However, there was never a need or permission to tear it down in the first place. The proposed scale and use for the East Wing modernization has already tarnished the people's house. The current proposal should be scaled back to the prior scope of the East Wing. The United States does not have a monarchy and therefore does not need a grand, gold-leaf covered palace. This degrades and cheapens the sense of decorum the White House has existed with for years. Having a ballroom that overshadows the rest of the White House implies that the most important function of this location is to play politics, not a commitment to doing the hard work Americans have elected these officials to do. Fix the economy, standard of living, health-care or housing crisis before you worry about where you'll have your parties while telling the rest of us to 'eat cake'. Disgusting.

I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be a continuation of the original style of the White House with restrained elegance. Exterior additions should not overwhelm the original building.

At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.

If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed within the existing footprint of the East Wing. This space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.

Above all, the White House belongs to the American people, hence the name "The People's House". BEFORE nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision, and special interest funds to influence or pay for the rebuilding should NOT be allowed. Any changes to nationally significant structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving their character for future generations.

I am concerned that the proposed East Wing addition is too large and would visually dominate the historic main building of the White House. I have spent my career working in the field of historic preservation and have considerable experience reviewing changes and additions to historic buidings at the local government level. The scale of such additions must be a primary consideration. A prime example of the effects of failing to do so is the modern addition to Soldier Field stadium in Chicago. The original structure is surrounded by monumental colonnades, but the much larger addition makes them now appear insignificant in comparison. Though in that example the addition is modernist in style, the proposed historic style of the East Wing addition also presents challenges. An imitation of the style of the main Federal Style building is very difficult to achieve without making errors of proportion and detailing that would simply make it look like a cheap imitation. Very few architects are trained in the classical principles that made buildings of the 18th and 19th centuries graceful and elegant. A better styling choice, if an addition is approved, would be a simpler structure that does not compete with the original in either size or detailing.

I am submitting this comment to express my strong opposition to the proposed East Wing renovation at the White House. The project raises serious concerns about preservation ethics, procedural integrity, and the long\u8209 -term stewardship of one of the nation’s most significant historic structures.

First and most urgently, demolition activity has reportedly begun before the required review and approval processes are complete. If accurate, this represents a profound breach of the preservation framework designed to protect historic properties from precisely this kind of premature and potentially irreversible alteration. The review process exists to ensure transparency, accountability, and public oversight. Proceeding with demolition before approvals are secured undermines public trust and violates the spirit—if not the letter—of established preservation law.

Second, the proposed addition of a ballroom is wholly unnecessary and inconsistent with the historic character and functional needs of the East Wing. The White House already contains multiple spaces capable of hosting events of various scales, and introducing a new large\u8209 -scale entertainment venue would fundamentally alter the complex's architectural balance. The East Wing’s significance lies not only in its physical form but in its symbolic and functional role within the broader White House campus. A ballroom does not serve a demonstrated public need, nor does it align with the structure's historic purpose.

Third, the cumulative impact of this renovation threatens to erode the integrity of a site that belongs to the American people. Any intervention at the White House must meet the highest possible standard of necessity, restraint, and respect for historical context. This proposal does not meet that standard.

I urge the National Trust for Historic Preservation to oppose the project in its current form, to call for an immediate halt to any ongoing demolition, and to insist on a transparent, lawful, and preservation\u8209 -centered review process. The White House is a national treasure, and its protection must not be compromised by expedience or unnecessary expansion.

Respectfully,
Marj Atkinson, MLS

The East Wing Moderation Project should not go forward as outlined. 1) The design renderings are not in keeping with the architectural design of the White House and West Wing. There is no cohesion. 2) The size of the proposed building is is completely out of proportion to the existing buildings. It overshadows and overwhelms the current structures. It is inappropriate. 3) Information suggests that the cost is being covered by private donations. This is unacceptable as these donations are being given by billionaire friends of the President. This provides unfettered access to the President and allows these billionaires to curry favor with the current administration. 4) This is not the President's personal property. It belongs to the American people. The American people should have a say on this, should fund it through normal channels (i.e.. taxes) and thus have control over the project. 5) The destruction of the East Wing without any approval or oversight should come with some kind of "punishment". Further desecration of the property should not be put in the hands of a President who has no respect for our history, our laws, our democratic oversight processes, our constitution, or the rights of the American public.
The current proposal should be vetoed. Any further progress on the project should be reconsidered, overseen by an architect chosen by the democratic process, and redesigned to balance and complement the existing structures.
Thank you for your consideration.

Submitted on behalf of the Zimmerman-Bury Octagon House Association

The Zimmerman-Bury Octagon House Association respectfully submits this comment in strong support of the proposed East Wing Modernization Project, including the construction of a permanent ballroom addition to the White House complex.

As stewards of a historic landmark ourselves, we understand that preservation is not about freezing a building in time. It is about responsible stewardship and ensuring that historic structures remain structurally sound, functionally relevant, and capable of serving the public purpose for which they endure.

The White House is both a National Historic Landmark and a living civic institution. For over two centuries, it has evolved to meet the needs of each generation. The addition of the East and West Wings, structural reinforcements, accessibility improvements, and modern security measures were once contemporary interventions. Today, they are part of the historic fabric of the site.

A purpose-built ballroom is a practical and long-overdue improvement. A thoughtfully designed ballroom would provide a dignified, secure, and architecturally integrated solution, one that better reflects the stature of the Presidency and the nation it represents.

Historic sites must be able to host civic ceremony with both reverence and functionality. When designed with respect for scale, materials, sightlines, and the historic character of the complex, this addition can enhance the White House's capacity to serve the American people and welcome international dignitaries with the level of dignity and permanence such occasions merit.

We also strongly support the continued adherence to the legally required federal review process, including oversight by the National Capital Planning Commission, compliance with NEPA, consultation with the Commission of Fine Arts, and congressional approval.

Responsible evolution is part of historic stewardship. A carefully executed ballroom addition would not diminish the White House, it would ensure that this iconic landmark continues to fulfill its civic, ceremonial, and diplomatic responsibilities for generations to come.

Respectfully submitted,
Madeline Rock, Board | Marketing & Promotion Chair

There is no East Wing anymore, so there is no Modernization Project. There is a plan to put what looks like an airplane hangar, inexplicably plastered with faux gold, next to the White House. It's an abomination, which is not surprising, considering the source of the plan. If this project must go through--forced upon us without our consent, which is also not surprising from this source--it needs to be reduced to a quarter of the current design, as we have no need to park Boeing 777s in there; the rest of the devastated are should be turned into a a beautiful garden in memory of the Rose Garden that the source also destroyed.

The historic East Wing of The People's House should NEVER HAVE BEEN BULLDOZED!!

It must NOY be reconstructed as a monstrous tacky oversized BUNKER. for this crass vulgar GRIFTER who currently squats in what once our pride.

Any so-called “modernization” should be proportional to the surviving structure in size and design please don’t allow aggrandizement to satisfy the bloated delusional EGO of the current TEMPORARY occupant who is a global embarrassment and threat.

Our fear is that this project will become a hub of technological surveillance on the people of America. We do not want or need a “BALLROOM”. We yearn for a restoration of our heritage, tasteful, simple, beautiful in design and inspiration.

DONT acquiesce to the vulgar messianic vision of this megalomaniac!

The proposed East Wing addition seems as though it will be way out of proportion. I hope it will be scaled down (though still made larger) so as to fit nicely with the rest of the White House. The central building should remain the focal point. I also hope that the new addition will relate architecturally to the West Wing. At least one of the renderings I've seen of the entrance was like a version of the capitol steps. Please NO!!!

On the site of the now-demolished, historic East Wing of the White House, 90,000-square-foot ballroom has been proposed for construction. The White House itself encompasses 55,000 square feet. The proposed ballroom's size, massing, and height, as has been explained up to now, will be 35,000 square feet larger than the White House. For a wing to be substantially larger than the original building goes against the historic design practices of wings as smaller, subordinate spaces to the main building.

As one of the most important historic places in the United States, the traditional design of the White House and its grounds are of paramount significance to stewarding this irreplaceable piece of the American people's legacy. The White House and Grounds are a National Historic Landmark, a National Park, and a globally recognized symbol of our nation’s ideals.

President George Washington himself selected Irish architect James Hoban's design proposal for the "President's House." Washington's commitment to our nation's founding ideals as a democratic republic are embodied in the White House's neoclassical architectural style and scale. Unlike the vast palaces of European monarchs, the White House has always conveyed that a democratically-elected head of state resides here temporarily while serving the interests of the American people.

The federally-promulgated Secretary of the Interior’s Standards for Rehabilitation offer clear guidance for construction projects affecting historic properties. The Standards provide that new additions should not destroy the historic fabric of the property and that the new work should be compatible with existing massing, size, scale, and architectural features.

The applicants for the East Wing project must engage in legitimate and good-faith consultation and review with the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts, as is required by law. Doing so will help ensure that the project both honors the exceptional historic significance of the White House and acknowledges the considerable, ongoing financial, political, and cultural investments that the American people have made in this exceptional place.

As an architectural historian with 28 years of professional experience, I find that the ballroom designs that have been discussed to date are incompatible with the historic scale, form, massing, and style of the White House. As a wing, the ballroom's design should be subordinate to that of the White House in all of the aforementioned aspects. Practical considerations for current and future needs certainly warrant inclusion in the east wing's design. Thoughtful provision of administrative spaces, parking, utilities, technological infrastructure, and security is necessary to create an east wing that will stand the test of time, as the original East Wing did before its sudden demolition in 2025.

For all of the reasons cited above, I urge the NCPC to maintain adherence to long-established practices and standards for its review of the proposed design for the east wing.

I have never in my life, and I am 72, thought someone would just bulldoze part of the East Wing. It was done without going through all the appropriate channels for approval. It is a disgrace to our nation. I want the East Wing Rebuilt as it was, I want Donald Trump to pay for it with his own money since he violated our nations Whitehouse. I also want the Republican part to chip in their fair share since they allowed it. They can pay for it with their campaign war chests. We do not need a ballroom added to the Whitehouse. It would only be for Trump's edification. Never has that been done to our historical buildings. NO NO NO NO Ballroom. Build back the East Wing.

I do not want a ballroom built where the East Wing was torn down, I want to government or private funds used to try to build a ballroom. I feel this is a complete waste of money, especially since there are people getting their subsidies taken away. Any money that would be used should go to education subsidies, Medicaid/MediCare, SNAP, helping to reduce the cost of health insurance (ACA) and Social Security. The ONLY thing I want there is the East Wing restored along with the Rose garden.

The White House has stood as the People's House. A symbol of dignity, welcoming all and aspiring to a just and free society. It holds our history as a nation always striving for democracy. Now the East Wing has been destroyed because one man lusts for power over all and demands garish and wasteful displays of greed while Americans suffer for his moral inadequacies and cruelty. He is but a tenant, not an owner. He has no right to destroy OUR HOUSE and build a tacky, tasteless monument to fill his empty soul. If you allow this to be built we will tear it down. We will rebuild the East Wing as it was-a symbol of this country trying to be just and balanced in its power.

Comments regarding the proposed ballroom addition to the White House
16 February 2026

As a registered architect with over forty years' experience in historic preservation, I have the following objections to the project:
1. The proposed project is in violation of #9 of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation of Historic Properties:
"New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction will not destroy historic materials, features, and spatial relationships that characterize the property. The new work will be differentiated from the old and will be compatible with the historic materials, features, size, scale and proportion, and massing to protect the integrity of the property and its environment."
The demolition of the East Wing has already violated the provision to not destroy historic materials, and the ballroom plans are not compatible in regard to size, scale, proportion and massing, and overwhelm the original building.
2. State dinners may include hundreds of guests, but not 1000. A venue scaled to accommodate 1000 people is surely a colossal waste of space, and will diminish the ambiance of gatherings of fewer guests. It will have all the charm of very fancy airplane hangar.
3. If a ballroom big enough to accommodate 1000 is in fact needed, it could be built elsewhere in the DC area (not on the mall!). There is no reason it has to be attached to the White House or on the grounds of the White House.
4. The East Wing of the White House should be reconstructed in accordance with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Reconstruction.

Respectfully,

Penelope S. Watson, AIA

I respectfully submit the following comments.
Let me first say how shocked and displeased I was to have a wing of the White House bulldozed without public notice, plans, approvals, etc. This was the utmost of arrogance and spite by the current President and his enablers. If public money was used to do this, it must be repaid by those responsible.

Going forward, it does not seem realistic to spend money to put the east wing back as it was. What was there is lost, and a fresh start makes the most sense. Let's finish clearing the rubble, salvage what we can, and put grass down or plant a garden so we don't have a constant reminder of bad behavior.

Then a building process should start, with the first Q being whether additional space is actually needed on the White House campus, and if so, for what purposes and at what cost. The government has many laws, rules and regulations in place to guide this process. The goal should be to follow them and see where they take us.

I definitely oppose building a 55,000 sq' event space attached or next to the White House. The White House has historic and cultural significance to all Americans, and it should not be dwarfed by a new structure. In addition any new structure should not be attached to any one President by name or by demand. The White House is the People's House, and we want to keep it that way.

Thank you for your attention.

The East Wing of the White House, a building that belongs to the American people and not to any President, should never have been torn down without a thorough planning process. Now that it is gone, all construction must stop until a reasonable plan is approved by the authorized bodies. Whatever is built must fit the scale and massing of the existing White House. It should not dwarf the historic building or visually dominate the White House and environs. Any new structure must also be in complete architectural harmony with the main house and West Wing. Millions of Americans have made pilgrimage to the sites of our national government, and the White House is one of those national treasures etched in memory. Any construction must honor this allegiance of the American people.

Do not build an underground bunker. Every administration should govern like they have nowhere to retreat to.

I comment to register my total and complete opposition to the addition of a 90,000 square foot ballroom to the White House. This planned addition will overwhelm the White House and disrupt its classical design. In addition to being a totally frivolous expenditure at a time when so many in our country are suffering, I am concerned that the Trump administration is seeking private funding, much of which is undisclosed and apparently will remain so. This "pay to play" funding scheme raises real risks of corruption and undue influence and is antithetical to a democracy. Please vote against this desecration of the People's House. Thank you.

How is this notice even anywhere within the ballpark of compliance??
Per the notice dated 02/13/2026: "The National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) has opened public comments on the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House. Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800. This review is also required under federal law. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive congressional approval. "

The East wing has already been leveled and I'm pretty sure that falls under the "permanently altered" clause, does it not? Stop the lunacy and build the East wing back to scale as it was and stop wasting taxpayer dollars as well as undermining federal law by continuing with this major construction project to create a ballroom! The White House is "The People's House" and while every President has made some sort of alteration at one point or another, the complete removal of an entire wing that housed the First Lady's offices and other staffing needs to replace it with a ballroom larger than the living quarters themselves is ludicrous. Until someone steps in and says "ENOUGH" to the behaviors exhibited by our current President, our nation's landmarks will continue to suffer and be altered to fit his personal vision, which is is no way a tribute to our nation's strong and vibrant history (yes, the good AND the bad parts).

The fact that this notice is dated 02/13/2026 with a "hearing" to be held on 03/04/2026 regarding an already vacant space on the White House grounds needs some explanation as well. If the review is REQUIRED under federal law, how was the building allowed to be destroyed in the first place? While I hope that this hearing is able to provide some sort of "reigning in" of the current administration's plans for the new building, as an American citizen I am ashamed at how our national landmarks are being steamrolled in an effort to create what appears to be the utopian image of one individual. Laws are in place for a reason and even the term "East Wing Modernization Project" seems to emphasis how disconnected the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) truly is.

I've attached a pdf to provide a short history lesson to support why I believe this sort of project needs to be halted immediately.

I am very opposed to this modernization in large part because it did not follow existing law or policy that requires the assessment of effects on architecture, archaeology, view shed, and other contributing factors. By removing the East Wing in such a brutal manner, it set a precedent that our laws and policies are followed at will or not, and it destroyed our historic heritage. It also denigrated the role of the First Lady by destroying a significant historic space.

It is merely an attempt by Donald Trump to inflate his pathetic ego by desecrating the one of the greatest and most well known symbols of our nation. In addition - hasn't he already broken the law (his favorite pass time) by not submitting detailed plans for the project BEFORE destroying the east wing? That being said the commission should reject the project and require any further work to be halted until Congress approves its continuation.

The construction company that was hired to demolish the East Wing should also be made to pay for their part in the destruction.

The proposed 90,000 sf ballroom in no way resembles or fits with the aesthetic of the White House, aka The People's House. The proposed ballroom should be no larger than the space the East Wing occupied, and it should match the rest of the White House in terms of constructing materials. I write to urge the NCPC to insist on rightsizing the President's plans for the East Wing Project. The current plans call for an outsize structure that upsets the classical lines of the people's building known as the White House, which presidents occupy but do not own. Surely a reasonably large ballroom can be accommodated within a footprint that is respectful of the White House and the West Wing.

I remember visiting Washinton DC as a young girl (I lived then in Rochester NY) and being thrilled with the White House and the monuments. I have lived in DC since 1967 and continue to thrill at their sight. The people of the United States deserve an East Wing replacement that fits the classical republican tradition of simple classical lines and proper alignment with existing structures, in this case, the White House itself.

This is a highly destructive impact to an integral part of United States history. It holds significance in multiple categories such as location, design, material, workmanship, feeling and association. It is listed on the National Register of Historic places. And it is currently in ruins. Destroyed due to not following legal and contractual binding agreements and processes in place to stop this very thing. It is in no way protection, it is recklessness by the current administration. The mere fact that this was even allowed to happen is a travesty of justice. Please stop the current administration from destroying this historical site and ignoring the laws, contracts and binding legal agreements. No to Modernization of the East Wing. Since the demolition, obviously a rebuild is now needed. And frankly, I am peeved about the entire situation. That said, I object to it being a ballroom of the size and scope that is currently being planned. Actually, I object to a ballroom in general (will everyday people be invited to events?) but will accept that there may be an occasional need for such space where special events will occur. I believe the size, scope and general exterior architecture must, must, must match the White House, and be subservient to it in size and scope. Not a hulking slab that was, and may still be, being considered.

Greetings!
My first request is to stop construction until it is established that the current administration has followed all laws and norms that would enable them to destroy the people's property. I am the owner of the property known as the Whitehouse, as are you and all Americans. No one asked our permission.

The President's actions to destroy the East Wing are even more egregious and illegal than if your neighbor destroyed your home without permission.

Secondly, the American people have not been informed of the whereabouts and conditions of the precious historical objects, including art, sculpture, historic furniture, rugs, wall hangings, and documents, etc, that were removed from the East Wing. These objects are priceless and arethe property of the American people. If they have been damaged, Donald J Trump should be held responsible for costs, as well as any legal consequences.

Thank you for your consideration.
Respectfully submitted.

I am vehemently opposed to the building of a ballroom. I fully support the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House.
I am highly suspicious of any money the current president raised for this project. I'm guessing it either went into his personal pocket or was really never there in the first place. I am appalled that he was allowed to destroy the East Wing of the PEOPLE'S HOUSE in such a way.

I write to oppose the construction of the ballroom and believe that construction should be stopped immediately. Our federal buildings, monuments, and historical sites should not be fair game for the whims of any one person or group.

At times there may be good reason to make changes, but then it should go through the proper governmental authority and review to make sure it is in the best interests of the nation and its people.

History has shown us that from time to time, changes have been made to the White House. However, in 2025 President Trump, with no respect for the approval process, gathered donations from his rich friends to fund and then begin the domolishment of the East Wing to build a "grand ballroom". I see this as competition to "out do" his friend Vladimir Putin with the grand ballroom that he has. This was not necessary. As with so many things that this president has done, he does so like a bull in a china closet with no respect for the valid processes established for such undertakings. And now the East Wing is gone. Further, all federal government buildings are the property of the American People and should be respected as such. Although Donald Trump, as an American citizen, "owns" a piece of the White House, it is not his to do with as he pleases. There are over 330 million other owners of the White House and their ownership must be respected. And considering all of the division that this president has caused in our country, this just adds to the list. The East Wing is gone, but hopefully the NCPC can step in and control what happens next in whatever is to replace the former East Wing.

Under no circumstance should President Trump oversee the "East Wing Modernization Project." He is the president residing in the White House - he does not own it, the federal government does, held in trust for the American people. The destruction of the East Wing was a horrific example of overreaching power with disregard for the American people and the history of this country and its historical building. The construction of a new addition - its design, size, decor, purpose(s) should be decided and implemented by a non-partisan group of people with appropriate skills and expertise. This group can be chosen by a congressional committee made up of equal number of Republicans and Democrats. thereby representing the people of this country.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There are public spaces available nearby.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. The building of Trump's East wing by his elite billionaire donors send a message that this people's house only belongs to them. Trump is there temporarily, and this unlawful destruction of the East Wing of the creation of Trump's ballroom sends a message that the billionaires own it and not the people.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

It is an utter travesty that the White House has been partially destroyed to satisfy the whim of one president. It is an utter lie that the country has been pining for a ballroom for decades. There is a ballroom in the White House. I have been there. It is perfectly sufficient for the needs of any president and has been since the White House was built.
The current plans for this monstrosity of a ballroom will completely dwarf the White House itself, making the White House look like a pathetic and weak. The approval for such an addition should have gone through many stages of scrutiny before ANY demolition was done. I have read about previous renovations at the White House for past Presidents and all of them have needed to go through a lengthy, formal process of approval. Congress should be ashamed of itself that they let one megalomaniac circumvent the National Capital Planning Commission to degradate the dignity and beauty of our nation's official resident of our presidents.
Any remedy of this devastation needs to be tightly controlled by those who are loyal to history, beauty, and art, not to the ego of the sitting President.

From what I have seen, it looks positively atrocious! It is obscenely large and frankly, gaudy as heck! Real giving off some “Marie Antoinette lives here” vibes. The People’s House should be grand but have a quiet and stately appearance. Frankly, this enormous eyesore is a waste of taxpayer dollars (funded by donors, yeah, sure). It would behove this administration to remember that they are currently holding temporary jobs as employees of the people of the United States of America. The East Wing of the People's White House (NOT Trump's house) must be reconstructed in accord with the rest of the building. It should resemble the original East Wing in size and style, with modernization of the interior as necessary. We do not want and do not need a ballroom on the site. The Whitehouse is the people's building meant to house the temporary president in a degree of comfort. The East Wing was the first place that visitors--that is, citizen taxpayers--could enter the building for a tour. I don't know whether these tours are available anymore. The grounds should reflect that the country is a prospering democracy presided over by the current resident who has been installed there by the will of a free people. It should not resemble a structure that reflects the will of a permanent king--Louis XIV, for example. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

History should count for something. In the 250 years of our Constitutional Democracy we have not needed a ballroom of this size. Why have other Presidents been able to work within the physical frame of the White House as it once was?
Considerations of this project should include the purpose of a state dinner. What business is accomplished at a state dinner? Does the increased seating capacity (2 to 3 times as large as previous state dinners) provide any real value or is it merely a vanity project?

In my opinion, it is a vanity project as no real business of state can be accomplished with the larger size. In fact, it would be overwhelming for heads of state and the President of the United States to make even minimal contact with this many people. Likewise demonstrations of shared culture and history lose impact with more attendees.

Additionally, it is an expensive vanity project. Currently state dinners on average cost about $600,000, with some running as high as $1,000,000. A guest list of 2 to 3 times as many would double or triple (or more) the cost. Is it reasonable for the American people to pay for this excess if there is no real public or national benefit to a larger size?

Any proposal for this project should include scrutiny of additional benefits accrued to the American people.

I strongly disapprove of the current plans for the East Wing ballroom and urge that major revisions or a new plan be submitted. I disagree with the huge size of the addition—it needs to be lower in height and way smaller in size. There is no need for such an immense space. This is the People's House and we are a democracy! We do not want Versailles type grandiosity. We want useful tasteful space. Please stand up and say no to this plan. Thank you.

The damage has been done; it would be heaping insult upon injury to allow the ballroom plans to go ahead as currently drafted. The construction of such a monstrous, outsized, and out-of proportion addition should not be permitted. The White House does not belong to its occupant—it belongs to all of us, the American people. While event space is desired and possibly needed, additions and enhancements must respect the historic scale, design, and aesthetic of the White House - the American People’s House, a National Historic Landmark. At 90K sqft, the proposed ballroom exceeds the size of the 55K sqft Executive Residence. Additions and enhancements to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. If a ballroom and event space is needed, a suitable alternative location needs to be identified and a design the supports multiple functions developed.

I am also concerned with the manner with which this project was started without public comment prior to demolition. The Rose Garden that was built to honor Jackie Kennedy was errased without the public kowing about it. As a 45 year Interior Designer who has worked within the constraints of the system, I am surprised to see the lack of oversight on one of the most important buildings in our country.

I appreciate the opportunity to comment on this project.

While I understand the necessity of enlarging the seating capacity for state events hosted at the White House, the reported 900 seat capacity of the proposed facility seems excessive. This has led to a proposed structure that is massive and out of scale with the existing White House, diminishing its presence and visual significance as a symbol of our democracy.

The overall grandiosity of the proposed East Wing strikes one as more in keeping with a presidential palace, as opposed to the more restrained (and modest) White House, as befitting the home of the leader of our republic.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

I assume this is the name of the new "ballroom" being attached to the White House.

In reviewing the renderings, it is clear that this addition is completely inappropriate for this site. It both dwarfs and obscures the White House, one of the most significant historic and architectural sites in the country. The design itself, while certainly classical in style and uses design cues from the White House itself, is so grandiose, pompous and overbearing that it reminds me of Nazi architecture of the 3rd Reich. The renderings depict a huge, garish, expensive, corrupt, inappropriate building that is an affront to the nation's democratic ideals and our constitution. If something of this size is really needed by the executive branch, it should be relocated and redesigned.

But beyond that, it’s the way it was done, without following proper protocol and procedures through Congress. The hubris displayed by this president is unprecedented.

I do understand the need for a proper ballroom, but a complete evaluation by experienced architects and historians should have been the authorities in charge.

My hope is that, when saner heads prevail, the East Wing can be restored and a plan for a ballroom be implemented that serves its purpose and also preserves the history and integrity of the White House.

I am thankful for the opportunity to comment on the proposed changes to the White House as I have grave concerns regarding the process and the design of this project.
The administration has shown a reckless disregard for precedent and regulation by demolishing the East Wing without any of the required oversight reviews including documentation and handling of hazardous materials.
The administration scheduled project reviews only after serious questions had been raised.
The administration has claimed that construction must continue because of security issues. This raises questions about the security planning for this project. If there is a security issue because of the demolition of the East Wing, then this is an issue created by the administration. If the administration has diminished the security of the White House and the government, this is a legal issue to be prosecuted and not a justification for continued construction.
While there may be some need for a larger assembly space to serve the White House, the current expanded plans for the ballroom are excessive and totally out of proportion with the White House and will dominate the site and diminish the visual importance of the White House. This is a grandiose scheme that appears more about creating a personal monument to the President than a functional addition to Peoples' House.
The administration and their architect have made much about the new ballroom's cornice matching that of the White House. This is a sad attempt to dodge the fact that the appearance of the building extending so far into the South Lawn will visually dwarf the White House. The pedimented south portico is much higher than the cornice and will further diminish the appearance of the White House. This portico is not accessible from the interior and serves no purpose except, as the architect admitted, to satisfy the President's taste.The building appears to be even taller than the Treasury building across the street.
There are serious questions concerning the plans for the project. How will traffic be handled on Executive Ave. for arriving guests? There is no cover indicated from the sidewalk to the entrance portico. Will the existing parking be eliminated?
There is no accessible entrance to the Ballroom except through the White House itself. This does not meet the requirements of the ADA.
The entrance foyer of the Ballroom does not show provisions for security screening nor does there appear to be enough room to handle the arrival of 1000 guests.
The floor plans show elevators accessible from the ballroom floor but they don't open to the entrance level. Where do they go? There are also stairs on the ground level that don't go to the Ballroom level. It would appear that there might be a basement floor that has not been revealed.
There is no accessible access at the ground level from the White House to the offices and kitchen spaces as required by the ADA.
The plans do not show any provisions for the secure handling of trash.
Where are all of the tables and chairs going to be stored?
There is no indication on the elevation drawings of rooftop mechanical equipment which will most likely extend above the parapet of the Ballroom. The elevations do not match the lower level floor plans
Given that demolition has occurred and construction has begun, the state of the design drawings show this has been a very rushed job and poorly planned. The planning and design issues should have been resolved long before the demolition and construction began. So far, no actual construction drawings have been revealed or reviewed. The project must be stopped and the self-induced security issues must be corrected with proper oversight.

Replicate the East Wing that was torn down. Our East Wing was not Trump’s to destroy. That East Wing and Jackie’s rose garden was our history and the history of First Ladies who served this country. Trump has no right to destroy our history nor should our White House be redesigned just because his wife hates him and has no interest in serving the American people.

To put it another way that Trump may understand, the White House is the Peoples’ House, he is simply a tennant, not an owner. He isn’t allowed to make alterations without the owners approval, and we are owners.

No one in their right mind wants a tacky gold ballroom where a history of hospitality and service once stood offering comfort and care to the American people.

Given that the White House is a Historic building and a temporary living space for the current president, it is alarming that before this was lawfully approached, he took a literal wrecking ball to it, destroying the original structure. Although more space may be necessary to accommodate social and state gatherings, preserving the integrity of the building and avoiding something so large that it obscures the current building would be more appropriate. Preservation should be a top priority, rather than creating something that modernizes the building beyond its historical context.

I am opposed to this construction project for many reasons most importantly because of the lack of transparency on all levels and Pres Trump's total disregard for doing so.

First, the renovations were not approved by Congress nor did it go thru the Historical Preservation Committee for approval. The sudden total desecration of the East Wing was appalling to see.

Next, the project is much larger and more costly than initially projected - almost doubled - and even though Trump claims it is being funded by private sources, this is equally disconcerting. In Trump's oligarchy government he is in the process of establishing, paybacks (both for and against) are involved, so we can expect he will dole out favors to all corporations and influential people who have donated to this project.

Last but not least, this Administration's emphasis on the importance of size and glamour and its representation to the global community, is on a scale not seen in this country for quite some time, with good reason. Americans do not desire to relive the Gilded Age which only benefited the upper class and left average citizens in the dust. All of this for a ballroom?! Really?!

The White House is the People's House NOT Pres Trump's Maralago 2 and must be treated as such, with the grace and dignity it deserves. Please do not approve this lavishly gilded ballroom expansion.

At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. And Congressional approval (if not a public vote) should be part of the process. I suggest that a building of similar size could be accomplished with much of the facility below grade (as with the Capitol Visitor's Center) so that the new building's roof line is no higher than the original East Wing.

I am deeply troubled by the vanity project helmed by President Trump that unilaterally demolished the East Wing of the White House, a recognized national symbol of the American people. With the provided reasoning for the demolition amounting to little more than women's heels sinking into the lawn at state-sponsored events, I do not see the need to build the presently proposed monstrosity. As a professional architectural historian, the presently proposed plan dwarfs the remaining structure and is not in keeping with the design, feeling, or association of the White House. I also cannot express enough how dangerous the potential precedent this project sets for ignoring Congress and all other channels of checks and balances placed on this type of demolition and construction on national heritage sites and others of significant national landmarks. Heavy machinery silenced the American people and tore down a section of their house. We can never get back what was lost, but we can protect the future of our national heritage.

As a designer and landscape architect, I find the proposals to "modernize" the east wing of the White House greatly disturbing. The process has been highly abnormal. It doesn't appear that the project was vetted by any design professionals or historic preservationists prior to demolitions. Instead, it appears that the decision was made to raze the old east wing and its landscape before firm plans were developed for what would replace it. Has any consideration been made to following historic preservation guidelines? Have any plans been made to rehabilitate the important historic landscape that surrounds the historic building?

These things are essential and required in other places, which makes their inclusion even MORE important at the nation's most famous residence. It has to reflect and represent the best practices. If the White House gets to bend the rules, what's stopping others from doing the same?

Furthermore, I doubt the need for a massive ballroom attached to the White House. There are literally dozens of ballrooms in the area that are already designed for high-profile events. Again, this is presenting a bad precedent in a city that is built on precedent.

I strongly recommend pausing this project for as long as necessary so that feasibility studies are completed to determine if a ballroom is needed. Next, complete historic preservation review must be completed, including the development of preservation goals for both the existing building and landscape, as well as the proposed building and landscape. Then, for whatever goes in its place, schematic design proposals (not complete plans, as that's clearly a security concern) must be shared with the public.

In sum, this is the "people's house," and thus we MUST must do things correctly.

The so-called "modernization" of the East Wing of the White House to create a ballroom must be stopped. Those who ordered the destruction that has occurred so far are clearly in violation of multiple federal rules and laws, among them the requirement to submit plans for the Ballroom Project to the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) or the Commission of Fine Arts (CFA), and failing to obtain Congressional approval, despite legal requirements to do so when proposing major alterations -- in this instance completely replacing and vastly changing the former design, size and use -- of the White House East Wing, a historic site.

There is no right for the president or any other entity to simply destroy, for whatever purpose, a substantial portion of a historic public property -- which, we remind those in power, the White House is; it is not anyone's personal property to do with as they individually wish.

Further, the illegal destruction that has occurred so far does not warrant a conclusion of "oh well, the work is underway, so therefore we must proceed with our plans." No. Plans to restore the building must be submitted and reviewed as required by law, including public input, and those responsible for the current destruction should be fined and required to pay for the restoration.

Simply put, this modernization project should always be called the East Wing, and nothing more. The scale should be reduced by lowering the main floor so that it appears shorter than the main White House, even if that implies support spaces are below grade. This would be similar to what was achieved at the Louvre project in Paris, where the new entrance, while stunning, still allowed the original to be prominent.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.

If a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city!

The White House is the PEOPLE'S house, not Donald Trump's personal entertainment center.

Step 2: Restore the Rose Garden! These extreme changes are an insult to American history and past administrations that did things to honor the United States and its values, rather than self-promotion.

Dear Members of the NCPC:
I am writing in opposition to any further destruction of the East Wing and to support all sanctions at your disposal for the destruction of the East Wing without prior authorization required by law. This destruction was unnecessary and if renovations truly were warranted, the required process for permission should have been followed. Now that we are in the position of having a large part of the White House completely destroyed, it obviously needs to be rebuilt. I would urge you to approve only plans that are consistent with the historic nature of the building's architectural aesthetic and to not allow construction that is overly large or garish compared to the existing structure and grounds. Please also ensure that all sanctions available to you are levied if rebuilding is begun before receiving approval. Thank you for your consideration.

I am against the proposed East Wing Modernization Project. It will overwhelm the existing White House. The design looks like it is more suited to a king than an American president. The project has had little transparency about the donors and the amount that they donated to win favor with President Trump. I have seen no designs of the interior of the proposed building - the model will likely be the palaces of European kings. There has been no attention to the interests of everyday Americans - the powerful and wealthy are in control. The paving over of the Rose Garden was a huge mistake - I also don't expect anything good coming out of the current ballroom project. I am a horticulturist and I am glad I saw the Rose Garden a few years ago before it was destroyed, with its storied history. I am appalled by what happened to that lovely space and by the tearing down of the East Wing. Thank you for your time.

Good morning, The White House is arguably the most significant historic building in the United States. As an architect with historic preservation and restoration experience, I am writing to urge the commission to prevent the current design from moving forward, and instead send it back to the drawing board for significant revisions. The key guidling principal for all designs touching historic buildings is upholding the visual hierarchy and scale of the original building. This is vital during any renovation, restoration or addition work, particularly given the White House's historic significance. The proposed ballroom is vastly disproportionate to the White House. If construction proceeds with the current design, the White House will become visually subservient to the new addition, diminishing the importance of the White House, and irreversibly altering it's historic character. Any addition to the White House should be smaller in scale to the main building, not only in height but in mass and placement. The original assurances regarding this project when it was first announced seemed to indicate that the design would follow these principals. Sadly, the design as currently exhibited is not appropriate in scale or placement to the historic White House.

Please send this back to the Architect for significant revision, and do not allow it to proceed until the issues of scale and hierarchy are addressed.

I am writing to provide comments on the proposed East Wing Modernization Project at the White House. While I understand the desire for functional improvements, I have significant concerns about this project as currently proposed.

My primary concern is that the scale, massing, and design of the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom are not aligned with the historic character of the White House. This new structure, significantly larger than the White House itself (55,000 square feet), risks overwhelming the existing building and disrupting the carefully balanced classical design of the Executive Mansion and its wings. Such a large addition would negatively impact the historic setting of this preeminent National Historic Landmark, a symbol of our nation that is owned by the American people. The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation clearly guide that new additions should be compatible with the historic property's massing, size, and scale—a standard this proposal violates.

Furthermore, I strongly believe that a project of this magnitude requires explicit authorization from Congress. A review of White House history shows that every major construction or modification project has been authorized by Congress, either through specific legislation or appropriations. The 2 exceptions I've found (the pool and tennis pavilion) were tiny in comparison to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom. This precedent, spanning over two centuries, reflects the principle that the People's House, funded by the people, should have the direct oversight of their elected representatives for such a substantial and permanent change.

The "People's House" should not be built by private interests who will expect a return on their investment. The people who will live with this building for generations—not a handful of donors seeking access—must decide if it is needed, what it will look like, and whether their tax dollars, even if ostensibly "private," are being leveraged for public influence.

And let us be honest about the scale of this decision. The current estimated cost is $400 million. To put that number in perspective: my town desperately needs a $60 million school. For the cost of this one ballroom, we could build my town's school and five others just like it. We could address the crumbling infrastructure in communities across America. We could fund teachers, books, and safe places for our children to learn. Instead, this money—raised in the shadows—is being spent to build a private banquet hall for the wealthy inside a public landmark.

I urge the Commission to carefully consider these points during your review. I ask that you do not grant approval for the current plans and instead encourage the applicant to revisit the design to be truly compatible with the White House's historic scale and character. Additionally, I ask that the Commission support the position that this project must receive proper authorization from Congress before it can proceed.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment and for your stewardship of the National Capital Region.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.
The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.
The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.
Any repairs to bring the White House back to its pre-2024 footprint should come from the private funds of the person who contracted the changes without the proper oversight.
This entire project is constructed so POTUS can enrich himself at the expense of the public.

The vandals are no longer at the gates, but within the borders. By their behavior it is obvious that no tangible symbols of our past glories, laws or the very Constitution itself are safe from defacement or destruction. The very foundations of the Republic are at risk as one by one our connections with history gradually disappear willfully by those who value them little. The obliteration of the East Wing illustrates this dramatically, and the progression will surely not end with it. I plead as one who has been moved by such national monuments by visitation, do not allow authoritarianism to deface our physical ties to the road to freedom!

The American people do not want a giant ballroom. The White House is not a castle built for a monarch. Or an obnoxious palace holding an oligarch. The White House was intended to be accessible to ordinary citizens—where they could petition the Executive for their needs. That does not mean a ballroom. A ballroom is for the wealthy, privileged and “connected”.

Please limit the size of the (now necessary) repair to the footprint of the building before destruction began last year. We should not reward the unsanctioned destruction to be rewarded by even an extra inch of space.

We, the people, do not need a palace in which to dance.

I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House.

While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

Any addition should be more in scale with the people's White House and compatible with the historic design of the White House.

In addition, any cost to build an event space should be funded within an approved federal budget as a space owned by all the people not by partisan political contributions.

The overblown design for the proposed ballroom dwarfs the significance of the People's House in an abominable way. Is this gigantic size consistent with any actual need? Or is this yet another outrageously costly vanity project? If construction is allowed to proceed, the scale of this addition should complement our beloved White House instead of overpowering it. A party room must never have more importance than the House where serious business of our nation should be conducted. The White House must continue to be a time-honored symbol of our democracy, not a monument to wealthy donors.

The East wing of the People's White house should be restored to it's the 1942 renovation. As a taxpayer it is outrageous to demolish the people's house without permission and there is no need for an austentatious ballroom. Prior Presidents have lived and worked in the East wing and have wonderful memories and went through the proper process to make any changes. I would also like the rose garden restored. The current cement slab is not in keeping with the splendor of the White House.

In addition I do not want a large ballroom occupying the White House grounds. It dwarfs the White House and there is no need for a building of this size on the White House grounds. It’s just a show off building. We don’t need large lavish “parties” which will cost the taxpayers more money.

In all these years have the people of this county clamored for changes like this. I think not. It is not necessary to build such things to show off the greatness of this country. There is something to be said about

The regulations are in place that any major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo proper review and approval. There are processes and standards in place for any renovation to the White House, and like all presidents before him, he should have been and going forward must be made to follow them.

The East Wing was where visitors entered and started their tour of public spaces. President Trump has no consideration for the public's opinion or access. When this portion of the White House is built, note I do not say rebuilt, as there is no restoring the history that is lost.This space should not be a ballroom that would not only be mostly a waste of money and space, it would be costly to renovate when he is gone. When built this new East Wing could be a larger version of the East Room, but even then it will not be used daily, it should be a multi use space. The new East Wing should have offices and prep areas for events and should continue to be the visitor's access point for tours that is secure and away from the private areas of the White House. All of this should be constrained to the compatible scale and decorating standards of the the People's House. We are not the subjects of a king, we do not want gilded palaces and ballrooms at the expense of and do not represent the people, we are a democracy.

I am all for modernization, especially in the age of high electrical demand and WiFi and security needs. The White House probably needs updating and perhaps a larger venue for diplomatic events. However, our nation was not founded on the lavish display of wealth and ostentation that is being presented as the "ballroom". Our neoclassical demonstration of democracy relies on an elegant simplicity of design that reinforces the believe in the Democratic principles - not a garish display of riches beyond what the majority of our nation has, or ever will have. If, in my own City with all its growth problems, the City Hall decided to destroy a portion to provide a glitzy space for the Chamber of Commerce, every councilperson and the mayor would be out on their ear. The Historic Preservation committee would balk without a doubt. Let's not be a national disgrace and promote the wrong ideas through architecture. Voicing my opposition to the construction of a ballroom to replace the East Wing of the White House. The proposed ballroom design is grossly out of scale with the original White House and wildly out of character with the main building.

We need to move slowly and carefully in deciding what should replace the East Wing and insuring it's design and scale is sympathetic to the White House.

I do not support the plans for a 90,000 sq ft ballroom. It's a waste of tax payer money, an outsized plan for what could've been a well-considered and appropriately sized renovation/extension. This is just massaging the ego of the leader of this regime.

Modernization means just that, modernization. Update wiring, restrooms, accessibility, wall coverings, heating, and air conditioning. All those things would help modernize the building. I propose returning the historical nature to the original for balance and prosperity. I do not feel the public should have to bear that cost! My heart was hurt when the wing came down. So much history is lost to the adage "it's cheaper to tear it down"! It also takes away the wonder and pride of our citizens!

I have been to the White House. It's a beautiful, historic building. Razing the East wing was criminal. It was a historic, beautiful part of that building and nothing was saved. No respect for history. No respect for the significance of the space. No respect for the American people, who OWN that building. Please stop the insanity. Adding a 90,000 sq ft building to that space would be ridiculous. And enough with the fake gold leaf all over everything. It's gaudy and does not in any way exude class. Just tacky and pathetic. Please only allow the building of a space that is proportional to the current White House and that matches the interior design, SANS FAKE GOLD, of the prior space. The White House belongs to the people, not the sitting president. No President should just be allowed to trash buildings in DC and replace them with whatever they want. I was heartbroken to see the East wing destroyed. Now please replace it with something SUITABLE. No giant ballroom!!!!!!

Thank you

The ‘secrecy’ of this project should appall every citizen! In keeping with mr. Trump’s ‘big beautiful’ everythings, the few renderings that were (so) briefly shown totally Overwhelm the original White House structure. There was no need for the destruction of the East wing for this ballroom project which is simply TOO big. Whatever is built should NOT be allowed to be the ‘same height’ as the White House! No ‘second story’. The current plans should not be approved. Respectfully, olwetmore

The east wing, and in fact, the entire White House does not belong to the current occupant. It belongs to the American people. I find it offensive that the occupant of this White House thinks it's ok to demolish a treasured portion of our house without so much as a conversation first. Secondly, he thinks by having it funded by private donations makes it "ok." In fact, it makes it even less "ok" because it is corruption plain and simple. Anyone who funds his vanity project now has a seat the table. I vehemently oppose this project.

The proposed addition is much too large in scale and will diminish the presence of the White House itself. The proposal ruins the overall symmetry of the three structures, presenting a lopsided tableau to the east. I encourage the project to be redrawn from scratch to be in better balance. I applaud the selection of the architect currently assigned, who appears to be very respected, as he is respectful and knowledgeable of what makes the architecture of Washington DC singular and beautiful. One can imagine a structure that reminds one of a very bad, over-sized home addition, that is ultimately razed and rebuilt in a more fitting way.

To whom it may concern,

I submit this comment in opposition to the current White House ballroom construction plans and to support the position advanced by the National Trust for Historic Preservation in its legal filings. The White House is an irreplaceable national landmark, the "People's House," and any major alteration to the campus should proceed only through the full, legally required public review processes, not after demolition and construction are already underway.

At minimum, construction should be paused immediately until the Administration complies with applicable law and oversight, including: (1) submitting complete plans to the National Capital Planning Commission for review under the National Capital Planning Act; (2) completing an adequate NEPA environmental review (EA/EIS, as appropriate) with a meaningful public comment period; and (3) obtaining any required congressional authorization for construction in President's Park.

Beyond process compliance, I urge decision-makers to require design alternatives that avoid overwhelming the historic White House with incompatible massing and height, and that adhere to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation to protect the campus's historic integrity and symbolism.

Respectfully, I ask that agencies and officials honor the public's right to participate and ensure any changes to this nationally significant site are transparent, lawful, and truly worthy of its historic legacy.

Thank you,

Lauren

The White House is a historic landmark and any modifications should have been proposed with a public consultation period before construction. No part of the building and gardens should have been demolished. The exterior dimensions, interior layout, interior design, interior dimensions, and gardens/ landscaping should be restored updated only for fire code, ADA access, wiring, and plumbing. There is no way to add an extension that is larger than the entire pre-existing building in any way that would make the final result symmetrical or pleasing. My recommendation is for the ballroom, if needed, to have been built under ground as I've seen additions for historic buildings do, such as the St. Andrew's Cathedral in Singapore, which has 4 stories of space under ground.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800. It should not be "modernized" to reflect the vanity and taste of the current occupant, but should reflect the classical, historical aesthetics of the existing white house, in keeping with the values of the people of the United States. It SHOULD NOT be larger than the white house itself, but should respect the historic scale and design of the White House.

At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

This project should not be allowed to move forward. The East Wing should be restored to the elegant, classy structure that existed before Donald Trump chose to tear it down for his own purposes. The White House belongs to the people and does not exist as a monument to one person. Building a ballroom on the property that is larger than the entire White House is another example of how Trump wants to make our country all about him, he wants everyone to look at the symbol of the US government and think of him, not of unity, not of democracy, not of the millions of people who live here, just him. His giant ballroom week be a reminder of him and his tacky gold and the money he bullied out of donors, which will serve to allow favors for his billionaire associates.
Restore the people's House to the dignity it deserves and keep it a symbol of democracy and justice and equality, not of excess and worship of a dictator. We the people deserve it.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space. The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I believe that the East Wing Modernization Project is a gross misuse of tax payer dollars and has already destroyed an otherwise completely functional and historically significant section of the White House. The White House is a grand Neoclassical building with a storied history. While grand in scale of its site, landscape, and architecture, it maintains a somewhat reserved countenance, not seeking to be opulent or ostentatious, but reflecting a genuine respect for the context in which it is situated.

The new East Wing renderings show a behemoth addition that will dominate the residence and drastically alter the character of the Ellipse in a negative way, imposing significant massing, as tall or taller than the Residence, and reshaping configuration of the Ellipse itself.

The limited imagery presented to the public shows a more ostentatious style, though superficially similar to the Residence, and expresses a grandiose image that is unbecoming and inconsistent with the Residence and West Wing. The project needs to be scaled back in both massing and style.

It also needs to go through appropriate review procedures required by law.

Re: East Wing Modernization Project — Public Comment

Dear Commissioners,

I write to express my strong opposition to the so-called "East Wing Modernization Project" and to urge the Commission to exercise its full authority in reviewing what amounts to the most significant — and most reckless — alteration to the White House complex in its 225-year history.

The White House belongs to the American people. It is a National Historic Landmark, a National Park, and the most symbolically significant building in the United States. The demolition of the East Wing in October 2025 was carried out without adequate public notice, without completed NCPC review, and without congressional authorization. That the Commission is now being asked to evaluate plans for a building that has already been torn down — a process that should have taken place before a single brick was removed — is itself a profound indictment of how this project has been handled.

I have several specific concerns:

The demolition was irreversible and bypassed required review. The NCPC's own standard process calls for review before ground is broken or structures are demolished. Instead, the administration razed the East Wing first and is now presenting plans after the fact, effectively presenting the Commission with a fait accompli. This sets a dangerous precedent: that any future administration can destroy historic structures on federal land and seek approval retroactively.

The scale of the project is inappropriate. At approximately 89,000 square feet, the proposed new East Wing is significantly larger than the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence itself. Architects, preservationists, and even some commissioners have noted that a structure of this scale would visually overwhelm the White House and fundamentally alter one of the most carefully planned vistas in the National Capital Region. As one architect stated in written testimony to this Commission, the proposed ballroom would reduce the Mansion to "the tail wagging the dog."

The process has been compromised by conflicts of interest. The NCPC chairman, Will Scharf, simultaneously serves as White House Staff Secretary — meaning the applicant's own employee chairs the body reviewing the application. The Commission of Fine Arts has similarly been stacked with administration loyalists. The American people deserve an independent review, not a rubber stamp.

The project raises serious transparency and accountability concerns. The cost has escalated from $200 million to $400 million with no public accounting. Private donors — including major corporations with business before the federal government — are funding the project, raising profound ethics concerns about access and influence. The Asbestos Disease Awareness Organization has had to file a FOIA lawsuit just to obtain basic safety records related to the demolition. None of this reflects the transparency that the stewardship of a national landmark demands.

Historic and cultural heritage was destroyed. The East Wing housed the Office of the First Lady since 1942. It contained the Presidential Emergency Operations Center. The Jacqueline Kennedy Garden — designed by I.M. Pei — was destroyed along with it. These were not expendable structures. They were integral to the history of the presidency and the American story.

I urge the Commission to fulfill its statutory obligation and subject this project to the most rigorous review possible. At minimum, the Commission should demand independent analysis of whether alternatives that preserved the East Wing were genuinely infeasible, require full public disclosure of donor identities and contribution amounts, ensure an independent environmental and historic impact assessment, and seriously consider whether the proposed structure's scale is compatible with the historic character of the White House grounds.

The White House is not a private club to be renovated at the whim of its current occupant. It is a public trust. I respectfully ask the Commission to treat it as one.

Respectfully submitted,
Martha Jean Schindler

Dear Commission Members:
I was horrified by the destruction of the historic east wing of the White House with no review by any appropriate historical commission. This loss to our nation is unfathomable. I am opposed to the President's planned ballroom to replace the east wing. Its size dwarfs our most important historic landmark, the existing White House. It has no architectural style and will not fit the context. There should be no construction until a plan that harmonizes with the existing White House and does not detract from the emphasis on that building can be developed. Experts in historic architecture should be involved. President Trump has demonstrated clearly that he has no sense of appropriate historic architecture and no appreciation of history. I urge the commission to veto this plan and attempt to work with the White House to develop something that is more appropriate, or better still, rebuild the East Wing as it was.

Trump has already turned the rose garden into a brutalist food court. This latest project is a much bigger blight on the White House.

The size of the planned space is disproportionate and out of keeping with the historical site. It will be an eyesore and an embarrassment, even if completed to plan, and the completed space will be unnecessarily cavernous.

This project is the product of a mind whose only guiding principle is that bigger must be better, and that largeness correlates with power. Pathetic.

I do not believe that this project will be built during the Trump regime, even if permission is granted. Any funds donated for its completion will be diverted by the embezzler in chief for his personal enrichment. The work will be stalled, subject to changing decisions and complications, and at best we can hope for, years from now, is a half-built, shoddy mess. This is an embarrassment to our nation.

I am writing to formally express my strong opposition to the current federal administration's actions regarding the East Wing of the White House. The White House is not merely an administrative building; it is a historic public asset that belongs to the American people. Any alteration to its structure or grounds should be approached with restraint, respect for its historical integrity, and full public accountability.

As a former permit expediter in a small Architectural firm, I find it shocking that any demolition to our White House would have been undertaken without all the agencies that should have been applied to, had issued permits. It is my observation that the demolition company as well as any Architects involved should lose their licenses. I believe that due to the current condition of the structure since demolition took place, should be reconstructed after permitting is in place in the most suitable manner to properly restore the original wing to it's historic character without unnecessary embellishment by those responsible for it's demise. There should be no Ballroom. It is also my belief that any other changes to Our Whitehouse or its surrounding property should be restored to former historic uses (ie rose garden) that come under jurisdiction of any agency meant to protect them. It is my belief that these restorations should and must be paid for by those who have caused the demise and not by public funds. Any small municipality would consider this status quo as well as levying heavy fines for minor infractions.

We know the American People no longer have a voice unless it is in line with the current administration but I am using my First Amendment rights to put an end to the destruction of the White House. Our house is an historic landmark. No one has the right to make changes to the building without the people’s permission.

I am disgusted by this Administrations abuse of power.

I think it is atrocious what President Trump has done and had the East Wing torn down. I totally think it is terrible that he wants to build such a big ballroom, that is bigger than the White House. Please do not allow this to happen whatsoever! He doesn't care about our country, and he only cares about himself and his ego! Do not let this go forward. Especially in such a big size. And do not allow a ton of gold to be put in there. He is wasting so much of our country's money with everything he is doing. I know he said donors are paying for this, but he wasted so much money, causing court judgments over and over and over!! And everything else!

Good Morning, I am just a regular American living in the heartland of the US. Minnesota is my home, and as a Minnesotan I am proud of our tradition of inclusion, caring for our neighbors, and concern for our democracy.
I am compelled to speak out against the East Wing project at the White House. I cried the day I saw that the current occupant tore down the East Wing, with no concern for history, no oversight, and no input from citizens.
Please do NOT let the garish, horrible ballroom go forward. It is not right for the people's house. It is intended only for the ultra-rich oligarchs to flaunt in the faces of Americans. It cannot be allowed to happen.
I have a family member who worked for USAID, so I have spent quite a bit of time in DC over the years. I used to love walking the mall and around the White House. Now I feel physically ill when I see what is happening to our house, seemingly without oversight.
STOP THE PROJECT, it will take over our house, and forever change the White House in a way that is truly un-American.
Thank You.

The new construction is too big! The need to host big events could be met by a building 1/2 to 3/4 of the footprint of this one. My other concerns are:
1) that the January 8, 2026 presentation did not provide an accurate view of how the trees will mask this new, massive structure. I worry that they will remove trees to make the buildings more visible,
2) the First Spouse's office is now further from the main building and sends a signal that it is not significant. It's also located on the same level as the industrial kitchen, which sends another unfortunate message, and
3) egress accessibility, as one commissioner mentioned. Could the grand staircase incorporate a ramp structure, or simply be made a ramp instead of stairs?
Finally, it is my understanding that the secret security complex was demolished along with the rest of the East Wing. If there's such a concern over this part of the complex, why destroy it? Where is it now and why can't it stay there?

No. Just NO! The 90,000 sf footprint is much too large. A ballroom off site would have been a consideration, but the damage is done. I would like my tax dollars used for arresting & convicting the people who are destroying my/our American legacy! I should not have to be commenting on an unnecessary Ballroom project when that money could be used to fund other projects within the NPS.

The style for the new East Wing should reflect the history of the United States and be compatible to the White House. The proposed size could easily overshadow our wonderful White House. When people approach these historical buildings on Pennsylvania Ave they should speak to to the humble beginnings of our country. Please, please, please- NO GOLD!! We have never been a country to flaunt our riches in the face of our allies or adversaries and we shouldn't do it now.

The White House has an iconic visage, with a simple yet dignified core design. The new ballroom plans, at almost twice the size of the original structure, will overwhelm and confuse the visual sight lines. The proposed structure will make the original house recede and completely destroy its visual impact and importance.

These new ballroom plans more closely resemble the construction of a new government building, rather than a wing on the existing Presidential home.

I do not refute that an addition may be needed for events and entertaining, but I am emphatically appalled by the size of the proposed structure.

I oppose the proposal associated with Donald Trump to construct a new ballroom at the White House based on both historical preservation concerns and fiscal responsibility.

The White House is one of the most historically significant public buildings in the United States. Since its completion in 1800, it has endured war, fire, structural deterioration, and multiple renovations that were undertaken primarily to preserve and stabilize the building rather than to expand it for luxury or ceremonial convenience. Following the devastating 1814 fire during the War of 1812, restoration efforts focused on faithfully rebuilding the structure to maintain its symbolic continuity. Likewise, the extensive Truman-era renovation in 1948–1952 was driven by structural failure that threatened the building's survival, not aesthetic expansion. These efforts reflected a bipartisan commitment to preservation rather than modernization for prestige.

Constructing a large new ballroom would represent a significant departure from this long-standing preservation philosophy. Alterations of this scale risk compromising the architectural integrity of a building that has been carefully maintained as a living historic landmark. Preservation experts widely emphasize that national heritage sites derive their value from authenticity, continuity, and restraint in structural alteration. Expanding the White House footprint to accommodate large-scale entertainment functions could undermine these preservation standards and set a precedent for future non-essential structural additions.

From a financial standpoint, the proposal also raises serious concerns. Large ceremonial construction projects tied to historic structures frequently exceed initial cost estimates due to preservation compliance requirements, security considerations, and structural integration challenges. Even if private funding were proposed, such projects typically still generate substantial public costs related to security upgrades, long-term maintenance, staffing, and infrastructure adaptation. Historically, expansions of high-security federal facilities have required ongoing taxpayer-funded operational support far beyond the initial construction expense.

At a time when the federal government faces competing fiscal priorities — including infrastructure modernization, veteran services, public health investments, and national debt management — allocating resources, attention, and logistical support to a ceremonial ballroom project does not reflect prudent stewardship of public funds or government focus.

The White House belongs symbolically to the American people and represents continuity across administrations. Changes to such a historic and nationally significant structure should be limited to preservation, safety, and essential functional needs. Any proposal that fundamentally alters the building's scale or historic character must undergo rigorous public transparency, independent preservation review, and congressional oversight.

For these historical and financial reasons, the ballroom proposal should be rejected in favor of maintaining the architectural integrity, historical authenticity, and fiscal responsibility that have guided stewardship of the White House for more than two centuries.

The fact that Mr. Trump tore down the East Wing without permission, in order to build a "great ballroom" — bigger than the Executive Mansion and West Wing combined, is an outrage. The project should NOT be approved. I'm a 71 year old grandmother and I have never seen such lawlessness (and I lived through Watergate). Nobody needs a huge ballroom for any reason, but what America does need is for this "President" and his plans to be stopped. The ballroom is just one example of how he runs roughshod over laws, traditions, common sense, etc. Democracy is on the line — and as patriotic Americans, we all need to stand up to stop Trump when he ignores the law.

The distortion of the East wing to a structure proposed to dwarf the rest of the White House building is an affront and desecration to a building that is not just a building, but a symbol of personal, historical, and patriotic meaning to us, the American people. This is not Trump's house. It is the people's house. Please restore the East wing to its original dimensions, belonging, and intent: an area dedicated to the first lady/spouse, and a place for the public. On the rare cases a ballroom of that size is needed, it can be rented without maiming a building of unestimable value. It pains me that the historic Rose Garden was concreted over and now looks like a souless courtyard cafe of some random strip mall. We are destroying our own heritage.

This president was very wrong to destroy any part of the People's House for his own garish, golden monstrosity.

Since the damage was done, I'd like to see the East Wing of the White House rebuilt appropriately and tastefully, in keeping with the style and scale of the White House with proper approvals and oversights by experts in both design and historical context.

I would suggest we sell that plane from Qatar to help pay for the restoration or that the president pay for the damages personally. The taxpayers should not have to pay one cent of the cost since we would never have approved this wasteful, disgusting idea.

The reconstruction should be coordinated by someone other than Trump or anyone he designates.

This is the People's House and it deeply offends me that it was trashed for this president's whim without the approval of the people. He will only be there temporarily. It will be our house forever.

The White House is the people's house. Any resident is only there on a temporary basis. As such, they should NOT be able to make any substantial changes without the consent of the people. I will refrain from comments on the destruction that has already taken place.

Instead, I would like to focus on the restoration that needs to be done. In order to restore the grace and dignity of a global symbol, it is critical to restore the exterior of the building to its original dimension and architectural style. I have visited the White House and realize that it will be absolutely impossible to restore the beautiful and historic rooms to their former glory. However, in as much as it is possible, it should be constructed to reflect the history and importance of the structure so that future generations can understand the history and importance of the White House. Further, if I recall correctly, the office of the First Lady (or possible First Gentleman) are in that space and should be restored.

Additionally, there is no need for a "ballroom" of any kind in the White House. We DO NOT have a monarchy in this nation. Repeat, we DO NOT have a monarchy here. If a large space is required, I am sure that there is one somewhere in DC that can provide that.

Please, restore our beautiful White House to its former glory! And, please restore the rose garden as well.

It may be appropriate for this proposed ballroom to be added to the Kennedy Center during their renovation, but not the Whitehouse.
Further it is beyond sickening and immoral to let children go hungry by taking away school lunch programs at the same time as completing a superfluous project such as this, ESPECIALLY when it was done illegally, without proper public input and communication.

Our White House compound has historically been stately, modestly projecting humble strength and respect for tradition. However, the ballroom as currently proposed is of behemoth proportions which would overshadow the main structure of the White House itself. The huge building is a tacky vanity project belonging more in an emperor's palace than sitting right next to the "People's House". IF a ballroom IS even needed (which I humbly doubt is the case), construct it elsewhere in the city, where it wouldn't dominate over the main White House building or detract from the understated elegance of the historical property.

If, however, one is approved to be built in place of the now-lost East Wing, the project should follow the correct past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style of the former East Wing, allowing of course, for interior updates such as wiring and ADA accommodations.

And finally, do not allow special interest funds to influence or pay for the rebuilding. Such funding undermines public trust in a government supposed to be "of (all) the people, by (all) the people, and for (all) the people" of this country.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and protected by local, state, national regulations.

Despite this, demolition in 2025 of the White House's East Wing was done without the necessary review, formal approvals, and permit/s required by law - a deliberate act of destruction of the American people's property.

I ask that destruction of a historic landmark in complete disregard of required process and permissions is made the direct burden of the person/s leading the demolition project.

The liability of making the American people whole in destruction of property includes not just reinstating the building (as deemed appropriate by the multiple governing parties involved including but not limited to NCPC, Commission of Fine Arts, National Environmental Policy Act, Congress, and the National Parks Service) but additionally any applicable fines, legal costs, and expenses related to the East Wing's reinstatement.

As a US Citizen, I request that it be made clear that public funding is not being used for any aspect related to rectifying this matter, transparent public reporting on the private funds used to settle this matter, and that any resolution remains 100% owned by the American people without any burden/s.

It is tragic that the People, and apparently the NCPC, had no opportunity to review the demolition of the East Wing prior to that action by this president.

This president needs no further monuments or gold-infested trophies to memorialize the devastation he has inflicted on this country. The White House is the People's house and all who have the privilege to occupy it should respect that history and tradition. He is not a monarch.

I support the NCPC specifications that limit the size and specifications of any additional construction so as not to dwarf the original structure and to maintain the integrity of the original structure.

The enormous ballroom Trump wants to build is clearly a vanity project, designed to leave a legacy of his time in office. At 90,000 square feet it is inappropriate in scale to the White House. Since the East Wing was demolished illegally, the space needs to be rebuilt but should be done in a sensitive, well-considered manner so that it blends, but does not outweigh, the gravity and significance of the People’s House.

Trump needs to put the East Wing of the White House, the People's house, back to the way it was. He did not receive approval to demolish the building. Trump himself needs to fund this. Trump may NOT tax or take money from the American people to put this back the way it was. Trump decided to demolish history, and Trump should be the one that fixes it on his dime. NOT ON THE AMERICAN PEOPLES DIME. Trump (not the American people) must suffer all the financial burden. Trump must legally acquire all necessary permits to restore the East Wing and he must not steal money from the American People to do so. He must fund this himself, from his personal finances and he himself made the decision to demolished history without going through proper channels.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.
The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

Since this demolition was done without proper permits or approval, what has already been paid by the people for the construction/demolition should be returned to the people. All restorations at this point should be paid by DJT and not the people.

I'm struggling to wrap my head around the idea that the East Wing of the White House — a space with deep historical, cultural, and civic significance — could be torn down without transparent process, public accountability, or even basic respect for the institution itself. The White House doesn't belong to any one person. It belongs to the American people. It's a symbol of our continuity, our history, and our democracy.

Replacing a historic wing with a ballroom — especially without clear justification, oversight, or public input — isn't modernization. It's vandalism dressed up as vanity. Decisions about the People's House should be rooted in stewardship, not spectacle.

We deserve leadership that treats our national heritage with care, not as a personal playground. Outrage is the only reasonable response when something this consequential is done without transparency or respect for the public trust.

I do NOT approve of a ballroom being built to replace the East Wing and demand that the East Wing be replaced to it's former state, by companies certified to work in Historic Buildings, at the personal expense of Donald J Trump. I further demand that an oversight committee be assigned to oversee every aspect of this project, including where the funds come from, and where the funds go to. At no time should Donald J Trump be allowed to seek alternative funds from citizens, corporations, or foreign entities to pay for this endeavor.

In the event you all approve this ridiculous request, which I am certain you will ignore the will of the people and do so, once again the entire process should be at the expense of Donald J Trump, with no contributions allowed from citizens, Corporations, or foreign entities.

The fact that you are NOW asking our opinions, after the process has already started and has done irreparable harm to this piece of history, stating it is a part of the process, is a travesty, and a blatant attempt to declare transparency and rule-abiding behavior, when it has been everything but this. Had any President in history tried to demolish the White House without significant discussion and approval by the people, they would have been removed. ANY RENTER in someone's home would be forced to pay for the damages done. What an absolute travesty to see the East Wing and the Rose Garden destroyed forever. This is OUR house, and he just comes in an takes what he wants. It's what he does, and he needs to be held accountable.

The White House is The People's House. The East Wing demolition was not approved through appropriate channels beforehand. One person is not allowed to make arbitrary changes to such a symbolic structure.
The East Wing should be constructed in a size and style consistent with the residency section of The White House. The 90,000 square foot building already started will be ridiculously large compared to the 55,000 sf residency section.
The White House is not supposed to be a huge, self-aggrandizing palace. I am deeply unhappy with the plan to build a monstrous addition that will detract from and undermine the stateliness and symbolism of The White House. Turning it into a tasteless pretend palace throne room is the perfect symbol for the current administration.

I would echo the many voices sounding out in dismay over the destruction of the East Wing without going through the appropriate channels. We are a proud people of a proud nation and the White House is a symbol of that pride. It must reflect stability, strength, our history, and be stately in its appearance. It is not, and was never meant to be, a convention center or hotel or entertainment venue.
If the President wishes to leave his mark, as other Presidents have, then by all means do so, but create a space that is in keeping with the original structure. Do not make it lopsided and detract from what the architects of the city created. The entire Capital was built in a way to amaze and humble visiting dignitaries...not make them scratch their heads and wonder why the White House looks like a Frankenstein monster.

Additionally I see no reason for the United States to build a ballroom. Should such a space be required there is no shortage of alternatives at various hotels, conference centers etc across the county including the greater Washington DC area. While it may be touted as being built with so called donations, it would become the taxpayer's obligation to pay for all upkeep, heating, cooling etc

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to comment on the planned East Wing "Modernization" project. In many ways, the name that's been used for the project provides insight into the concerns and corruption surrounding it. This is NOT about modernizing the historic East Wing -- if that were the case, the plan would be focused on updating the existing structure to better perform its functions, perhaps highlighting some of the historic elements of the stucture being improved (the history of the first lady's office, the historic nature of the bunker, etc.). Such a project does not begin by tearing the area to be "modernized" down to the ground with little or no notice. This project is, instead, an effort to leave an indelible, unfortunate mark on the White House while also providing opportunities for "donations" to the current occupant. The plans are for a structure that is wildly out of proportion to the remainder of the building (and seems to grow more every time a new rendering is issued) and which is solving a "problem" that has not been at the top of any previous administration's list of concerns.

I grew up as the daughter of a pastor and we lived in parsonages my entire life. While we made each place our own, we were also very aware that these houses were not ours -- they belonged to the church my father was serving and were not ours to drastically alter without the involvement of the church community around the design of the changes, the costs, the long term utility of the change, and where the change falls in the priorities of the church community. Perhaps it's that life experience that leads me to be so disturbed by this situation -- if a 3 bedroom parsonage in a tiny town in New Jersey deserves that sort of respect from its occupants, surely the White House more than deserves the same. The change proposed to White House do not align with the design of the current building, the costs are unreasonable (and keep growing) and carry the stink of bribery, the ballroom (while better than tents) is being built at a scale that is unneeded for its purposes, and surely this is not the highest priority this administration should have. It doesn't past the small town parsonage committee sniff test, let alone the review of a city or historical planning board, and certainly hasn't undergone the sort of rigorous vetting a massive change to a National monument should undergo.

While it's too late to save the East Wing as it was, and that's a tragedy, perhaps it's not too late to avoid replacing it with a monument to presidential ego and corruption.

Thank you in advance for your consideration of these remarks.

The unauthorized demolition of the East Wing represents more than architectural vandalism - it's a brazen disregard for the legal frameworks that protect our shared national heritage. The White House isn't personal property to be remodeled on impulse; it's a symbol held in trust for the American people, with explicit statutory requirements for consultation, review, and Congressional oversight before any structural modifications.

Trump's approach - bypassing the Committee for the Preservation of the White House, ignoring the National Historic Preservation Act, and treating this building like another branded property - sets a dangerous precedent that personal preference can override institutional process. This isn't about aesthetic disagreement. It's about whether democratic guardrails apply to everyone, or whether concentrated power can simply bulldoze through inconvenient procedures.

The financial dimension is equally critical. His family's documented profiteering from public office - foreign payments, property dealings, trademark approvals - makes the optics of taxpayer-funded restoration particularly galling. If this administration circumvented proper channels to serve personal vanity, restoration costs should not fall on public budgets already strained by his policies.

The executive branch under Trump cannot police itself - we've seen regulatory capture in real time. This requires legislative intervention: a bill mandating restoration to the pre-demolition state at Trump's personal expense, with clear penalties for unauthorized future modifications. The courts should enforce this as a straightforward property and preservation law matter.
Beyond immediate restoration, we need permanent structural safeguards: mandatory advance disclosure of any proposed White House modifications, binding Congressional review periods, and personal liability for officials who circumvent these processes. Symbolism matters, but so does establishing that no individual - regardless of office - can treat national institutions as personal playgrounds without accountability.

This isn't partisan; it's about whether rules apply equally or selectively. The answer to that question will outlast any single administration.

As a 61 year old, I grew up proud of the White House and still remember my 8th grade DC class trip. It was a big deal to learn how it was referred to as “The People’s House”.
I am devastated that the East Wing was torn down; I know it can’t be replaced. I do not think the project should change the visual balance of the front of White House. Please keep the aesthetic as close to the original as it was. Perhaps go deeper if necessary though I question whether a ballroom is “necessary” at all when so many citizens are struggling.
I hope the National Park Service is able to intervene and protect our parks and buildings which are part of American history and pride in our past before any additional historic buildings are affected, especially the Social Security murals and building.

Since the East Wing was destroyed without permission, it obviously needs to be rebuilt. However, it should be rebuilt in the same style and one that complements the existing structure. I don't think there needs to be a ballroom since there are many other locations in Washington that could fulfill this role. We most certainly do not need a gilded palace and the President should have little if any input into the style and decor. Replace the destroyed structure so it meets current building codes and reflects the history of the building and our country, not the deranged ideas of a Midas loving transient occupant.

Good Morning,

On the East Wing project: I am active duty military stationed overseas. A corner of the flag I have displayed over my personal computer desk at home, the place I spend most of my leisure to e, came down, and I worried it was an omen. I opened the news to learn the East Wing had been demolished. I put the flag up as a signal to friends and neighbors, especially here where there are anti-American protests, that I believe in the America that holds doors open overseas and invites tourists to join in a game of pass at home, with vast swatches of preserved wilderness and bizarre tourist attractions, willing to drop everything to give a stranger a tow, and to stop on the roadside to change a paraplegic's flat tire -- this is the American character I cherish and defend.

The proposed ballroom is an affront to American sensibilities. It is a symbol of an insecure ego that seeks appeasement and immortalization through leaving its noxious traces as many places as it can, like a dog scent marking. The Gilded Age had been an aberration, an error, and the gilding has been stripped away in no accident. We do not, traditionally, follow the elaborations and excesses of European kings -- I think of the contrast between the palace in Madrid, shining with gold plundered from the Aztec genocide, to the carved balconies of Peles in Romania, preserving the woodwork of Wallachia. We should not be derivative. We should not be ostentatious. "All that is gold does not glitter" --- J.R.R. Tolkien's words, to say that true value is not simply what is superficially apparent. What immortalizes the White House is what it is meant to stand for as the government of We the People.

I am against this project, but it has been set in motion. Private funding is just a way for the tip-top of the 1%, the mega-corporations and equity firms that drive our GDP and stock exchange ever higher without building true baseplate economic growth, to swear fealty to a self-styled king. Just as I continue to hold that Andrew Jackson, known to his detractors of his era as King Andrew the I, should be stricken from the $20 for his arrogance, the current iteration of King George should enjoy no glory. What grand balls are even held in the 21st century?! It's a clear evocation of the pre-WWI extravagance of the European courts; but this is America: no nobles, no kings! The Gilded Age fell apart for a reason, why evoke what failed?

There is a real long-standing complaint of a lack of a proper facility for large conferences that I've heard before. At this point, my best hope would be that from the rubble a functional conference space be built, with modern bathrooms, as I understand that to be failing of what had been in place. I do not have the White House so enshrined in my mind as to resent modernization, as the project is named here, and if that were what this was really about, I'd -- well, actually, I'd always object to it coming from private funds, bypassing separation of powers completely and opening such a clear avenue for bribery and corruption. With a proper bill to fund it from Congress to build something, I wouldn't have even blinked.

Yours sincerely,

Elizabeth J. Nickerson

This is a ridiculous waste of money, and is being utilized as a bribe center for the presidency. The president had no legal status to initiate these changes to The White House.

The project should be halted immediately. and plans for restoring the original East Wing of The White House should be initiated. All costs should be borne by The President personally for this illegal act.

Commissioners:

* This is no East Wing "Modernization" it is a destruction project.
* This project was begun without approval. Your job is to stop this illegal project from going forward, and force a restoration of the original building.
* No person or entity not following the laws should be allowed to make permanent alterations to the people's house, regardless of whether they already started the project or not. To allow this is to bow down to a tyrant who demands his way by ignoring the laws. That should NEVER be allowed when it comes to the people's house.
* The planned addition destroyed a vital piece of our history, artifacts, and architecture, which was representative of the seat of our government. It must be restored.
* The addition dwarfs the existing building and destroys the balance of the architecture of the building.
* No sitting president should be allowed to name any structure after themselves, as our country is not about thugs doing whatever they want; it is about being a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.
* The aesthetically offensive structure exists more as a self-aggrandizing tribute to an arrogant man, an enormous edifice named after that man, than as a suitable meeting place for state dinners.
* Approving this project would be an offence to the entire nation, as it has already destroyed beloved parts of the Whitehouse in favor of hideous, grandios ,asthetically unpleasing concrete replacing a beautiful, beloved rose garden with historical significance.
* Too much damage has been done.
* Do not approve this! Stop it!

The East Wing modernization project should be an exact replica of what was torn down. Though I'm sure that won't happen, whatever replaces it should be no larger than what was destroyed. It should definitely be in keeping with the the existing structure. The aesthetic MUST be respected.

To the National Parks Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the current plans for the proposed ballroom addition to the White House. While the intention behind this project may be to enhance the White House's ability to host state functions, I believe that the scale and design of the proposed ballroom are disproportionate to the historic nature and integrity of the White House as a national landmark.

The White House is a symbol of the American people and a monument to the nation's history. It has undergone several renovations since its construction, including significant restorations after the British burned it during the War of 1812, as well as numerous changes made to adapt to the needs of modern presidents. However, each of these changes has been carefully considered to preserve the character of this iconic building. The proposed ballroom, in its current form, seems to be at odds with this preservation ethos. The sheer size of the addition threatens to overwhelm the historical proportions of the existing structure and could set a concerning precedent for future alterations.
Historically, renovations to the White House have been approached with utmost respect for its original architecture, ensuring that changes remain in harmony with its symbolic and cultural significance. The White House has always been viewed as a residence, not simply a grand venue for lavish events. While modernization is important, it must be balanced with the preservation of the building's role as a living testament to the history of the United States.
I urge the committee to reconsider the current design plans and to prioritize modifications that uphold the White House's role as a symbol of both national pride and history, rather than pursuing additions that disrupt its established character.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Nikki Rasmussen

I'm really upset that the East Wing was torn down. Especially the way it occurred. We were lied to about the ballroom not touching the existing structure. The quickness in the way it was torn down makes me wonder if any of the marble, fixtures, windows, doors, or architectural details were salvaged. The White House belongs to the people of the USA, the Presidents who live there are stewards of our history. They have no right to demolish anything without our permission.

I also think 90,000 sq is going to look ridiculous next to the White House. Like a nice home with an obnoxiously large shop next door. I don't see the need for it, it's something that will cost taxpayers money and we will never benefit from it. Every event held will be paid for by us.

I'm also concerned that the donors will expect something in return. I don't believe the government should be in debt to corporations. They get enough tax breaks.

Over the past 40+ years, I had the opportunity to personally view many monuments to authoritarian and totalitarian government excess, from the great halls of the Kremlin to the "people's halls" in China, Vietnam, Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, and elsewhere. A very common theme among those monuments to poor taste designed to reflect the rulers' domination over their subjects is the adoption of knock-off version of Baroque or Rococo excesses, complete with utterly tasteless profusions of gold and stucco.

Having seen all of those buildings, I can honestly state that I have never seen anything so out of place, so grotesque, or so unbecoming of the character of the country as the so-called "East Wing Modernization Project."

I spent considerable time in the former East Wing when I worked at the White House and never failed to be impressed and comforted by its many examples of American art, woodworking, and architecture. Watching it all be destroyed was bad enough, but to have it replaced by a monument to ego and poor taste is like pouring the proverbial salt on the wound.

Please, do whatever is possible to stop this monstrosity from being built

Thank you,

I was devastated to watch the former East Wing be torn down to make way for the monstrosity the current POTUS decided to build. No permission, input, or support from the American people or Congress was even considered before the destruction of this historical building. The planned replacement is far too large and will look ridiculous next to the White House. The obscene scale and scope of the design is an embarrassment to the United States. We have no need to host thousands of guests for any kind of event. Our nation's capital is not an event center for lavish parties! The cost to maintain and host events in this building would necessitate The Ballroom to have its own budget! The former East Wing was good enough to host every dignitary and guest prior to this year. Now that we are forced to rebuild it, we must handle the situation with utmost care and expert input as well as input from the American people. I believe social events at the White House should be intimate and dignified, not a show of lavish excess.

It's important to note that a sitting president is a temporary tenant in the People's House. They have NO RIGHT to make unilateral significant changes. I certainly hope this mandate is made crystal clear to the current and future occupants of the White House.

The East Wing project is basically a destruction, erasure, and assault on our history. It is an attack on the People’s House solely to please the vanity, egocentricity, and narcissism of one individual. This house does not belong to him. He doesn’t own it. He didn’t buy it. It is not his property. He is merely a tenant that will soon be evicted, much like he did to others for decades in New York. The White House should be preserved as it has always looked. Even Graceland has been left to look as it always has. To build a ballroom that dwarfs the size of the White House is grotesque.

I am very upset that the East Wing of the White House was demolished without prior approval and consent.
I , a United States citizen and tax payer do not want a 90,000 square foot building replacing the original structure.
The New Ballroom should be limited to the same footprint, height and square footage as the original East Wing building.
The outside of the new ballroom should appear to be from the same era as the existing White House.
The use of gold paint, gold trim, gold fixtures, gold anything should be limited/better yet non existent. An approved historical interior designer should be hired to make sure the decor is tasteful and practical.
NO SECOND FLOOR is to be built on the WEST WING of the White House.
I wish the historical Rose Garden had not been paved over.
I wonder if any of the rose bushes were saved and they can be replanted somewhere else on the White House grounds.
The Lincoln Bathroom pictures I have seen after the remodel show a shocking lack of taste and regard for the era of that room.
Honestly, how do we rein that guy(DJT) in? There will soon be nothing left of the historical decor of the White House.
I am hopeful that smarter minds will prevail and a tasteful, in proportion and visually pleasing East Wing will be designed and built.
Thank you for your time and efforts trying to stop the blatant destruction/tasteless remodeling of our public historic buildings and properties.

This house belongs to the people and is not to be a monument to Trump. It should NEVER over shadow the white house itself. There is NO reason for a ballroom that large except to appease Trumps ego. If it is to be covered in that disgusting gold motif he has installed in the white house it will look like a brothel just like the oval office. I am devastated that the East Wing of our Whitehouse has been torn down. I respectfully request that it be rebuilt in accordance to the original design, scale, and exterior building materials, so that the physical exterior appearance of the original Whitehouse is restored. Preferably the costs for this should be ordered by the courts to be paid by the 47th POTUS or his estate since he is responsible for the destruction of the original East Wing.
As for the interior, my initial preference is to restore the East Wing just as it was. The Whitehouse is a historic site and should be preserved as such. However, I also accept that it is also a place where important work is done and history is made. Therefore if some modernization of the East Wing is needed to make it more efficient and useful to accomplish its traditional works and functions that would be advantageous. Planned changes should be done in accordance with the previous architectural style, building materials, and design of the space(s).
That said, we must remember that all future occupants of the Peoples' house are temporary ones. They are elected to serve as President of a Constitutional Republic. They are not monarchs or dictators; they are employed by the American people. They should have a beautiful and comfortable home that celebrates our history and character in which to welcome important guests to our country with understated elegance and grace. Events should be of a size that allows honored guests and their staff to meet and properly circulate amongst all attendees. They should have time to get to know one another, enjoy good conversation, entertainment, and food to facilitate successful, cooperative progress on the important business to come. So there is no need for a massive, ostentatious ballroom that out scales the rest of the house, or gold leaf everywhere that gives more of a palace look. That is totally inconsistent with the country and the government our forefathers created for us. We literally fought a war over this.
Thanks for the opportunity to weigh in on this. Please stand strong for our country. The decisions you make will hopefully honor our founders and history, and last for many, many years. The one who has caused the need for this project will be a very brief and unsettling hiccup by comparison. Thanks for your consideration.

The People's House, AKA the Whitehouse, does not need a ballroom. This building is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There are spaces nearby to meet these needs.

The White House is not a palace. It is a place of business to run the country in a way that does not waste the people's money on shiny extravagant decor. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Many who visit are often surprised at how small it is. Its size was intentional when built and the new footprint should match the original.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us. He lives there as our tenant. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. It should be constructed to me as accessible as possible. It should be well insulated, and airsealed. It should be powered with renewable energy to reduce long-term energy costs.

If it is determined that the East Wing needs to house a room appropriate for entertaining dignitaries, it should be made to fit into the original footprint and and match the existing architecturual design.

I am against the opulent design plans I have seen promoted by the current president.

The White House is the People's House, and NO ONE, not even the President of the United States, has the right to tear any of it down. What has been done to the East Wing is a TRAVESTY. I am heartbroken over it. If a president feels the need to renovate any aspect of the White House he or she should follow the guidelines that every other person has to follow when renovating a historic structure, especially one as irreplaceable at the White House.

The current plans for a ballroom are obscene. The massive scale of the planned space takes away from the majesty and beauty of the White House. The White House has always been so grand with its classical architecture and the symmetry of the East and West Wings. Replacing it with a 90,000 square foot addition will destroy any dignity the house once had.

I am appalled by the audacity of Donald Trump just bringing in bulldozers to wreck the People's House, without consulting anyone or getting any input on his plans. I worry for the artifacts that were in the East Wing, and I grieve for the loss of history that resided within its walls.

Please do not let the ballroom project continue. I would like to see the East Wing rebuilt as it was so that the grandeur of the White House will remain.

I am appalled by the destruction of the East Wing of the White House without any public input. I know there were some issues that needed addressed but total destruction was not the answer. Since the destruction is done and unfortunately probably most, if not all, of the important artifacts were destroyed I don't want o see anything else destroyed. It is my desire that the East Wing be rebuilt as closely to the original as possible with just safety issues and improvements to the original architecture being adjusted. I do NOT want a ballroom there. I believe that any and all changes brought to the White House property and grounds during this current administration be reversed and the grounds be restored to their original beauty.

Just submitted!

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be restored to follow the original plans as closely as possible, only allowing deviations for code and modern upgrades. No gold decoration should be employed.

This is a gross showing and expense at a time when the American people are being stripped of their rights . I understand that this is a private party palace for billinoire donors. The white house is the people's house, not Donald trumps personal palace.
Bringing down spending was the Republican moto, this and tariffs shows they only care about themselves and the rich.
Not to mention that all remodels and expense were never passed by Congress.
This is a disgusting and classes show if power gone wrong.

I oppose the current plan for the White House ballroom project. I can understand a need for a larger indoor space for large events. However, the proposed plan far exceeds that need and would dwarf OUR historic White House, which is not appropriate. From the renderings I've seen, the interior design of the ballroom in certain respects looks like a royal palace rather than the classic designs of our White House. I also am very saddened to have seen the destruction of the ionic Rose Garden and its replacement with a patio that belongs at a country club, and not the White House. And the "wall of fame" on the exterior wall bearing portraits of each President except President Biden, installing plaques that read like Twitter posts rather than neutral historic descriptions, and gold everywhere they can think of is not appropriate for our White House. It is of course appropriate for each President and First Lady to modify the interior design of their residential quarters to fit their personal style, but the public areas are not any President's personal space.
Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed ballroom.
Sincerely,
Rita Ruby

The title of those project is misleading. This project is not modernization, it is a trophy being used to exalt an individual. The White House is The People's House, yet it is being turned into both a palace and a country club for the rich.

Dear Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House, as well as serious concern regarding the removal of the East Wing without lawful authorization, including the required reviews, permits, and approvals mandated by federal law.

The White House is not a private residence. It is a National Historic Landmark, a National Park, and a symbol of our democracy, owned collectively by the American people. Any permanent alteration to this site carries national significance and must be approached with the highest level of care, transparency, and strict adherence to the law.

While expanded event space may be desired, the proposed ballroom's scale is incompatible with the historic character of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, it would exceed the size of the Executive Residence itself, fundamentally altering the scale, balance, and visual hierarchy of the complex. Established preservation standards require that additions to historic properties be subordinate to and compatible with the original structure. This proposal does not meet those standards.

Of equal concern is the removal of the East Wing without lawful authorization, including completion of the required review and permitting processes. Major construction and demolition activities in Washington, D.C. are subject to review by the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts, must comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and require appropriate congressional oversight.

In addition, the demolition and construction activities raise serious concerns about environmental and public health hazards, including the handling and disposal of asbestos- and lead-containing materials commonly present in historic structures of this age. Federal law requires that such hazardous materials be properly identified, abated, and disposed of through regulated processes designed to protect workers, nearby residents, and the surrounding environment. Undertaking demolition or alteration without the required environmental review and permitting creates unacceptable risks and potential violations of these safeguards.
Presidential approval does not supersede federal preservation law, environmental review requirements, or the jurisdiction of oversight bodies established by Congress. Proceeding outside these legally mandated processes undermines public trust and erodes the rule of law.

Public participation is not optional - it is required. I urge the Commission to fully examine the circumstances surrounding the East Wing's removal, including any environmental hazards created, and to reject any proposal that compromises the historic integrity, legal protections, or public stewardship of the White House.

The American people deserve a meaningful voice before irreversible changes are made to one of our most important national symbols.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Building an adjacent structure that is almost twice the size of the original is a error in balance. Not matter how it is decorated it will be an eyesore. This is the peoples house and we the people deserve a elegant balanced house. Not a huge tacked on monstrosity that even the original architect didn't like.

The White House must not be ripped down or significantly altered at the whim of a new Administration. The White House's traditional architecture is our national heritage and history, not the personal expression of a particular administration.

Modernization should be for safety, security or to accommodate evolving technological requirements such as electrical and internet needs . Architectural style should mirror the traditional style of the historic White House, not the personal taste of the current occupant.

I am so saddened about the huge addition proposal for the East Wing of the White House. Our Nation's home has been a source of pride that appears stately without being gaudy or pretentious. The current proposal completely disregards the beautiful symmetry of the property and the imbalance will be an eyesore if the project is not redesigned. Of course, the fact that demolition started before permissions were granted feels so wrong as well! Additionally, to add a lavish ballroom to the structure at a time when ordinary citizens are struggling to pay for groceries seems quite "out of touch". As proposed, it appears that the space will serve Washington elites rather than being something that serves the people.

The "ballroom" project being proposed for the East Wing replacement must be scaled back. New construction should match the scale and architectural style of the rest of the White House. While the former East Wing has already tragically been destroyed, every effort should be made for the replacement structure to look like the former building. It can use modern materials and have updated features while staying true to the historical style of the People's House. The interior should be designed with modification capabilities in mind, so that when the current administration leaves office, it can be converted back into working space for First Ladies and other necessary offices.

I am in opposition to this construction project as it currently stands in its planning.

My largest concern revolves around the destruction that has already taken place on the East Wing without the consent of the American people. The current President has shown little regard for both an important national monument and the law itself, and that leads to concerns for his plans to renovate the East Wing.

The size of the renovation reads to me like a project of ego instead of necessity. A grand wing of that size is an unnecessary expense when this country is facing so much hardship. A ballroom will not improve our relations with allied nations - it will simply allow the current president to throw lavish parties at the expense of American citizens. Additionally, the inclusion of a movie theatre is frivolous and is very clearly a selfish piece of the renovation that serves no purpose to the American people. It also shows a disregard for the purpose of East Wing, which was a place of office for the First Lady and her staff. Though those rooms will remain, they become an afterthought, clearly showing what the current president and his administration think of the position of the First Lady and her staff.

This is to speak nothing of the fact that the size takes little into account the space in which it must be built. The land surrounding the White House is already at a premium, and such a large construction will decrease that green space significantly and dwarf the remainder of the White House is a visually significant way, drawing attention away from an important American symbol and towards what is, in my opinion, an ego-project meant only to make the current President feel more important.

Nothing about the proposals for this construction have made me believe that this is a necessary update, nor have I been convinced that this addition is anything more than something to stroke the ego. If changes can be made that will show the American people that the current President respects the modesty and importance of national monuments, then I may be inclined to support the construction.

STOP THE DESECRATION OF THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE

The proposed "modernization" of the East Wing is not an improvement; it is an act of historical vandalism. The plan to graft a 90,000-square-foot ballroom onto the White House complex is a grotesque disfigurement of America's most sacred historic site.

The White House is not a convention center. It is not a hotel. It is a National Historic Landmark that has stood as a symbol of our Republic since 1800. To bulldoze the historic landscape for the sake of a bloated, vanity-driven entertainment venue is an insult to the American people who own this property.

We are witnessing the potential destruction of our shared heritage in real-time. Once the earth is broken and the concrete is poured, the damage is irreversible. The National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) must reject this monstrosity immediately. We refuse to let the East Wing be sacrificed for a glorified party hall.

This ballroom is an absolutely tone-deaf and ridiculous proposal. Without even going into the fact that this is a completely unnecessary project that has no discernible purpose other than as a vanity project for the current president, read the room. The economy, while thriving for those already basking in the glow of extreme wealthy, is basically failing for normal Americans. People are losing jobs, wages are stagnant and/or lowering, costs are up and rising. The size and scale of this project is also venturing into vulgar territory. The peoples' house is not one of Trumps' tacky casinos or towers. There are better uses for time and resources.

The need to modernize the East Wing to make it more suitable for the functions hosted there is evident, and it is needed.
(1) The size and bulk of the proposed design overpowers the White House, especially when viewed from the south with the landscaping removed. Please consider lowering the ceiling height of ballroom. Also please consider reducing the bulk of the proposed East Wing building.
(2) The ballroom and other areas should be fully accessible with ample elevators and easy access/egress for wheelchairs, walkers and also for people with other disabilities (blind, etc.) to all parts of the facility with more than one ADA entry/egress point. How would people in wheelchairs get out if there is a fire (and elevators are taken out of service)?

(3) Is a grand staircase really needed? That seems very old-fashioned, in a bad way. Modern ideas of how to move large groups of people should be used.
(4) The ballroom is designed to hold 1000 people, but not all groups to be hosted there will be that large. Will it be possible to divide it into smaller spaces for smaller groups? What is the breakdown of events in a normal year, and their sizes? The current system of tents has flexibility. How will the ballroom design have flexibility?
(5) Are there any plans for energy conservation and sustainability (heat pumps, etc.) to save energy dollars and provide reliable energy for the long term?

We do not need a ballroom. The White House and grounds belong to the American people and we will never be invited to dance in that ballroom. It will not belong to the American people. It will exist for the glorification of dictator Trump. There is no need for a ballroom, any more than there was a need to make a tacky low quality beachside patio out of the Rose Garden. The White House is not Mar-A-Lago and should not become a disgusting fake gold-plated version of it.
The East Wing should be restored to its ORIGINAL DECOR and any modernization updates such as more energy efficient lighting or wiring should take place then. There should not be a speck of fake gold anywhere nor should there be any alteration to the original appearance. There has never been a need for such an exorbitant and completely useless expenditure of funds on such an disgustingly arrogant vanity project like a ballroom that is completely unnecessary.

The damage has been done. A suitable, financial responsible and appropriate restoration must now be designed and implemented.
The White House does not belong to one individual. No one person has a right to damage and arbitrarily chose to alter the building. It has to be an illegal act. If not, it should be.
Take the right steps. Design an addition that is tasteful and architecturally significant. Follow the rules, the law.
The whole affair infuriates me when it comes right down to it. The act was so wrong.

This replacement MUST be smaller than the White House itself! Otherwise, it will make a mockery of the original building and thus of the government of the United States.
Heed the advice of the conservationists and design a building that meets the needs of the government while respecting the people of the United States, not any particular administration or leader. The current plan for a ballroom that is nearly double that of the Executive Residence is aesthetically distasteful and an utterly unnecessary use of taxpayer money.

Re: Public Comment on the East Wing Modernization Project (Proposed Ballroom Addition)

To the Members of the Commission,

I am writing to formally submit my comments regarding the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the East Wing of the White House. As a stakeholder in our nation's shared heritage, I urge the NCPC to ensure that this project undergoes the most rigorous and transparent federal review process possible before any irreversible steps are taken.

The White House is not merely a residence or an office; it is a National Historic Landmark and a National Park that belongs to the American people. While modernization may be necessary for the functional needs of the Executive Mansion, a project of this scale—adding 90,000 square feet to such a sensitive site—demands an exhaustive evaluation of its impact on the historic fabric and visual integrity of the complex.

I specifically request that the Commission prioritize the following:

Meaningful Public Engagement: In alignment with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, the public must have a seat at the table. Input should not be a formality, but a tool to shape the project's outcome.

Preservation Standards: Any construction must strictly adhere to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties to ensure the East Wing's historic character is not diminished.

Transparency and Accountability: I support the requirement for full review by the Commission of Fine Arts and the necessity of explicit congressional approval.

The American people are the stewards of this site. We deserve the opportunity to ensure that any changes made today do not compromise the historical significance that has endured since 1800.

Thank you for your time and for considering these comments as part of the official record.

The destruction of the East Wing without warning or permission was appalling and unnecessary. Constructing a ballroom twice the size of the White House is worse; at most there are half a dozen state dinners per year, so building any sort of permanent structure to house them is a tremendous waste of time, money, and resources.

As for the claim that "guest suites" will be included in the structure, the White House already has guest quarters in the form of Blair House, the Lincoln Bedroom, etc. There is literally no reason at all for these to be included in a ballroom.

Finally, the proposed esthetics resemble a mediocre European hotel more than anything else.

This is a travesty. The East Wing should be rebuilt in its previous form, and this horror should be stopped. If Trump wants to sit around the ballroom at Mar-a-Lago, let him resign and move back there.

The proposed White House ballroom is more emblematic of a European palace than of the “People’s House”. Prior to the demolition of the East Wing, both the East and West Wings framed and directed the view toward our historic White House. The size of the proposed ballroom overwhelms and minimizes the Residence — indeed overwhelms everything surrounding it —and I have concern that in the future, the decision will be made to raze or enlarge the residence to make it equally palatial in size.

For 250 years, the people of the United States have been clear that we do not want kings or palaces. If there is a need for a larger space for state dinners and receptions, such a structure must be in scale to and secondary to the White House itself and not look like a huge marble warehouse.

The East Wing of the White House was an elegant, graceful part of the White House complex. Its dimensions and style complemented the White House and its destruction was heartbreaking. I am sure it needed updating and modernizing of the infrastructure to bring it up to code and to repair outdated wiring and technical additions. It did not need tearing down.

I would like to suggest that the structure be rebuilt using the original plans (including 1940 revisions) with consideration to modernization of the building infrastructure, the underground facilities and all the electrical wiring updates but basically rebuilding the East Wing as it was, being sure not to include gold gilding.

If a ballroom is actually needed and is necessary for the President of the US to perform his/her duties, another space in Washington DC should be designated for that purpose. I do not agree with the current plans of this administration to construct an enormous ballroom which overshadows the official residence of the President of the United States. It sends entirely the wrong message to the people of the United States and to the World in general. We are everyday Americans and the White House complex should reflect a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

I would like the current construction stopped immediately. A stand alone ballroom is not part of the People's House.

I want to share my thoughts about the East Wing project.
From everything I know the ballroom is going to look like a generic ballroom found at any hotel or convention center. There are few details about the inside. The outside renderings don't match the rest of the building. There aren't any studies or mention about history, materials to be used, art to be displayed, color scheme, features for Americans with disabilities, the relationship between the new and old part of the building, kitchen access, etc.
Is it going to look like the Oval Office looks now? Full of golden decorations, and excessive items on the walls and tables? This beautiful house is turning into a cheap hotel.
This project needs more attention to detail and congress approval. The people that are donating money should not expect anything in return, or naming rights. Is it going to be called after a company like stadiums?
The White House belongs to the people. The fact that the White House is small is by design because we don't have kings therefore we don't need castles.
Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this project. Coming from a country (United Kingdom) that has carefully preserved hundreds of buildings of historical importance, I was dumbstruck by the destruction of the East Wing of the People's House. It was so sudden, short sighted and has, in my opinion, done irreparable damage to the American story.

I recognize that older structures can be inconvenient, but unless they are preserved we lose an important part of our history and sense of ourselves. Generations of British people have managed to preserve structures by modernizing them in ways that preserve their history and overall appearance while making them more user friendly to modern people.

It is crucial that whatever is constructed in place of the destroyed East Wing is in scale with the rest of the White House complex. The structure proposed thus far is much too large, dwarfing the most important areas of the White House. I would prefer that instead of building ANY new structure, a halt is called on the whole idea to allow a chance to re-think how to proceed. Perhaps a museum showcasing the events and history of the East Wing would be more appropriate than some kind of massive entertainment venue. Perhaps another site could be found for a "entertaining" building, totally separate from the present White House.

What has been done is tragic. You cannot make a silk purse out of a sows ear. Take a deep breath, assess the real need for a "ballroom", and plan that building in a different location. Preserve what you have left before you lose it all. One administration should not be allowed to dictate the future for all the successive administrations. This is an American treasure, not a personal project.

As an immigrant, I long to visit our nation's capital and see the history I worked hard to understand and embrace. I am so sad that I will never be able to see the East Wing as it was.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style of the former East Wing, update wiring, etc., and make the whole building ADA accessible where possible. Follow the past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.

If a larger ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city.

Please use the original plans, the 1940 restoration, and the latest fire and Electrical Codes.
Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code and modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure.

Preservation and restoration of our historic landmarks and structures should be paramount.

Thank you for your consideration.

As someone who lived in DC for 8 years and had the honor of touring the Whitehouse and Mrs. Obama's vegetable garden, I have been horrified to see the wanton destruction of the East Wing. It has been done with so little planning and regard that the most basic legal and safety protocols have not been followed. The design appears to have nothing to do with even a nod to historic architecture and seems crass and ill-fitting. It should be rebuilt to its original state and the Trump administration should be held accountable for this travesty. Thank you.

If a historic government building , especially "the People's House" where the president resides temporarily, is to have major renovations made which include destruction of significant historical structures, a PROCESS must be followed! No ONE person owns the White House and no ONE person should make a decision about destruction/renovation. The idea of Trump deciding to destroy part of the White House and build a HUGE ballroom, almost as big as the rest of the White House, I understand, is American and vile. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. It has been home to our presidents since 1800 and is perhaps the most significant historic site in the United States.

I strongly oppose the construction of Trump's 90,000 ft ballroom project on all fronts, and urge the reconstruction of the East Wing to as closely as possible to how it was previously.

Thank you for accepting my comments on the White House East Wing project. I'm a 77 year old veteran. In 1970/71, I was stationed at the Pentagon. During that period I had the privilege of visiting our National monuments. And how wonderful they are. One night I visited the Lincoln Memorial and while reading the Gettysburg Address, tears streamed down my cheeks. The Nation's monuments and memorials - including the White House - belong to the American people. I'm very disappointed in how the President has pursued his efforts to reconstruct the East Room in his image - guady and dominating. The East Room re-construction should be consistent with the overall general appearance of the White House grounds. It should not dominate over our White House. Please ensure that it is constructed in harmony with the White House, not an exhibit of narcissism. Thank you, Sidney Slone

The destruction of the East Wing is an outrage. As usual, this administration has used the “better to ask for forgiveness than permission" philosophy, but without remorse. This time the damage has been irreversible, which was undoubtedly planned. Inexcusable. I fully believe the money raised to create a new ballroom should instead be required to be spent on rebuilding the East Wing to exactly its previous specifications as of the time of the project start.

American citizens like me are outraged that the East Wing was torn down suddenly and without any warning. Trump has no right to destroy our public buildings without our informed consent. Trump's misplaced priorities are exemplified by this whole idea. Americans don't need a ballroom, we need good health care and reasonable immigration laws, among many other things. Not this Trump vanity project, which is just another example that his administration is much more interested in partying with his billionaire friends than taking care of the American people. A ballroom that is over 2 acres in area is excessive. A dance floor that is 30' by 30' is fine for 300 to 400 guests. An excessively large room can make gatherings seem under attended and are not conducive to a sense of community. A warehouse vibe is not what you want for state occasions. If you have too large a space you will need pillars and those increase the risk of injury when dancing. Please scale this back or build something more useful..

Hello- this is in regards to the east wing destruction and rebuilding. First the east wing is a landmark and should NOT have been destroyed- not only on the sly without senate approval but this WAS a national landmark. Second, the original building should be replaced in the same design as it was- to match that of other historic buildings in DC- many wall art was destroyed with the original building- painted on the walls that were torn down- style should match! Not that of a middle eastern gold way- and not renamed as well- the original east wing was already used, at times, as a ball room- this is part of the people house and not owned by a person- please restore to what it once was-

I am completely against the demolition and replacement of the East Wing of the White House.

The Whitehouse belongs to the people of this country and should represent dignity and respect. Any work should respect both our history and our future.

Demolishing the East Wing should have criminal and financial penalties. It needs to be carefully restored, not converted into a gaudy, unneeded space to parade wealth rather than represent our citizens.

The finding of this project is extremely problematic as well. Corporate money has no place in the Whitehouse!

The East Wing should be replaced as similar as possible to what it had been before it was unlawfully and illegally destroyed.
It's unfortunate this drastically selfish, disgustingly repugnant catastrophe has been allowed to happen to the people's house. This is the people's house, not Trump’s personal Epstein island. There are rules to be followed, and per the norm with this administration, the rules meant nothing.
Personally, I feel, total destruction of the East wing without going through all necessary procedural steps beforehand, is seditious. Any president who destroys the people's house in the way this was done, is grounds for removal from office. No vote needed, he's out. Done.
If a larger "convention center" is needed for diplomatic/governmental purposes, I'm quite certain other alternatives are more than doable.

While it is a reasonable assumption that the East Wing needed some updating, this administration should not be the one allowed to make the updates. Their lack of respect for and understanding of the historical importance of the East Wing and their brazen demolition of the East Wing without approval for the demolition or approval of appropriate plans for what was to be built in its place indicate the degree to which they believe rules do not apply to them. They can not be trusted to follow even basic zoning laws, let alone requirements for preserving the aesthetics of the White House. The President has made it clear that his primary desire is to create his own legacy by (re)naming things after himself. Someone with so little respect for this country and its history and historical relics must not be allowed to indulge their ego at the expense of American tax payers now and American citizens for the forseeable future. The Trump Administration must not be allowed to build a ridiculous vanity project like an obnoxious gilded ballroom on the historic White House grounds.

Trump should never have destroyed the East Wing of the White House. It should be rebuilt as it was, with Trump personally footing the bill for its reconstruction.
If a large ballroom is required for future Presidential State dinners, perhaps an existing government building elsewhere in Washington, DC, could be used for that purpose.
A ballroom that is disproportionately large, diminishes the overall image of the White House, which is an iconic and beloved image.

The proposed "ballroom" is unnecessary and monstrously out of scale to the existing White House building(s) alongside.

The former East Wing, demolished WITHOUT appropriate approval and without mitigation of environment hazards, should be restored in its previously size and design, and the ballroom proposal permanently scrapped.

In addition, there needs to be an extremely detailed audit of all funds "donated" toward the building project, and those funds protected against transfer to unauthorized individuals.

The People's house is our property not someone who resides in the White House.
The Money that is being spent on this, when Food programs are cut that would feed children (snap benefits).
Gutting programs that help pregnant women, women in general, making it harder for women to access lifesaving healthcare.
The fact that this administration is trying to make America look like all of the other Authoritarian regimes. I am totally against this and will not support it in any way.

First of all, it's a little goddam late to ask for comments. The White House - the People's House - has been irreparably damaged/destroyed by an egomaniac hellbent on eradicating American history. There shouldn't be ANY discussion required about adding insult to injury with this ridiculous ballroom scheme, whose only aim is to rub it into the face of every American, who should be horrified at the wanton destruction of a National Treasure. The amount of money this monstrosity will cost the American people - and make no mistake, we WILL be the ones paying for it, despite promises of private funding (which are already proving to be lies) - the amount of money could be plowed back into the desperately needed healthcare for the people who OWN the damn House. The East Wing needs to be re-built by careful artisans devoted to recapturing the history and spirit that were so callously bulldozed. The perpetrators of this crime should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law, from the lowest machine operator to the highest seat in the land.

I write to oppose the proposed ballroom expansion at the White House.

At a time of pressing national challenges (increasind costs of healthcare, uninsured, affordability crisis), investing resources in expanding event space at the White House is difficult to justify. The White House is a historic landmark and global symbol of American democracy. Major structural additions risk undermining its architectural integrity and historic character. The United States does not need a Kremlin or Buckingham Palace. This project does not benefit We the People - only the select wealthy!

Large events have been successfully managed for decades without a permanent ballroom addition. Before undertaking irreversible changes, there should be a full public accounting of costs, alternatives, and preservation impacts. I urge you to reconsider this proposal and prioritize fiscal responsibility and historic preservation.

Any modification to the People's House should be in keeping architecturally and stylistically w the rooms surrounding it. Additionally, if a ballroom is built it should be similar in scale to surrounding rooms and its size should be planned to host events based on historical data. An oversized ballroom would be in poor taste as well as be a waste of funds, not just in building it but in maintaining it.

A ballroom of that size is ridiculous. Any new building should match and reflect the rest of the White House's architecture, not some stupid rectangular box. A study on the number of events held at the White House and the number of attendees at each would provide valuable information as to whether the existing space is adequate and, if not, how much additional space should be considered. There should also be a study as to what should be replaced from the demolished East Wing like the First Lady's office, reception area, visitor entrance etc. Any new space should also reflect tasteful and appropriate decor, and NOT the current tacky, gaudy gold and white scheme that just screams a total lack of elegance.

The Ballroom should not be approved because:

1) The East Wing demolition was never approved, so no approval should be or can be given for a project predicated on that unlawful demolition.
2) The Ballroom is grossly out of character and dimensions compared with the remaining White House buildings.
3) The existing facilities have proved sufficient for meeting heads of state etc, so this gross overkill of a ballroom is not required and significantly larger than would be needed for this purpose.
4) The President has indicated that it would be used for inaugurations, but it would be much too small for this usage, without excluding huge numbers of the public.
5) The President has stated ever-changing budgets for this building, implying that the scope of the project is continually in flux. Until the details are set, no approval should be considered.

I agree with Commissioner Mendelson's comments in the January 8 presentation video regarding the size of the addition relative to the height of the ballroom as well as the total 89k+ sq ft as to whether it could be reduced so as to not be so overwhelming. Also there is a concern regarding people with disabilities being only able to egress in one direction. And finally, I do not want to see it named after Trump and I do not want it to resemble Mir-a-Lago in any way interiorly, i.e. no gold. If it has to be, let it be classy, not tacky.

In my opinion, this project needs to be designed in scope and style in equal size and standards as the White House it will be attached, or next to. It should not be larger, it should not be gawdy or depict only 1 person's particular style! it should be elegant, understated, a tribute to our democratic leaders. Please do not let 1 administration design this monstrosity in excess gold over shadow the White House, the Capital, and become something future administrations have to spend more taxpayers money to correct! You have 1 opportunity to get this right. Please use common sense and adhere to the existing standards of design elements for this new structure. Thank you.

I am deeply concerned by the hasty demolition of the East Wing without regard to the historic nature of the structure. The White House is a historic building and while changes have been made over the years, it is important to not detract from the structure as a whole. I am concerned that current proposals for a ballroom will overshadow the existing structure as it is my understanding that this proposed addition will be as large or larger than the 200 year old main building of the White House. The construction of an oversized new ballroom would also significantly detract from the relative symmetry of the current structure. This would significantly harm the architectural integrity of the White House, whose Georgian/Neoclassical style employs symmetry as one of its key features.

As a citizen of the United States, I am appalled that this administration believed that they could just tear down part of a historic building without first going through the proper channels that one would go through in order to renovate a historic building, especially one over 200+ years old. It's bad enough that the First Lady ripped out the beloved rose garden without even trying to preserve the roses.

Second, this is the people's house. The idea that the President is trying to fund this project with money from his conies is deplorable. Trump is essentially trying to recreate Maralago in the White House. The people will never be allowed to use this or visit it. The only people who will be able to utilize it will be Trump's friends and those "donors" who have given him millions of dollars to be able to have an audience with the president like he is a King. Remember, we do not have kings and dictators in our country. Unfortunately, our president is trying to turn the people's house into his own personal house.

The disregard shown to OUR White House is unbecoming of any citizen and more so for a public servant in our highest office. The blatant lying (as in the claim that the ballroom would not even touch the White House) indicates the intention to defraud the People. That house has stood as a landmark, and as a symbol for hundreds of years. My parents' home, which is older than country, received better care and more thoughtful upgrades as its history demanded. The Washington DC eyesore requires several things. First, we need an accounting of the historical items that were stored, taken, or destroyed. An accounting/documenting should have happened in the planning phase. I am confident that certain conscientious staff members Harold a good degree of that knowledge. Second, the White House requires restoration with a good degree of guidance. It can never be "the same" given the damages done. But at the very least it should be restored with as many historically accurate pieces as able, and thoughtful revisions as required. Since the damage was done so irreverently, I, as a member of the People, request that the regular steps for revisions be used, with an additional historical oversight committee's (perhaps historical architectural professors) approval step included. Clearly, this administration cannot be trusted to handle our belongings without a gatekeeper. Additionally, I would like to suggest that the gifted luxury plane (costing the People severely by the need to make it sufficient as a part of the government's fleet) be sold to stop the extra costs and to add to the fund to restore Our house. Any additional fees should be personal to the public servant responsible for the destruction.

Hello,
This is my first time submitting a comment regarding the Capital. I have never before felt that I needed to make a comment but I feel the East Wing project is out of control. The fact that the old East Wing was destroyed, without any prior warning, is wrong. The White House belongs to the people, not to Mr Trump. Its history should be preserved, not destroyed and replaced by a golden palace. There also must be a public review of any proposal, with public input into the design. There also must be a public review of all funding sources for the proposed project. No actions of any kind must happen until the public is informed and has an opportunity to review and accept the work to be done. The East Wing belongs to the people.

This project should have been approved before destroying the East wing. The White House is the people's house and this demolition with no consideration for history was an abomination. I think projects costing hundreds of millions of dollars of taxpayer dollars need to get some kind of approval by the American people. When a government is cutting USAID and SNAP benefits I have no interest in a vanity project for a President who will be gone from the White House in less than three years.

Restore East Wing to its original size and architecture....update necessary INTERNAL infrastructure (ADA accessibility, plumbing, wiring, fixtures, etc). For any MAJOR changes, follow all procedures and LAWS of this country (review boards, permits, etc). The WHITE HOUSE DOES NOT NEED A BALLROOM ON-SITE. Plenty of venues available in the area for the times a large space is needed. This project will not even be completed by the time Trump leaves office.....but we know he's not planning on leaving; at least not peacefully. PLEASE STOP THE MADNESS!!!!

As a child I watched the first lady Jackie Kennedy speak on TV about the White House. They restored it during Truman's term but every piece of the building that could be was saved. So much preservation. What happened to the East Wing was a disgrace. I do not want to see a huge ballroom there just like the Rose garden was destroyed. So many people are going without in this country. I will never benefit from a ballroom nor would the majority of Americans. Please restore the East Wing. It is so sad to see what has happened to our house.

I do wonder how demolition took place at the White House without input from the people who own this residence. Of course, we are now in hindsight of what should have happened. I understand updates to residence as far as wiring, heating and esthetics but total demolision should have been approved prior.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it-- BUT IT SHOULD BE MADE TO FIT INTO THE ORIGINAL FOOTPRINT AND DESIGN.

I'm totally against the destruction of the East wing of the White house. It's a historic building that has a significant meaning to the American people. If the Building needs updates to bring it to code that should be done. If anything is removed and replace it should save any windows doors, flooring. Everything is historical and should be handled in a very respectful manner.
In today's world we need to show elevated respect of what we have and how we treat the peoples house. It does not belong to one person. The fact it was illegally torn down should be rectify and rebuilt just as it was without enlarging it. No one should be rewarded for an illegal act.

It is preposterous to build a ballroom that will dwarf the actual White House. If the current venue for state dinners holds 200 people, the proposed ballroom will just be a huge, mostly empty space, even if the number of invitees to state dinners going forward is doubled. Plus, the proposed decor borders on being vulgar when compared to the understated elegance of the White House.
In addition, it is criminal that the East Wing was completely demolished without this project having gone through the normal and required review and approval processes.
Please put a stop to Trump's vanity project and protect the architectural integrity of the White House.
Please ensure that whatever is erected to replace the East Wing is complementary in scale to the rest of the structure and is visually compatible with it in every way, inside and out.
Thank you.

This is an insane proposal, obviously. It should not be carried through and those responsible for it she be put under close supervision.

We will desperately need to restore the East Wing to a dignified representation of a government that serves the people and that continues on through history, not a piece of oversized vulgar frippery that has not gone through any sort of serious design, planning, or review process.

It will be a huge waste of money, even more so once the costs of demolishing it, making plans for the proper restoration of the building, and reconstruction are taken into account.

The East Wing Modernization Project is a misnomer: The project should be called what it is: The East Wing Replacement Project.

The project as presented is entirely inconsistent with the concept and design of the other parts of the White House complex. Ideally, therefore, it would be best to rethink and redesign the project in its entirety, since only foundation and below ground infrastructure work has been completed to date. If that should prove impossible, for design and political reasons, then the size of the project should be very substantially reduced, so that it can be harmonious with the rest of the WH complex. Also, the interior lighting and decoration should harmonize with the other parts of the exterior of the WH complex. Gold and goldplate should be eliminated, if possble.

Thanks for considering these comments.

As a former Compliance Officer and 10-year veteran of the USEPA and a former licensed Professional Engineer, I noticed that the project, when it was initiated, did not provide the proper abatement for known and likely asbestos and lead. This must precede any further action on the project, including enforcement action against all officials and contractors associated with the demolition, plus soil sampling and surface sampling on adjacent buildings where building downwash of toxics-laden dust would be expected.
Secondly, the people's artifacts of historic importance should be catalogued and preserved, and returned to the new building or housed in the Smithsonian. Thirdly, the footprint (L x W x H) of the new construction should match and balance the footprint that was there prior. The materials of construction of the new space should be consistent with the materials that were there prior, with no new marble, gold leaf, or other extravagant materials that are not consistent with the historic nature of the building. The functionality of the space would be better served as conference space, with one large conference room plus multiple rooms that can function for meetings or offices.
Thank you for the opportunity to comment. All contractors on the project should be minority business enterprises or women-owned business enterprises as well.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King and does not require a room to hold court; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

It should not reflect the taste and design of the current occupants. Rather, it should reflect the historical architecture and style of the former East Wing and White House. It should not be funded by private donors. It should not be named for a specific person. It should not be decorated with gold nor used to display the current occupants awards, accolades, mementos, or other displays of a personal nature.

It should be ADA compliant, open to all, and available to visit. The calendar and schedule of events should be made public and clearly state the purpose and sponsors.

The Rose Garden should be restored. The vegetable and herb garden should be restored. The current outdoor dining patio should be removed.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit my comments on this very important issue.

The White House is an iconic, historic building representing 250 years of our nation. The destruction of the East Wing for any reason, by law, should have been announced and reviewed by the appropriate organizations before it was ever done. In a time when millions of people in this country and throughout the world are homeless, food insecure and without any healthcare it in immoral to spend millions of dollars on a ballroom. Our citizens do not need a fancy place to entertain celebrities and politicians. It doesn't matter whether the project is funded by public or private funds. It is ludicrous to spend on a ballroom when there is so many more impressing needs for out citizens.

The People's House has been agregiously scarred by the destruction of the East Wing without consideration or approval. To continue the project and erect an unnecessary ballroom that is almost twice the size of the White House is both fiscally irresponsible, historically repulsive, and an insult to the American People.

I absolutely oppose the continuation of this vanity project and demand it be restored to it's former historical appearance. It is appalling that a temporary guest in the People's House believes he can destroy and remake our property to his vain ego.

Do not let this project happen.

I am completely astounded that in a democracy such as the one the United States aspires to be, a president can't unilaterally decide to take down a major government building to suit their own fancy. I am opposed to any unilateral decision such as this. One might hope / expect that a president would abide by the rules of the land. There is no reason for a ballroom to be constructed and one that is the height of the President’s home, an historic landmark that every visitor to the nation’s capital wants to see. It is a sacred structure that has already faced demolition without permission.

Practically:
-there will be a first spouse who cares about the country and issues who deserves space at the center of what has been power.

-taxpayer funds will be involved in cost overruns AND constantly for upkeep, repairs, cleaning.
-the plans show no ADA compliance let alone accommodations for people with disabilities.
-nothing indicates the practical features of a ballroom that make it functional.

In a time when housing, medical care including pre- and post- natal for the babies encouraged to be conceived; for housing to ensure what Pres Trump wants for DC aesthetically is built; to ensure air safety, for the future of the US, the future expenses have not been calculated. Because we are in a deficit, it is irresponsible for this to go forward to satisfy a perceived need that does not exist.

I thank the National Trust for Historic Preservation for inviting the public to submit comments about the destruction of the East Wing of the White House, now euphemistically called the East Wing Modernization Project. I will not dwell on how upsetting it was to me to see the East Wing of the White House being ripped to shreds by wrecking equipment.
I am an ordinary citizen who absolutely hates the idea of a large ballroom being stuck onto the White House. I hate the idea that the ballroom plan as it now stands will dwarf the White House. It upsets the balanced facade of the building and gives prominence to a section that is quite frivolous.
My one "constructive" suggestion is that if the ballroom is approved and built that it be built in such a way that it can be brought down immediately with a minimum of difficulty and cost so that when we have a new administration in power that appreciates historic significance, a new East Wing can be built and restored to the people's White House. Thank you.
Most sincerely, and most sincerely horrified by the crass ballroom architectural plan,

This is wrong. Please stop it. I can't even change the paint color where I am a tenant. The American people's properties are not for sale to the highest contributor. IF there are changes to be made, I want them reviewed and agreed on BEFORE destroying my property. I want changes to be tasteful for a democracy, not gaudy and gold, and I want to pay for them with my taxes to ensure my government isn't for sale.

I am so sick of Trump acting without prior approval. That is not how things work, and as long as you keep claiming it's too late because the building is already gone, he will keep acting this way. I am writing to express serious concern regarding the proposed 90,000 square foot ballroom addition to the White House complex.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and one of the most symbolically significant sites in the United States. Any substantial alteration to this complex demands careful scrutiny, transparency, and meaningful public engagement.

A project of this scale raises important questions about historic preservation, architectural integrity, visual impact, security implications, long term maintenance costs, environmental effects, and funding structure. The public deserves a clear explanation of why a structure of this size is necessary and what alternatives were meaningfully considered.

The review process under NEPA and the oversight of the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts exist to ensure thoughtful analysis and public input before permanent changes are made to nationally significant sites.

Before any irreversible steps are taken, I urge the Commission to:
1. Require a comprehensive and transparent environmental and historic preservation impact assessment.
2. Fully evaluate reasonable alternatives, including renovation of existing spaces or off site options.
3. Clearly disclose projected costs, funding sources, and long term operational and maintenance implications.
4. Prohibit the use of private donations to finance permanent structural additions to the White House complex. If funding is contemplated, it should occur through public appropriations subject to congressional oversight and open debate.
5. If private funding is considered at any stage, require full public disclosure of all proposed donors, any conditions attached to donations, and any recognition or influence associated with such contributions before approval.
6. Ensure that preservation standards appropriate to a National Historic Landmark are strictly upheld.

The White House belongs to the American people. Decisions affecting its historic character should reflect careful stewardship, public accountability, and respect for its national significance.

Thank you for considering this comment.

I'm beyond angry at what has happened, and happening to the WH, the People's house.
The damage Trump has done to the People's house is devastating. The East Wing was demolished without proper authorization as well as secured funding.
This is the People's house, not his personal playground. It's not how we are as Americans, and the WH is not his personal palace.

The applicant for the East Wing project made false representations about the project, which demand that additional and independent oversight be put in place before any future work on the project is started. Neither the original announcement nor the massive and irreversible actions to tear down the East Wing went through the Congressionally required process for modification to the historical White House. A slow, deliberative process must be put in place, and enforced, for the design of a new structure. If additional laws or regulations are necessary to ensure adequate oversight, any work on the project should be delayed until such changes are in place. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

My first thought is - this is a one, right?
My second thought is - if not a joke, isn't this about 6 months late?
My third thought is - didn't the resident just extend the entertainment space by destroying lawns and gardens?
My fourth thought is - won't this president be gone before any of the appropriate legal reviews and lawsuits are settled, not to mention proposed plan reviews, building permits, construction contracts, and funding issues are resolved?

So finally, I say, restore the East Wing to what it was before it was illegally demolished. If there is a genuine need for increased entertainment space, build it into the main floor within the original footprint.

Oh, find the alleged donations and put them in an account that is used for the RESTORATION of the East Wing.

I write to express my concerns about the East Wing Modernization project. Though I appreciate the need for a larger indoor meeting space for the White House I believe what's been proposed does not follow federally recognized Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation related to construction projects affecting historic buildings.

The design for the White House was selected after a comprehensive process with the original winning proposal selected by George Washington. Later additions and remodels were developed through similar processes where thought and care were put into insuring that the historic character of the original design was respected.

I am deeply concerned that the proposed design has not gone through a similar process. The White House is the "People's House" and belongs to the citizens of our country. It would be a disservice to the people of this country to allow the design to be dictated by the current president. It creates an unhealthy precedent for the future of this and other historical buildings that belong to the citizens of our country.

Like many others I am also concerned that massing and height of the proposed new addition will overwhelm the original design of the White House and will disrupt the thoughtful classical design of the building with its two lower and smaller West and East wings. The original design of the building was based on classic Georgian and neoclassical principles. The proposed addition shows little to no respect for those design principles.

My recommendation is that an independent commission be charged to explore design alternatives and modifications that would accomplish the objectives of the current administration to provide for larger meeting space while preserving the classic design and historic integrity of this globally recognized symbol of our nation's ideals.

Thank you for the opportunity to voice our opinion on changes to the White House. Maybe we looked at it for a lifetime and saw nothing wrong with the way it was. The EAST wing seemed in proportion with the rest of the building, the rose garden was a wonderful touch, since you don't get much use with the patio in the dead of winter.

As for the ball room - 90,000 sq ft is entirely too big and how often will it be used. It's not like when there is a natural disaster it could be used for shelter. It seems like a great waste of taxpayer money. Make sure all those people that offered up their money to fund the project put in their share.

Rebuild the White House as it was. If a smaller ballroom absolutely has to be added NO GOLD accents.

The day I saw a bulldozer demolishing the beloved East Wing, I wept. I never imagined that a president of the United States would desecrate a fundamentally important building for this Nation in such a callous manner. It was a symbolic gesture of disdain and contempt for our love of The People's House and the memories made inside the walls. A president is a temporary resident and not the owner of our house.

These are my recommendations for the reconstruction of the East Wing.

Replication of the original building is the only option. It should be the proper proportion to the main structure. No gold embellishments and tacky faux gold. The original artifacts, decor, and artwork must be returned to the East Wing. The original ballroom was a sufficient size and should be reconstructed.
Bring it back to its original glory.

Thank you for ensuring the quality of workmanship and integrity of the East Wing.

Tax payers should not have to foot the cost of this build and replication of the East Wing. This should be paid in full and in advance by the president for his disregard for the proper management and planning of this project.

Sincerely,
Leslie Smith

To the NCPC, I respectfully submit the following regarding the East Wing Modernization Project.
The demolition of the East Wing is an irreparable loss of history. The 1942 East Wing, while not as old as the main mansion, held significant history, including the First Lady's office, the family movie theater, and the underground bunker.
The Society of Architectural Historians and the National Trust for Historic Preservation have expressed "grave concern," noting this is the first major change to the White House exterior in over 80 years.
The current administration went ahead with the demolition of the East Wing despite assurances that they wouldn't demolish it. We cannot trust them to not deviate from their public statements.
There is a lack 9f transparency and oversight. In addition, the project circumvented standard independent reviews, including the National Capital Planning Commission.
While touted as "privately funded" (reportedly $250-$400 million), there has been a failure to release a full, transparent breakdown of donors, raising ethical questions about influence.
Unlike previous major White House renovations (like the Truman renovation), this project did not have congressional oversight or approval.
The proposed 90,000-square-foot, 20-foot-ceiling, "gilded" ballroom is described as being in the style of Mar-a-Lago, which is inconsistent with the historic, neoclassical, and relatively restrained design of the White House. In addition, the new structure would nearly double the total footprint of the existing White House complex which is grossly excessive.
The East Wing served as the primary public entrance for tourists, school groups, and visitor tours. Replacing it with a private, exclusive venue for elite functions converts "the people's house" into a private event space.
Disruption of the Historic Campus: The construction replaces a functional,, and historic wing with a structure designed primarily for entertainment rather than executive, governmental work.

The, 24/7 construction, including, demolition, of a major, facility, on, the, White, House, campus, causes significant, environmental and residential disruption in the surrounding, neighborhood,
The project involves significant changes to the historic landscape of the, White House grounds.
The project is being driven by one person's taste rather than a collective democratic process that respects the building's history.

Additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

Obviously I do not want to commemorate the worst President ever with a Trump ballroom. I suggest instead a museum of the many crimes of his administration. You could put the Epstein files up on the walls; they'd look good there. In any case, no ballroom and nothing positive named after Trump.

I do not support the East Wing modernization project as it includes the addition of the ballroom which will impact the beauty and balance of the White House. The ballroom is too large and will dwarf the White House. If past behavior predicts future behavior, this ballroom will not represent the American people but rather will serve as a a way to sell seats and raise money for private rather than public gain.

can't think of a thing the country needs less than a giant ball room that looms over the White House like a giant bedazzled McMansion.

The East Wing was historic in its own right, as the space where First Ladies and their staffs reached out to the American people through worthy causes and through hard times. It should have been preserved, and if there was a need for larger event space, it should have been accomplished without the East Wing's senseless destruction.

Seriously, though, a ball room is not a need, it's a want, and that want is coming at the expense of healthy care, education, support for our elderly and disabled, safe roads and bridges, affordable and safe food, and the science that powers our start ups and tech businesses. This is the ultimate Marie Antoinette callousness, because partying while the people starve is unconscionable. This loss of the historic East Wing a national shame, especially when paid for by wealthy donors who could be using their wealth to pay their employees fairly and for philanthropy aimed at a social good.

I am devastated that the East Wing of the white house has been destroyed and a ballroom is being proposed in its place. I was very lucky to be able to take my family to Washington DC for the first time last summer. We scheduled a White House tour and were able to see the beauty of the East Wing first hand. The rooms, the gardens, and the majesty of the White House. It is unacceptable that someone would destroy that historic building so quickly and attempt to immediately replace it with something so grotesque. It will be massive and will destroy the beauty of the White House itself.

I oppose the ballroom proposal and urge anyone who is able, to stop this project as quickly as possible. Even if it means that money already spent will be wasted. This ballroom should not be built.

The White House is the people’s house. President Trump, or any other president, is a temporary resident. He has no right to destroy parts of the White House or build a monstrosity that will dwarf the White House. If a ballroom is needed, build it somewhere else. The cavalier way he destroyed the East Wing without getting permission or even asking for forgiveness is the same way he approaches governance. He needs to be made aware that he doesn’t have absolute power and he doesn’t own the White House. He should not be permitted to build a ballroom that the people do not want.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. Therefore, such a significant change should follow a rigorous and deliberate design and review process.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. The building is part of our nation's history; he should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

Any further renovations should be funded by Donald Trump, NOT the American people, to include all fines and applicable penalties. Also, what has already been paid by the people for the construction/demolition should be returned.

I am concerned with the size of the overall structure. It seems to me that a ballroom for 1000 people is excessive. Thirty-eight foot ceilings are excessive. I am especially concerned with the decor that will ultimately be placed in the space. Simple and dignified is more appropriate for the ballroom attached to the White House rather than extremely ornamented and gaudy.

Given that the East Wing of the White House, the people's house was torn down without proper permission and permits, I do not believe that permits should be granted for the new, gigantic ballroom proposed by President Trump. I believe the East Wing modernization project should be just that, a new modernized version of the East Wing on the inside, while looking just like the old East Wing on the outside.

No other president ever felt the White House needed an addition of a grandiose, gilded, expensive ballroom that will eclipse the actual White House. There are plenty of venues in and around Washington D.C. where inaugural balls and other events are held if a larger space is needed for a planned White House/State event. Also, the new building should be properly funded by Congress instead of President Trump fraudulently soliciting donations for the new building.

There is no need to ruin the architecture of the White House and the East Wing. The new building should demonstrate respect for the original architecture and follow the same principles. The East Wing should continue to provide space for the work done there before by the many First Ladies and their staffs who worked there to improve the lives of the people of the United States of America.

As a citizen of the United States who is interested in American history, architecture, landscape architecture and historic preservation, I was sickened and stupefied that the East Wing of the PEOPLE'S HOUSE was demolished without the proper legal authority and without asking the American people what they thought about such an extreme action.

My personal feeling is that we don't need a ballroom - period, the end. We certainly don't need one that dwarfs the White house. That would not be in keeping with good architectural design and would send the wrong message about the priorities of our country. The White House is not a palace for a king, it should be representative of a democracy. It should not be a status symbol for any one president, especially one who does not put the American people first. A ballroom is an unneeded luxury that gets little to no use. There is no reason that ballrooms in other venues around Washington, D.C. cannot continue to be utilized.

I would also like to know what happened to items that were housed in the East Wing before its demolition. Were any architectural elements of the building preserved? They belong to the people and we have a right to demand that our history not be destroyed or hidden away.

I urge you to do whatever you can to stop this project. It was conceived of and is being implemented without respect for the citizens of this country and our history.

Thank you so much for taking the time to collect comments and thoughts on this project. The current administration failed to take into consideration, the opinion or thoughts of the American people, prior to demolishing our house. It was a horrific and traumatic day to watch a bulldozer rip down an entire wing of the house. I believe it was an impulsive and retaliatory action by the administration to communicate the displeasure of the largest anti-administration protest ever, which was held two days prior.

I do not think a ballroom should be built there. I think the area shall be cleaned and rebuilt in its prior image. I understand that there were some lower levels that served various functions, and I feel upgrading those to provide better security or function for those who use it would be important. Additionally, I would like to see an audit of the funds that were supposedly secured for this illegal and unapproved project.

The White House is the people's house. Do not allow special interest funds to influence or pay for the rebuilding.
Make it compatible in scale to the west wing and main house. Make it balanced visually. Conform to the original style of the main house.

The time to request feedback from the people - to whom the White House belongs - is not after demolition has begun; feedback should be solicited BEFORE anything starts. If the president wishes to make changes, he should bring ideas and thoughts to senators and representatives, who can then take the ideas and thoughts to their constituents to gain feedback. The president should take all feedback into consideration BEFORE starting anything.

I do not see the importance of a gigantic ballroom - bigger than the primary residence itself. I have not heard any rationale for this addition to the White House - none, at least, that would justify changing the profile of the White house so dramatically.

What I see is a vanity project. I find it disgusting.

The White House is the "People's House". President Trump will not live forever, and his ill-advised whims regarding this iconic property will go down in history as one of the most egregious desecrations of one of our most beloved architectural and historic gems.

The White House is the people's house. It is not intended to be an event space nor a palace. 1. If the construction of the ballroom is being funded by private donors and corporations, what are they expecting in return? Surely, conflicts of interest must exist.

2. How often does the President host balls or events which require seating for 1,000 guests? Are there not alternative venues in the capital that can be used for such occasions?

3. The White House is primarily a residential and workplace venue for the sitting president. Large-scale construction projects should be centered around those two primary functions and not around transforming it into an entertainment venue.

4. Once the construction of a ballroom is complete, what is the bill that tax payers will be saddled with for its annual upkeep and maintenance? Why should we be paying taxes to maintain a space which will be largely empty and unused most of the time?

5. The lavish nature of this project sends the wrong message to hard working Americans who are struggling from day to day just to make ends meet. Donors to the project could exhibit greater patriotism by supporting projects and ventures that help to improve the lot of their fellow Americans - thereby creating a more cohesive society. Building ballrooms does not build community.

6. What alternative uses might this ballroom have that might benefit the public at large? Will more activities be planned for larger audiences in order to engage the public and to provide various educational opportunities? If the space will function as a community center of sorts then - perhaps - there is a discussion to have.

7. If construction proceeds, will there be a fair process for selecting the various contractors for the project - or will the contracts be handed over to friends and/or relatives in high places? We would like ALL interested and eligible companies to have the opportunity to bid.

The planned ballroom is an abomination! First! The East Wing should not have been destroyed at all without public and congressional input. Any replacement structure must not overpower the White House itself!
All of this expense for wealthy people to nuzzle up close to the president is ridiculous! Do not allow this abomination to be built under any circumstances!

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space. If a ballroom is needed then find another location for it, not the East Wing of The White House.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. It must be kept that way.

The occupant of The White House is not a King/Queen; he/she works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He/she should not be able to rebuild it to his/her own tastes, no matter who is paying for it. He/she is the caretaker of The White House during their term in office as The President of The United States, they are not the owners and do not have unilateral authority to change/modify The People’s House.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was illegally demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design. If it is determined that a larger ballroom is needed then find another site for that venue.

The East Wing of the White House--one of the most important historic structures in the United States--was illegally destroyed. Under no circumstances should its restoration be left in the hands of those who willfully destroyed it. The US has no need of a Mar-a-Lago-style ballroom that is the size of three football fields. The sheer size of the proposed structure would swarf the residential portion of the White House. Restoration cannot be left in the hands of those who clearly have no intention of adhering to our historic preservation laws and regulations.

The East wing should never have been torn down without proper vetting including public comment based on laws and regulations.

The administration should be required to keep the footprint and scale of the area that they tore down. They should also be required to restore anything. It was a significant architectural or historical value.

Finally, they should pay a substantial fine for violating all the related laws and regulations. Trampling on the laws and regulations designed to protect our heritage should not be tolerated.

I would like to submit my comments for a re-consideration of the East Wing Modernization project. As a great-grandson of ancestors who built this country, and on behalf of all of them and myself, I say halt this action.

Note, the White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service.

Stop!!

"Stewarded" does not mean the same as "managed" or "run" by the NPS or its current political bosses, whatever the year. Especially when those same "bosses" seem to think they can stick their sticky fingers into any and every pie on the windowsill of America. Generations of Americans have made what you are messing around with.

Perhaps you are unaware that what you propose to do - in accordance with every other power struggle you engage in - is nothing other than graffiti, political graffiti that defaces what we tried to make great and respectful. I feel like what is happening here is akin to letting your poor relations who have no stake in history and respect for what ancestors constructed, letting those poorly educated (self-evident in their ignorance and clumsy movements) desecrate the buildings - the constructions - of our government in response to some petty whims, some poorly thought out mandate which they operate through solely on the basis of a sense of power and authority limited only by their ego.

Stop it!!

East Wing Modernization Project? Are you kidding me? The current occupant is a guest of the people of the United States, who own the White House. We did not ask, did not agree to, and do not support The Billionaires Ballroom. The First Lady and her staff occupy an important position in the functioning of the executive branch, and they have been made homeless without the consent of the people.

The billionaires ballroom should under no circumstances eclipse the visual, aesthetic, symbolic, or literal importance of the White House. Constructing a monument to wealth for the occasional party flies in the face of the egalitarian nature of a country founded on the premise that all men are created equal. Under no circumstance should a bouncy house occupy space equal to—much less double the size of—the people's house. This design is unacceptable to the principles of democracy and does not uphold the values of this republic. It must be no larger than half the size of the people's house. Period.

Comments should have been solicited before the destruction was done. However, now that it is done and some sort of rebuilding is on the agenda, I am happy to comment on what should be done with the People's House. I believe that the East Wing should be rebuilt on the exact same footprint as the old, at the same height and with the same exterior features. The building should be ADA accessible. The Rose Garden should be rebuilt. There should be NO BALLROOM. Washington DC has plenty of spaces available for such things. This does not belong in the People's House. There should be no gold features like have been added to other parts of the White House. This is NOT a palace belonging to any president. It is the people's house and presidents are temporary stewards of the historical building. I would also request that since the destruction of the East Wing was done solely by the current president without your consultations or approval, the current president should pay for the reconstruction out of his own pocket, and not the pockets of the American people.

The White House is an historical monument, the beauty of which is, generation after generation seeing it as it began. Adding swimming pools, movie theaters, etc. doesn't change the footprint of the monument. As a United States citizen, I go to the White House to feel the solemnity of the greatness that has filled those rooms. I love the stories of what has gone on in every nook and cranny. The story is the beauty. Grandeur isn't needed. The building exudes the greatness and failures of those who have gone before and together create the story of us all.

To distort it, with an over-sized wing that is of one individual is like patching a yellow quilt with a black square. It destroys the beauty and fabric of the whole. .Please do not desecrate the story.

The proposal to build a gargantuan ballroom at the White House is another slap in the face to the American people by Donald J. Trump. Its sole intent is to have the White House wear a giant MAGA hat forever, an insult to any American (or Greenlander, for that matter) who detests this cruel man's total self-regard. It's on a par with his smearing of the Kennedy Center (and JFK's legacy) by adding, unconscionably, the Trump name, a stab in the back to a dignified American institution (whose legacy may never recover because of it).

On a par, too, with his defiance of the U.S. Constitution, denying due process to "any person." And unleashing totalitarian stormtroopers into our cities, towns, and homes with murderous results. Trump is an abject, vindictive, petulant tyrant who cares not one bit about American values, American traditions, American fairness, or American diversity. He cares only about himself and his power. That he ordered the 1902 East Wing structure to be demolished, peremptorily, without any hearing, shows his utter disregard for democratic fairness and prevailing law. His sole (sick) interest is to get only what he wants. This project is another example of this. PLEASE STOP THIS AUTOCRATIC PRESIDENT FROM PERMANENTLY SCARRING "THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE." PLEASE PREVENT THE SO-CALLED "EAST WING MODERNIZATION PROJECT" FROM EVER BEING IMPLEMENTED.

It doesn't matter who's paying for it. The White House is an historic building that belongs to the people of the United States. It should be protected by Landmark preservation rules. First, this isn't an East Wing "modernization" project. This is a Trump vanity project that goes against everything We the People stand for as Americans. Trump had NO RIGHT to demolish the East Wing of the White House.
Second, Trump is a corrupt, lying conman striving for lasting relevance where he is not entitled to an enduring legacy that positively promotes him as president. History will show that he became president by illegitimate means. (The Epstein files prove Trump's campaign conspired with Russia. And I have no doubt Musk did something illegal to get Trump elected in 2024. Again, the evidence of cheating will be found and he will be impeached and removed from office, whether before or after November.) He is the most corrupt person ever in the presidency. He is also a sexual abusing pedophile and cannibal. The evidence of Trump's perfidy is in the public sphere. If Republicans would do their duty to the constitution, Trump would be removed right now and put in jail. And this project would come to a screeching halt. NO CITIZEN OF THE US wants to be reminded of the man who perpetrated a coup in his first term and is basically doing it again. No man who trys to destroy our country/democracy should be given a monument for perpetuity. We will be reminded of that amoral degenerate every time we look at the White House, whether in-person or a picture. It wouldn't be fair to the MAJORITY of Americans. This project cannot be allowed to continue. And don't get me started on the private investment by rich oligarchs who just want to control everything/US. If this project is allowed to proceed, it WILL NOT BE THE PEOPLE'S HOUSE any longer. And you will be responsible for allowing a tyrannical dictator to claim ownership of something intended to belong to the people of this nation. Don't make this terrible mistake of allowing the East Wing to be built as Trump has proposed. History will not be kind to those who allow the desecration of the MOST iconic building in our country. More lawsuits will be coming if this project is executed, wasting our money. (Regardless of the billionaires' bribes.) If it gets built as intended, I will vote to have it torn down if given the chance. There's no way a seditious, traitorous, convicted felon, who tried to overthrow our government, should be allowed to continue to influence anything to do with a structure that will replace what HE tore down.
PS, I also blame you for allowing an incompetent toady with gaudy taste to renovate the Lincoln bathroom, instead of a qualified designer. Stop the continuing deference to someone who should not be allowed to make these kinds of changes to our property. Since the demolition is a fait accompli, I prefer that congress make the decisions for a new structure. So if you have the power to stop this madness, the project must not be completed under Trump's regime using any of his ideas, plans or the billionaire bribery money.

I do not understand how the beauriful East Wing of the White House was allowed to be destroyed without the person responsible for that destruction having any kind of hearing prior to those actions being taken.

There is absolutely no need for a "ballroom" that dwarfs the size of the White House. The current area used for such events has served this country and the presidents who resided in the White House for decades. I wish this project could be stopped entirely, and the East Wing be restored to its prior self. Obviously, it will have to be replicated, but so be it. When the President resides in our White House, they are a guest in that house. It is not theirs to do with as they please. Shame on everyone who allowed this to happen, and please do whatever must be done to ensure that nothing like this ever happens again without prior approval of the National Capital Planning Commission, or whoever is designated to be the overseer of such "renovations." At a time when costs have risen to unaffordable levels and many Americans can’t afford groceries or even housing, this is a gross waste of taxpayer money. The White House is the People’s House. It is not a place for Trump to host lavish parties. The current dwelling has served for many decades. Today, with growing costs, is not the time to “modernize” the space. I am writing to submit public comment to the National Capital Planning Commission regarding the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House.

The White House is not merely a functional building; it is one of the most recognizable civic symbols in the United States and a National Historic Landmark owned collectively by the American people. Any alteration to its form must be approached with extraordinary care, restraint, and respect for its architectural heritage.

While there may be legitimate needs for expanded event space, a 90,000-square-foot addition—larger than the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence itself—raises serious concerns about scale, proportion, and compatibility. Additions to historic properties should remain subordinate to the original structure, not compete with or overwhelm it. The proposed ballroom appears to risk fundamentally altering the historic character and balance of the White House complex.

If changes to the East Wing proceed, they should remain consistent with the established architectural language of the White House—restrained, neoclassical, and dignified. The addition should not introduce gilded or ostentatious design elements that would clash with the building's longstanding aesthetic. The strength of the White House lies in its refined simplicity and continuity of style.

I am also deeply concerned about the demolition of the existing structure without fully weighing the environmental and historic preservation implications. Under the review requirements of the Commission of Fine Arts and compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act, this project must carefully consider embodied carbon, material waste, and the irreversible loss of historic fabric. Tearing down original structures without exhaustive study sets a troubling precedent for nationally significant sites.

As Carol Quillen has stated, the American people deserve "an opportunity to provide comment and shape the project." That opportunity must be meaningful, and public input should weigh heavily in determining whether this proposal is appropriately scaled and sensitively designed.

The White House belongs to the American people—past, present, and future. Any addition must preserve its historic scale, architectural integrity, and environmental responsibility. I urge the Commission to require substantial reconsideration of the proposal's size and design to ensure it remains compatible, subordinate, and worthy of this national treasure.

Thank you for your consideration.

I do not agree that a 90,000 sf addition is appropriate for the White House. This structure will surpass the footprint of White House. I do not want it to be decked in spray painted gold decorations like the Oval Office. Please rein in the current plans and make this new structure classy and not garish and tacky. If you allow the current occupant of the White House to proceed with his $400 million (!) plans, the next president will spend tax payer money to redo it. Please don't let that happen.

The destruction of the East Wing as well as the paving over of the Rose Garden should have never been allowed to happen - or rather should have never happened since I doubt permission was ever sought. The hideously grotesque size of the ballroom dwarfing the stately White House should never happen either. The East Wing should be restored to its original design. If updates to the decor and design within the original footprint are necessary for it to function, they should be undertaken with input from the National Capital Planning Council, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and any other organization dedicated to the preservation of our national landmarks. While restoring the East Wing, the paving of the Rose Garden should be undone and the landscaping restored. If indeed there is need for a ball room at some point, it should not come in a time when food aid and other vital services to the American public are being slashed and/or eliminated (especially as we are told they are too expensive.)

I feel very strongly that this project be completed in keeping with the style and history of the existing White House. It is very important that the reconstruction not be larger than the main portion or the White House or overwhelm it in any way. I also feel very strongly that this proposal be reviewed by and final recommendation come from an independent committee with experience in historical preservation and the recommendation is adhered to. The White House does not belong to current president or any president. As part of the National Park Service, the White House belongs to the American people.

In my opinion, we don't need a gaudy ballroom larger than the White House itself. If a ballroom is needed for state dinners etc., it should be smaller than the White House itself and look like a natural addition to it. It should look similar to the style of the White House architecture.

Also, no "Trump Arch" should be built in Washington. Unnecessary and would obstruct the views of existing monuments.

There should be the usual review process, including getting bids by architects and contractors. After selecting a highly qualified architect, the exterior design should be to restore the original East Wing in its original dimensions and classical details so as not to interfere with the original building. The interior can be redesigned for needed uses, but there should be administrative areas for First Ladies/Gentlemen.

I think a huge ballroom, larger than the White House, itself, is totally inappropriate. It would diminish the stature of our national treasure. The White House has hosted multitudes of official State events without the need for a huge, gaudy ballroom.
I am saddened and outraged that the East Wing was destroyed so thoughtlessly. I would hope to see something similar to it in appearance and usage constructed in place.

I would hope that those responsible for the destruction of the East Wing would be required to pay for its replacement.

I object to the current plan for a ballroom to replace the former East Wing. It is bigger than it needs to be for the stated purpose. The White House is more than a presidential residence—it's a museum and a symbol of the American people. It is the people's house, not a lavish private resort.

We haven't asked for, and don't want, a private ballroom for parties we will never be invited to at the White House.

Legally, no president or anyone else can tear down or redesign parts of the White House without proper review. Similarly, no one can build a ballroom on public property without giving the public a voice in the process.

The Trump Administration's blatant abuse of power in their demolition of the East Wing should make ANYONE reticent in continuing to support this farcical attempt to 'modernize'. As someone who works in cultural resource management, I know for a fact that several federal statutes were broken. No further work should be allowed on any federal properties by this administration until appropriate reparations and penalties have been assessed. The administration has proven that they have zero respect for historical resources, and that they are only driven by the president's obsessive need to have his name plastered on everything. If they were so concerned woth security, maybe they should not have pulled down the East Wing in the first place. How much longer should we the place watch him destroy OUR monuments?

It is quite regrettable that the public is submitting comments AFTER the East Wing has been completely demolished. However, as a tax-paying citizen, I'd like to see a modernized (infrastructure-wise) East Wing that continues to house offices of the First Lady or First Gentleman. I'd like the structure to mimic the architecture that was once a cohesive part of the White House. I see no need for a ballroom or other enlarged gathering space for dignitaries. It would also be a travesty to build bunker space. The White House belongs to the people of this country and is borrowed for the term of presidency. Any improvements or modernizations should not detract from the original design of the building and should only be approved as legitimate needs are proven - not because of whims.

It is my opinion that there should be four main goals in this project.
1. The scale and scope of the project should not alter the historic facade of the White House nor greatly alter historic rooms within the White House.
2. It should be modernized in a way to be able to receive foreign dignitaries with pride and make ease of use of technology for entertainment necessary in the space in the most financially reasonable way possible.
3. It should be classy. Overtly gaudy rooms are not in keeping with the spirit or expected decor of America and its history.
4. Security must be maintained, and any changes beed to be made with that as the most important goal.

The proposed East Wing plan, in my opinion, is beautiful on the exterior however far too large in scale relative to the White House. In order to maintain symmetry, I would prefer to see the elevation maximum above-grade height not exceed the current elevation maximum above-grade height of the West Wing, and the footprint not exceed the footprint of the West Wing. The centerline of the East Wing should be symmetrical to the centerline of the West Wing relative to the centerline of the White House.

I also personally think the renderings of the ballroom interior suggest 18th century European "palace", evoking a ballroom befitting a king rather than a stately room reflecting the humble colonial roots of our nation. I would encourage the architects to take inspiration from Independence Hall, Colonial Williamsburg, and similar buildings for style guidance. As a taxpayer, I resent the extravagant specified finishes (all that marble and tacky gold) while so many government programs have been dramatically impacted by reductions in the name of cost savings and efficiency. I would rather have funding for medical research that can save lives than tacky gold anywhere in the White House. Yuck!

Furthermore, I believe it is important the project respect protocol and procedure for renovation. It is a shame that the beautiful Rose Garden has already been destroyed to instead install a cheap looking patio.

I am totally opposed to the "East Wing Modernization Project" as described and depicted by the architect and in the press. First, it negatively impacts the main building on the site--that is, the White House--which MUST be the dominant feature on the grounds. The 94,000-sq-ft ballroom would be not only bigger than the White House but would be the same height. Thus it would distract viewers, the citizens, visitors from around the world.

Why? For a ballroom, an entertainment area that has very little to do with the White House's functions as presidential residence and chief executive office. Those being hosted would mostly have little access to the main White House during any event anyway.

Certainly, the president needs to entertain but if he needs to host more than 200 in the East Room or small groups in other rooms, why not in a specially designed structure elsewhere in the capital? There are other federal buildings now unoccupied, or about to be vacated, that could be extensively remodeled to befit presidential events.

The White House has been the home of American presidents since John Adams in 1800. It belongs to the nation, not to any president in his term. Thus the people--Congress, the voters, the taxpayers--must not only be heard but should have the greater voice in any significant addition to the White House.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I added info about further renovations being funded by DJT, NOT the American people. Also, what has already been paid by the people for the construction/demolition should be returned.

I also feel that there will be an excess of tacky gold filigree and gold accents which trump is famous for in his buildings. They lack class and taste and should not be allowed. Whatever is built next should reflect modern classy sensibilities. It seems strange to build a ballroom so I'm hoping something more practical can be built. Historically, the East Wing was the domain of the spouse of the president. Future first spouses will want office space and modern facilities to conduct their business, even if the current spouse is completely absent from public work.

The destruction of the East Wing is essentially a vanity project of President Trump. At a time when many people are struggling to remain above water financially, there is no reason or excuse to spend the people's hard earned tax money on such a overblown project. We do not need an enlarged or modernized ballroom! We just need to stop any further destruction and put the ballroom back to functionality after the damage that has already been done.
And if the President is using his own money, or money that was given to him by a foreign government, doesn't that pose a question as to what they are receiving in return. Doesn't that further break some laws in addition to the ones that the President is already ignoring.

We do not want or need a king with golden ornaments showing off his power. It is already a travesty that he has renamed other hallowed places with his own name.

Donald Trump should be required to reconstruct the East Wing exactly to the original footprint and style. He removed the existing structure without authorization from Congress, the National Register of Historic Places and other governing bodies which oversee construction on the White House grounds. The $400 million he claims to have raised for the ballroom project should be used for this purpose. Any remaining funds should be provided to the Treasury, and earmarked for restoration of the Rose Garden.

Donald Trump is a temporary occupant of the White House. He should not be allowed to build a vanity ballroom project that dwarfs the size of the rest of the White House complex. Such a facility might at most be utilized a few times a year.

If the original East Wing cannot be rebuilt, the ballroom project should be scaled back to reflect the size and style of the original East Wing. The project should also restore space for the First Ladies offices, and other offices which were demolished without authorization.

Ann addition should be done properly with bids from qualified and vetted contractors that have no connection to the current administration. I am not an architect, historian, planner, or any sort of professional, just a citizen. But it doesn't take a professional to know, as people seem to have known back into prehistory that proportion and appropriate scale are essential to beauty and harmony - from the replica prehistoric Celtic houses whose classic proption and layout are still used in Central Europe, I have seen in Austria, to Neolithic stone monuments, and homes and vernacular architecure all over the world, not just cathedrals, public buildings and monuments. Our People's House needs to retain a faithfulness to history and proprtion. While we cannot restore what was so shockingly destroyed without consultation with not even the people's designated authorities, much less the people, and perhaps whatever replaces it should be in some way symbolic of this era. This plan is not that.

And it is, of course, a travesty that this project should be called a "modernization" project, since it is a complete replacement.

To whom it may concern,
The destruction and re-construction of the East Wing should not be done at the whim of the occupant of the White House. It should have never been allowed to begin without first going through the correct process. It is entirely up to the people of this great country to decide. The proposed "ball room" that no one has brought forth to the people before now, hardly seems like the "everyone has wanted it" excuse is not likely to be reality. The significance of the White House is important in more ways than one. No "addition" should overshadow it hence the 55,000 sq.ft. limit. This unapproved remodel has already cost the taxpayers excessively. I implore you, to stick with the rebuilding of the space to less than or equal to the current limitations and ensure the construction is done in keeping with the style of the original building of which it will be attached to. Reduce the amount of gaudy fixtures and ensure the decor is tastful as is necessary for the importance of the use of the space for the people of this great country.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am submitting this comment regarding the proposed expansion of the East Wing of the White House. My intent is to ensure that the project proceeds in full compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) and the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), while preserving the architectural integrity and historical significance of this national landmark.

Under NEPA, I respectfully request that a comprehensive Environmental Assessment (EA) or Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) be conducted to evaluate potential impacts on the surrounding environment, including noise, traffic, air quality, and green space. This review should also consider cumulative impacts from concurrent or planned federal construction projects.

In accordance with the NHPA's Section 106 review process, I urge the project team to consult with the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation and relevant state and local preservation offices to ensure that any design changes remain consistent with the White House's established neoclassical architectural style. This includes careful attention to materials, proportions, and detailing so that the expansion harmonizes with the original design intent and does not diminish the building's historic character.

Finally, I encourage the inclusion of public engagement opportunities throughout the planning process, ensuring transparency and allowing stakeholders to provide meaningful input before final decisions are made.

Thank you for your consideration of these points. I trust that the project will be approached with the utmost respect for both environmental stewardship and our shared national heritage.

I strongly oppose the construction of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom at the White House. The project bypasses mandatory review processes, destroys the history of the building, disrespects the American people, and threatens the historic integrity of the building.

The administration failed to obtain necessary approvals or conduct required environmental and historic reviews before demolishing the East Wing in October 2025. The proposed 90,000-square-foot structure is too large for the 55,000-square-foot White House, disrupting its classic design. Most importantly, no president has the authority to alter the White House without following established legal procedures.

I strongly oppose the proposed East Wing ballroom because this plan would permanently change one of the few national symbols that belongs to every American. The White House holds the footsteps, speeches, and ceremonies of generations. Radically changing one of America's very few core, historic buildings erases stories that cannot be rebuilt. This is more than architecture — it is about what we leave our children and how we honor those who served and sacrificed for this country. Major changes to a national landmark must be made only after full, transparent reviews and multiple opportunities for meaningful public input occur, so that all Americans, regardless of politics, can trust the outcome.

Why this matters:
• Irreversible loss: Physical changes to the grounds and facades cannot restore the original craftsmanship, sight-lines, or historic fabric once removed.
• Public trust: Major changes to a national symbol should be earned through open review. Rushing permanent alterations erodes public trust in institutions meant to protect our shared heritage.
• Common ground: Preserving historic places is not partisan. Protecting the White House honors all Americans, including veterans, civic servants, and families who see it as a symbol of continuity and sacrifice.
• Precedent for all public places: Approving irreversible change for this project, makes it easier to alter other public landmarks without full public consent and sets a dangerous example for future modifications to our public heritage.

I request that NCPC:
1. Delay any further construction until the NCPC completes a full historic and environmental review.
2. Require formal Section 106 consultation with the State Historic Preservation Officer and other stakeholders.
3. Hold multiple public hearings with opportunities for both oral and written testimony.
4. Release all project documents and impact studies to the public before any approval.
5. Evaluate and document reasonable alternatives that avoid altering the White House grounds.

Practical alternatives to the ballroom:
• Use existing federal spaces such as the Eisenhower Executive Office Building for large events.
• Reconfigure and restore interior East Wing spaces rather than adding a new permanent footprint.
• Build an off-site federal events center on appropriate federal land that preserves the White House as it is.

Please protect the White House for future generations by insisting on a full, transparent review and by considering alternatives that preserve our national heritage.

The White House is the "People's House". It represents our history, our former leadership and our hope for a continued democracy, Demolishing it, when President Trump had no legal right to do so, and building something that will be nothing but an homage to himself ,to give him a bigger stage, is shameful and should never be allowed. How we have arrived at this point where we are battling a president to preserve our history is mind boggling.

The “people’s house” has already been damaged without going through proper channels, so the stoppage must remain until appropriate permissions are received.

I believe the East Wing should be restored to the prior dimensions and architectural style. The proposed ballroom would be far too large, exceeding the residence’s dimensions. It would be unsightly. It displaced the First Lady's Office Suite, the White House Social Office, the Correspondence Unit, the Graphics and Calligraphy Office, the White House Family Theater and the public entrance for White House tours. It also covered the White House bomb shelter.

The repairs should be crafted to restore the East Wing so it’s historical accurate, and return all those rooms lost. They should bring electrical, plumbing and other considerations to current code, including ADA accessibility.

If a ballroom is needed, it should be housed elsewhere in the city. The White House is not private property - it belongs to the people. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Please restore the East Wing in looks with modern improvements to included updated ADA access. Restore the long windowed hallway, improve the glass to modern standards. Include a reception room, but not a ballroom that can accommodate important events. Removed the concrete patio, and restore the rose garden to include native plants from the metro area. Include stone pathways to match the architecture of the White House.

I would like to firmly protest the proposed project to add a 90,000 sq ft addition to the White House. This proposed addition would be grossly out of proportion to the existing White House, and would distract and dwarf the historical significance and beauty of our treasured building. The White House belongs to us, We the People, and not to the present or any future president. The project should have been presented to American citizens before the historic East Wing was so brutally and hastily demolished. Historically the White House has only hosted one to three events in the existing ballroom over a single or double term, which indicates that a grotesque, oversized ballroom is neither needed nor wanted. Please do everything in your power to stop this project from going forth.

President Trump began demolition unlawfully without authorization from Congress; without NCPC oversight.
The White House belongs to the American people, not to any individual.

Private, multibillion dollar corporations do not have the right to buy our National Parks.

The money spent on this egregious expansion could go toward helping American citizens who are suffering from inflation, exorbitant medical costs, job losses, to name a few. The hard working people of this country certainly are not concerned with having additional space to host lavish events, including inaugurations. We are concerned with surviving, and working toward a better life for ourselves and our families; not supporting a narcissistic vanity project.

Aside from the above, the renderings of the renovation available online are aesthetically horrifying, disproportionate; i.e. excessive, unreasonable, unbalanced. It is hard to fathom that any reputable architectural firm would create such a monstrosity.

This project that is not needed. It will do nothing to enhance our lives or wellbeing. If completed as is, it will remain a permanent eyesore, forever reminding all of us of the consequences of unchecked presidential power.

First, this project has been a tool for selling influence with the administration. This being the case, the project serves to subvert the interests of the public in favor of those who have paid for the construction of it. It should be disallowed for this reason alone.

Second, it was initiated without proper review and approvals. It therefore should be allowed to proceed only after careful scrutiny of its supposed justifications, weighed against the fact that it is an influence-peddling gambit.

I submit that upon review, it must be concluded that the project is a poor choice of an "improvement" for which approval must be denied. It is massively out of scale with the White House and is of a size to be used only on rare occasions, rendering its construction an unwise use of funds and space. It would serve primarily to aggrandize the President, which is not a legitimate reason to build it.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am submitting this comment regarding the proposed expansion of the East Wing of the White House. My intent is to ensure that the project proceeds in full compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act

(NEPA) and the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA), while preserving the architectural integrity and historical significance of this national landmark.

Under NEPA, I respectfully request that a comprehensive Environmental Assessment (EA) or Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) be conducted to evaluate potential impacts on the surrounding environment, including noise, traffic, air quality, and green space. This review should also consider cumulative impacts from concurrent or planned federal construction projects.

In accordance with the NHPA's Section 106 review process, I urge the project team to consult with the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation and relevant state and local preservation offices to ensure that any design changes remain consistent with the White House's established neoclassical architectural style. This includes careful attention to materials, proportions, and detailing so that the expansion harmonizes with the original design intent and does not diminish the building's historic character.

Finally, I encourage the inclusion of public engagement opportunities throughout the planning process, ensuring transparency and allowing stakeholders to provide meaningful input before final decisions are made.

Thank you for your consideration of these points. I trust that the project will be approached with the utmost respect for both environmental stewardship and our shared national heritage.

Sincerely,
Mercedes Miramontes

I am writing to you as a concerned citizen, a member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation and lover of our country and its history. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, known as the People's House, because it is owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. It has been the home to our presidents since 1800 and is the most symbolic and iconic historic site of the United States. It is a living monument to our democracy and an honored residence for the President of the United States.

The East Wing should not have been demolished without first going through the proper legal processes required for all buildings within the Capital District. The approach of this administration to act first, then ask permission, is an act of defiance and an insult to the preservation of not only the East Wing, but most importantly, to the laws which govern the District and Congress' "power of the purse." I believe that the destruction of the East Wing was done unlawfully and without the necessary District and Congressional approvals. The right thing to do, going forward, is to follow the proper and legal processes which govern this project. There are two significant issues with the way this project has been handled thus far: 1) Demolition without the proper legal approvals 2) Proceeding with any demolition, planning or work, especially on a project of this magnitude, without the approval of Congress.

I believe the East Wing should be replaced. While I understand that there is security and other vital infrastructure underneath the East Wing that needed to be improved, I do not believe that replacing the East Wing with a ballroom and reception area that will dwarf the White House and be out-of-balance with the West Wing is the right solution. I have seen the initial drawings and presentation to the NCPC and as much as the architect has made the facade blend in with the White House the East Wing/Ballroom will be gigantic and devoid of any historical significance. It will dwarf the White House and the East Wing, looking more like an out-of-place eyesore than an elegant and historically accurate addition. If a Presidential Ballroom is required then I'm sure it can be done on another site so that the integrity of the White House and its historical significance can be preserved. Rebuild the East Wing, have the security infrastructure required, but restore both historical and architectural order to the People's House by keeping it in line with the previous footprint, elevation and size.

Thank you.

Thank you for this opportunity to speak. The White House has maintained a timelines beauty in an ever changing world. It's a vision of comfort to the rest of the world in so many ways. It represents the simplicity in the idea of the birth of a nation. A place where independence and freedom were founded and solidified. Where that freedom and independence has been maintained, even through the worst of times, for 250 years. To see it completely transformed and demolished is traumatizing. Please hold true to the essence of the life that flowed through it so many years ago when our future was uncertain, but that house was the beacon guiding every new American to the one thing every single one of the immigrants who came here desired. Freedom and opportunity to be anything they wanted. Please protect the American people's house. Keep it true to the beauty and simplicity we want to hold on to in a world where things are ever chaotic and uncertain.

We temporarily allow an individual, the President, to manage our government and to steward the people's assets. The White House belongs to the people and is only the temporary residence of the president and family, as well as the place where he/she conducts the people's business. It is not a palace and does not need to compete with foreign palatial residences. For example, there is no need for new construction to have palatial, opulent, gold encrusted or gold painted features or furnishings.

The president's stewardship duties do include the White House's maintenance, but they must be in the interest of the people. Updating the White House is certainly necessary. However, any new construction or renovations should architecturally match the historic appearance of the existing White House and not overwhelm it in size. A proposed ballroom that accommodates 999 people is excessive. The size should be 500 or less. The United States is not in the business of funding large parties for the elite. Surely 500 guests are sufficient to honor and entertain foreign dignitaries.

Large contributions from private interests that might expect favors for their donations should not fund the project. Keeping with this being the people's house, crowd funding could provide much if not all funding to replace the East Wing. Limiting individual and corporate contributions to $50,000 or $100,000 makes sense, with no donations by foreign interests, governments, non-profits, or political organizations. The exception to the contribution size limit should be that any donations from the president or his family personally or businesses owned by them, should have no limit. Frankly, if this president wants to add opulence to his proposed ballroom, let him pay for it with his own funds, not with tax dollars or excessive donations from his supporters.

The demolition and alterations to the East Wing that already occurred did not go through the appropriate approval channels. Major changes to a historic public building require proper authorization, oversight, and transparency. That process was not followed.
The President should be personally responsible for covering the full cost of restoring the East Wing to its prior condition. This must include all demolition work already completed, all reconstruction costs, and any related expenses. None of these costs should be charged to taxpayers.
Public funds must not be used to correct unauthorized actions. Full financial accountability is necessary, along with transparency regarding the work performed and confirmation that all workers have been paid fully and fairly by this admin, not the taxpayer.

The White House is a national treasure, owned by the American public. Any changes must be brought to the proper authority for oversight and public comment. I am appalled that the President circumvented the process and demolished the East Wing so he could build something he wants, another building, or piece of one, that he can put his name on. I believe the building must be restored to its original shape and scale, within current building codes. And its purpose must suit national interests, not the current occupant of the White House.

The White House complex in general is one of the most viewed areas in Washington DC. It has been carefully restored and maintained over the past two centuries and people have given their lives to save this most historic of homes. The East Wing is particularly important to part of our 20th century history as there was a bomb shelter built beneath it for FDR and a connecting tunnel to the Main Treasury Building that could be used for an escape route. That is important WWII history that should never be forgotten as to the extra measures taken to protect our president.
Please restore/ rebuild the historic East Wing using original blueprints that are upgraded to meet current codes and replant the Jackie Kennedy garden. The interior of the building can be divided to better serve the office of the First Lady moving forward and the East Room can continue to serve the ballroom function it has always served. Having the formal dining room on the West side of the mansion and the ballroom on the East side gives guests a chance to view the public state rooms as they move from one area to another and it allows for world changing conversations to take place while walking the hallway.
Mega events should be held at the convention center, museum ballrooms, the Mellon Library, or the South Lawn and beyond. Please ensure we have our beloved White House Complex back in its original form or the net two centuries of Americans to enjoy.

Historical integrity and architectural harmony are very important for this site - probably the most important historical site in the United States. The East Wing should be largely restored as it was. In no way should the replacement be larger in scale than it was before being thoughtlessly torn down.

The administration has gotten the cart before the horse with tearing down the East Wing before submitting proposals (plans). Now something has to be done to correct and make the grounds look presentable as our nations White House. I am speaking as a professional in architecture (Landscape Architect). Shape, conformity and size are valuable assets to how something as meaningful as the White House should look. The replacement East Wing needs to be of similar size to the West Wing and the White House residence or it will be an eyesore to view forever.
If the residence is 55,000 sq ft then the East Wing replacement needs to be at least smaller by 10% if not more. It should be subordinate to the White House residence not overcome. It really should balance with the West Wing in size, design and shape. I am not going to speak to the need for a ballroom but rather more about aesthetic and balance. In this modern era the use of design to create a multi use of this wing would be valuable. Not just a ballroom but other creative uses for the public to have access to use and enjoy.
The National Park Service has a wonderful reputation evaluating and protecting our resources.

Any modernization should be done within the scope and scale of the existing structure. The addition, ideally would be a replacement of the east wind to restore balance and symmetry to the White House. No monstrous ballroom that dwarfs the existing structure should be constructed. If such a facility is required, it should be built at another site and not with tax dollars

I am strongly opposed to this "modernization" project. The White House is the People's House and the history lost when the East Wing was demolished will never be recovered. Any changes to the White House, Government Buildings and monuments, historical markers, and National archives should always be approved by Congress, and ultimately the people of this country. No new plans unless these steps are taken.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace.The occupant of The White House is not a King; The President works for the people on a temporary (4-8 years) basis, and therefore should not be allowed to rebuild any part of the White House to suit personal desires. He or she is essentially a "Tenant at Will." With this in mind, the White House does not need a ballroom. It is not, nor was not, meant to be a convention center or grand hotel.

Therefore, the new East Wing should be reconstructed in such a manner as to retain the symmetry and footprint of the structure as it was before it was so hastily demolished. Adding features to upgrade to current standards (i.e., electrical, mechanical, ADA, etc) is acceptable, as is outfitting the space to accommodate state dinners and modest entertainment functions.

I want the East Wing of the White House back the way it was. Period. This is like some terrible repeat of the Twin Towers or Notre Dam Cathedral but it was willful destruction of our heritage. My ancestors fought and died for this nation 250 years ago and this once was a beautiful building - an enduring legacy owned by the people. The President is a temporary occupant!

The real response is going to the landfill to retrieve everything and find equally historic materials to return the East Wing to its former glory. (at the personal expense of the people who destroyed it)

But of course, it is too late for reasonable planning or respect for historic space. There needs to be some sort of basic understanding of the intended uses of the White House as a residence and work space of our Presidents. It is not a palace. The White House can't serve every imaginable purpose- least of all a bunch of huge parties for the rich and powerful.

The replacement must be of similar size and appearance with the rest of the White House and welcoming to all the people. It cannot be named for a person or look like some sort of palace or be reserved for anonymous wealthy donors.

Go someplace else in Washington DC for a ballroom and make a long term plan for large functions outside the White House. It is a residence!

If my disgust is not evident by now, be aware that I grieve for what we lost and would forage for even one broken brick of the East Wing if I knew where to go.

Remember this is the PEOPLE'S house. It is not a show room for a melomaniac. In the future steps need to be taken to ensure that historic property of the CITIZENS of the US is not allowed to be torn down with proper planning, funding and public comment, and acceptance. It should only be one story …a ballroom does not NEED to be 2 stories or have a huge ceiling range. Also it should not detract from the beauty of the White House. In my opinion the East Wing of the White House should never have been demolished without the prior approval of the American people. The White House in its entirety is the PEOPLE'S HOUSE. It does not belong to President Trump. Since the East Wing HAS been demolished at his orders, what follows now in its place, including any and all construction, must be determined by the American people through the majority voices of their elected lawmakers in Washington. If President Trump is allowed to build an obscenely large ballroom where the East Wing, including offices of First Ladies and the history of the work they accomplished, once stood, it will be an ignorant affront to the American people. Should the ridiculous and absolutely unneeded ballroom construction go forth, I hope a future, SMART, mature, sensible, honest, adult, people-serving president will tear it down and replace it with a new East Wing where future First Ladies may again make their significant marks on the world, women like Eleanor Roosevelt and her activism, Laura Bush and her literacy campaign, Betty Ford who from the East Wing argued to increase pay for her staff, and others who proved in the East Wing that First Ladies are women of substance. Under President Trump and his ballroom First Ladies and other lady invitees will be identified only by the gowns they wear to his exclusive events. Gowns, not brains, will get the limelight. NO, NO, NO say the American people, to the ballroom and all that it will represent!

I am most concerned that the end product of the east wing remodel maintains the symmetry of the overall White House. The West wing should in no way be of such a different outside design or size that the center building is overwhelmed. The inside of the east wing should also be designed for traffic patterns of tours by the public. I think whatever is used every day or routinely is of utmost importance over the new ballroom. How often will there be the need of having space for 650 people? The offices of those who need to be easily accessed for every day work is much more important than a ballroom. I don't know why there would be a decision to have a 90,000 square foot space. It seems to make sense to me to decide the overall design to provide symmetry to the west wing first. Then add the necessary accesses and updated disability provisions. Then figure the number of offices needs and design that around the public spaces. The ballroom, or the space set aside for setting up to handle crowds, seems to be a good idea, but only if the other spaces are designed first. I think this because there are other solutions for what might be the occasional need for such a ballroom. And I don't see how the necessary offices and public areas can efficiently be done elsewhere on the property.

The other part of the information on the proposed ballroom seems to be the "ornate" aspect. Ornate does not meet needs. Ornate is a matter of taste. "Dressing up" the people's house cannot be done well unless the entire spaces seen by the public are designed in one process. The building materials can be chosen to fit the older choices. We can improve on how what is built now will last through the next generations. "Ornateness" has nothing to do with that.

I understand there is a part of the process which addresses security. Would we not think that is more important to get "right" than ornateness? Is that not more important than how many people we can squeeze into a ballroom? In fact, doesn't that number of guests present its own safety and security challenges that might be easier to deal with if we built something less "grand"?

So much has already been done that has cheapened the White House that it is hard to know where to start with the EastWing. This is the people's house and should represent Americans. A Giant ballroom which will almost certainly be gaudy, overdone and tacky does not represent American any more than the patio bar area that replaced the Rose Garden does. I am opposed to the construction of the planned ballroom in the East Wing of the White House. This project should never have even been started without public input. Scenes of the wreckage of the former East Wing have devastated this country. The erasure of what is essentially the "women's wing" of the White House is a slap in the face to all American women and to all of the First Ladies who had their offices and events in that wing; essentially an erasure of their history. The scale of the ballroom is completely inappropriate for the building, and the news that a possible second story on the opposite end to "balance" the White House visually is of no comfort to anyone. If the current administration's gaudy style of design and decoration is continued into the ballroom, as it is certainly going to be if they get their way, it will be an affront to the former stateliness of OUR house...the PEOPLE's house. To have this monstrosity constructed without any of the channels that a "normal" administration would have used is doubly insulting. DO NOT permit this to occur. Please use the law to stop this desecration to the most important symbol of American good and democracy.

We do not need a ballroom paid for by private donors who will be expecting personal favors from the current administration. Also, any such ballroom should not be attached to the White House. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. Our presidents have lived there since 1800. It is one of the most significant historic sites in the United States. It is where the President lives, but it is not the President's house to do with as only he sees fit. It is the American people's house. When President Trump first announced the new ballroom and ordered demolition of the old East Wing of the White House, I was incensed that he did not follow the usual process for additions to historic buildings. I felt this was an insult to the American people.

I watched the informational presentation of January 8 to the National Capital Planning Commission regarding plans to build a new ballroom on the east side of the White House with a total size of almost 90,000 square feet.

I understand the need for additional building space as part of the White House complex. Regarding the plans presented on January 8, my primary fear is that the new addition will overshadow the historic White House because of its sheer size and height. I would prefer it if the height were lowered somewhat to convey its subordinate nature, and if the footprint were somewhat reduced. I also think it is extremely important that the style of the building should harmonize with the historic structure, in a neoclassical style and the same color, and I am pleased that the plans contemplate this. I appreciate that the cornice line in the current plans is going to be the same height as the cornice on the historic White House, but I wonder if the roof could be lowered.

I am also concerned that the new building needs to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). In addition to stairways on the north and east sides of the building, elevators should be installed to accommodate persons with disabilities.

Another concern I have is that the new building should be dignified and restrained in style, and the interior and exterior should not be garish in any way. The impression conveyed to White House guests and outside observers should be one of dignity, stability, and restraint. I am not confident that the current President will embrace this vision. I urge the NCPC to embrace this vision in its approval process.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the East Wing Modernization Project.

Allowing this hugely overdone ballroom/East Wing replacement is outrageous for many reasons. Not the least being its non-compliance with the National Capital Planning Commission guidelines. Starting with the illegal tear down of the existing East Wing (how could this have happened?) and moving on to the construction of this 'ballroom' without Congressional approval is unacceptable. Regardless of the source of funding this construction should not be permitted.

Continuation of this 'destroy and build asking permission later' should never have happened. When will Congress and now the National Capital Planning Commission stand up to this horrible excuse of a president ? Please do whatever you can to keep this monstrosity of a building from going forward. It does not represent what the majority stand for in this country and never should be allowed to stand next to the White House.

Call it whatever you want, but the bottom-line is it an over the top ugly building out of scale with its surroundings. Please put a STOP to it.

The White House will look much better if the East Wing is not built. If new office space is needed, I suggest building everything underground. D.C. has many venues that can accommodate large numbers of guests; Union Station can accommodate more than 4,000. Several of the Smithsonian Institutes also have large spaces. There is no need for a large hall that will stay empty most of the time across the White House.

To whom it may concern:
I am writing in reference tothe proposed 90,000\u8209 -square\u8209 -foot ballroom addition to the White House—an action that carries real national significance. Before any permanent alteration is made to a place of such historic and symbolic importance, the American public deserves a genuine opportunity to help shape the outcome. The White House is not only a National Historic Landmark and a unit of the National Park System; it is a home, a workplace, and a civic icon that has belonged to the American people since 1800.

Federal law recognizes the gravity of changes to Washington's most important sites. Major construction projects must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and secure congressional approval. These requirements exist to ensure that decisions affecting nationally significant properties are transparent, thoughtful, and respectful of their historic character.

While additional event space may be warranted, any expansion must honor the scale and architectural integrity of the White House. A 90,000\u8209 -square\u8209 -foot addition—substantially larger than the 55,000\u8209 -square\u8209 -foot Executive Residence—risks overwhelming the very structure it is meant to support. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and clearly subordinate to the original design.
Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Nothing should have been torn down without following proper historical procedures.
American History and White House history should be allowed to be replaced on a whim.
The so called East Wing renovation should only be the size and exact structure of what was torn down, should not include any gilding or glorification of any political figure.

I believe in historical architecture and accuracy and therefore want no increase in size of structure or changes to the historical building that was the East Wing of the White House.
Thank you.

First and foremost, the demolition of the historic East Wing was as much a violation of the trust of the American public, as it was the rich tradition of historic preservation both nationally and in two hundred years of care for The People's House. Moving forward, a rigorous and transparent process of design review; a clearly drawn qualification, bidding, budgeting, and accounting process; and a period of public review of these efforts are essential to a successful project.

What is the purpose of this project other than to massage President Trump’s ego?? it’s totally out of proportion architecturally to the rest of the White House building. The amount of money that will be spent on it is entirely egregious. It’s a gauche embarrassment to the aesthetics of the White House . I think it should be drastically, scaled back to reasonable proportions in expense, and design, or better yet, be scrapped altogether, and a new plan formed for the space of the. now destroyed West Wing.

I am strongly opposed to the proposed ballroom that Donald Trump wants to build on the site of the East Wing of the White House.

This project dishonors the People's House. The East Wing was demolished without proper permits, approvals, or a proper architectural plan for the ballroom project. It reeks of political pay-to-play, money laundering, and a way to distract the American people from the critical political issues facing our nation.

Proceeding with the proposed ballroom would be an insult to our democracy.

Dear Commissioners,

After watching the presentation regarding the White House -East Wing "Modernization" project, I feel compelled to write to you my objections to this project. I am a US Citizen, and have visited the White House once. I was impressed with the demure, modest size and decor. I have visited many castles and palaces, one more pompous then the next. They do NOT impress me. it's a remnant of the past. It reminds me of how much wealth the rich and famous squander on pet projects while the masses suffer and starve. We are NOT a country of Kings and Queens or Sheiks and Emperors, and neither do we need to "impress" anyone. The United States does not need to "Show off" it's superiority by building something so blatantly grandiose on White House grounds! The overall look and feel when one visits the White House, is that of modesty and restraint. I feel very strongly that we should keep that "look and feel". Being modest shows strength and control.

The proposed building size is and appears humongous. It's above ground size is overpowering the White House itself. from ALL sides. I do not like it at all. It doesn't take a genius to see that the size of the East Wing "Modernization" is dominated by the Grand Ballroom size alone. I suggest you shrink the size of the ballroom to a far more modest size. I also feel that the building is too tall.

I know that the now demolished building wasn't modern or adequate for today's standards. But I want to remind you and the White House occupant that ANY guest is lucky to be invited to a formal sit-down dinner at the White House. Whether that's in a tent or a building on or off the White House grounds. If you really feel it is so important to be able to host 1000 people for a sit-down dinner, then I suggest the White House rents such a space from the many event spaces that are located in DC.

Another option would be to shrink the height and above ground size of this whole project so it's similar in size to what was there before and add a completely UNDERGROUND ballroom instead. The advantage of this idea is that it can be located in front or behind the White House or next to the underground level of the East Wing. Underground, out of view, underneath the lawn. I am sure the designers can come up with clever solutions for emergency exits and entrance points. ALL those exits/entrances need to be user friendly and accommodate for disabilities btw, which seems to be lacking in your current plans.

See how simple this is? It would preserve the character of the White House grounds, at least what you can see above ground, while also adding the large ballroom in a less obtrusive way.

I hope you will not approve the plans as they currently are.

Sincerely,
Anne Cochez-Lind

The East Wing should be rebuilt back in the same footprint as the old East Wing that was torn down. Upgrades should be new wiring, plumbing and ADA compliant additions, keeping the new building as close to the old building as possible. The Rose Garden should be restored.
If a ballroom is needed, which I do not feel it is since Presidents have not needed one for 250 years, it should be in a different location, one where parking can be accommodated for anyone wanting to attend. The destruction of "OUR HOUSE" by a tenant was heart breaking not to mention illegal!

The East Wing needs to be rebuilt from the original building plans and returned to its previous historic glory!

The current "tenant" also needs to be the one to pay for it's restoration with very close oversight that it is done properly, as he did not have the permission of "the people" to destroy if in the first place. I am appalled at the idea of anything but the original design being built in its place! Especially a 90,000 sq ft monstrosity of a ballroom the "The People" do NOT need or want and will never benefit from such a frivolous and distasteful eyesore.

Please do not let Donald Trump's plans for this move forward in any way. He is a "servant" of the people, not a king and doesn't need a palace, nor does any future president.

National Capital Planning Commission
401 9th Street NW, North Lobby, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20004
RE: Opposition to East Wing Modernization Project / White House State Ballroom Proposal
Dear Members of the Commission:
I write to express my profound opposition to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House complex. While I deeply appreciate the administration's boldness in reimagining this National Historic Landmark without the encumbrance of meaningful public input or federal review, I must respectfully suggest that perhaps some traditions—such as following established law—deserve preservation.
The proposal's rationale demonstrates admirable confidence. We are assured that $1 million tents represent an unacceptable embarrassment for state dinners, yet somehow demolishing a portion of the White House built in 1902 without congressional approval represents dignified stewardship. The East Room, which has hosted state functions since John Adams and accommodates 200 guests, is apparently inadequate, necessitating a structure nearly twice the size of the existing White House that commissioners themselves describe as immense and overwhelming.
One marvels at the project's efficiency: construction began before federal review, architectural plans were submitted months after demolition commenced, and poll after poll showing majority opposition has been deftly ignored. Such streamlined governance would surely have pleased James Hoban and George Washington, who wasted considerable time on tedious details like congressional appropriations and public consensus.
The historical record offers instructive precedent. President Truman's 1948-1952 renovation, undertaken to save the mansion from structural collapse, followed established procedures and congressional oversight. How refreshing that we have evolved beyond such bureaucratic inconveniences to embrace a future where private donations bypass congressional authority and $400 million projects proceed at the pleasure of a temporary occupant.
I urge the Commission to reconsider this proposal with the seriousness it deserves—which is to say, the same level of deliberation apparently afforded before bulldozers arrived in October. The American people, as mere nominal owners of this National Historic Landmark, would be most grateful for the opportunity to participate in decisions affecting their shared heritage before such decisions become, as they say, fait accompli.
Respectfully submitted,

As an American citizen, taxpayer, and an enthusiast of historical architecture, I'm writing to plead with this body to consider the scaling of this project.

The White House is one of the most important buildings in this beautiful country. While I'm not opposed to a modernized ballroom space to host foreign dignitaries, the current plan will overwhelm the executive residence. It's an abomination to consider dwarfing the iconic main building.

Please do not build President Trump's proposed ballroom. It is not compatible in scale, design and style with the White House and would detract from the historical beauty of the site. Additionally, the White House does not need a huge ballroom funded by wealthy donors. For special events, the government can rent public space.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, placement and architectural design to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. Make interior ADA accessible where possible. Avoid the gold filigree that was not there before the current administration. Restore the garden.

The name of the project is somewhat ironic as the East Wing of the White House no longer exists. As perhaps the most iconic of all the historic sites in the US, any changes to the White House should always receive the most careful consideration. Up to this point, that consideration has been sorely lacking, as evidenced by the precipitous demolition of the existing construction with no review whatsoever. The proper evaluation of what (if any) changes should be made to the White House can only be done by taking the history and symbolism of the structure into consideration along with any real or imagined need for change. A demolition out of the blue does not change that.

The proposed new construction does not constitute a necessary or desirable alteration to the building. The project would better serve the country and the heritage of the building itself if it were to restore what has recently been destroyed rather than to flatter the vanity of a single individual. The current changes to the general decor of the White House interior do not inspire any confidence that the design of the proposed construction would in any way preserve or enhance the iconic status of the White House in any way.

Thank you for your consideration.

To Whom It May Concern,

The White House is the people's home that belongs to all the American people, where WE THE PEOPLE allow a President and his/her family live TEMPORARILY! It is a national symbol!

The fact that "we the people" did not ask for, vote on, or even consult with the National Capital Planning Commission about its historic preservation is astonishing. Our federal buildings and those who work in them deserve the safest and most appropriate way to be reconstructed. The building of an event hall, let alone one that is 90,000 square-feet that will engulf the historic and quaint aesthetics of the White House is appalling and merits stern scrutiny as well as public opposition.

Donald Trump is a vain man, and he is only defiling the property in Washington for self-praise that feeds his own ego. Americans must not support this ego-fueled whim, regardless of party. We DO NOT have a King, the presidency is not a throne, and the people's house is not a place for selfish egocentricity by anyone!

The fact that he lied about his intentions, then secretively raised funding from who knows who, and then, every day we hear his vanity project's rebuild costs are rising daily, is unacceptable! It's abuse of his position; it's not what citizens need, and the rebuild must stop because public offices are not meant for personal adoration. If he wants people to respect him, then he needs to concentrate on healthcare, education, infrastructure, and building relations with our foreign allies to ensure safety and security worldwide!

I've read that "critics have called the demolition 'painful,' comparing it to damaging a "Rembrandt painting." This demolition has DESTROYED the historic East Wing! The White House and its grounds should remain a place of service, not a stage for narcissism.

Very Respectfully,
Victoria

Donald Trump should be held personally liable for the costs of tearing down the East Wing without proper authorization and review. Trump should also be removed from the presidency immediately because he does not follow the laws of our country nor does he uphold the Constitution that he swore to uphold in his oath of office. Trump should also be jailed for all of his actions against the people who are trying to make him accountable for his many efforts of side-stepping responsibility for his many misdeeds (the list is too long to type here) and breaking the law. It is outrageous that he is not stopped from totally ruining our country and our standing in the world. The American people do not need or want a ballroom that most of us will never dance in. I would like to see a replica of what was there before constructed as closely as possible to the original. I would also like to see the Rose Garden put back in place of the patio Trump built. I believe that the East Wing should be rebuilt to the size that it was previous to its recent removal. The new addition should keep in balance with the rest of the White House. If a ballroom is needed, it should be built and decorated to match the architecture of the remaining portions of the White House and not to conflict or appear as a recent addition. I feel that the planned size would only detract from White House and make it look like an after thought instead of a balanced, historically correct addition.

To the Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

Thank you for listening to the citizens of the United States, who own the White House and who graciously allow Presidents to reside there—for free—during their respective terms of office. Presidents are renters, not owners, of the White House. And just as a lease-holder on an apartment does not have the right to make alterations to the fabric, neither should Presidents be able to alter the White House without the consent of the owners—the American people.

For context: I have a Ph.D. in American architectural history from Harvard University—my dissertation is on the second architect of the Washington National Cathedral, Philip Hubert Frohman. My specialization includes Gilded Age architecture, the period in which McKim, Mead & White executed their historic renovation of the White House, the period in which the McMillan Plan was conceived, and the Federal Triangle was built. So I know what I'm talking about. I will be brief, to respect your time.

CONCLUSION: this "East Wing Modernization Project" should be halted immediately.

1) The sheer volume of the proposed structure does not adhere to good Neoclassical architectural principles. It is far too massive to be a balanced, subordinate, and effective lateral pavilion to the central block of the White House. In opposition to good Neoclassical architectural principles—principles which draw the eye inward toward the center, using symmetry, massing, and balance as their tools—this "modernization" will draw the eye outward and to the right when viewing the White House from the south. Additionally, the proposed structure's aggressive use of a columned portico on the south facade will create strong positive and negative spaces which will overwhelm the south portico of the White House.

2) The interpretation and application of classical forms in the projected structure is architecturally illiterate, and is not based on classical proportional systems. It is not architecture, but uninformed "cut-and-paste." McKim, Mead & White (to say nothing of James Hoban) would be appalled by its overt architectural illiteracy. It's embarrassingly illiterate.

3) I have little confidence the project's use of materials will even approach the high standards of either McKim, Mead & White, or of James Hoban. President Trump's other projects—both in the White House and elsewhere—conclusively confirm his vulgarianism and his stupefying ignorance of architectural history. He is not qualified to contribute one iota to such a project.

This "East Wing Modernization Project" is an architectural monstrosity of the first order. Its architectural style (such as it has one) is not Federal, Neoclassical, or Beaux-Arts but, rather, is "dictator-chic"—a style more akin to the "Palace of the Parliament" of Nicolae Ceausescu in Bucharest, or Recep Erdogan's "Presidential Complex" in Turkey.

MOVING FORWARD:

This project should be halted immediately, until an architecturally appropriate and subordinate East Wing can be designed and approved by qualified architects, architectural historians, and preservationists through an established, open, and public review process.

Furthermore: the Office of Curator of the White House needs to be removed from the Executive Branch of the federal government, and made directly answerable to Congress alone. Previous Presidents have shown deference and respect for Curators who knew better; it is the Curators after all, not Presidents, who are educated in historic preservation and architectural history. President Trump has shown no such deference, nor respect, for professionals who know exponentially more about architectural history and historic preservation than he. President Trump's ability to ignore the advice of the Curator—as well as his hubris, aggressive ignorance, and architectural illiteracy—has resulted in this disaster. Legal authority over the White House complex should be entrusted to the Curator and his or her Congressionally-empowered committees; and they should be answerable to Congress alone, and empowered to tell a President "no" without fear of reprisal.

If this project is not halted—but actually moves forward—it is my sincere hope that the sound of wrecking-balls on January 20th, 2029, will ring-out across Washington, as this "carbuncle on the face of a much-loved and elegant friend" meets its fitting demise.

Sincerely,

Christopher D.H. Row, M.Div., Ph.D.

If I as a private homeowner were to do what has been done to the White House's East Wing, I would be subject to a very hefty fine and possibly a stop work order. I am required to have plans approved, get a permit, get environmental reviews signed off, submit an as built that shows my septic system, and then submit to inspections of foundation, framing, wiring and plumbing, sheathing, etc. Only when I have met ALL of these obligations do I get a certificate of occupancy.

It is therefore distressing to see the President of the United States set such a poor example by tearing down a historic building without a permit, without plans, without environmental reviews, without consultation of the appropriate authorities, and without engaging and consulting the American public - We, the People, in whose house he lives, temporarily - as to his plans and intent.

All work on the project should stop, immediately, and be on hold until the plans are approved, permits are obtained, environmental reviews are signed off, any asbestos mitigation is completed, and any other process that should have been gone through if the law had been followed properly to begin with, is gone through.

I am writing about the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House.

Something of that size and scale is absolutely out of proportion and unacceptable. The White House IS the people's house. Its history and aesthetics must be respected. It is not privately owned, but is owned by every single citizen of our country, and it is the opinions of citizens that must be foremost in any modifications.

That the East Wing was demolished with no plan or agreement is frankly criminal to start. But to consider building something so out of scale is compounding the crime and insulting the history of the house. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. That is not acceptable. Any replacement structure should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. It should not pull focus nor overshadow the original building in any way.

I urge a full and thorough review, and the involvement of historians and architectural preservationists in developing any plans for rebuilding the East Wing. Enough damage has already been done.

I am appalled by the blatant actions of Trump tearing down the East Wing with no input from the agencies that oversee the "People's House."
The garish Ballroom addition that Trump wants to add onto the White House is out of proportion to the main building and is an unnecessary addition. Any addition to the White House should be in scope and size to the original East Wing or at least not dwarf the Main Building of the White House.
The White House belongs to the People, not to one President who occupied the White House. The occupant of the White House needs to follow the rules and laws in place to preserve the People's House and obtain the appropriate permissions and approval.
It is a shame what has been done to this great piece of American History in one short year.
Please do not approve any further construction of this hideous ballroom.
I would prefer to see the East Wing resurrected as it was or just slightly expanded if needed, but not the monstrosity that is being proposed, just to satisfy one person's ego.
God Save America.

The lack of review prior to the demolition of the east wing is upsetting. The history, the significance all lost. For what?

Please ensure that proper policies are followed to emsure sustainability.

Also use of private funds for construction is concerning. The White House is the people's house, not corporations wanting to curry favor.

The precipitous, unauthorized destruction of the East Wing served no legitimate purpose.
What happened to the art and furnishings in the East Wing?

There needs to be a full and public accounting of art, furnishings and documents which were in the East Wing.

The destruction should not be rewarded. President Trump needs to pay in full from his personal funds for a full restoration of the premises.

This is public property. He is NOT the owner.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to comment!

Restore the East Wing exterior dimensions and architectural style, Make it compatible in scale to the west wing and main house. Make it balanced visually. Make interior ADA accessible where possible. Install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. As a long-term resident of the Washington DC area, viewing and taking friends and family to the White House has always been such a special event for me and others. This building is of incredible historic significance. The renovation being proposed is not for repair but so-called modernization. History is an important lesson and the White House is an emblem of that lesson. I strongly urge you to do whatever is in your power to stop this “renovation.” thank you Heather Stevens-Kittner.

Commissioners,
Thank you for accepting my comments related to the destruction of the East Wing Of the White House and construction of a Ballroom.

I find the title; East Wing Modernization Project to be fascicle, that title implies new lighting or perhaps new HVAC systems. The fact is that President Trump has illegally and permanently damaged the grand home to US Presidents. He is planning to create a Ballroom. What's Next, Will Couples be able to rent the place as a Wedding venue? It disgusts me to even imagine what it will Look like.

Unlike the palaces of European leaders This building has represented the modest American ideal of it's earliest residents. It Stood for over 150 Years until President Truman renovated the inside due to severe structural concerns. We have seen the changes President Trump has made, from turning the Oval office into garish display of artificial gold emblems, to paving over a the grassy area in the Rose Garden. The Paving and addition of umbrella tables makes the oncebeautiful ceremonial space look like a pool area at a country club.

Despite my issues with the destruction and anticipated decor-more gold- I'm very concerned with the cost and how it will be financed. I have heard how it will be done with donations. I fear a "donation" will be just another political Quid-pro-quo for this Presidents wealthy donors.

Lastly and Simply, The destruction was done outside the required congressional consideration. This President has a history of flouting the rules that govern our democracy.

I'm saddened by the destruction of the East Wing and Urge the commission to pause the work in order to investigate how it happened without oversight and ensure No further construction will take place until Congress can weigh in.

Thank You.

I oppose the work on this project.

First, there is an approval process for large changes to federal buildings. Demolition is a large change. The president did not follow the process. I would be in prison for doing a tiny fraction of what he has done to the East Wing.

The president lied about his plans. We can therefore assume he will continue to do so.

The president has not demonstrated the need for a huge ballroom. In terms of efficient use of the land, the East Wing offered daily use of the property with its offices and such. A ballroom will see only occasional use. That use will be largely ceremonial and therefore offer less intrinsic value than the work done in the East Wing. Not that ceremony has no value. It certainly does. But on those relatively rare occasions, existing White House facilities could fill the need as they long have. On the even more rare occasions where a truly large space is necessary, we can rent and secure a larger space anywhere in the country. Holding large events at varying locations allows us to showcase the rich, diverse history and culture of our nation. This ballroom on the other hand, will reflect the taste and opinion of just one person -- the current president. The People's House should not serve as a monument to one man's ego.

I would like to see all work on the project halted until there is a full investigation of the illegal work done so far, and a full, proper review of how best to address and modify this important American landmark.

Dear National Capital Planning Commission Members,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit comments on the proposed White House ballroom addition. I am 100% opposed to the 90,000sf addition for several reasons.

The White House is the "People's House", a national treasure, perhaps the most important building in the USA. It represents our 250+ year history, our democracy, our legacy. I fear a 90,000sf ballroom--that dwarfs the 55,000 White House--will obliterate that visually, symbolically, and metaphorically in the name of an obsolete vanity project.

This matters deeply to me. I've been a member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation for 40 years and live within the historic district of Fredericksburg, VA. My husband and I had to submit architectural plans to the local planning department and Historic Architectural Review Board for review and public hearing prior to receiving approval to demolish a dilapidated 400sf section of our home. Our home--a small private home that my husband and I own and maintain privately. Not the iconic "People's Home" that is a public building owned and maintained by the public through American taxpayer funds. We followed proper procedure out of respect for the law, public regulations, and historic legacy. The Trump administration demolished the East Wing with no regard for any of that--let alone common decency. My 400sf home renovation would have been halted immediately with a heavy financial penalty if I had done so. The President is the current, temporary occupant and steward of the White House. He is not above the law and should comply.

The proposed ballroom addition is too large. It will create an architectural eyesore out of scale with the White House and White House campus. We are told that construction will be funded with private donations. What about ongoing maintenance and operating costs? Won't we the public taxpayers be responsible for that? It will be too expensive. A venue that can accommodate up to 1,000 event guests, as President Trump wants, is a massive conference space. Public funds would pay the costs to entertain those 1,000 guests (as opposed to the now demolished space that could accommodate around 250 guests). The total cost of events, maintenance, and operations would be exorbitant--a wasteful use of taxpayer dollars.

We currently have a large patch of rubble where the historic East Wing used to be. I doubt any of the precious, priceless architectural details or interior furniture, art, and artifacts were saved. What is done, is sadly done. However, we have a chance to salvage and rebuild the East Wing-ballroom as a shining example of the best in American public architecture. We must stop the construction of the proposed 90,000 ballroom now and require the time and process to create an appropriately sized, scaled, and designed architectural gem that is worthy of being on the White House grounds and reflects American pride. Thank you for your thoughtful consideration.

Sincerely,
Jean M. Falvey

this is NOT a modernization project, it was and is wholesale destruction without correct input or following established rules. This project should be halted and not worked on at all. Let me open my comments by introducing myself. I am one of the many lower, middle class citizen of the United States of America. I am a retired educator, wife, mother, grandmother and open minded participant in the democracy which I am fortunate to be a part of.
I know much has been said about the ongoing need to have a ballroom for us to welcome dignitaries and guests. However, I do not consider the need for such a large complex. Does a ballroom need to accommodate 1,000 seated guest or thirty-eight to forty foot ceiling. I am in agreement with Commissioner Mendelson that the height and footprint of this project is unnecessary large for what is needed. How many state dinners is seating for 1000 people needed? I would like to see this scaled back at least 25%. We do not need to try to keep up with the Jones, especially those who live in palaces and castles, to offer a genuine welcome to our visitors.
With all the divisiveness and economic unrest that is apparent in our country at this time, the timing on this project could not be worse. In addition, the tearing down of the East Wing prior to an approved plan was a horrible power play. We have no choice but to move forward, but we do not need to bow to a temporary resident's fantasies. Not one more bucket of dirt needs to be moved or foundation poured until a comprehensive plan is presented and approved by the appropriate council.

The East Wing ballroom should not dwarf and overpower the White House itself. President Trump needs to go through Congress before mkeinf changes to the White House. "East Wing Modernization Project" is a complete misnomer. This is a travesty—in the People's House, there will be a humongous ballroom for the billionaires and tech bros to celebrate their wealth, all because Mr. Trump likes to tear things down and replace them with badly designed and decorated structures that are impractical and of no use to the People.

Stop this. The White House will be dwarfed by this ridiculous structure. Please rebuild the East Wing largely as it was and restore the elegance and integrity of the structure. The architectural balance of the whole building will be thrown off, and the ballroom will exist as an example of excesses and corruption of this Presidency.

I think the this project is ridiculous and disgusting. How the president has gone about this project is completely disrespectful not only to the history of the White House but also to the American people. The White House is the People's house, as he seems to not know or more likely, not care. It's also alarming that he's gone ahead with this scheme, bypassing the proper channels. When the American people are suffering under rising costs due to this administration's idiotic policies such as tariffs on anyone and everyone, the president somehow thinks building a gigantic ballroom is the best idea. It's also not the action of an individual and administration that knows it will only be there for 4 more years as the President cannot and will not serve a 3rd term, should he still be living as his age and health are against him. The construction should immediately be halted and restoration of the East Wing back to its former glory begun, at the expense of Mr. Trump as it was his reckless decision to go ahead with the demolition and not that of the American people.

Again, in every case all of the research and complete plan were completed before start up.

I am incensed at the audacity of President Trump to radically alter the the White House without even so much as the permission of Congress and the National Park Service.

I oppose the East Wing Modernization Project. It was illegal for the East Wing of the White House to be torn down without review and approval of the appropriate organizations in charge of our historic White House, which is owned by We the People, not the sitting administration.

Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800.
This review is also required under federal law. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive congressional approval.
While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

My vote is NO on any further changes until and unless the proper organizations are involved, time is taken to review any proposals and changes are approved by all proper legal entities, including Congress.

However, since the current administration seems to disregard the law and the processes involved to make this addition happen, it isn't clear to me what can be done to stop him.

I lived in the Washington, DC metro area for 42 years and not only visited the White House a couple of times, but always took visitors on a drive through the neighborhood where it was located. As you know, it became more difficult to arrange tours after 9/11/2001. Seeing the White House prior to the recent destruction was still a thrill for out of area visitors. It breaks my heart to see what has happened since I left the DC metro area.

As a citizen of the United States of America, I find it appalling that the current administration has taken upon itself to destroy one of our most sacred and treasured historical buildings in Washington, DC. The White House was an absolutely beautiful building and from what I have seen has been destroyed by a wrecking ball, without any input from the citizens of this country. This building belongs to the people of this country and we should have a say as to what structural changes can be made. I have seen pictures of the proposed ballroom and from i can see, this ballroom completely overshadows the White House.

At a time when the majority of the American people are struggling to pay for the high cost of food, housing, and healthcare, I think that it is in very poor taste and judgment to be putting time and money into this project. It has been reported that it is being paid for by donations, but then we need to ask the question if this is really true and at what cost.

All of the government buildings in Washington, D.C. are beautiful and should be preserved to reflect upon the history of our country. I am totally against allowing this project to move forward. I feel that this administration should be required to rebuild the East Wing of the White House to it's original plan.

Restore the public and above-ground spaces in the East Wing to how they existed before the demolition, with infrastructure/MEP brought up to current state of the art.

Upgrade the below-ground secure spaces as necessary for national security requirements.

Build a ballroom elsewhere in DC (not on WH grounds), if deemed necessary, and make it 100% publicly funded to remove any possibility of favor peddling.

It is beyond outrageous what Trump has done to the historic structure of the White House. At this time, since he has already destroyed the East Wing, at the very least I would hope that the monstrous plan of a ballroom could be tremendously scaled down to match the rest of the building.

The now-demolished East Wing should be reconstructed to an appropriate scale to match the White House main building and the West Wing. It should not be out-of-proportion to the existing White House. Any new construction on the east side should not hover over the existing building , and its architecture should match the White House. A massive pediment will look very much out-of-pace and should not be considered. As for the rebuilt East Wing, it should be used for office space and other uses, not for an oversized ballroom.

I feel very strongly against the beyond reasonable extension of the East Wing as it is unnecessary and it will in my opinion ruin the White House. Has there been a recent need for ball room dancing? This is a waste of our tax money and it needs to be to scale within the scope and size of the current wing. I preferred the gardens and outdoor grass area to any ball room. Please do not proceed with this awful unnecessary project headed by a dictator. He represents nothing but greed, hate and corruption in my mind and this expansion is a reflection of his narcissism. Please do NOT build this monstrosity in what was a beautiful and scalable East Wing.

I sincerely doubt that a 90,000 sq foot ballroom is needed to support the Executive Branch of the government. I'm sure that there must be sufficient event space somewhere in Washington, DC that could accommodate State Dinners or other necessary functions.

A new East Wing structure should be constructed to replace the one that was demolished. Whatever functions that need to be housed in that structure should be such that the structure conforms to the original aesthetic, size, shape and placement so that it matches the symmetry of the West Wing and complements the architectural design and size of the White House.

In addition to the re-construction of the East Wing, the Rose Garden is also a must to be restored.

And none of this re-construction should be paid for by the American people. If the President's donors are not on board with footing the bill, then he must out of his own pocket.

The White House is the PEOPLE'S House. I am AGAINST the addition of an outrageously grotesque ballroom which will diminish the original building's structure. If a ballroom is "needed" then it should be constructed at a different location away from any historically important buildings or memorials. PLEASE do NOT allow this construction to move forward. Also, please demand that the mutilated wing be restored. Add to that the restoration of the Jackie Kennedy Rose Garden.

I am appalled by the way the East Wing was demolished before any studies or comments could be made. I feel that a 90,000 square foot Ballroom is completely unwarranted, and a waste of taxpayer money. If the building had been in need of repairs prior to the demolition then plans for those repairs should have been brought to the public after official inspection. I would not have objected to needed repairs, nor to esthetic remodeling with appropriate time for public comment on proposed changes. At this point it is too late to change what has already been done, but I do believe that construction should take the general public’s interests into consideration. Remodeling should include legally required Americans with Disabilities Act amendments included. Esthetic remodeling should be elegant without being ostentatious.

I was outraged and heart broken when I saw the demolition of the White House East Wing, done quickly and secretively, and without consultation with any of the apporipriate people's reprsentatives, as if the White House were Donald Trump's personal property. When I started seeing plans for the proposed ballroom I became even more outraged. It looks like the kind of tacky palace of Saddam Hussein. It's unnecessary and ugly as sin. But that's hardly even the worst thing about it. The infusion of "private funds" being spent on this personal vanity project for Donald Trump are clearly the price of access to the president and favorable outcomes for donors' corporate and political agendas. How is this even legal? The presidency is for sale in this construction project which is unneeded and unwanted by the American people. If a rennovation were really necessary, why didn't the plans go through the normal approval process? Why didn't the president ask Congress to appropriate funds? Why weren't Historical Preservation groups consulted on the plans? This is a vanity project pure and simple, paid for by corporate bribes. It needs to be stopped before any more work moves forward on it.

As a historic building, no demolition should have taken place without the opportunity for public comment and, possibly, the approval of Congress. Updates to old structures are sometimes warranted and I probably could have supported the restoration of the original structure and, depending on the design, an addition. Even though, purportedly, the demolition and replacement of the east wing is being funded by private donations, there should be verification of who the contributors are and that accounting should be made public.

As an American with British heritage, I am a long time member of the Royal Oak Foundation, supporting the work of the National Trust of England, Wales, and Northern Ireland. In watching the National Trust, I have seen how important it is to be a caretaker of a historic property, and, most of all, to do it right.

The Trump Administration has miserably failed any attempt at preserving and caring for the White House complex. Their total disregard for following existing rules and protocols when they decided to totally demolish the East Wing of the White House without input from Congress or any historic preservation organizations was just one example.

I urge everyone involved in the East Wing Modernization Project to follow rules, follow protocol, determine what is most needed in that space, find non-partisan funding, and move ahead with what is best for our entire country...not what is best for one tyrant and his followers.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I am appalled that the East Wing was demolished.

The destruction of the East Wing or any part of the White House, without first going through an approval process of any kind is an insult to our American heritage. It was conducted as through the White House "belongs" to the President, which it does not. That Pres Trump vandalized the public property against the law or any sense of decorum is the typical behaviour of a common criminal - which he is.

The ostentatious ballroom structure proposed is a further insult -- both for its truly ugly and outsized scale, as well as the concurrent lack of any process regarding how our national heritage is maintained and preserved.

To allow any President to get away with the demolition of something dear, let alone replace it with some cheap vulgarity, is a horrible precedent. The project must be halted asap, and a genuine process needs to stand in its place

I am writing because I'm very concerned about the construction of a ballroom on the site of the demolished East Wing of the White House. The scale of the new ballroom is in no way compatible with the White House. It's far too large and is not in the same style as the White House. Why was a president allowed to destroy a part of the People's House and solely decide what gets rebuilt in its place? This entire situation is unacceptable. He cannot be allowed to just put up a ridiculously large, gaudy monstrosity. He's already trashed the Oval Office. Please do not allow him to do any more damage.

1. Scale so it compliments existing structure. The ballroom should not be the focus of the White House or overshadow it.
2. Maintain the historical architecture while upgrading to current building codes. The ballroom should not be a golden palace spectacle.
3. Structure should be focused on a multipurpose design or it becomes a showpiece of wasted space. Being able to divide it into smaller spaces would allow a greater number of venues.

I watched the TCPC meeting that was held in early February. I think I have a pretty good grasp of the scope of the project. Several comments:
1. I object strongly to the premature start on demolition before the TCPC or the public could make their feelings known about the project. Without a doubt the appearance of the heavy equipment on the White House grounds was surprising and discouraging to those who believe that historic building improvements should pass through an extensive review process.
2. I find the assertion that 'top secret' considerations for the lower level of the addition fall outside of the TCPC or other oversight bodies. Too often in this and, admittedly, other administrations has the phrase 'top secret' been used to cloud and obscure unethical behavior.
3. I am somewhat encouraged that the grandiose original size and scope of the project has been scaled back to better serve the claimed needs of the facility. I would encourage the planners to insist on further reductions in the size of this project.
4. As was mentioned by other commissioners, it would have been helpful to see the overall, wholistic concept for the total improvements currently be considered for the White House grounds. Presenting the plans piece by piece make it impossible for concerned citizens and commissioners to accurately evaluate the value of these projects.

RE: NCPC file #8733, the East Wing modernization project

The White House has been the residence of our presidents since 1800. It is a nationally significant site. As a preservationist, I watched the demolition of the East Wing with fury and heartache, wishing that there had been some previous review of the plan.

As the NCPC considers the design of the new addition and proposed changes to the grounds, I encourage you to use the professional guidance of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties, specifically the treatment of Rehabilitation. Standard 9 is the most applicable. It states, "New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction shall not destroy historic materials that characterize the property." In addition, "new work shall be compatible with the massing, size, scale, and architectural features to protect the historic integrity of the property and its environment."

I implore you to consider this as you review the new design.

I object to this project for several reasons:
1. The scale and size is unnecessary and overwhelms the historic White House.
2. The architecture is not historically correct or consistent the White House and Federalist architecture.
3. The two-story design is ruins the symmetry and balance with the historic White House.

The former East Wing should be replicated on the exterior facade and the ballroom scaled down to fit the original footprint. Discreet exterior space could be added in the back for occasionally overflow needs. Former Presidents have managed without excessive space to entertain domestic and foreign dignitaries and a dignified manner.

I oppose the East Wing replacement and request the agency halt further action until statutory requirements are fully met.

The NEPA review remains inadequate and fails to satisfy the requirement for a reasoned, legally defensible process. Under NEPA (42 U.S.C. § 4321 et seq.) and CEQ regulations (40 C.F.R. Pt. 1500–1508), a full Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) is required where significant impacts may occur. The administrative record does not demonstrate a thorough analysis of reasonable alternatives, cumulative and indirect impacts, or irreversible and irretrievable commitments of resources. I therefore formally request preparation of a full EIS evaluating the proposed replacement and a robust range of feasible alternatives (including no-action, reconstruction consistent with historic form and scale, and less-destructive, cost-effective options), accompanied by meaningful public disclosure and additional opportunity for comment.

The Trump administration's removal of the original east portion of the White House and its proposal to construct a substantially larger replacement that would overshadow and be out of place with the historic complex raise acute preservation concerns. The review fails to adequately assess adverse effects to the White House's historic fabric, setting, and associative values. Pursuant to the National Historic Preservation Act, including Section 106 (54 U.S.C. § 306108), the agency must undertake formal consultation with the State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) and consider Advisory Council on Historic Preservation guidance, National Historic Landmark standards, and the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties to identify, assess, and avoid or mitigate adverse effects.

Given the extraordinary public cost associated with constructing a larger replacement, the record must transparently justify the expenditure with a full cost–benefit and alternatives analysis. At minimum, the EIS should: (1) disclose project costs and reasonable cost-saving alternatives; (2) analyze cumulative, indirect, and long-term impacts to the historic resource and the White House's visual and contextual integrity; (3) identify practicable mitigation, avoidance, and design alternatives that respect historic scale and setting; and (4) document meaningful public engagement and considered responses to substantive comments.

The irreversible destruction already undertaken and the prospect of a dominant, out-of-scale replacement will cause lasting cultural and historic harm that cannot be remedied by mitigation alone. I urge the agency to prepare a full EIS, initiate and complete NHPA Section 106 consultation with SHPO/NHL authorities, and fully consider and document all reasonable alternatives and mitigation before approving or beginning any additional irreversible construction.

I listened just now to the briefing to the NCPC in January by the architects who have been hired to oversee construciton of the new 89,000 sq ft ball room and related building under the East Wing Modernization Project. Asite. a native Washingtonian whose memories of the White House go back more than 70 Years, I am very concerned about the very signifiant aesthetic, historic and cultural impacts that the proposed porject will have one of the most iconic buildings in Washington, DC. I was very surprised that with the exception of Commissioner Mendelson, no one questioned the rationale for a Ballroom of the gargantual proportions currently being planned, at a cost that has balloned to some $400 M, or more than twice the original estimated cost. Why does the White House need to accommodate 1000 seated guests for a State Dinner--or for that matter, any official function? A quick Google search reveals that the Dining rooms in other heads of State Residences typically accommodate between 100-300 seated guests. The State Dining Room of the White House accommodates about 150 seated guest. The use of tents apparently expands this to 300. Why not, then, build a permament new room that can accommodate up to 400 guests, well above the upper limit of anticipated buests at a state banquet. This would decrease the foot print of the new structure by well over half, maintain better proportionality and balance relative to the White House so as not to overwhelm it and allow it to maintain its history primacy on the grounds, and signficantly reduce the spiraling costs of this project. There is no justification for the scope and size of the proposed 89,000 sq ft structure relative to the stated need, which is to ensure that Heads of State and official guests are comfortably accommodated to the highest standard of such diplomatic functions. The desire to construct something this massiveis--well beyond any functional purpose-- is showmanship, pure and simple. It is a garish, tasteless enterprise that flies in the face of the architectural and historic integrity of the site and the need for fiscal restraint at a time when essential public/social services are being slashed by this adminsitration. The White House's claim that no federal funds will be used for the construction of the new ballroom is highly unlikely given the anticipated cost overruns. More disturbingly, the current proposal to accept contributions by private groups and large corporations to cover the bulk of the costs, is a blatant conflict of interest. It is essentially putting the People's House up for sale to the highest bidders. Why on earth would the National Capital Plannign Commission ever approve such a project?

Ball Room? What is this, 1740?
And "private donors" are paying for it? Just because Donald Hump says so, does not prove anything.
And there are not enough firms in the United States that are in the business of "saving" historic spaces/buildings that could have looked at the site before just bulldozing ahead and putting it to the wrecking ball.
This administration has constantly imparted it "will" upon the American public. They are constantly bypassing the protections and procedures that are in place to protect such "decisions ".
The blatant bypassing of the rule of law shows it ugly face once again.

Like most people, I was appalled to see that the administration had torn down the East Wing without any notice or following the required process for approvals for any changes to historic buildings or federal property. I am not opposed to adding a ballroom or large reception area but it should be reasonably sized and in keeping with the previous hight of the demolished wing. It should be no larger than a standard hotel ballroom and the architecture should be in keeping with the style of the original mansion. Bigger is not always better. I am concerned that a rush to complete construction will result in sloppy and shoddy work which later administrations will be the ones who suffer with an inferior building. The administration must be held to the appropriate legal processes for approval of any construction impacting the White House.

Unauthorized Alteration of National Historic Landmark
To: The House Committee on Oversight and Accountability, The National Capital Planning Commission, and the Commission of Fine Arts.

I. Procedural Violations and Lack of Oversight
The recent demolition within the East Wing of the White House represents a startling breach of public trust and legal protocol. This project was initiated without:

Mandatory Public Comment: Sidestepping the American people's right to weigh in on "The People's House."

Permitting & Review: Circumventing standard historic preservation reviews required for landmarks of this magnitude.

Transparent Planning: Operating behind closed doors to fundamentally alter a site of global significance.

II. Misappropriation of Public Funds
At a time when the nation faces critical challenges, the allocation of significant taxpayer capital toward a "luxury ballroom" is fiscally indefensible. These resources should be prioritized for essential human services, including:

Housing Initiatives: Addressing the rising homelessness crisis.

Disability Services: Enhancing accessibility and support for vulnerable citizens.

Poverty Alleviation: Directing funds toward programs that provide immediate relief to those in need.

III. Irreversible Cultural and Aesthetic Damage
The destruction of historic architecture is not merely a construction choice; it is a loss of national heritage. The proposed replacement—characterized by a lack of architectural harmony—leaves a literal and metaphorical hole in the White House grounds.

"To dismantle a historic landmark in favor of an unnecessary, aesthetically discordant addition is an affront to our history. It is a nauseating disregard for the architectural integrity that defines our nation's capital."

IV. Immediate Demands
We call for an immediate stay on all construction regarding the new ballroom project. We demand a full audit of the decision-making process and a public hearing to address why historic preservation laws were ignored in favor of an unwanted and wasteful expansion.

(1) Have President Trump personally pay for the cost of illegally destroying the East Wing and for any lawsuits that result (hello, asbestos!)

(2) For 225 years, presidents haven't seen the need for a gaudy ballroom that will dwarf the White House. There are better uses of those funds, such as social programs that have been cut by this administration based on unfounded claims of fraud. It should not be built.
(3) If the ballroom is approved, it must be no larger than the East Wing in size. The ballroom should not be a monument to the current president, and his name should not appear anywhere on the structure.
(4) No gold anywhere in the structure--real or fake.
(5) Ideally--have a public referendum/vote on the construction of the new ballroom (with the size noted in #3) before any construction begins. I seriously doubt the majority of people want that extravagance when they can barely afford groceries.

Please reject any continued destruction of our historic White House. The demolition of the East Wing without following proper protocol and receiving appropriate approvals was unprecedented. The plan to now build a “golden ballroom” with square footage greater than the footprint of the White House itself would ruin the historic nature and appearance of the building. If a ballroom is truly needed, the size should be reviewed and approved OR better yet, a location that is NOT adjacent to the White House should be selected for its construction.

I am vehemently opposed to this project. The demolition of the historic East Wing was a horrendous act. I am not believing any of the fabricated reasons that this is necessary. This project, like others, is only fueled by the ego of Trump. It should be manifest that all he really wants to do is build things so he can attach his name to them. I am sure it will have large lettering designating it as The Trump Ballroom. This project is totally unnessary, as is the ludicrous, massive arch that he wants to build.

What should also be of major concern is how this is going to be funded. It is said that it will be built with private donations, however I have recently seen reports that whatever funds that have been donated, cannot seem to be located. I do not know that the donors have even been identified. From all indications, this is but another opportunity to, in essence, bribe the President of the United States and it should never be allowed.

It's too late, obviously, to prevent the demolition of the East Wing. Going forward, it is vital, essential -- and right -- that whatever construction takes its place, that the new building conform to the design and scale of the remaining White House complex. The new building should probably also fulfill the practical functions of the former East Wing. Apparently, the offices of the First Lady were in that wing, and underneath, apparently, was a ton of bunker and other national-security stuff. Professionals with experience in renovating historic places should be the final arbiter of this proposed ballroom. The White House isn't on the scale of Versailles, and doesn't perform the same symbolic function as Versailles, which was to demonstrate the unchallenged and unshared power of a hereditary king. Louis XIV said, "L'état c'est moi." I AM the state. This isn't true (in theory) of our form of government: the relatively more modest, and formerly less gilded, White House has always reflected that principle.
The White House may very well need a new ballroom for public functions, I don't know. It's gotten along for centuries without one, or one on this proposed gaudy scale. The East Wing may have needed updating: again, I don't know. But professionals with experience in historic preservation and design -- and with taste -- should be in charge of any proposed changes. Just as they should have ultimate say over proposed future demolitions of historic buildings in Washington D.C., and construction such as a triumphal arch.
Thank you for your work, and for listening.

I strongly oppose the White House East Wing modernization/ballroom project, in large part because I am against the demolition of historic structures, the $400 million cost, and environmental/structural impacts.

Such a major, permanent alteration lacks sufficient public justification or benefit.

I object to destroying historical parts of the East Wing.

I question the necessity of a $400 million, non-essential, "luxury" project, and arguie funds should be used elsewhere.

The lack of transparency is another major concern and it is inappropriate that the project proceeded without sufficient public input or opportunity to weigh in.

I also have concerns about the environmental disruption, structural integrity of surrounding areas, and long-term consequences of this construction.

Finally, I request more info on how the project affects federal interests in the National Capital Region.

Sincerely, Christina Ranvik

I am writing in opposition to the current design of the East Wing Modernization Project, specifically the scale of the ballroom.

I believe the site can only support a project of perhaps 50,000 SF, not the current plan for 90,000 SF. If the ballroom were at a reduced size, then all support spaces of the project, such as the kitchen, restrooms, storage spaces, and pre-function areas could also be reduced in size.

The current ballroom is way too large in proportion to the White House. Its footprint is too large and the height, driven by an excessive ceiling height, is also too large. Splashing an assortment of classical columns on it does not hide its inappropriate scale adjacent to the White House.

Please ensure that a much smaller project will be approved. Thank you.

The proposed 90,000 square foot ballroom addition is entirely too large for the White House. It will make the White House look like a small addition to the overall building and diminish its importance. While the NCPC and Commission of Fine Arts was not included in the decision to tear down the East Wing, it is mandatory that they are consulted, and heard, on the design of the replacement. Congress has to have decision making on the project. In addition, the inside of the ballroom can't be filled with gold decorations. The Oval Room looks like a casino and we don't want the same for the ballroom.

A bit late now to be given the opportunity to make comments "before" the project; Trump's actions are a never-ending disgrace.

The East Wing should be rebuilt to return to the services it provided (First Lady and staff offices, White House Social Secretary, correspondence staff, White House Graphics and Calligraphy Office, etc.) prior to Trump's unauthorized and illegal destruction. There is no need for, nor widespread public call for, a giant ballroom at an astronomical price/sqft. I'm sure it's impossible to exactly replicate the destroyed historic building, but new construction should be as close as possible to a direct rebuild.

While I support an addition to the White House to provide places for events, the addition is disproportional to the historic volume of the building. It is critical when designing an addition to a National Landmark, or otherwise historic building, to ensure that the historic fabric is not overshadowed by modern construction. It is my opinion that the size of this addition is disrespectful to the historic character of the building and will overshadow the original construction.

I also have concerns that this 90,000sf will be very energy intensive to heat/cool, and yet will only be sporadically used. A more modest addition could benefit the proportions of the campus, offer a more reasonable sized event space, and be connected to outdoor tents when an event large enough would warrant it.

Donald Trump should be held accountable for destroying the East Wing of the White House and should be made to restore its original (as of last year) structure. The White House is the People's House and does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.
The White House is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.
The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

Processes are in place when an administration decides they want to make a change to the people's house. The process is in place for the preservation of our history and to ensure the American people have a say in any changes made on their behalf - whether paid for by taxpayers or donors. In this case, none of these processes have been respected. They have been ignored, history left unpreserved and the will of the people unsought. This project must halt immediately and the processes applied retroactively to ensure that as much as can be preserved or recovered or rebuilt is and then authorities and experts input sought and heeded as well as public sentiment.

To scale and proportion as required, restore the exterior look of the building that was knocked down.

For the interior: Four individual rooms, that if needed for a gathering, two of which could be opened for occasional seating space for say, 100 persons to dine. Use the rooms on a routine daily basis as:
1) An office for the First Lady--whether she is ever here or not; this area could also be the dining room staging area and kitchen.
2) A classroom, where the public and newly elected officials could come for lessons on our Constitution, our form of government, ethics classes and the like;
3) A room where immigrants preparing to become citizens can come for the final phases of Citizen ship testing and where the Naturalization Ceremony can be held, for successful groups
4) A small comfortable room, decorated with photos and descriptions of the previous wing and its history, where meetings between representatives and small groups of individual constituents with concerns, issues, requests, as well as tours, could take place.

Nowhere in this new space should Trump's name be permitted, save for perhaps a note that he was the president who knocked the Wing down without permission or process, and after protest, the current wing was constructed with public input. No private funding should be permitted for this new construction UNLESS it comes with full disclosure about the amount and ANY ties to the Trump family, political donations, its businesses and a full listing of any and all governmental contracts icw the donor.

Now that the East Wing has been destroyed, it's replacement MUST be within reason for style, size, fittings and purpose. It should NOT be a monument to a single person, rather the PEOPLE of the United States.

Size: determined by location, scale and within the previously established guidelines.
Style: determined by it's subordination to the White House and not to overshadow or outshine the people's house.

The White House is more than a residence or an event venue — it is one of the most recognizable symbols of American democracy and continuity. Every addition, renovation, or restoration should honor that role. For that reason, the East Wing should be preserved and restored in keeping with its historic character rather than converted into a ballroom.
The East Wing serves important functional and symbolic purposes. It houses offices, supports the daily operations of the First Family, and provides structured access for visitors entering a space that represents the people's house. Altering it into a large-scale entertainment venue risks shifting its purpose from governance and service to spectacle.
Historic preservation is not about resisting change; it is about stewarding legacy. The White House has evolved carefully over time, with renovations guided by respect for architectural integrity and historical continuity. A ballroom may offer convenience for events, but convenience alone should not outweigh the responsibility to protect a site of profound national significance.
Moreover, large ceremonial events can be hosted in existing appropriate venues without permanently altering a historic wing of the executive residence. Once architectural character is removed, it cannot truly be restored. Preservation decisions should err on the side of caution, ensuring that future generations inherit the building as faithfully as possible.
The East Wing is part of a living monument. Restoring and maintaining it as it was affirms a commitment to history, institutional stability, and thoughtful stewardship of a building that belongs to all Americans.

The White House is a National Monument and any additions/construction projects must conform to the style and scale of the existing structure. The proposed Ballroom addition, in its current proposed design, does not conform to the scale of the White House. However much the proposed addition of a Ballroom may be deemed necessary, at 90,000 square feet it would be wildly larger than the entire original structure!! This design must be reviewed and evaluated for appropriateness of design BEFORE any additional work or construction goes forward.

The White House is a national historic treasure, admired by American and foreign visitors alike. Like the US Capitol, it is a living symbol of our nation. Part of its appeal has always been its classical architectural style and its enduring subtle grace. It is the People's House, to be occupied only temporarily by the President of the United States during his/her term of office. Neither the president nor any other one person should have the power to alter any part of it without official approval.

It is my opinion that the East Wing should be reconstructed exactly as it appeared on the exterior, with appropriate internal changes to accommodate the use of modern technology or other such improvements, This may include the underground secure space. The reconstruction should include replacement of historic landscaping such as the Rose Garden. All gilded lettering and other embellishments should be removed from the White House as a whole to return it to its original appearance.

The White House was never intended to be a grand space for lavish entertaining. It has served its purpose well for hosting state dinners and other official events as becoming the Office of the President. The city of Washington offers hotel ballrooms and convention space that can be rented for the occasional large event. However, if it is determined by official processes that a White House Ballroom is actually needed, that structure should be an addition to the restored White House, of a modest size that is compatible and at a location that does not detract from the original structure.

Thank you for considering public comment before allowing further changes of our historic properties.

All new additions to the White House should follow best practices of Historic Preservation. The new construction should harmonize with the existing White House, but should not in any way suggest that it is a historic structure itself through the excessive use of classical components such as moldings, columns, column capitols and other detailing that will give a false impression of the period in which it is built. The new structure should also in no way intrude in size or scale on the character, presence, and beauty of the original White House. A ballroom is understandably a necessary accessory for White House events and should suitable represent the dignity of its location, but it should reflect in its design the modern age in which it will be built and the modern purpose it will serve.

Bottom line, the President of the United States is a tenant of the White House. We the People are collectively the landlord. I, as a member of the landlord collective, do not give my permission for any further construction on the East Wing of our house until a new tenant -- one with honor and integrity -- is ensconced within the White House.

The only work to be done is that which is necessary to clean up the current mess and locate and secure any and all items previously held within the walls of the East Wing.

Thank you.

I am horrified that this project is even being discussed. The White House is supposed to be the People's House, not a giant entertaining space. Multiple administrations have successfully held wonderful events with the existing footprint.

Please restore the East Wing to its former glory as soon as possible. Goodness knows there are plenty of photos to enable that to happen.

Thank you for your oversight and diligence.

The money that could go towards housing the homeless, feeding the hungry and investing in clean, renewable energy vital to the survival of this planet is instead going to a useless, extravagant, unnecessary ballroom.

Is this greed and vanity, that forsakes the needy and helpless, that forgets the people it does not serve, what our nation is to be known for? Is this how our taxes, our hard-earned money, best spent on? To foist the ego of one man over the needs of the many is truly an insult on the already-suffering people. To do this is to spit on the people the White House is meant to serve.

Do soldiers die in unfamiliar, unwelcome shores, carry out heartless acts of dehumanizing violence against their better nature, just to come home to a nation that is too obsessed with gilding the halls of people who refuse to home them, feed them and treat the scars they cannot heal from alone?

Look at yourselves. Look at the people who cry out in pain and righteous fury at the injustices that the money of this project can go to ending. Would you see them suffer further? Look at the earth reeling from the scars and waste we've left upon it. Would you burn the money that can go to healing it, and making the future brighter for the children you say you care so dearly for?

I see no God in your White House. Strip His holy name from every corner of that palace of shadows. Put the money towards the people who earned it, WE THE PEOPLE. Not to the self-proclaimed king tearing innocents from their children!

Ignore us at your own shame. May it haunt those responsible for this disgrace until they vanish from this earth.

There is absolutely no reason at all to build a 90,000 square foot ballroom on the White House except to appease the vanity of a desperate, failed president. Not only is it a complete waste of money, but would only symbolize his total lack of interest in serving the common good, and his ignorance of the integrity of an historic building that does not and will never belong to him. This plan is un-American and a slap in the face to all the hardworking citizens who actually pay taxes.

Donald Trump must be held accountable for all the destruction he has caused not only to the East Wing of the White House, but to our Country as a whole. He must be held accountable for all the damage he has done to the laws of our Nation, our Constitution, and our Democracy. One way to start making him accountable is for the National Capital Planning Commission to forcefully remind him that the White House belongs to the people of our Country not to him personally. He has already turned parts of the White House into a personal shrine and a personal money-making operation. The NCPC can at least attempt to stop him from turning even more areas of the White House grounds into his personal pay to play amusement park. Please stop him. Those of us who care about our history as well as our democracy must stand up now to tell Donald Trump "NO"!

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park that is owned by the American people. Given that designation, the public deserves an opportunity to weigh in on the project. Federal law also states that major construction projects in DC have to be reviewed by the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts; not to mention complying with the National Environmental Policy Act and receiving congressional approval.

Creating a 90,000 square foot building that far exceeds the 55,000 square foot White House belittles the historic structure beloved by all Americans and violates every architectural principle that I'm aware of.

Americans deserve better.

The idea of building a ballroom at the White House is certainly an ambitious one, and any design choice should reflect both practicality and long-term stewardship of a historic public building.

While marble flooring can create a striking and elegant appearance, it also comes with significant drawbacks. Marble requires constant cleaning, polishing, and specialized maintenance to preserve its finish. Over time, it is highly susceptible to scratching, staining, and dulling, particularly in a high-traffic venue such as a ballroom intended for frequent events. Marble is a rigid, brittle material. Unlike wood flooring commonly used in ballrooms, it has no flexibility or shock absorption, so it cannot tolerate structural movement well, expect cracks.

From a functional standpoint, marble is not ideal for dancing. Its smooth surface can become slippery, increasing the risk of falls. In addition, marble is an unforgiving material underfoot, offering little shock absorption and potentially contributing to joint strain or injury.
If it is used as a dining room, marble is porous so spilled wine will stain. Any spilled liquid will allow slip and fall injury.

If a marble floor were nevertheless selected for aesthetic reasons, it would be prudent to establish a dedicated maintenance fund to cover the ongoing costs of care, restoration, and safety mitigation. Such a fund would help ensure that the financial burden of upkeep does not fall unexpectedly on future budgets and would support responsible preservation of the space.

In a building of such historic and symbolic importance, durability, safety, and long-term sustainability should weigh just as heavily as visual impact in any final decision.

The proposal turns the peoples house j to Mar a Lago. Oversized, lopsided, out of proportion. It will look like someone with too much plastic surgery and should be torn down the minute the next President assumes office.

Here we are cutting back on all kinds of programs that benefit the US and save lives in order to build this ego-driven monstrosity.

Like many Americans, I watched with horror at the destruction of the historically significant East Wing of the White House, much as the paving over of the Rose Garden.
My intital disgust turned to grave concern when I realized there had been no vetting or approval of these projects. The White House is The People's House, not a private residence the current occupant can remodel unilaterally with impunity.
My other concern is that donors for this project are buying access and influence with Mr Trump for his vanity project.
Congress and the National Capital Planning Commission, the National Park Service, and the Commuttee for the Preservation of the White House must have input and grant approval before any construction begins.
And steps need to be taken to prevent buying of influence with this president.

I have been upset about the ballroom project from the beginning of hearing about it. The White House and all the public grounds belong to us, the American citizens. It does not belong to Trump or anyone else. What he has done to the oval office is a disgrace and no doubt, the "ballroom" will be equally distasteful. He has no right to tear down historical buildings much less tear down part of the White House. It just sickens me to see what he is doing to not only the White House but also our country. Dear members,

I am writing to express my upsettment about the destruction of the East Wing without any prior notice ..it was done in private and as an assault on the American people.
I want to encourage the the footprint of the East wing be maintained as well as the height be in line with building currently adjacent to it. Any modernization should only be to the inside at this point and outside architecture match the current design of the adjacent buildings.
Modernization is not a fair way to describe what is planned by this president. Where is the poeople's voice in this project Respect the people's voice
It was a gut punch to the American people to wake up and find the east wing destruction. And disrespectful especially to women as this west wing housed the work of the First Lady.
There is a complete disrespect and regard for law in this administration and for history of our country.
I am so sad. The destruction is a symbol of what is happening to our federal government, its land and our environment.

I am a layman when it concerns architecture and construction but It hurt my heart to see excavators and bulldozers bite into the East Wing of the one of our iconic national symbols, the White House. When told we citizens have an opportunity to NOW be able to provide comments, my knee jerk reaction is "Put it back!" Yes, put it back, making infrastructure changes that are probably necessary, but restore the beloved silhouette of the People's House.

Things may have progressed too far for this to be possible. All work should be stopped. A panel of distinguished historians, designers, architects, engineers and landscapers should be appointed by Congress. This panel needs to decide and develop the plan of whatever is built on the site, with the instruction that it honor the rest of the White House grounds. It must have a sense of history and contiunuity. And above all, the President's egregious taste should not be allowed to intrude.

The crime committed against the White House infrastructure is unforgivable. It is only redeemable if the structure is rebuilt according to its historic architecture. The American people deserve to have a presidential home and office that reflects the endurance of our nation, its resilience in times of turmoil and its fortitude to move beyond its current occupant. Furthermore, the destruction of the existing White House came with no plan, no public input and total disregard for the preservation of history. Dear NCPC Commissioners:

My comments today are in regard to President Trump’s East Wing Modernization and Ballroom Project.

I have been to Washington D.C as a tourist many times throughout my life and seeing the White House has always been a highlight.
The beauty and history of “The People’s House” is unique in this world, just as our country is.
So when President Trump announced his plan to build a ballroom on the grounds, I was skeptical. Knowing his design esthetic (or lack there of) I figured his plan would be over the top.
But I wasn’t against the idea of a ballroom because it could be an appropriate venue for state dinners and other events, if would be an appropriate size and be balanced with the existing structure and grounds.

And then came the terrible day when despite his assurances that the existing structure of the White House would not be changed, he demolished the East Wing. No warning, no approval and no respect. It was shocking and inexcusable that a sitting President would destroy a part of our history and he made it worse by telling lies and twisting the truth of previous changes to the White House.

Of course, other Presidents have made renovations to the structure in its over 200 year history but those were discussed, approved and budgeted by the proper authorities. What Trump is doing is acting like he is king and can do whatever he wishes. In my opinion, this should be illegal.

If this project is to move forward it must be discussed and approved by the NCPC and all appropriate authorities. The plans, budget and funding sources should be made public for all Americans to see. This Administration claims “transparency”. They haven’t shown it yet.
Please do not let him get away with what he has done to our House.

We have all seen examples of this President’s completed changes to the White House and grounds thus far- The Rose Garden, The Palm Room, The Oval Office and The Lincoln Bathroom We can all see how he doesn’t respect the history work and vision of previous leaders and designers. Please don’t let this continue.

The White House and the East wing should have never been destroyed by Trump or ANY president! Presidents don't own it; they are merely free tenants during their tenure as president. Tenants don't have the authority to demolish property, that they don't own, tenants can't tear down walls, or demolish to the property as it is against the law to destroy any property that belongs to someone else. The White House is no different.
WE THE PEOPLE, and our government own the property and NPS was put in charge to manage and protect it!
The demolition, was done without regard to any of the above, no prior discussion with or permission of the NPS was afforded. The project was steamrolled forward abruptly and the East wing was gone. Trump did that purposely.
Trump's decision like many of his decisions regarding history, are to gut our American history, our American heritage and to put his brand on everything as if; history is what he makes of it.
We as a nation cannot allow for the president or any president to destroy the White House, especially that of a grandiose narcissist ideology; to brand it as his own. If Trump is allowed to make these structural decisions, what will stop future presidents from doing it?, NOTHING!
The East wing must be rebuilt but NOT into a grand ballroom! It must be constructed as it was in 1942 with upgraded utilities and the build must be constructed with the NPS guidance because that was history and it is our history.
I fear if Trump is given any chance to do things his way with the White house that this could very well be the start of further demolition to our White house; if not by him, by a future president.
The White House is the people's White House, not Trump's White House and it needs to remain that way!
Please stop this madman from making the White House, his own castle. The White House wasn't built to be a castle! The United State's fought to be a democratic nation an not a nation controlled by a reckless wannabe king.

Make the exterior dimension not to exceed the previous footprint. No higher than it was. Do all interior modernization and adherence to ADA accessibility. Create a reasonable space for the First Lady's offices. Make the exterior cladding equivalent to what was there before.

Do not let special interest fund or influence or pay for the rebuilding. It must remain The Peoples White House and grounds. The taxpayers of the United States will need to paid for reconstruction.

I do not see a need for a ballroom. If it is deemed desirable, build it elsewhere in the city, not on White House grounds.

Adhere to all historic preservation requirements and develop new stricter rules for demolition in the future that any administration would have to follow and guidelines on repurposing the materials. Have an archeological survey done before rebuilding.

I am very much opposed to how the renovations for the East Wing of the White House are being handled. Our current President is disregarding historical precedents for the destruction, rebuilding and renovation of our national buildings in Washington, D.C.

I do not feel we need this gigantic ballroom that will dwarf the size of our current White House building. The East Wing was torn down unilaterally, without permits, consultations and public input. The tearing down of structures and the desire to memorialize our current president are without precedent - does anyone have the backbone to say “no” and cease and desist future renovations?

Thank you for the opportunity to submit my thoughts.
Even the title of this project is disingenuous - "modernization"? A pile of historic rubble does not represent "modernization". 400,000 square feet is a convention center, not a "ballroom," which -- even with ancillary facilities -- needs no more than 40,000. I suspect that what interests Me. Trump most about this project is the chance to build himself a bunker where he can ride out the consequences of the 2028 election - if it can even be completed in time.

This entire project is a travesty and a waste of taxpayers' money. There is no doubt that Mr. Trump will plaster his name all over it and embellish it with as much fake gold as he can, as he has the rest of The People's House. The project is out of scale with the rest of the White House and will stand out like the white elephant it is.

I understand that our current president does not see the word "no" a problem for him, but I believe you need to go on record as opposing this boondoggle, if only to preserve your integrity.

Reject Mr. Trump's fantasy, for the good of the White House, the District of Columbia, and the United States.

Is 90,000 sq. feet necessary? Are there any other public spaces that could be used? I feel an addition of this size throws off the proportions of the White House. I favor the building of a similar outside with the scale of the demolished wing. The inside could be adapted to fit present day needs. Another thought would be not to build for three years so that the builders, architects, etc. may be more objective.

Hello,
I visited the White House as a part of my grade school Safety Patrol trip to the Capitol of the United States. At 74 years old, I still remember how impressive that visit was and how much I enjoyed visiting The White House. That is when I learned it was the 'People's House'. My House. I've trusted that feeling and belief until the changes that have been initiated recently.

The White House has stood as a symbol of our democracy and the 'Peoples House' since it's construction. It's logo with the House in a simple blue backgound projects the power and presence of our national being.

The addition of a ballroom that would dwarf The White House is horrifying to me. The symetry and balance of the architecture would be demolished. Adding something 90,000 sf to the landscape would dimish how and what The White House has stood for since 1800.

Additionally, the expense of adding a 90,000 sf building when the country needs to cut our debt is ridiculous! That is OUR money and I do not want my taxes to go to this project.

I appreciate the opportunity to offer my thoughts on this 'renovation'.
Warmly,
Mary Warthen

If you insist that we follow the rules on immigration and other topics, the same should apply for all legislative requirements. It is not necessary to never update the White House but it is appropriate to follow the law which says designs should be reviewed before projects are begun. Saying the existing building won't be "touched" and then touching it with a bulldozer does not lend credibility to the project or to the agencies involved.

You cannot fix what you have destroyed so, please, start by submitting plans now and, in the future, decide to follow the rules ahead of time and then do so. Thank you.

I was so disappointed and then angry when the demolition of the East Wing took place. It should have gone through the proper process and should not have happened the way it did. One person (in this case the current President) should not be able to just decide what to do like it was his own property. He also ruined the Rose garden. I hope the East wing is restored to its original beauty. The US does not need a 90,000 ft ballroom.

Thank you for seeking public opinion. I believe the East Wing should be rebuilt to its original form and intent, and if possible incorporate a rose garden in similar fashion and variety to the one that was recently paved. Any need for a ballroom could be constructed offsite in another location.

I am outraged and heartbroken about the bulldozing of the East Wing of the White House. I remember initially hearing the news and being in complete disbelief that it could be true, that anyone would have the audacity to do such a thing to the People's House, that is part of the heritage of all of us that call the USA home!

It is my fervent desire that it be reconstructed in an identical architectural style to the original and save for modernization to be in line with current energy efficiency standards, be as similar to the original structure as possible. The person responsible for its illegal destruction, Donald J. Trump, should be held fully liable for ALL costs associated with rebuilding the East Wing. It is outrageous the tax payers should he expected to cover the costs of his blatantly illegal actions in destruction of government property he didn't own.

I am also adamantly opposed to the construction of a gaudy, wholly unnecessary, vanity project ballroom that will dwarf the White House and spits on the image of the USA our founders and Constitution envision for this democratic republic. It would make us look more like Russia or North Korea than a previously esteemed democracy.

I'm against it, something else should be done with this space, nobody needs to have what you want to be built, you dont even need it you just want it,
Why don't you let the people decide ? if you do I think you'll find that the majority of them feel the same as I do, Something has to be done now that you demolished the east wing, something that represents America and the American spirit ,the ballroom that you want only represents rich people and bad taste.

I am extremely disappointed in the current administration’s decision to demolish an American institution, the East Wing, without following any kind of protocol generally taken with a project of this type of nature. I would like to see multiple plans drawn up by an independent commission, taking into account the scale, the actual needs (we do not need a ballroom as big as a football field!) and the historical integrity of the White House as a whole. There should also be an entire team of professionals working on this, as opposed to the taste and ideology of a single person. The White House does not host a king, it temporarily hosts the leader of our country four years at a time.

I respectfully request that no further permissions, approvals, or construction activity proceed on the East Wing reconstruction until the pending federal litigation is fully resolved.

The demolition of the East Wing — part of the historic White House complex — occurred amid serious allegations that required procedures under the National Historic Preservation Act and related federal review laws were not properly followed. The National Trust for Historic Preservation and other preservation advocates have filed a federal lawsuit asserting violations of mandatory preservation and public review processes.

Moving forward with additional approvals before judicial review is complete risks compounding any procedural violations and further eroding public confidence in government stewardship of historic property.

Beyond the procedural concerns, I am deeply troubled by the funding structure for the proposed rebuild. A major alteration to one of the nation's most symbolic public buildings, financed through private donations, raises serious concerns about conflicts of interest, influence, and the appearance of pay-to-play governance. Even if technically lawful, such an arrangement undermines public trust and creates the perception that access and influence can be exchanged for financial contributions tied to executive projects.

The White House belongs to the American public — not to any individual administration, donor, or private interest. Decisions affecting its historic fabric must be transparent, lawful, and above reproach.

Until the courts determine whether required procedures were violated, and until the public receives full transparency regarding funding sources and compliance with federal preservation law, no further permissions should be granted.

This is not a routine renovation. It is a matter of historic preservation, governmental ethics, and public trust.

I am not opposed to the addition of a Ballroom to the White House--however, I am opposed to a Ballroom addition that is out of proportion and over-scaled to the White House itself. It should NOT be taller and larger than the White House. That is an architectural sin that would be difficult to impossible to correct in future years. This is a lesson from Architectural Design 101--the addition should not dwarf the original building.

I appreciate your time reading my comments.

There should be no confusion upon arrival to a large building as to where the main building and entrance is located.

It is normally the most grand section/focal point of the whole building complex. It was, and always has been obvious at the Whitehouse.

I feel current plans for the East Wing will diminish the existing Whitehouse, as the East Wing will be too tall in proportion to the main central building and confuse the focal point.

As I'm not an architect, I'm limited in technical terms, but by experience and comparison of buildings around the world, it appears to me plans should be altered.

The East Wing should either be no taller than the roofline of the main central building (with main entrance), or the main central building (with main entrance) should duplicate the columns design and carry it up higher to retain the grandeur of the main entrance.

Lastly, the people's Whitehouse of the United States of America is a home we all know, recognize and love. Times change, but we must be thoughtful and carefully preserve our precious beginnings.

Thank you.

In my opinion, the East Wing was torn down without the input or permission of citizens or our elected representatives. Sadly, this was already done. I register my objection to a ballroom designed according to the tastes of Donald Trump. Such an undertaking should be reviewed by Trustees of the American historical preservation (descriptive title only). I would like to see the East Wing either rebuilt as the original or a new design that is reviewed and elaborated by the Historical Trust and approved by Congress. One individual should not be allowed to change the National landscape so drastically nor to be allowed to replace Trustees that would be preserving and protecting historical landmarks.

Dear Sirs,
This project is way too large!
It dwarfs the White House building.
The size should be reduced by 1/3 or 1/2 of its volume.
Consider how many times it will be used in a year.
Generally, there is only 1 State dinner every 2 months.
Only occasionally have there been more.
We do not have "balls" at the White House.
Even during the last year, there has been only one State dinner.
This structure is grandiose!
PLEASE REDUCE IT'S SIZE!

Thank You,

A 90,000 sq. ft. ballroom is inconsistent with the design and historic significance of this building. I believe the East Wing should be rebuilt in the size and shape that it was before Trump allowed it to be destroyed.

Furthermore, Trump should be made financially liable for the cost of rebuilding and personally fined millions of dollars for not following preservation procedures.

The National Capital Planning Commission should have complete control over any and all renovation projects having to do with the White House. What Trump has done to "The People's House" is appalling and disgraceful. The White House belongs to the people, not the president, and what he has done thusfar has been to turn it into a dining plaza. The American people did not want this, and we do not need a gaudy, glitzy ballroom which will only be enjoyed by the rich. It is a slap in the face to all Americans by a president who believes he can do whatever he wants because no one can stop him or tell him what to do. Besides that, his decorating taste is abhorrent. He'll want everything gilded in gold and with his name on everything. You must stop him. He has no right to destroy our national heritage. Whatever is done with the property, now that he has already started on it, should be to honor all of the hard working Americans who have built this country through sweat and toil, and not be another symbol of the rich who have taken advantage of the poor and working class people.

This is just one of the issues I feel strongly about. The biggest issue is that the East Wing was destroyed without going through the proper, legally-required steps to approve the project and make sure it remains a part of the peoples' house. I understand the need for upkeep and sometimes modernization of the White House. However, as an American citizen I am deeply disappointed with President Trump's complete disregard for procedures. It appears that he decided what he wanted, not what was best for the American people. He tore the East Wing down without going through the correct channels and destroyed a historic part of the White House. His vision of a grand ballroom overshadows the dignity and symmetry of the White House as it stood before demolition. While most Americans will never set foot in the White House, it is still a symbol of our democracy, a beacon for freedom, and hope for our future. Trump has desecrated it against the will of the people. In addition, collecting private funds for such a large project seems like a huge conflict of interest and will feed the appearance of "pay to play." Please require the rebuilding of the East Wing and a pause on adding a ballroom until congress and the American people have some say in its design, placement, and execution.

As a member of the American Institute of Architects and an Architect Emeritus, I find the premature demolition of the East Wing of the White House (the "People's House) and the rush to construction without customary review and input to be a slap in the face to the citizens of the United States of America. With the President's background in real estate development, he knows full well that demolition cannot be undone and should have been delayed until proper review in razing an historic structure. His grandiose plans for a ballroom are disproportionate in both size and scale to the existing structure and should not proceed until fully vetted by the architectural experts in place to review and give input on important and highly visible projects by the Federal Government. I am appalled that construction (including demolition) on this monumental national treasure would proceed without appropriate vetting. I ask that all work (including design and any related construction) be immediately halted until all necessary and mandated reviews can be done and citizen input can be received and fully considered prior to any additional work. The rush to demolish this important structure was done as a political ploy to undermine the integrity of the review and input processes that have been honored for decades. I ask that you not be party to this sad injustice to the built environment and to uphold both protocol and respect for this important and historic national treasure. -- Don Leighton-Burwell, AIA :: Architect Emeritus

PETITION TO HALT THE “EAST WING MODERNIZATION AND STATE BALLROOM PROJECT”

TO: The National Capital Planning Commission, The Commission of Fine Arts, and the United States Congress.

DATE: February 15, 2026

PETITION SUMMARY:
I, the undersigned, formally petition for an immediate stay on the construction of the 90,000-square-foot “Gold Ballroom” at the White House. I request a full audit of the project’s funding sources, a comprehensive Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), and a return to the historic preservation standards that have protected the Executive Mansion since 1792.

STATEMENT OF OPPOSITION
The current project, characterized by the demolition of the 1942 East Wing, represents an unprecedented breach of executive stewardship. Our opposition is based on the following three pillars:

I. Erosion of Democratic Transparency (The “Pay-to-Play” Risk)
The administration’s reliance on approximately $400 million in private and corporate donations creates a profound ethical crisis. By bypassing the Congressional appropriations process, the project avoids the public oversight mandated by the Antideficiency Act. The use of private funds to alter a public federal landmark sets a dangerous precedent where executive influence may be exchanged for "naming rights" or access to the nation's most symbolic seat of power.

II. Violation of Federal Preservation and Planning Laws
The project has demonstrably bypassed the National Capital Planning Act and the National Historic Preservation Act. Construction and demolition began months before plans were submitted to the NCPC or the CFA for required review. This unilateral action disregards the legal checks meant to ensure that federal development does not damage the cultural and historical integrity of the District of Columbia.

III. Irreparable Architectural Disfigurement
At 90,000 square feet, the expansion is nearly double the size of the original Executive Residence. Historians and architects agree that this "lavish" addition, featuring ornate Corinthian columns and bulletproof glass facades, "overshadows" the delicate Ionic architecture of the original James Hoban design. This is not a renovation; it is a transformation of a historic residence into a private-style event complex.

DEPARTURE FROM HISTORICAL PRECEDENT
The Stewardship Precedent: Historically, the President is the steward, not the owner. This project asserts a "landlord" authority to demolish and rebuild national heritage without legislative or public consent.

FORMAL REQUESTS
Immediate Cessation: Stop all construction until the U.S. District Court issues a final ruling on the current lawsuits.
Public Disclosure: Release a full, unredacted list of all corporate and individual donors to the "Trust" funding the project.
Scale Reduction: Require a redesign that reduces the footprint to a scale that does not overwhelm the North and South Porticos.

I appreciate you taking this matter seriously.

Sincerely,
Catelyn

I do not approve of this project that would affect the historical significance of the White House grounds. Specifically, I abhor this project because it does nothing to visually improve the beauty of the grounds. Further, it is an affront to the American people and the taxes that we pay. The purpose of this project is only to aggrandize the Trump presidency and the horrific policies of his administration.

It is a travesty that this lovely, historic structure was torn down. The proposed ballroom is grossly oversized and not needed. The East Wing was a visually elegant, perfectly balanced complement to the White House and West Wing and it should be rebuilt as it was. This should be paid for by the man who illegally ordered its destruction. Thank you.

I appreciate the opportunity to submit comments regarding the proposed "Trump Ballroom" addition.

As a professional photographer whose work depends on proportion, scale, and visual balance, I am particularly sensitive to the relationship between new construction and historic architecture. The proposal for a 1,000-guest ballroom appended to the East Wing raises serious concerns about visual dominance and architectural harmony.

The White House is not simply a functional structure; it is a symbol of national identity. Its authority derives in part from restraint, proportion, and continuity of form. Any addition that materially alters its scale or overwhelms its established composition risks diminishing both its architectural integrity and its symbolic dignity.

If expanded event capacity is necessary, it would be prudent to evaluate the numerous existing venues within Washington, D.C. that are already capable of hosting large gatherings without modifying a site of such historic and civic significance.

Welcoming foreign dignitaries and hosting national events should reflect measured judgment and refined taste. In my view, the current proposal would benefit from substantial reconsideration and scaling to ensure that the historic structure remains visually and symbolically preeminent.

Respectfully submitted

Lionel Delevingne

The un-approved demolishing of the East Wing is an affront enough to the American People. Any rebuilding efforts should be done to modern code, and scale should be according to what's needed, 90,000 Sq ft is far too much, and would dwarf the actual government structure. Private companies should not be able to post their names on the structure - the structure should be of the People, not fleeting company branding.

Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style as per the original building. Only perform changes as needed to meet safety and building codes. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. Personally, I do not see the need for a ballroom but if a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city.
The White House is the people’s house and we, the American citizens have been treated with disrespect and physically violated. What was done to the East Wing by the current occupant of the People's House, WITHOUT PERMISSION OR CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL is obscene and disrespectful. Please restore the East Wing to its former state, restore the Kennedy Rose Garden and do NOT allow a rogue domestic terrorist to scar our beautiful House again. He shows great disrespect to those who fought to protect our country and his "golden monstrosity ballroom" should be cancelled. Our country is failing, our people are dying and he thinks an obscene fake gold party space is going to solve it? Really, people. Get a clue, find a spine and tell this administration NO!!!!!! A ballroom is not needed at the White House as there are plenty of places to hold large group activities in Washington D.C., and the ballroom he proposes will ruin the look of the White House. Thank you for allowing me to submit a comment on the proposed White House East Wing project. I believe the current proposed project is way too large. The proposed East Wing will dominate over the historical White House and diminish its stature. The scale of the East Wing project should be much smaller than that of the main building (White House) visually. If more space is needed that space should be built underground so as to not overpower the sight lines of White House. In addition, the windows, exterior and interior finishing of visible areas should blend seamlessly with those of the White House. The White House is our most treasured historical site and great care and thought needs to be taken so that additions to the White House do not harm or reduce its visibility.
Thank you,

A 90,000-square-foot ballroom at the White House. Read that again. Ninety. Fucking. Thousand. Square. Feet. While parts of this country can't keep the lights on during heat waves. While working families are drowning in rent. While disaster recovery funds are stretched thin. And somehow, the priority is constructing a gilded ego cathedral at the center of American government.

After the apparent illegal demolition of the East Wing, we are now supposed to calmly entertain the idea that this is "progress"? No. This is vandalism dressed up as vision. The White House is not a personal branding opportunity. It is not a gaudy casino floor waiting for a chandelier upgrade. It is a historic structure entrusted to temporary occupants, not a plaything for men who confuse power with ownership.

Let's drop the polite fiction. Donald Trump does not want a ballroom for governance. He wants spectacle.

He wants applause. He wants a room large enough to stage his own myth. And the billionaires lining up to "fund" this monstrosity are not patriots—they are investors. When oligarchs pour private money into altering the physical seat of executive power, that is not generosity. That is leverage. It is an invoice waiting to be paid in policy favors, regulatory rollbacks, contracts, or pardons. Anyone pretending otherwise is either naïve or complicit.

This proposal reeks of insecurity. Real leaders do not need palaces to validate themselves. Real public servants do not bulldoze historic structures to install vanity projects. This is what fragile men do when they are obsessed with legacy but allergic to restraint. It is architectural narcissism, oversized, overlit, and dripping with self-importance.

And the public is not quietly tutting about it. We are angry. We are disgusted. Because every square foot of that proposed ballroom screams excess at a time when the country needs seriousness. It screams corruption in an era demanding transparency. It screams "look at me" when what Americans want is "work for us."

We are told to ignore the decades-long, documented associations between Donald Trump and figures like Jeffrey Epstein. We are told not to ask questions. Not to demand full disclosure. Not to insist on sunlight where there has been smoke for years. And now we're supposed to applaud a chandeliered vanity project funded by oligarchs who expect access and influence in return?

The White House does not belong to a president. It belongs to the people. And watching it be reshaped into a monument to ego and oligarchy feels like watching someone tear pages out of a history book and replace them with a glossy brochure.

Reject this proposal. Not because aesthetics are subjective. Not because the price tag is large. Reject it because it is a symptom of rot, of a governing philosophy that prioritizes spectacle over service, loyalty over law, and self-glorification over stewardship.

We are not impressed. We are not amused. And we are absolutely not on board with turning the People's House into a goddamn palace.

I am appalled by the hubris of this current President/Administration to demolish the East Wing of the White House in order to build a gaudy, ridiculous ballroom monument to his own ego!

To take the People's House and turn it into a monstrosity such as that is incredibly ridiculous. I can just imagine how obscene it will appear once it's done.

To have taken public comment regarding if this should have been done would have been the way to go, but then this President only cares that HIS ideas are the only ones that matter. He cares not for the rest of the people in this country and I am fearful that many of our historic areas will suffer for it.

Am fearing the day that statues of himself (similar to those of Saddam Hussein) will become commonplace in all our cities!

I wholly disapprove of the process used to go ahead with construction of the ballroom (East Wing Modernization). I have never seen a project like this undertaken with so little input from the people and our representatives (Congress). It matters not that the funding is private. This is a public building and NEVER should construction have started without a thorough review by Congress and the American people. I worked as a Project Manager for 35 years doing many public projects including working on State Capitals, public parks, etc. In every case the project was submitted to appropriate agencies, had public comments and public meetings and even votes PRIOR to any work ever started. This project should immediately be cancelled. The rulers (leaders) in the USA are not allowed to make decisions like this by themselves as Trump has. It is tremendously embarrassing and shaming that Trump has done this.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.
The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.
The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure.
I do not support the addition of a ballroom to the people's house.
Thank you

I ALSO object to the scale of this project. It dwarfs the historic White House and destroys the symmetry and balance so well represented by the Federalist architecture of the White House.

In addition to competing with the White House in overall mass, the two story design and grand entrance overwhelm the beautiful 1800 building. The designers should be asked to both scale back the dimension of the project overall and consider putting one of the floors underground.

I sympathize with the need for more entertainment space at the White House but consideration should be given to scale back the need to seat 1,000. There are, after all, a number of nearby venues in Washington, DC that accommodate large audiences.

This structure was designated a National Historic Landmark in 1960 and is subject to the Preservation Act of 1966. This act established by executive order advises the President and First Lady on preservation matters requiring experts in architecture, art history, historic preservation along with input from the National Park Service. The current occupant cannot unilaterally alter the historic or architectural features without proper review and approval. No work should have been started on this project until it received appropriate approval. In many communities if someone demolishes a structure without approval they can be required to put it back to its previous condition and/or have a moratorium on any building permits for a period of time.

As a US citizen, I am deeply concerned that the massing and height of the proposed new construction will overwhelm the White House itself—it is 55,000 square feet—and may also permanently disrupt the carefully balanced classical design of the White House with its two smaller, and lower, East and West Wings. The federally recognized Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation offer clear guidance for construction projects affecting historic properties. The Standards provide that new additions should not destroy the historic fabric of the property and that the new work should be compatible with existing massing, size, scale, and architectural features.

It is critical that the White House go through the legally required public review processes, including consultation and review by the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts, and engage the Congressionally chartered National Trust for Historic Preservation and its partner groups, the National Park Service, and relevant review agencies in exploring design alternatives and modifications that would accomplish the objectives of the Administration while preserving the historic integrity and symbolism of the People's House.

The East Wing should be built into the previous footprint of the grounds, with all of the modern upgrades. If there is a majority consensus that believes there NEEDS to be a ballroom within that space, then so be it. The footprint of the East Wing must not be larger than the actual White House itself. No tacky gold leaf anywhere!

The President is a temporary resident of all of these historic buildings that are owned and maintained by the taxpayers. I do not object to making necessary upgrades and updates, however structural changes, such as tearing down an entire wing and making potentially damaging alterations to the buildings without getting advance approval, including historic review, is treating it like it's a private property. I almost never make public comments but I find this deeply offensive. The danger goes beyond someone's bad taste! Every resident after this one, may decide to make similar structural changes to the architecture of this (and other buildings they do not own) with abandon and ultimately damage the architectural integrity of the structure. "Public input should occur before construction makes the outcome irreversible."

So where were you all BEFORE the irreversible destruction? That said, you should sue to immediately stop this project and order the East Wing to be restored to its previous historic state. What was done and what is planned are both abominations that flout the historic, public nature of the building. The White House belongs to the people, not the current occupant, past occupants, or future occupants. I understand if the current occupant wants more space to host state dinners. The large tent on the lawn, which has served that purpose, may not be the best solution, though it has held up nicely through several administrations. Rather than closing the barn door after the horses are gone, perhaps you should think about how to restore the barn and reinstate the horses.

I'm writing as an American citizen from Colorado who is appalled by the demolition of the historic East Wing of the White House. This is The People's House, not trump's house to deface and destroy its historical significance. Before the first bulldozer set foot on the grounds, the public as well as the National Capital Planning Commission, The National Park Service, and Congress should have been given the opportunity through NEPA for analysis, comment, review, approval and permitting to assure any renovation (not demolition) fits with the historical framework of the entire building, not to mention requiring a transparent discussion of whether it's even needed. The fact that trump decided he could get forgiveness rather than permission does not support the contention that, now that there's a big hole in the ground, they have to fill it with a 90,000 sq ft gaudy ballroom for "public safety". There should be a cease and desist order placed immediately on any further work, other than keeping the public safe.

I oppose such a ballroom on several grounds, but the most important one is that it is not needed. And claiming that it is being paid for by wealthy corporate donors and not the taxpayers instills a sense of pay to play that has been trump's corrupt MO his entire second term.
If it is decided by the proper experts and decision-makers that a ballroom is appropriate, for aesthetic reasons I propose it be kept within these guidelines:
1. That it match the same size and footprint as the West Wing
2. That it match the architectural style (Georgian/Colonial?)
3. That private donations, if accepted, do not have any influence on ANY aspect of the East Wing's rebuilding
4. That the offices of the First Lady and staff be rebuild, posthaste
5. That no mention or credit be given to Donald Trump for his demolition, ideas, plans, or reconstruction of the East Wing.
6. That any placards, website descriptions, White House guide narrations, etc., explicitly reference the illegal demolition of the East Wing, and that Mr. Trump was not justified in doing so simply because he was the President.

This chance to comment after the illegal demolition of the former East Wing is clearly intended to salve the collective rage of Americans who didn't ask for, or expect, a blatant destruction of an historical structure.

Further, allowing the criminal in the Oval Office to "break first, ask permission later" continues a long string of illegal takings of public lands and properties and is yet another example of lawless and unconstitutional action. It's the next act in a series of blatant violations of the emoluments clause of the Constitution - accepting private (billionaire donors') cash (bribes?) to build a personal ode (odor?) to the orange-faced wannabe king.

The fact that you're accepting comments is clearly pro forma - his wannabe Majesty has already stacked the Commission and other bodies meant to provide professional review of His plans to decorate the Nation's capital with tasteless structures to make us remember this sad time in our Nation's history.

Please try to correct this lawless destruction and its subsequent stain on the White House.

This reconstruction project should be completed entirely at the personal expense of the President who ordered it's demolition. The entire White House compound belongs to the citizens of this country, and the shocking razing of the East Wing, without input from the public or historic preservationists, is an affront to us all. 56 percent of Americans said they oppose the project, with just 28 percent expressing support for it, per the The Washington Post-ABC News-Ipsos poll. I am one of the 56%. However, the wrecking ball has destroyed the east wing and the restoration must happen.

I request that the project be a restoration, not an expansion. We do not need 1000 seats, nor grotesque opulence, in the People's House. The footprint should remain the same and the overall size cannot be larger than the main residence. The design needs to be consistent and compatible with the standing White House.

Finally, I am appalled and disgusted that any part of the White House is for sale to the highest donor. What is anyone doing to curb the bribery and influence that is being encouraged?

I object to the scale of this project. It dwarfs the historic White House and destroys the symmetry and balance so well represented by the Federalist architecture of the White House.

In addition to competing with the White House in overall mass, the two story design and grand entrance overwhelm the beautiful 1800 building. The designers should be asked to both scale back the dimension of the project overall and consider putting one of the floors underground.

I sympathize with the need for more entertainment space at the White House but consideration should be given to scale back the need to seat 1,000. There are, after all, a number of nearby venues in Washington, DC that accommodate large audiences

At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. The White House used to be known as the people's house. The proposed ballroom would make it look like the Palace of Versailles instead of the house of the American people.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

The National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) reviews major federal construction and alterations in the Washington D.C. region, including changes to properties such as the White House. The Commission of Fine Arts (CFA) reviews design and aesthetics for federal properties in D.C., including the grounds of the White House. The Committee for the Preservation of the White House (CPWH) oversees historic-preservation and interior design matters inside the residence and state rooms. Demolition was completed prior to full formal review, which shows a disregard for the process and the people of our country.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

The destruction of the historic East Wing is a tragedy, but as it is already done, any new structure should be tastefully designed and constructed, including keeping in compatible scale and design of the original structure. I strongly oppose the size of the project as it will overwhelm the grace and beauty of the White House. Ideally, the president could have shown restraint over impulsivity to raze the East Wing given the reality that the White House is owned by any president. Previous presidents have had the judgment to consider the implications of any renovation and to follow the official protocols.

There does not appear to be any legitimate argument for an oversized ballroom and underlying bunker other than to satisfy the presidents need for continued validation.

I would ask that the scale of the project be substantially reduced to blend in with the majestic setting rather than overwhelm it and overshadow the actual purpose of the White House as a residence and working place for whatever president is in power.

I am opposed to donald trump's plan to build a massive ballroom addition to the White House. This project was conceived in a fit of ego and I believe tearing down the existing structure was illegal. While it might be nice to have a really big ballroom, the East Wing should not eclipse the rest of the building. A smaller ballroom, along with replacements for offices and other space that the East Wing has held historically may be achieved without overshadowing the rest of the compound. It's bad enough that there is gilt nonsense all over the interior and that the Rose Garden was demolished and paved over, all without public input or consultation with the proper agencies. Do not allow a monstrosity to be annexed to a building of such distinguished history.

It is very important that the addition replacing the historic East Wing not proportionally dominant over the White House. It needs to be architecturally and aesthetically cohesive with the original building. It should not be gold plated. It is the people's house and the majority of the American people disapprove of this President and wish not to be reminded of him for decades to come. The project should be Congressionally approved and there needs to be funding transparency.

I am also concerned over renovation of the JFK Memorial Center for the Arts. That is not in need of a gutting overhaul. Any development plans must ensure the facility can serve all Fine Arts the way the current layout does. I fear it will be turned into a singular arena, suitable for no more than rallies and fighting matches.

Nothing about what is currently proposed for the East Wing Modernization project fits with the original historical look or context of the White House, the People's House. While more event space may be needed so a tent doesn't need to be erected on the lawn, demolishing the original wing and putting a space larger than the Executive Residence is unnecessary, especially with it being the People's house, and a majority of the population won't ever see it. Recreating the original East Wing with modern upgrades, along with the restoration of the iconic Rose Garden, is incredibly important. So much damage has been done and history has been lost, but it's not too late to restore it to how it should be.

The word "modernization" is doing a lot of work to cover the truth here. We all know that the historic wing has already been torn down and we all know that what is planned will not be a thoughtful, respectful improvement or in any way "for the people." Specifically:
At a time when Americans are struggling, when over one third cannot cover a $400 emergency expense and over 40% no longer believe in the American dream, the conversion of the people's house into a bloated, gaudy ballroom for the rich is beyond an insult. The fact that public comment is occurring well after the haphazard destruction of the East Wing only emphasizes the complete disrespect the administration shows for public heritage and public opinion.
Even more concerning are the funding sources for this project. Given the blatant pay-to-play corruption that this administration has encouraged – from donations in exchange for pardons, and foreign cryptocurrency investment in exchange for proprietary technologies – how can anyone trust that donations to this project will not further compromise the integrity of our government? How much more will the administration and its inner circle profit off the people's resources and heritage? And what, if anything, is this going to do to help everyday Americans?
This process has been rushed, with little to no transparency, showing no respect for the White House as a shared legacy for the country. This is a pure vanity project designed to further enrich the wealthiest administration in history, at the expense of working Americans. I can think of no better symbol of the shameless, extractive excesses of this administration than taking a place of work, a place of history, a place of struggle, and turning it into a gilded bubble for the Epstein class.

I am writing with deep concern for the destruction of the East Wing in order to build a 90,000 square foot ballroom. When previous administrations have made changes to the White House, I believe they followed the process set forth by agencies and, ultimately, obtained Congressional approval. In this case, there has been no respect for that process. Collaboration with the National Capital Planning Commission and National Trust for Historical Preservation is necessary before suggested renovations take place. It is my hope that the lawsuits underway will yield positive results and some semblance of a more tasteful solution reached.

I am opposed to the addition of a party room to the White House. The building has always been a simple structure, built to provide a home for our temporary leaders as they fulfill their service to America.

Each personalizes the space, of course, for their family's preferences and needs. I am not opposed to updating government facilities for 21st-century needs.

However, this planned addition not only destroyed history, it also destroys the simplicity of the house. A large space designated primarily for eating and entertainment belies the outsized ego and priorities of the current occupant of the house. They reflect his preferences and needs for the grandiose.

The East Wing demolition was not a decision made with our representatives, and the party room addition has not been vetted or discussed with Congress.

The decision to destroy and then declare that a monstrous dance floor facility is what we need does not resonate with me. I doubt it does with many. And most, I'm sure, prefer the house and any necessary future renovations will reflect the American ideals of humility and sacrifice, not the counter values of showiness and shameless self-promotion.

That's not who We the People are.

The White House and adjoining wings should reflect the people's preferences and needs.

It's The People's House, after all.

The demolition of the historic East Wing to construct a new ballroom flies in the face of appropriate process to make changes in our governmental structures. The White House is owned by the people, who were never consulted about a prospective "ballroom." There was no formal review process or advance notice to the crushing of a monument that meant a great deal to many. This new, thoughtless project, driven by private funding, poses many risks to the very concept of historical preservation and would destroy the architectural balance that existed. It would create an excessive addition to the White House complex.

I trust that no further action will be taken to erect a replacement for the East Wing until the American people have spoken.

Reduce the size of this monstrosity to keep it at scale with the rest of the White House.

Do some research to determine the optimal size based upon data and not ego. Over the last 10 years, what has been the maximum attendance for state dinners held (in tents) at the White House? Anecdotally, how much more seating has been desired? Add maybe 10% and then set that figure as the maximum for the design.

I gather this is about the ballroom. First of all, I am angry that the old East Wing was demolished, and, while the damage is done, I would rather it be rebuilt than we should add a garish and unnecessary ballroom.

This message is about a vote against the ballroom. If one has to be built, I think it should be far far smaller than what is projected, and the design of it should be subject to request for design proposals, with a final decision made by a committee not appointed by the President.

The versions of the design I have seen are totally not in keeping with the ethos of the White House, the original intent of the nation's founders, and good taste - the good taste of any century. The proportions are off and the design relies on too much gilding.

The East Wing modernization should be in the same style as the White House, it should be in scale so as not to minimize the visual impact of the White House. However, since the destruction has already occurred, it seems like there isn't much choice other than to spend tax money to replace the former structure. This proposal runs counter to ALL guidelines published for the new designs for significant historic resources - these guidelines have been adopted & applied for more than 50 years by states and the federal government.

New building should be “subservient” to the historic property (I.e new wing should be smaller than White. house, set back and discernible as a new addition).
New additions should be designed in a manner readily dissimilar from the resource. This design in like material and “Classical” details might be confusing to uneducated eyes. (In addition to overwhelming scale, this proposal does not step back from the White House, but protrudes on the site.
The demolition of the East Wing was done illegally and without public review. This act of vandalism should negate any “legitimate” review undertaken by your Commission.
State and local governments abide by these Standards. National Park Service publishes these guides to respect historic structures. Your members should not only READ but Adopt the criteria published in these Preservation Briefs.

This whole project should NEVER have been begun in the first place. The wing should be rebuilt as it was and without POTUS’s input. If a ballroom is framed necessary have it fit in the original footprint.

Please make sure it is NOT clad in fake gold and marble. Please retain a real interior designer with some class for the decoration and furnishings.

I would also ask that the over sized flagpole be removed as well as all the gaudy gold added to the Oval Office. It’s crass and disgusting. POTUS is turning the WH into a mausoleum.

We must not allow the construction of a 95,000 square foot ballroom on the grounds of the White House. We do not need this ballroom. There are other under utilized facilities close by. More importantly, this construction will completely overwhelm the White House. This is the People’s House, not the administration's.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, placement, and architectural style to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. Make the interior and exterior ADA accessible as much as possible. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design. The interior design should be restrained and understated in style with a lack of gold filigree. It is not Versailles, it shouldn't look like it. The rose garden should be replanted. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.

Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.

The destruction of the East Wing of the White House is very disturbing and lacks any sense of decency and protocol. If modernization and expansion are necessary, I would prefer it be left to historical experts and architects. Given the inappropriate destruction of the East wing at this time, a design and subsequent development is an absolute necessity. This design should not exceed the footprint of the executive mansion and should balance the West Wing. One might consider relocating West Wing operations to the newly developed East Wing, a design that would place the White House's operational readiness at the forefront in this technological age. One could renovate the West Wing to serve ceremonial purposes.

Just submitted!

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

Further, and tax money of American citizens, which bankrolled the “renovations” and destruction of the East Wing without our consent, should be returned to the People, by the Trump Administration. Any further construction should be funded by Donald J. Trump, NOT the American people.

To whom it may concern,

The East Wing should have never been demolished by the current administration. They did this illegally and without oversight. It is a destruction of historic and public property for a vanity project. It was not needed and if changes were needed or wanted they should go through proper channels and oversight. I do not want this ballroom that has been proposed and no tax dollars should be spent towards it and all “donated” fund appear to be corruption where corporations and individuals are buying favor with the President. We the people are not blind to the corruption, fraud, waste, and abuse of power that is happening in our government and this is one of those instances. Any funds spent should be used to return the White House property to its prior state in the best way it can be, including restoring the rose garden and removal of all gaudy items added throughout the White House by this administration. This is the Prople’s House NOT the President’s and he should not be making changes that detract and destroy from the historic nature of this property!

ABSOLUTELY NOT!

Donald Trump is 100% over stepping his bounds as president. He has absolutely no right to do any alterations to the White House that is visible to the public without approval from the historic preservation committee.
This man needs to rebuild the east wing with his own money, not taxpayer money. He bypassed the regulations for work done to the White House without going through the approval channels.
If he goes through the approval process AND it is approved it needs to be proportional to the White House itself. There is no need for a ballroom that exceeds the size of the mansion itself. Restrictions should also be set on the decorations used. Keep it within the classical appearance and style of the house.
This is not a personal project that should reflect only what he wants.
Currently the absolutely horrible look of the oval office should not be allowed to be continued in the other spaces. He is not King Medias, we don't need gaudy gold everywhere!!

I am writing to express my very great concern about the plans to add an extremely large ballroom to the East Wing of the White House. I have always considered the White House to be one of America's greatest historic buildings as a symbol of being "The People's House," as well as the presidential residence and center of presidential power. It is part of our national history. I am all for modernization when needed, but there is absolutely no need for a ballroom of this scale. The planned structure will be hugely out of proportion with the rest of the building, which has served our nation--and presidential duties--well for 234 years. I am also greatly concerned about the plan to fund this monstrosity as it will turn it from being The People's House to a ballroom of donors. Please do not approve a monster ballroom.

The White House is the people's house and should remain such.

Any new construction should be of an exterior dimension and style consistent with, in proportion to, and not detracting from, the main White House. The President, who is not an architect, knows little about history or design, and lacks taste, should be permitted at most general input into the new construction.

The new construction should be ADA accessible and should be predominantly devoted to working space, living space, or modest quarters suitable for public visits, rather than a ballroom. If a ballroom is needed (which is questionable) it should be built elsewhere in D.C., particularly if the size of the ballroom the President thinks necessary will need to be built: see comments about proportionality and taste, above.

Existing and well/functioning processes for making needed but historically sensitive changes should be followed.

It is such an insult to the American people for our president to destroy the east wing of the white house. The white house belongs to the people. The people are the ones to make these kinds of decisions. He has destroyed history. To put an elite ballroom in its place is an insult. Especially in a time of such income inequality between the average citizen and the wealthy. It's a slap in the face. Please reign this maniac in He should be held personally responsible for the cost of rebuilding the east wing to its original state.

It is ill conceived and garish.

I have a background in teaching and land conservation. Along with that I have at present, a small antique shop in Kamas Utah where I delight in sharing knowledge about things from the past. As such, I have a deep respect for history and preservation (also having lived in and sensitively renovated a 250 year old house). I totally understand the possible need for old things to be adapted for modern life. However, what this president has done and plans to do to the White House is disrespectful to the building AND to the people of America--who actually own the house. NOT the present occupant. The American people should be polled to see if WE want a ballroom. Congress should also be involved. And then, respected qualified historic architects should submit suggestions for approval. Thank you! And good luck!

Hello. I find it disgraceful that the president of the United States has destroyed the East Wing of the White House without consulting the American people. I DO NOT support his plan to build a "ballroom" there. At this point, I think it best if nothing is done until the president is out of office.

The proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House is not, in my personal opinion, what our country needs. This addition will not serve the people. The destruction of the historic part of the People's House (the White House) was done without asking and must be restored as it was. I am appalled that this would be a priority when there are so many Americans struggling with health, food and housing. I am not in agreement with this addition at all.

Thank you for your time.

The East Wing rebuild in its current proposed form can not be allowed to move forward. Planning a ‘wing’ that dwarfs the White House is a ridiculous proposal and will not match the aesthetic of the property.
The damage that has already been done to the building and grounds by this unhinged megalomaniac obviously can’t be fixed at this point, so we MUST act to preserve the integrity moving forward.
My fear as a citizen is that this board has been corrupted by being filled with sycophants, so my only hope is that you actually listen to these public comments.
The proposed size of this building is far too large and needs to be drastically reduced to not detract from the aesthetic of the White House.
Additionally the tacky and gaudy interior finishes and pay for play funding model is absurd. This project must be guarded by unbiased decision makers that have the correct intentions in making this build conform to something that respects the White House building and compliments it not overshadow it.

I start by agreeing the East Wing needed to be moderized but I disagree with removing the whole East Wing. The White House and all associated buildings belong to the people of the United States. The President only lives there temporarily. We the People want the White House to represent our values and our history. Since the,whole East Wing has been destroyed, it needs to be rebuilt with the same architecture as was previously used. The White House architecture is subtle and respectful. We the People do not need a palace, but a house which represents the People.

The tear down of the East Wing was done so hastily, it was almost as if there was something else "the president" is hiding, or simply throwing out another smoke bomb to cover up another one of his God knows what. This administration is running so many things illegally, it's hard to figure out what in the hell is going on in any instance--one thing after another. No laws apply.

This is the People's House, not any sitting president's. It's time to take it back. Now that the damage is done, I will hope and pray that sensible minds can do better to set it straight.

Thank you.

The East wing should not have been bulldozed without approval. Those involved must be held accountable.

While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

As an architect who appreciates and celebrates classical form in building design, I find the aesthetic of the East Wing Modernization Project appropriate and contextual with the White House, the Treasury Building and other government buildings in the area. However, the scale of the building is grossly wrong and completely oversized. It makes the smaller White House appear as if it’s simply an out-building for the main East Wing. This is not how the People’s House should be presented to the USA and the world.

Perhaps the United States needs a ballroom, but the one that President Trump has envisioned is far too large in relation to the White House, and it will detract from the White House, a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people, not Donald Trump. It has been the home of Presidents since 1800 and is one of the most significant historic sites in the United States. This project has not been conducted appropriately and lawfully from its inception and so has incurred much criticism, indeed horror, from the majority of Americans. President Trump had the East Wing demolished before constructions plans had been submitted to the oversight boards. Then he appointed allies and loyalists to both the NCPC Commission and the Commission of the Fine Arts, which will review the plans for the East Wing and ballroom. As a result I do not believe that the project will get an unbiased review.

My comments are not unique. I am submitting and adapting the well crafted comments of other respondents. The wanton, unauthorized destruction of the East Wing for a huge ballroom is a vanity project. If one does not value history, the preservation of historical places and other historical sites are in danger of being torn down and replaced, and history rewritten!
Please consider rebuilding the former (and destroyed) East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure. The White House, the People's House, was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. The rebuilding should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, please.
The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there for his term of office PERIOD. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, disregarding its historical importance and protections. (Suing after the destruction was too late!). Placards of those "contributing" do not belong on display.

Follow past processes for making needed but historically sensitive changes.
Thank you for your consideration.

The People’s House has been desecrated by tearing down the East Wing without overwhelming approval. Shame on you. While I would support a renovation to this area of The White House, I do not support the total destruction such a large portion of the building. A more modern state dinner event space could be created along with offices for staff without tearing anything down. In addition, I strongly object to the ridiculous and gaudy gold everything that the current resident so adores. Ever heard of understated elegance, I don’t think you have a clue. I don’t care if private funds pay for this…it’s still our house and not Trumps permanent residence though I’m sure he’s planning it to be.
Please use some measure of reasonableness to this process and stop butchering all our historic sites in DC. The Kennedy Center for Performing Arts is next in his list of building to destroy. Don’t let that happen. PLEASE.

The White House is a historical building that is part of our history, and should be restored to its original blueprint with perhaps expansion in the proper architectural style for the normal running of governmental functions. This would include updates to electric, heat, communications, security, etc. Any ballroom use is unnecessary and should be excluded from the renovation. In addition, the Rose Garden should be redone in as much of its originial size and style as possible. This is the People's House and only used by the president during his/her term and should remain a symbol of democracy.

I can appreciate the need for a secure event space to host state events, and I understand that this modernization project will solve that need. That's great! I think the size is excessive, though. Aesthetically, I think it's going to look ridiculous to have a massive ballroom that's almost double the size of the White House residence. Symbolically, this huge ballroom brings to mind connotations of monarchy and extreme separations of class in America. The White House is singular in its meaning to our country in a way no other building could ever be. So, while I want the current and all future presidents to be able to conduct state events in an efficient, cost effective, secure way, I also want the people's house respected. I think there's a reasonable compromise that could achieve both.

The demolition of the historic White House East Wing to construct a $300 million ballroom is a reckless, unnecessary destruction of American heritage that bypassed proper oversight. By destroying workspaces that defined decades of First Ladies and essential staff, this vanity project, funded by private, corporate interests, shatters the architectural integrity of a national icon. This "bull-in-a-china-shop" approach sacrifices our shared history, replacing, according to the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a balanced design with a massive, gaudy, and unauthorized structure.

I can only hope that the members of the committee will stop the clock and review any potential plans with extreme care and ensure that not only will this project proceed with all due diligence regarding plan approval, but also ensure that the taxpayer and donor money for the project is spent within the guidelines for US government procurement. We want to see the receipts. We want to understand the plans and trust that the process is not as haphazard as the demolition was. We also would like to ensure that the folks who demolished the east wing have received pre-emptive medical attention to ensure that they suffer no serious medical impact from exposure to hazardous materials without proper remediation protocols.

A very short opinion with bullet points:
1. The East Wing should never have been torn down without going through the proper channels for approval from the appropriate committees, licensing agencies (e.g., remediation), and public opinion.
2. The new design should be approved also through proper channels - to me it appears gaudy and oversized. There has to be a happy medium (though unfortunately this President doesn’t know how to do that).
3. I hope that the public opinions herein stated are taken into account as per the request for statements and, hopefully, the sharing of and tabulating opinions to reach a consensus as to the appropriate design for this now available space.

Dear Committee Members,
I am opposed to investing tax payer money in a 90,000 square foot ballroom attached to our nations Capitol building.
The East Wing, which has been completely demolished without proper sanction by our Congress, needs to be restored with the same functions that were removed by this administration.
The present administration must pay to rebuild the East wing with money President Trump promised was available for the ballroom.
In American business there is an accepted philosophy that if you break it, you fix it. Therefore, either President Trump personally, or the Republican Party, is responsible for the full cost of rebuilding the East wing containing all the functions it previously served.
Respectfully Submitted,

I am grateful for the opportunity to submit written comments in advance of the NCPC meeting on March 5, 2026. I strongly echo the call that the administration comply with all legally required review and approval processes before construction proceeds including review by the NCPC, the Commission of Fine Arts, compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act, and appropriate approval by Congress. Public input is not a courtesy; it is essential, and I appreciate the chairman's commitment that future meetings will invite such comments. I must also say plainly that I find it shocking that the East Wing was demolished without what appears to be full adherence to due process for such a historically significant structure. While I understand the desire to fast track a project of this magnitude, an expedited timeline does not eliminate the obligation for rigorous review. The federal government is charged with sustaining exemplary standards of historic property stewardship, recognizing the defining role historic properties play in the nations capital, and planning carefully to protect and preserve them. That standard matters deeply in this case. I applaud the assignment of Shalom Baranes Associates to the project. Their experience in federal and historic context gives me greater confidence that questions of scale, height, and compatibility within the broader

White House campus will be addressed thoughtfully. I agree that a comprehensive review of the long-term needs of this extraordinary and symbolic site is overdue – but such a review must be conducted transparently, lawfully, and with full respect for the processes designed to save card places of national importance. Thank you.

Trump had no authorization to destroy the East Wing, which he did in the dead of night disingenuously knowing he'd get it done before anyone could stop him. The massive design of the new project, which he had to fire the original architect to finagle, dwarfs the beautiful White House structure with his ego-project and ruins a preeminent national treasure. It is one man who has decided what the People's house needs. It is not his house to decorate and destroy as he pleases. What he has done is irreplaceable and deviating to witness. I think the building needs to be 1/4 of the proposed plan with a second floor to replace what was torn down. I would hope the cost is way less than proposed and nothing moves ahead until and unless all donors are disclosed and no one mentioned in a questionable way in the Epstein files or with criminal accusations or history be part of the project.

Please restore the East Wing and its exterior grounds to their former appearance, functions and footprint. Use this unfortunate tear-down as an opportunity to upgrade all infrastructure (electrical, plumbing, technical) to present day standards. Pleas avoid using gold leaf and other royal ornamentation--I believe that the home we provide our President should reflect the aspirations most Americans share: quiet strength, a respect for the past, thoughtful spending, simple and graceful adornment.

RE: NCPC Project File #8733
East Wing Modernization
Dear Project Chair:
I am writing to include my feelings on the restoration of the East Wing of the White House that was bulldozed by the current administration.
The White House is the peoples House and it should be restored to its original design and dimensions. If a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary ornate features.
Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring and make interior ADA accessible where necessary. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage, and it should not be treated or presented as a gold leaf palace.
Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.
Also, the rose garden should be replanted as it was beautiful and enjoyed by visitors to the White House because of the variety of vintage roses there. We won't miss the cement patio.

In gratitude –

Mary Jane Chaffee

Restore structure to match the structure that was torn down. The country does not need an oversized ballroom. The West Wing should NOT be enlarged. Maintain visual aesthetics so that the White House remains larger than either wing.

I was appalled when the East Wing was bulldozed. Although this cannot be undone, anything that is built on the site should be done in a similar size and style to the remaining buildings. The overblown & grandiose plans for a “ballroom” that are being circulated by the administration are ridiculous and inappropriate. The beauty of the White House comes from its understated elegance and history. This should be the guide going forward for any building projects. Thank you.

To All and to the the Many Whom this Matters,

It has long been taught to me that the White House was the Peoples house.
To out right tear it down without consultation of the people, without a plan in place, to sell portions and parts in parcel to the highest bidder or those who are in favor is not just disgusting behavior but under any other circumstance would have been been an impeachable offense. The times that we live in are unprecedented, but we do not need to give in to this man. He is just a man. A corrupt, vile, hateful man who has not only set us back centuries within our own policies and on the world stage, but by allowing him to destroy a national monument. The White House itself! Without any comeuppance is abhorrent. If I were to destroy my parents house I would be paying for it. Instead this man has been allowed to destroy OUR house and is making us pay for it without any consultation of what we want to replace it.
Money for the this renovation could be used to fund so many things, so many things. Things this country needs, like infrastructure, schools, the fact that the list goes on make it insane to me that vanity projects are getting the green light. Did the East wing need renovation, perhaps, but it doesn't need cold marble and gold plating.
So now the un-permitted demolition sits like an open wound, which I suppose only makes sense since it is now a physical representation of the open wound that this administration has become.
I didn't think it could be worse. I was seriously hoping that it couldn't be.
But I only see the destruction, un-permitted, unpunished, without any ramifications showing his supporters that he can get away with anything he wants, thus they can as well.
Please put your foot down. Give us back the grace, the pride and the beauty that was once OUR house back.
Do not let the wing of the White House that is supposed to represent the feminine grace of the First Lady look as if someone dropped an Ashburn data center on the front lawn and allowed Bezos to pay for it.
In closing I wish the NCPC luck and I want them to know that they are not alone.

Thank you for your time.

I submit this written comment for the record in NCPC's early-stage review of the proposed East Wing addition to the White House Ballroom, with the request that the current east wing plan be fully canceled and the site restored to its pre\u8209 -2024 design.

My comments focus on the project's effects on federal interests in the National Capital Region—specifically: the integrity of the White House complex as a national symbol, the setting of the President's Park and the broader Federal Core, and the precedent this project would set for future alterations to highly significant federal properties.

Adverse Effect on the Historic Character and Symbolic Role of the White House
The White House is not only the official residence and office of the President; it is a preeminent federal symbol recognized worldwide. Its scale, symmetry, and landscape setting are integral to that symbolic function. The proposed east wing ballroom expansion alters this carefully calibrated balance by:

Disrupting the historic spatial and visual relationship between the main Executive Residence, the East Wing, and the surrounding grounds that has evolved through deliberate, incremental planning over centuries;
Introducing massing, program, and circulation demands that are out of character with the relatively modest and orderly composition of the East Wing when viewed in the context of the Executive Residence and the broader President's Park.
This change would degrade a core federal interest: preserving the recognizability and legibility of the White House as a unifying national image and place of civic meaning.

Inconsistency with Federal Preservation Policy and NCPC's Planning Framework
Federal agencies have a clear responsibility under the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) and related authorities to avoid or minimize adverse effects on historic properties, particularly National Historic Landmarks and key elements of the L'Enfant and McMillan Plans. NCPC's own Comprehensive Plan and related policies reinforce this obligation by:

Prioritizing protection of the historic urban design framework, including the White House and President's Park as central elements of the nation's ceremonial core;
Emphasizing context-sensitive design and the preservation of established view corridors, landscape character, and architectural coherence.
The east wing ballroom plan appears to move in the opposite direction: it adds permanent bulk and alters key functional relationships instead of first exhausting smaller\u8209 -scale, reversible, or non\u8209 -visible alternatives to meet program needs. Canceling the project and restoring the pre\u8209 -2024 design would be more consistent with federal preservation policy and NCPC's planning guidance.

Impacts on the Federal Public Realm and Visitor Experience
Even if much of the physical construction is inward\u8209 -facing, the east wing expansion will inevitably affect the broader federal public realm:

It risks changing the perceived scale and rhythm of the White House complex as experienced from President's Park, the Ellipse, and other public vantage points in the Federal Core;

It could introduce additional service, security, and circulation pressures that complicate public access patterns and diminish the clarity of the ceremonial landscape.
The federal interest is not simply in operational efficiency within the security perimeter, but also in protecting the public's ability to experience the White House and its immediate setting as a coherent, dignified, and legible national landscape. Restoring the pre\u8209 -2024 configuration would better maintain that federal public realm.

Precedent for Future Interventions on High\u8209 -Significance Federal Sites
Approving a large, permanent ballroom expansion within the East Wing establishes a powerful precedent for more intensive development and program accretion at the White House and, by extension, other nationally significant federal properties in the region. Over time, this "mission creep" in built form risks:

Incrementally eroding the clarity of the original design intentions for the Federal Core;
Weakening NCPC's ability to insist on restraint and reversibility at other high\u8209 -profile federal sites.
By instead requiring that the east wing ballroom project be canceled and the site returned to its pre\u8209 -2024 condition, NCPC would reinforce a critical federal interest: long\u8209 -term stewardship of the capital's most symbolic properties according to nationally recognized planning and preservation standards.

Feasible Alternatives to Permanent East Wing Expansion
From a federal-interest perspective, the programmatic goals driving this proposal—larger or more flexible event/ballroom capacity—do not justify a permanent intervention of this magnitude in such a sensitive federal setting. Reasonable alternatives should be fully explored, including:

Use of existing interior spaces reconfigured for greater flexibility, while maintaining historic fabric;
Temporary, reversible structures or installations for peak\u8209 -demand events;
Greater use of other federal facilities in the National Capital Region that can host large events, thereby relieving pressure on the White House grounds.
Each of these alternatives would better respect federal preservation obligations and NCPC's policy framework than the current proposal.

Request

For the reasons above, and in light of NCPC's statutory responsibilities and policy guidance, I respectfully request that:

NCPC determine that the proposed east wing ballroom plan is inconsistent with federal interests in the National Capital Region, including the preservation of the White House's historic, symbolic, and urban design roles;
The current project be fully canceled, with the site restored to its pre\u8209 -2024 design and condition; and
Any future efforts to address ballroom or event needs at the White House prioritize minimal, reversible, and context\u8209 -sensitive solutions that preserve the integrity of this uniquely important federal property.
Thank you for the opportunity to provide written comments early in the review process. I ask that this comment be included in the official record and considered in NCPC's concept and preliminary design deliberations.

The current White House project plans do not align with the architecture and respect to the core of the side which is the residence.
I feel the east wing was illegally destroyed in, and any modernization needs to take into consideration the size of a structure in relation to the residence. It should honor the style of the residence..

The East Wing should be compatible in size and structure as the West Wing of the White House to keep it aesthetically and visually pleasing to the eye. I speak as a former student of architecture - balance is important. Obviously, the interior could be modernized and brought up to date technologically as well as decoratively but for the amount of use it will get, I don't see a ballroom as intrinsically necessary. The White House isn't a convention center or hotel. It is a house, "the people's house," historically and most people don't have ballrooms in their homes. I know the President lives there but it should be treated like a rental home, where the resident has the right to live there and make minor cosmetic updates and improvements, but it is not the renter's permanent home so major improvements must be made for ALL people, not just the present resident. And get rid of all the "gold" stuff. That is so passe as a decorating scheme. It looks like something put together by someone who just got wealthy and wants to show off what they have. It's grotesque.

And, has anyone thought of the additional cost (as if the initial building cost isn't enough) of changing the logos and visage of the White House on all the literature and printing materials relevant to the White House. That will add millions to the budget.

An oversized, gaudy ballroom is not in keeping with either the architecture of the White House nor the solemnity of the office of the president. It should not have been begun unpermitted, and should be undone and restored to prior standards, ideally at the president’s personal expense.

The East Wing of The People's House should be rebuilt in the same dimensions and architectural style but updated to current codes and accessibility. The restoration should be done at Donald J. Trump's personal expense, without money/bribes from others, since he is responsible for the destruction. The White House and the East and West Wings belong to the people and a president is only a temporary guest. The White House and the East and West Wings are not a palace and there should be no gold filigree. No huge Golden Ballroom is needed on this property. Furthermore, the Rose Garden should be restored to the Jackie Kennedy era.

Dear NCPC,
My concern regarding President Trump's ballroom centers around the construction and purpose. I personally have not noted a need for a ballroom. But even if the need is verified, the construction should be a seamless fit with the current structure - not overwhelm it and not compete with it. With the loss of office space and meeting areas, it seems more appropriate to rebuild the East Wing in the same style as the rest of the building but rooms to suit modern day uses, with modern amenities, bringing everything up to code. In no way should the new construction overwhelm the existing building.
Regards,
Lynne Waltman

New construction should conform with the prior structure that was destroyed. It should remain consistent with the footprint and size of the former East Wing, with obvious upgrades to utilities incorporated. No gold accents. Visual aesthetic integrity needs to be adhered to in order for the White House to remain the main focal point and not either wing. There should not be any changes made to the West Wing in order to balance a larger East Wing. There is no need to expand the ballroom. The country has far more pressing needs.

I believe that the East Wing should be restored as much as possible. I also believe that the rose garden should be restored to the condition it was in before Trump paved over it. The brass plaques full of Trump's comments on past presidents should be removed, as well as all the gold he has added to the White House. And we need to replace the president's bunker that was destroyed.
I am sure you have heard this from other people, but since comments should have been solicited BEFORE the East Wing was destroyed Trump should be fined for not following guidelines for Historic Buildings. He is acting as if this is his house, but it is a National Treasure and as such, belongs to the people.

I don't know if comments are allowed on other issues, but is there any way that destruction of the Kennedy Center can be prevented? The building named in honor of President Kennedy's legacy should NOT be besmirched by the addition of Trump's name .
And a Trump Arch????? What a horrible idea. A president that has done everything in his power to destroy our democracy and our world standing should not be able to name things after himself. And a coin with his image on it????? Since when has a living president ever had his face on a national coin.

Thank you.

I am opposed to the proposed ballroom because:

-- Its exterior design is a historical and vastly out of scale with the existing (remaining) White House.

-- The interior design is garish -- "Gilded Age Brothel".

-- Privately funding it circumvents accountability to the public through its elected representatives; public infrastructure should not be for sale or subject to the whims of an individual.

The sudden demolition of the East Wing of the White House, with no warning and no public notice, was a gut punch not only to the people of the United States, but also to history. With no time for public input, no consultation with Congress or other authorities regarding federal construction, this was a flagrant abuse of power, without any legitimate authority to do so. It was clearly a gesture simply to show that President Trump will do as he wants, and do it with the most destructive flourishes he can conjure.

The new plans for a "ballroom" must go through proper channels to make sure that the construction will be historically appropriate, and that it will not cause stress to the existing structure. The horrific paving over of the Rose Garden was a giant middle finger to the legacy of the Kennedys, and to the desire to make "The People's House" beautiful and inviting.

Everything about this is just shocking.

I very strongly feel that our country should be preserving the few remaining historical structures that bind us all to our country's historical background. Historical preservation does not include erecting a modern structure next to the White House that dwarfs it and it's significant historical relevance. A modern "meeting hall" must be built elsewhere. The cost of transporting the President and staff is minimal next to the loss of the historical relevance of the White House property to the American people. After all, it is the "people's house".

It can be argued that the new building will create fresh historical relevance however, this is a false argument as the building will be erected during, and in honor of, a presidency that is not favorable to the majority of Americans.

To Whom It May Concern -
Would that the American people had been given the opportunity to weigh in BEFORE the historic East Wing of the White House was demolished! How emblematic of this administration to decide unilaterally to demolish the People's House, to stamp an historic site with a graceless, tasteless addition that will overshadow the remainder of the structure in size, scale and style.

But isn't THAT the point?

This president has no sense of history or precedent. Nor does he care. He has taken EVERYTHING about the Office of the President and demeaned it, if not outright destroyed it. And now he has LITERALLY destroyed a part of the iconic symbolism of the Nation's government.

And the fact that this is all to be paid for by the billionaires - who pay-to-play with this administration - is an UTTER ABOMINATION!

PLEASE DO NOT ALLOW THIS TO CONTINUE. DO NOT GREEN LIGHT THIS PROJECT WITHOUT SERIOUS RESTRICTIONS. ENSURE THAT THE ADDITION TO THE WHITE HOUSE IS CONSISTENT WITH ITS INITIAL CONSTRUCTION.

This project is baffling on many levels. It is obviously disproportionate to the current structure first off. This is why we have architectural review boards. Most disturbing is how often is a room of this capacity needed? And the challenges its occasional use will pose in terms of security for personnel. The security checks for temporary personnel in terms of catering and kitchen staff are most perplexing. This is not a hotel venue that is booked for wedding etc. How often has the WHITE HOUSE held events on the scale of 900 attendees?
Presidents come and go but this structure will leave a white elephant for its future occupants.
This is an unnecessary and clearly a vanity project of the current occupant.

As a citizen and taxpayer, I oppose any addition to the White House that exceeds the square footage of the main residence or detracts from its historic character. The proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom included in the East Wing remodel meets neither of these standards and should not be approved.

The White House is a national historic government building. Any temporary occupant—namely, the President—should not be permitted to make substantial structural changes without appropriate oversight and approval. At this point, I would recommend abandoning the East Wing expansion entirely and restoring the Rose Garden in its place.

The White House is property of the federal government, which means all of the people; it is, as Michelle Obama put it," the people's house". And therefore falls into the purview of Congress rather than the Executive Branch, especially considering that Congress has the power of the purse and such a project requires a massive amount of tax dollars. Ergo, I consider destruction of the East Wing without Congressional approval and budgeting as destruction of government property at a level constituting a felony.

I do not want the ballroom construction to be completed because it is nothing more than a vanity project for Trump. He says that donors will pay for it, but what do these supposed “donors” receive in return? It appears to be a way for rich people and corporations to bribe the administration into giving them favorable legislation. If another administration was doing this, I would expect donations to go through a historic preservation program or some other legitimate third party.

Furthermore, at a time in this country when we are seeing vast economic gaps, building a ballroom is egregious and demonstrates how little Trump is working on policies that actually help people.

The East Wing needs to be restored immediately. If another administration wants a ballroom, the can either rent one when needed or renovate a different federal building for that purpose-provided the proper channels are followed for permitting and funding.

Since there has been no major up grades since 1952, I understand the history of changes to the White House, then renovations seem in order especially compliance with ADA and technical issues around security.
However, I sincerely hope the exterior appearance of the mansion is considered. Whatever is built should maintain the current symmetry and classic architectural lines.

Also, I see no need for a giant ballroom. Something more modest and classic would suit the purpose. I would hope there are to be offices or other purposes for the new structure.

I aslo question the extravagance in a time of severe economic hardship for our working class families and the poor.

This project should reflect a welcoming for foreign dignitaries and simple American workmanship.

Unfortunately, the destruction of the East Wing is already irreversible. But its replacement by a massive, glittering ballroom — for what purpose?! — is an affront to the historical integrity of the White House and to the American people, whose elected Congressional representatives had no role in its approval. Funded by private donations …talk about potential waste, fraud and abuse! An invitation to corruption. At best the ballroom as proposed is unnecessary and should be rejected outright.

The East Wing of The People's House should be rebuilt in the same dimensions and architectural style but updated to current codes and accessibility. The restoration should be done at Donald J. Trump's personal expense, without money/bribes from others, since he is responsible for the destruction.. The White House and the East and West Wings belong to the people and a president is only a temporary guest. The White House and the East and West Wings are not a palace and there should be no gold filigree. No huge Golden Ballroom is needed on this property. Furthermore, the Rose Garden should be restored to the Jackie Kennedy era.

The East Wing of the PEOPLE'S HOUSE, also referred to as the White House, must be restored to exact specification, what it was before the illegal demolition occurred. Every inch of stone, marble, floor, wall and decor must immediately be reconstructed and laws must immediately be put in place to prevent this travesty from EVER occurring again. Also during the reconstruction, the grounds, most especially the Rose Garden, must also be put back to what it was before it was destroyed for one man's fantasy of OWNING our property.

The destruction of the historic East Wing is a national travesty. Any new construction to replace it should be in keeping with the size and style of the rest of the building. Some portion of it should be dedicated to telling the story of the near loss of American freedom and democracy created by this administration.

I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. Any reconstruction should honor the original intent and visual continuity of this nationally significant site, ensuring that additions or modifications are harmonious rather than expansive or stylistically incongruous. Do not allow special interest funds to influence or pay for the rebuilding.
At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.
The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.
If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed WITHIN THE EXISTING HISTORIC FOOTPRINT of the East Wing. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.
Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.

Restore Jackie Kennedy's Rose Garden with wheelchair accessible paths, and same plants, landscaping as before, including scions of the original rose bushes.
No gold filigree anything.

The White House is the People's house. It is a living piece of history. I think the National Trust should be part of every step of the plan for the construction of the East Wing to make sure the historical elements continue and that it fits with the rest of the historical structure. Keeping the historical integrity while making modernizations and keeping design elements to be classic and timeless is of the utmost importance. I am writing to this Commission because of my concern regarding the renovations to the White House (People's House). The destruction of the East Wing without proper input or authorization is more than concerning! I am hoping that when evaluating the construction of its replacement certain standards are kept in place!

The replacement should NOT be larger than the White House in height for sure! The center peace should remain just that, NOT an accessory!

Architecture should be the same or totally complementary! This is "our" stately mansion so to speak!

Please keep this a preservation: where are the things removed and what can be reused, either back inside or to the Smithsonian for display!

This needs oversight from people, Congress and proper Planning so dignity and beauty come first, no gaudy, giant oversized ballroom supersedes the original building!
Thank you for your consideration of my opinions!

The White House is not just a residence or office complex; it is an architectural composition, whose balance, scale and proportion are integral to its purpose and meaning. Alterations to the east wing that disregard these principles risk disrupting the overall structure and its architectural coherence.

Equally important is the historical significance. Each part of the White House reflects our national history and continuity. Major revision – particularly that is proposed by this administration will weaken that continuity and blur the line between stewardship and personalization, allowing substantial renovation today may open the door to future presidents to reshape the White House according to individual taste or agenda. This undermines is the principle that it White House belongs to the nation and not to one occupant.

I respectfully urge you to consider the above and not approve the current proposed changes to the east wing.

The White House is a historic landmark and a symbol of our country for both citizens and internationally. Any change to such an important building should involve years of careful research to preserve the historical details that make the White House both a home and a museum. Even when modernization of the systems is necessary—plumbing, electrical and updates to be ADA compliant, should be done with the smallest amount of aesthetic changes possible to preserve history. Change for the sake of change isn't appropriate when it comes to our country's symbols. The White House is an artifact. The utmost care and consideration is due in maintaining it as such.

This ballroom is just one for attempt to erase and rewrite American history. To the Members of the Commission,

I am writing to submit a formal public comment regarding the proposed 90,000-square-foot East Wing addition and ballroom at the White House. As a citizen concerned with the preservation of our nation's most significant historic landmarks, I urge the Commission to scrutinize this project's impact on the architectural integrity and historic character of the Executive Mansion.

My primary concerns, which I previously raised to the House Committee on Oversight, are as follows:

• At nearly 90,000 square feet, the proposed addition is almost double the size of the original historic structure. I am deeply concerned that a structure of this magnitude will overwhelm the authentic character of the White House, a National Historic Landmark. I ask the Commission to evaluate whether the scale of this neoclassical addition preserves the "grand but modest" dignity essential to the President's House or if it creates an aesthetic imbalance on the historic grounds.

• While the administration has noted that some interior features are being salvaged, the demolition of the East Wing and the introduction of a "glass bridge" connection represent a significant departure from the site's historic evolution. I request that the NCPC demand a more rigorous analysis of how this project complies with the Historic Preservation Element of the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital.

• The use of private corporate funding for a project of this scale on federal land is highly irregular. I am concerned that this funding model seeks to bypass traditional congressional appropriations and oversight. I urge the NCPC to ensure that the project is held to the highest standards of public transparency and that the use of private funds does not result in a project that prioritizes donor interests over the preservation of a public monument.

Given that demolition has already proceeded without the typical advance public notice, it is imperative that the NCPC now serves as a check on the construction phase to prevent irreparable harm to the White House.

Thank you for your consideration of these comments and for your work in protecting the character of our National Capital.

Mr. Trump should be held accountable for his reckless actions in destroying OUR White House. As such, he should be required to finance - from his own funds - the rebuilding and restoration of the East Wing per the People’s requirements. The Historical society and appropriate history experts should be a mandatory requirement of this process to ensure historical accuracies, and the reconstruction should be contracted for completion within two years - giving him a great deal longer than it took him to destroy our great landmark. Modern conveniences and securities should be integrated while maintaining the integrity of this historic process.

STATEMENT OF DAVID KLINGER OF LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA, BEFORE THE NATIONAL CAPITAL PLANNING COMMISSION REGARDING THE PROPOSED EXECUTIVE RESIDENCE AT THE WHITE HOUSE "EAST WING MODERNIZATION PLAN"

March 5, 2026 Commission meeting

I testify, in writing, before the National Capital Planning Commission as part of its March 5, 2026 review of the proposed "East Wing Modernization Plan" (File #8733) as a retired 35-year employee of the U.S. Department of the Interior and a former resident of the City of Washington, D.C.

The National Capital Planning Commission was created in 1924 — 102 years ago — to ensure the orderly and prudent development of the District of Columbia's parks and natural features. Its duties were expanded in 1952 to encompass wise and informed protection and stewardship of Washington's natural and historic sites.

There are many Americans this day who believe the National Capital Planning Commission has failed abjectly in the execution of its review responsibilities on a project of the utmost consequence to the Nation. This delinquency in vigilant oversight represents a breakdown of process by both applicant and Commission on this most consequential of series of modifications to the most venerated public house in the United States. It is a problem not entirely of your own making.

This must never, never be allowed to happen again.

Summary removal of approximately one-third of what is, essentially, a national monument within a national park, overseen by the National Park Service — the 1902 East Wing of the White House — was allowed to proceed in a rash and headlong manner, without prudent intervention when concerns were first identified, and when the necessity of sustained technical oversight by the Commission and by the Congress first became apparent. Forbearance — amid the frantic pace of East Wing demolition, when no such haste was required — would have permitted the Commission a more thorough, deliberate, and thoughtful review of the subsequent phase that now comes before you, in belated fashion, for post-facto professional examination.

Today, you are now called upon to green-light its replacement — an over-massed and physically-intrusive ballroom whose projected costs have since escalated from $200 million to $300 million to, now, $400 million. Even as today's Commission review commences and public comments are finally invited, the "East Wing Modernization Plan" proceeds apace with its construction. Its footers and foundation are being poured even as designs of the proposed structure evolve, forcing unforeseen modifications elsewhere within the White House complex to compensate for the future height, massing, and siting of this "ballroom-in-flux" on the east side of the Executive Residence.

This is no proficient way to proceed on a project of such magnitude, cost, and impact, by allowing construction — in all of its intricacies — to evolve in such a random and haphazard fashion, subject to additional potential design changes and vagaries of funding.

It does not represent the sort of intelligent planning that is the mandate and mission of your Commission. Neither is it good form for how a public commission should conduct its affairs — by reviewing projects before they start, with sufficient information and stablized designs submitted ahead-of-time, on which to base informed decisions.

Pending court resolution of the National Trust for Historic Preservation litigation concerning the "East Wing Modernization Plan', I respectfully request the following:

-- The National Capital Planning Commission suspend any further review or endorsement of the White House "East Wing Modernization Plan" preliminary and final site and building plans, and that it issue a "Sense of the Commission" statement that any further work on this project —while litigation is pending — would not at this time be in the best interests of the District of Columbia and its citizens;

-- The National Capital Planning Commission issue a written rebuke of the "East Wing Modernization Plan" applicants for the potentially illegal manner in which this consequential project has been allowed to proceed, to date, without consideration of design alternatives, absent sufficient oversight, lacking engagement of the Nation's architectural and historic preservation experts, and without adequate public involvement and input, in violation of the National Environmental Policy Act.

-- Further, that the entire membership National Capital Planning Commission conduct its own, on-site inspection of the project before any future administrative approvals take place, rather than relying solely on assertions within the applicant's written filings. Additionally, that it order that this project — in its current stage of construction — be immediately opened to on-site professional and Congressional review, news media examination, and public inspection, in furtherance of transparency that has been absent since July 2025, when this project first commenced but is only just now coming before you for substantive discussion and before the eyes of the Nation, under vital public scrutiny.

The rash and unnecessarily hasty manner in which project applicants have pursued the destruction of the White House East Wing and their precipitous launching of ballroom construction — ahead of sufficient review and comment by both the National Capital Planning Commission and the U.S. Commission of Fine Arts — represents arrogant and dismissive contempt for your Commission's mandate, bordering on professional malfeasance and ethical misconduct.

In short, the applicant before you today, by his conduct and performance, has been permitted to dictate the pace, nature, and outcome of your decision-making process. Action on this application should be suspended on these procedural grounds alone.

The fashion in which project applicants appear before you today is not unlike the baleful story of the young man who killed his own parents … then, when summoned before a courtroom judge for sentencing, pleaded for mercy, on the grounds that he was an orphan.

It is not just a routine construction project that this day comes before you — and the Nation — for the Commission's careful and incisive review.

It is your own administrative process that is under scrutiny today, provoked by a project needlessly complicated by its applicants. Its launch, pursuit, and, now, its demand for your summary endorsement have severely eclipsed the Commission's range of options and freedom of review.

It is time to call a prudent time-out for reconsideration and further reflection on the destructive actions that have been permitted to recently occur at the storied residence of every President of the United States since 1799. The National Capital Planning Commission must now intercede, with a reasoned solution that can remedy the damage that has been caused to the White House by both premature and unsanctioned demolition … and imprudent and evolving re-design that shows little sign of the architectural and design stability that is the Commission's mandate to ensure.

I do not support the plans for the East Wing of the People's White House. The planned ballroom is atrocious. It dwarfs the lovely historic building. It is gaudy, and over designed. The nation does not need an enormous ball room. I would prefer that any construction be modest and simple, in keeping with the rest of the white house complex. Actually, I would have preferred that the East Wing be kept as it was, so any construction should be similar to what was there before it was destroyed.

I am concerned about both the manner in which the East Wing Modernization project has been undertaken and the direction it now appears to be going.

While the former East Wing has already been removed and cannot be restored, it is essential that whatever replaces it reflects the historic character and democratic spirit of the White House. The White House is not a palace; it is the People's House. Its scale, architecture, and symbolism should convey modesty, accessibility, and humility—qualities that reflect the temporary and service-oriented nature of elected office in our republic.

There is strong historical precedent for careful, restrained expansion of the complex. In 1902, under Theodore Roosevelt, the West Wing was constructed to separate official functions from the family residence. Importantly, that addition was subordinate in scale and deferential in massing, preserving the Executive Residence as the architectural and symbolic centerpiece. Similarly, during the 1948–1952 reconstruction under Harry S. Truman, the White House interior was completely rebuilt for structural safety, yet the historic exterior appearance was meticulously preserved. Even radical modernization was carried out without altering the building's outward dignity and proportions.

The East Wing itself was formalized during World War II under Franklin D. Roosevelt. Though expanded for practical and security reasons, it was ultimately designed to harmonize with the Executive Residence rather than compete with it. These precedents demonstrate that functional needs can be met without diminishing the primacy, scale, and symbolic balance of the main house.

Accordingly, no new structure should exceed the height or overall square footage of the existing building it replaces, nor should it visually dominate the historic residence. The architecture should extend the neoclassical vocabulary established by architect James Hoban, ensuring continuity in materials, proportions, and detailing. The addition should also provide visual balance within the overall composition of the complex, complementing the West Wing rather than rivaling it.

There is undoubtedly a need for appropriate public event space, whether to honor distinguished award recipients or to accommodate visitors. However, such facilities should be designed with restraint and taste. As the National Park Service has long articulated in its standards for historic properties, new additions should be compatible in scale and character while remaining subordinate to historic structures. That principle is particularly important here.

Finally, while maintaining necessary security measures, the design should incorporate transparency—both symbolic and physical. Thoughtfully placed windows and open architectural elements would communicate that this remains a welcoming civic space. No American should be made to feel that this house is closed to them, especially in the public-facing East Wing.

This project presents an opportunity to reinforce—not dilute—the architectural dignity and democratic symbolism of one of our nation's most important public buildings. I urge decision-makers to prioritize balance, restraint, historical continuity, and openness in the final design.

Building a wing that is bigger than the White House is a further insane proposition that seeks to erode our history.

And using private funds to do so is an illegal circumvention of funding statutes, and also gives the appearance that the White House can literally be bought by private interests.

The proposed building is too overpowering for the existing residence. Please make it more architecturally pleasing to the existing features of the present White House. And it would be my hope that before anyone decides to do the West Wing there would be public hearings and permits issued before the bulldozers arrive. I hope the Board understands this property belongs to the American People and NOT one individual, and I would say this no matter which President had undertaken the serious destruction of this Historic Property. Dear Commission members,

I am appalled and heartbroken to see what is being done to The People's House. The facade is being ruined, the scale is as obtrusive as the President himself.

I understand the need to expand the White House for it to function in our current society, however, this project needs thoughtful planning and a design that respects the history of the building. There are many talented architects in this country, one of whom I'm sure would be honored to be selected from a pool of design entries.

Please don't allow this project to go on as it is. This President has gone on way too long unchecked. He needs to follow the rules like the rest of us, even though he doesn't accept that notion. He can't be allowed to hold himself above the law and regulations that have been intact and observed for many years.

If this commission is allowed to choose an architect, I sincerely hope that it is a person of color, an immigrant, or a woman.

Thank you for your time.

To the Members of the National Capiotal Planning Commission and the broader preservation community,

I respectfully submit this comment regarding the proposed reconstruction and expansion of the East Wing of the White House.

The East Wing has evolved thoughtfully over time. First constructed in 1902 during the Theodore Roosevelt administration and significantly expanded in 1942 under President Franklin D. Roosevelt, it has historically served practical and symbolic functions: a public entrance to the Executive Mansion, workspace for the First Lady and her staff, and support facilities integrated into the broader historic complex. While it has never been as architecturally dominant as the Executive Residence or the West Wing, its modest scale has helped preserve the visual and symbolic balance of the White House grounds.

The White House is not merely a working government building; it is one of the nation's most significant historic landmarks and a living museum of American civic life. Past interventions—most notably the structural reconstruction carried out under Harry S. Truman—were undertaken out of structural necessity and were carefully executed to preserve the building's historic exterior character. Those decisions reflected a philosophy of stewardship: modernize where needed, but do not enlarge or alter the historic profile without compelling justification.

Current plans that significantly expand the East Wing beyond its historic footprint risk disrupting that long-standing balance. A substantial increase in scale could overshadow the Executive Residence and alter the historic landscape composition that has defined the White House grounds for over a century. The East Wing's secondary status—architecturally and historically—has been part of its character. Rebuilding it within its previous footprint, or at a smaller scale than currently proposed, would honor its historical evolution while still allowing for modernization and improved functionality.

Preservation is not opposition to change; rather, it is a commitment to proportional, respectful change. Keeping the rebuilt East Wing modest in size would:

-Maintain the historic sightlines and architectural hierarchy of the White House complex.

-Uphold the precedent of preservation-first interventions established in the 20th century.

-Demonstrate responsible stewardship of one of the most recognized public buildings in the world.

-Reinforce public trust that alterations to nationally significant landmarks are guided by history rather than ambition.

As stewards of our shared heritage, we have an obligation to ensure that any reconstruction reflects continuity with the past. I urge you and relevant advisory bodies to recommend that the East Wing rebuild remain within its historic footprint—or at minimum, significantly smaller than currently envisioned—to preserve the integrity, scale, and symbolism of the White House for future generations.

Respectfully submitted,
Cheryl Phillips

This is an abomination and I am appalled that the East wing and all of its history was destroyed...and for a ballroom? There is absolutely no need for a ballroom for any president, now or in the future. Smaller venues are perfectly appropriate for state visits and diplomacy.

Are you all insane? This is a monument to the indulgence and cult of personality of one man, Donald Trump, paralleling the palace of Ceaușescu's Romania. This is the "People's House," with laws in place to ensure the fabric and interpretation of the space are respected. This new "ballroom" is nothing more than a counting house to entertain the donor class that will keep him in power, and does nothing to benefit the American people. The sad reality is that no law will stop this lawless administration from pursuing its self-serving agenda. That said, every infraction must be documented from a historical, architectural, and structural perspective as a baseline for determining any future actions once Donald Trump is gone.

Good Luck!

It is criminal that the East Wing was destroyed without warning and without regard to the rules surrounding changes to US landmarks. The only acceptable action is to rebuild and restore the East Wing to near original state. There has never been shown any need for additional space for entertaining heads of state or other large groups. This is NOT his property to besmirch, and he should be forced to compensate the Treasury for the costs of reconstruction.

Please do not permit an unnecessary monstrous structure to be built against the White House. Anything this committee would do should absolutely not lean into any sort of compromise in this regard.

Thank you.

This project should not love forward as described to the public as it is not in keeping with the character of the White House. The size and scale dramatically degrades the look. Rather than looking like an institution of America, the changes will make it look like a Wal-Mart. The new addition should not be larger than the White House itself.

I am disgusted and dismayed by the Ballroom and the destruction of the White House to build it! I find the building plan to be ugly and totally tasteless, and I hate that it will represent our country. I also find the expense of building the Ballroom (no matter where the funding comes from) to be an horrendous contrast to the many unmet humanitarian needs in our country and abroad. I believe there should be congressional oversight before one individual (our current president) can destroy a national treasure-our White House!

I am completely against the destruction of the east wing in order to build a ballroom. The proposed size would be a complete eyesore and destroy the landscape of the area. The White House is the people's house. The proposed ballroom would not be available to the public, only the very wealthy in what I assume would be a "pay to play" arrangement so common in this administration. A ballroom replacing a significantly historic site is an abomination and insult to all Americans. It must not be allowed to go forward. Thank you for your consideration.

To Whom It May Concern,

The East Wing demolition was a travesty that never should have happened. To replace it with an oversized, over glitzy ballroom that dwarfs the White House itself is an even bigger travesty. It is time for the normal functioning of the government to return. The ballroom should be denied and Trump should be forced to rebuild what he destroyed - at his expense - with the supervision of the appropriate committees and legislators.

Please stop the desecration of our National buildings by the ego of one out-of-control man!

Thanks,

The destruction of the East Wing of the White House, the People's House, without any approval process was likely illegal and must not be tolerated nor rewarded with the construction of the proposed ballroom. The proposed design is completely incompatible with the remaining existing structure of the White House and should not be approved. The scale of the proposed ballroom will completely out of proportion to the White House and will only encourage alterations to the West Wing to put the structure back in balance. To the extent the previous East Wing needed restoration or modernization, it should have been done in accordance with the approval processes of the NCPC. Additionally, a full accounting of the costs and funding sources must be completed to ensure there is adequate and ethically appropriate. Any attempt to name the new wing (however it is built) after the current or any future occupant of the White House cannot be tolerated. In my opinion, the East Wing should be restored to resemble the previous structure at no expense to the US Government.

I am writing today to express my sadness and anger at what has happened to the White House. Without permission or input this beautiful testament to our nation’s history has been destroyed by a megalomaniac’s desire to be king. I am asking that you do not allow this construction to continue. Rather, restore all of what has been removed. Perhaps updates are in order, but please no foolish ballroom to impress no one but the man who finds his own history most important. The rose garden, the First Lady's offices and so much more needs to be restored to its original design and purpose. Don't let this monstrosity ruin our past and what it will show to our future children. All evidence of this time should be erased and only spoken of as an example of the worst that America has endured. Please restore the dignity and beauty of the White House as it was built because that's the way it should be… it's the people's house, and the president is always only a temporary guest, there at our request as a guardian and guard for the future.

I don’t disagree that a ballroom would be a nice addition but knocking down the east wing to accommodate was irresponsible. But that’s done. I think the size of the planned new ballroom is unnecessary and I think a bi-partisan committee should be established to determine the design. This is the people’s house and it shouldn’t be decided by one man or one administration. The commission should also have input to protect the integrity of the building as it shouldn’t be done at the whim of one man’s taste which in my opinion leans toward gaudy and ostentatious.

As a US citizen, I am writing to ask you to protect the integrity of the historic value of the east wing of the White House and of the White House itself. The values of our founding fathers and the values of most of the American people today are based on not elevating the president above the common people. Kings have grand palaces, not presidents of the United States. As Americans, in the past and in the future, we want money to be spent in ways that support people, preserve our historic and natural heritage, and honor the human rights and human experience. We do not want money spend on self-aggrandizement of any president. We do not want money wasted, even if it is the money from donors, on a huge monstrosity of an addition to the White House, a monstrosity that has no historic value, destroys the architectural integrity of the White House, and will only be used by the wealthy. Please protect the historic value of the White House and its symbol of democracy and a government that is by the people and for the people. Please do not allow the current plans to go forward. Any attempt to continue to build a ballroom must be ended. The East wing needs to be restored to its original configuration. How dare someone who is uninformed, lacking knowledge of law and our history, attempt to alter our Historical image. As a 76 year old American I resent the alteration of our heritage. The individual who ordered this alteration of the East wing must personally pay for its restoration. NOT he American people who did not sanction this ballroom project!
Also I want the Lincoln bathroom restored to its original configuration. Lincoln was from Illinois not where there was lots of gold color and ornateness. Such ostentatious adornment has no place in our history but in the small minds of those who wish to loom large in our country and do not deserve to as Abraham Lincoln does.
Let us not continue to allow indiscriminate alteration of our historical buildings and as a secondary result alteration of our history, beliefs, and American standards.

Was any of the contents of the East Wing catalogued and protected? What has happened to them? The ballroom is literally a ruse to give the president millions of dollars from corporations and large donors. We all know it's a scam. Everyday the project costs more and more money. Having a ballroom that is so large that it overshadows the White House is so disgusting. It's hard to put into words how terrible of an idea this is. Restore the East Wing as close to what it was as possible with only necessary modernization to reflect current health & safety requirements. No glitter, no gold filigree, just as close to the original as possible.

This property is supposed to be temporary quarters for no more than a two term president, a person that represent the common American, not for a King or Sultan. It is a historical fixture, not a bauble for glamorous display.

Dear Sirs/Madams:

I am completely opposed to this unnecessary and costly project. It is a pathetically classless attempt to mimic the largess of the "right and famous" and serves no positive purpose for the citizens of this country. This project is gaudy, ugly and completely unnecessary and certainly does not reflect well on our country. Monies for this useless project, I believe, would be better served on other projects under this Commission's domain and used for the betterment of all the citizens of this country. I, as a United States Citizen, am completely opposed to this gaudy and unnecessary project and expenditure of our money, and I formally request that the National Capital Planning Commission and all other Committees/Commissions entrusted with the legal power to deny this project to proceed or not, do so in formally and legally denying this project going forward. Furthermore, because of the impetuous and I daresay illegal demolishing of a portion of OUR White House, that the entire financial burden to fully restore the East Wing to it's rightful and former appearance, be laid at the hands and be solely the responsibility to remunerate to our country, to the one person who illegally ordered it's demolition: Donald J. Trump of Florida and that he himself and no other person or organization be financially responsible for it's complete restoration and repair as it was prior to October 20, 2025, with guaranteeing it's viability for all years to come.

Thank you for your consideration of my request. I look forward to my request being acceptable to this Commission and it's eventual like-minded ultimate and final decision.

Most Sincerely,

Sarah M. Carey

The White House is NOT the President's house, to do with as he pleases. It is the people’s house. All of the damage and destruction that the current administration has conducted needs to be reversed. Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible, but maintain the overall historical form and structure.

If it is determined that a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city. And at NO TIME should special interest funds/donations pay for or influence either the construction of a ballroom OR the rebuilding of the EastWing.

I propose restoring the East Wing to its original design. The 90,000 square foot design for Trump's ballroom completely dwarfs the White House and its historic integrity. It is an ugly design that ruins the historic nature of the "People's House". The East Wing was demolished with no input from the National Trust for Historic Preservation and this project needs to be halted until the proper entities are all consulted. I agree there needed to be upgrades for modernization and security. However, they could have been submitted and the proper procedures could have been followed. The cost of the ballroom has ballooned to $400 million. Trump insists it is being paid for by donors from defense and technology sectors. This raises all sorts of ethical questions and potential for more grift on the part of Trump and his associates.

Again, I propose the modernization items be included, like an underground bunk for security, but the original design should be preserved. If a grand Versailles-type building is needed for fancy balls and events, then that should be constructed away from the historic White House and grounds. Trump has already destroyed the historic Rose Garden. Do not let him destroy the historic lines of the White House by building a monstrosity that overshadows it.

Thank you.

As a student of architectural history, I consider our capital's many government buildings precious, and an important part of our architectural heritage. It is unseemly for any one public official to change — much less destroy — any major component of any building as important as the White House on a whim, for magnifying his personal esteem. Construction of a memorial to a public figure is for history and legislation to decide, not a living person, and much less for the person himself to authorize. It is my sincere hope that this project will not be granted a permit for construction. Its lavish decor would be in very poor taste, and the honor unearned.

This 90,000 square foot proposal for modernizing the East Wing is going much too far. This proposed addition will dwarf the People's House, the White House, and cast a dark shadow on the entire area around Pennsylvania Avenue. It does not take into account the history of the White House architecture, the design and style of the building and the landscaping, nor the desires of the American people. The final design should be closely monitored by the National Trust and move forward only with the review board's approval, according to existing law. An addition 1/3 this size, with a considerably decreased height footprint in relation to The White House, would be appropriate, given the size of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave and the architecture of the White House.

The last time our White House was destroyed was in the War of 1812 and as bad as that was, this is so much worse because an American president is behind it. Trump has ignored every rule, common courtesy and has destroyed a national landmark known as the East wing. His intent was not to modernize it but to claim yet another permanent monument, a testament to his own ego, with no regard for public opinion whatsoever. The White House, commonly referred to as the People's House, has been tainted by an egomaniac through self worth is so low, he must destroy everything in his wake. I guess technically I'm addressing the East Wing "Modernization" project but there is nothing besides its currency that makes it "modern". I have been in the now demolished East Wing and felt the warmth and history of our various past century's First Ladies' imprimaturs, grateful that their rolls had a real home. Its destruction was nothing short of heartbreaking.

Now comes an utterly garish, monstrous, out-of-place, gilded big box idea that is a slap in the face to anyone who cares about the dignity, purpose and appearance of the People's House. It is not his house to destroy.

Mr. Trump's assertion the everybody has always wanted a ballroom like he envisions is risible. His historically unique and gaudy taste is nowhere to be found in the annals of our history. Indeed, it is a rebuke to all this country stands for.

Please do not allow this ballroom abomination to go forward. It is vile. Rebuilding the East Wing and charging the costs to Mr. Trump is the only reasonable way forward.

Deeply disappointed by the East Wing being torn down without any consideration to our history, and believe the ballroom money should be used to rebuild the East Wing as it was.

First, the current renderings of the ballroom do not reflect the neoclassical architectural principle of symmetry and dwarf the main structure of the White House.

Additionally, the budget for the ballroom should be reduced and leftover ballroom donations should be given to charity.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. I am a member of the American public, a natural-born citizen. I am irate at the President's assumption that he alone owns the White House and can do with it what he wants. What he wants is to is to overwhelm this iconic house owned by the public with a huge gaudy "ballroom". Presidents have done without that for the life of the White House; they have used chambers in the White House for a wide variety of personal and political, joyous and sad events. There is no need for this huge ballroom, and the disrespect for the American people is palpable. Please do not allow continuation of the building of this ballroom. Thank you.

While I realize that occasional modifications or upgrades need to happen, I believe the White House should stand as a testament to our country's history. No alterations should be made that will change or destroy the White House as it is. This huge addition that is proposed will dwarf the original building and it will alter the distinctive perspective. I believe that our country and our history is not of the showy gold plated impression but the rock solid strong foundation of Democracy, our constitution and freedom. If an enormous ballroom and suite of offices are really needed then they should be built as their own thing somewhere else.

I object to the scale of this project. It dwarfs the historic White House and destroys the symmetry and balance so well represented by the Federalist architecture of the White House.

In addition to competing with the White House in overall mass, the two story design and grand entrance overwhelm the beautiful 1800 building. The designers should be asked to both scale back the dimension of the project overall and consider putting one of the floors underground.

I sympathize with the need for more entertainment space at the White House but consideration should be given to scale back the need to seat 1,000. There are, after all, a number of nearby venues in Washington, DC that accommodate a large audience.

While the East Wing can stand for a 'modernization project' since it has already been destroyed, it should be in keeping as it originally stood. The complex is the People's House and should remain as such. A ballroom can be built elsewhere off the complex in another location in the city. The scale of what is intended will dwarf the White House and would diminish its historic grandeur.

I don't have words forceful enough to express my opposition to a $1 trillion (or whatever) ballroom addition to the White House, whether paid for by billionaires who have more money than sense or by taxpayers.

Mr. Trump has absolutely NO right to raze the East Room in a fit of pique. The house he lives in (part time) does not belong to him and is not a branding opportunity. He's already made the Oval Office look like the waiting room at a bordello but at least that can be reversed fairly quickly. His excuse the ballroom is being paid for by rich donors only makes him—and us—in thrall to those who donated money. And you know part of this scheme is his getting his cut for "management fees" or whatever.

As for "national security" claims, the only reason he has trotted this out is it's a get out of jail free card for the Supreme Court. Leaving the area exposed with the scar you can se from outer space is the real national security issue.

Make Trump personally pay to restore the East Wing to the way it was before he threw a tantrum after No Kings Day.

To the National Capital Planning Commission --
I strongly oppose the demolition of the White House East Wing and the proposal to replace it with an over-sized ballroom that is wholly incompatible with the character, scale and meaning of the People's House, The White House. The East Wing has held the offices of the First Ladies and their contributions to public life.

In a single day, a contributing component of a National Historic Landmark was destroyed while bypassing the level of transparency, documentation, and public engagement required for any other nationally significant property in the United States. The absence of a complete public review undermines both the legitimacy of the action and the standards the federal government expects of every other historic property owner in the country.

I am likely among millions of Americans who were shocked and disappointed to see the demolition of the East Wing of the White House. While previous Presidents and their Administrations have made minor changes to the White House, such as President Jimmy Carter placing solar panels on the White House during the energy crisis during his term in office; and President John F, Kennedy creating the Rose Garden, these are minor projects that did not destroy a significant, historic part of the White House such as this current president.

The National Capital Planning Commission has a responsibility to advocate for the preservation of The White House as it does other National Historic Landmarks. I urge this Commission to require the rebuilding of the East Wing to its original form and to oppose the building of this monstrosity of a ballroom that is not in keeping with the nature and character of the White House, the People's House.

Sincerely,
Dr. Michael J. Adee

I am an architect in Charlotte, NC

This ball room addition is a travesty --- before Donal Trump NO ONE has ever mention the word "ball room" --- there is not a need for a ball room at the White House --- there are many venues around DC that can host any event --- the times they have had to set up tents is no big deal --- these tents are actually very nice

The tearing down of the East Wing was an illegal activity --- the architects / engineers / contractors / anyyone else that have and are participating in this project are immorral / enethical / unprincipaled

if they are building an underground bunker or data center (as rumors say), then this could have been done by leaving the East Wing --- the history that has been lost here is so unfortunate also, the scale and design of this restroom is just a disaster --- it is twice as big as the White House and is going to now dominate the grounds --- it is absolutely a crazy and insane idea to build this --- it is absolutely UGLY !

the East Wing needs to be built back exactly the way it was with improvenets as needed and done to match the same scale and taste as before and needless to say that the $300 million price tag is being funded with bribe money --- every individual and complany that is donating to this wants something in return

Note that I would be saying the same thing if a Democratic President would have committed this CRIME --- and it is a crime that has taken place with the demolition and another crime will take place if this ball room is built --- it will NOT be a crime when the next Democrtaic pPresident tears it down hopefullly

STOP THIS MADNESS !

The lawless and unnecessary demolition of the East Wing, as well as the the garish and self-aggrandizing refurbishment of the Oval Office, establish without any doubt that the current administration should have no role in the restoration of the East Wing. The current proposal is an exercise in self-glorification and generally an abomination. The current President should be required to make do with tents, trailers and other temporary structures for White House events.as penance for his act of wanton destruction.

After careful review, I do not support the proposal to construct a ballroom in place of the destroyed East Wing of the White House. This approach would significantly alter the historic architectural symmetry between the East and West Wings and introduce a structural element inconsistent with the building’s established design character. I recommend prioritizing restoration that preserves the original architectural integrity, balance, and historical continuity of the Executive Residence complex.

The White House does not need a ballroom. Washington DC has plenty of venues to host large parties. It is inappropriate to build an oversized, ornate, gold-gilded space designed to showcase the chasm between the 'elite rich' and We the People. We can build a monument to Trump elsewhere to forever remind this Republic how close we came to losing our freedom and American way of life.

The precipitous destruction of the East Wing throws the whole building off balance. Whatever design replaces it should conform to the original scale and retain the character and style of the original design, lest the final product looks like an oversized tumor on a once stately and well-balanced structure. To achieve the desired 90,000 sf space, underground construction should be considered, or the design criteria should be scaled down to something less grandiose.

What efforts are being made the restore the historic significance of the former East Wing? Components of the former structure should be deliberately incorporated into the new design. The historical significance of all that occurred at that place should not be lost as a result of this new use. The SIS standards for preservation and where possible reconstruction should be employed at every opportunity in the design process so the American story is not lost.

Greetings,

While I understand the need to modernize, it was shocking to see the east wing demolished. A new wing should be in the same architectural style as the White House so as to complement it, not overwhelm it. It needs to fit the scale of the current building both in height and size. On the interior, it should be finished in a style where there is flow from the west wing, through the main house and into the new east wing. The main focus for the White House is a base from which to run our country on a daily basis. I don't know how many days per year a ballroom would be used so I question if that is a good use of the space when there are off site spaces available for large events. A moderate size for the ballroom could be a welcome addition without overpowering the rest of the building. Since the First Ladies space was demolished, there needs to be accommodation for her and her staff as being First Lady is an important part of the White House.

Thank you,

Patty Maggard Prediletto

The destruction of the East Wing in the White House was a devastating blow to my personal morale. I had always thought of the White House as a basic National Monument to our country and, of course, the traditional home of the President. And, I guess, I always thought of the building as immemorial as well. It would be my wish that it be restored if at all possible. The contemplation of building an out sized and outrageously gaudy ball room next to our White House is, in my opinion, nothing more than the President once more trying to re-build Washington DC in his own image and as a personal, gaudy memorial.

IMHO, I personally hate the ballroom idea and would vote against it if I could. I would also fine the President for destroying the East Wing out of his personal whim and without review and approval by the appropriate office.

The gigantic ballroom is unnecessary and will destroy the lovely symmetry that makes our White House the nicest and classiest in the world. We're Americans, not show-offs. We don't like our monuments and government buildings to be sparkly or shiny or oversized or rococo. We like them to be elegant and sleek.

The President should not throw parties for such huge crowds, anywhere, ever. A mob scene is not elegant, not meaningful, not valued by the attendees. It' just a mob.

Trump is destroying the beauty of our capitol city. If he decorates the ballroom as he has the Oval Office, it will look like a Russian Mobster chose everything.

A ballroom, OK. But smaller, please. A few hundred people (under 500) is PLENTY big enough, not this gargantuan, vulgar monstrosity that does not fit with the overall look of our capitol.

I have understood and agree that hosting state dinners using tents on the White House lawn is not an ideal process. Having a facility suitable for larger events is probably a valid goal. I have concerns about the size and scale of the proposed facility as shown in the architectural renderings shown for a short time this week.

I understand that a typical state dinner at the White House can range between 100 and somewhat more than 300 guests. In other countries such as the UK and France, state dinners often host 150 to 200 guests. As of this month (February 2026) plans are for a facility to host 1,000 guests. To me, this is overkill. I also have concerns that the proposed facility will overshadow the actual White House mansion.

My opinion is that the scale should be reduced to a facility that can host 400 to 500 guests. That is well over the normal guest list in the USA as well as other countries. That capacity should be ample for events for many years to come.

I realize that a state dinner needs a sizable support and security staff and also that other East Wing offices must be provided in the structure. I sincerely hope that the ultimate design of the structure will scaled back substantially from the renderings currently being considered.

I write in opposition to the demolition of the East Wing and to the construction of a grandiose ballroom. So many infrastructure projects in America assist citizens with transportation, access to public lands, renewal of bridges, access to educational and cultural experiences. This Ballroom provides zero benefit to the American people. Events will not include the American Public but will be limited to the billionaire class, technocrats, and high-dollar donors. In America today, we are confronted with economic chaos for all but the richest Americans. Job growth is less than 200,000 new jobs per year. Our recent college graduates are saddled with debt, little federal assistance, and very limited employment opportunities. Our children and families struggle with food assistance, access to health insurance, and increased rent, utility, and insurance increases.

At this time in American history, the construction of a grandiose ballroom could not be any more inappropriate. It reflects a "let them eat cake" federal government mentality that is not the American way. This White House is the people's house. It should reflect service, humility, unity, and democracy. It is not a palace in need of a golden ballroom. I would be hard pressed to name a more inappropriate action than the construction of this structure. Thank you.

I oppose the destruction of the East Wing of the White House. The East Wing has long been a historic and symbolic space that reflects the enduring contributions of America's First Ladies, whose work in advocacy, public service, and cultural leadership has shaped important aspects of our national identity.

Removing a historic structure of this significance permanently diminishes that legacy and erodes the integrity of a nationally recognized landmark. Replacing it with a large-scale ballroom fundamentally alters the character and purpose of the site and represents a shift away from preservation toward excess.

I am particularly concerned about the funding of this project by private corporations seeking favor or influence with the current administration. Public trust is undermined when historic public spaces are altered in ways that appear to benefit private interests rather than the American people.

Our historic landmarks should be protected, preserved, and respected. Once destroyed, they cannot be meaningfully restored. I urge decision-makers to reconsider this project and honor the historical, cultural, and civic importance of the East Wing.

The President needs to follow the law. Demolition should not have occurred until proper approvals were received. I haven't even seen any architectural plans as to what he is proposing. The NCPC must ensure that the historical integrity of the building is being upheld. A 90,000 square foot ballroom is not necessary! A ballroom hasn't been needed for all these years and I don't believe it is needed now. This is the people's house. Not President Trump's private building. I swear he tore the east wing down believing that he couldn't be stopped since it was already a pile of destruction. I'm also concerned that the cost isn't covered and will be paid by us taxpayers. There have been too many lies in this administration and the whole project is just too secretive. Before anything goes further, the American people need to see specific drawings by a licensed architect. But, any addition larger than the entire current White House must be rejected.

should be classic, subdued, and dignified as part of the Country's genre. The gold and bling that is scheduled to be put there, is nothing short of tacky and entitled - all of which is a direct insult to the American people. There is absolutely no need for such a space. Are "balls" a 21st century thing? An American thing? How does building a ballroom benefit the people of America? This proposal feels wildly put of touch with the needs of the people and with the times. We need affordable, accessible healthcare and housing, clean water and air, lowered grocery prices, reasonable retirement age and accommodations, etc.

Additionally, the size of the proposed addition is larger than the White House. The "East Wing" should not be larger than the main building it accompanies. "Modenization" does not maintain historic relevance and accuracy of the White House and any additions should be in keeping with the period and style of our historic White House.

Finally, and addition to the White House must benefit everyday people. For example, the addition should accommodate/house offices where work is done that directly supports ordinary Americans.

There was no need for his demolition to happen and no need for this 'ballroom' that is supposed to replace it.

The architectural renderings for the ballroom keep changing and in do not match interior to exterior. The size changes each iteration.

I would like to address several points regarding this (I feel) unnecessary project.

Past history of the White House is significant. The architecture and who designed it in addition to the time frame and actual historical moment any changes have been made is part of our national heritage. To destroy or change this without cause is destroying history and the nations past.

The beauty of the White House lies in its simplicity. It truly is "The People's House "
It is not the grand palaces of Europe for a reason. It reflects the simple democratic ideals of the founding fathers of the United States. It is a symbol and message to all in our nation and the world that our nation is of the people, by the people and not by a separate ruling class.

The proposed size and adornments of the new structure is hideous. Dwarfing the actual original building with utter disregard for its historical significance or architectural beauty. In my opinion this is an attempt to reframe the history of the White House unnecessarily to show a dominance of a leading ruling class.

The disregard of the present occupant of the White House for long established democratic institutions such as the National Capitol Planning Commission, shown by his moving forward and destroying significant parts of the building, has tremendous bearing on our nations history. It also is a reflection of his not caring about our country and citizens.

Please do not allow this project to go forward. Please restore the White House to its beautiful simplicity. To shine to all across this world that it truly is….
"The Peoples House".
Thank you

This president has destroyed a national historic location (the White House) only to build his vain project that would overshadow the original home's footprint. Building such a large, gaudily-decorated "ballroom" is an affront to the historic nature of the White House. But that wasn't a thought when the president went ahead and just destroyed the east wing without any public pushback. The NCPC should consider simply reverting the space previously occupied by the east wing back to natural landscape with trees and indigenous flora, making the original White House alone the primary focus of the grounds. Obviously it is not needed for office space since current use has been moved out during deconstruction. The People DO NOT need a ballroom.

"East Wing Modernization Project" is a euphemism for building a monumental gold leaf ballroom and luxury bunker for the President's personal use and benefit.

Assuming that some modernization and updating is called for at this historic building, this project is completely out of scale for the setting. It will dwarf the White House, the people's house, and will be out of proportion to the design of the Treasury building next door. Trump's stated goal on social media is to have the "finest Ballroom ever built anywhere in the World" and he has even talked about moving inaugurations to the new ballroom instead of the Capitol, which would then allow him to convert everything to a personal, invitation only event at "his" residence. Private funding for construction of this oversized monument to Trump will then become a lien on our public property, almost certain to translate into personal access to the power of the President.

None of this is necessary. The scale of the plans should be reined in to be more harmonious with existing structures and the history and the actual needs (vs. wants of the current occupant) of the White House as a RESIDENCE for a president and his/her family.We should not be building a luxury entertainment site as a monument to Trump. We do not need a 90,000sf ballroom to host dignitaries or conduct the usual business of the Presidency. Trump already has a huge place that he calls the Southern White House in which to host grand galas. Please do not destroy the integrity of the people's house to assuage his desire for gold leaf grandeur at the White House, at the expense of history, tradition, and artistic and architectural integrity.

I oppose the construction of a ballroom to replace the improperly demolished East Wing of the White House. It appears no consultation was made prior to the demolition of the existing structure and therefore I cannot support the development of the area for the intended purpose of a ballroom space. That would be rewarding violations of the process and there must be procedure and deference paid to the rules and order of these projects.

The destruction of the White House is just another blemish on the Republican Party. Trump and his minions have proven beyond doubt their lack of patriotism by this act as well as innumerable others. This money to return the White House should be mandatory by Trump'. After all, he's made billions with all his money making schemes during his presidency.

I hope SOMEONE will finally hold him accountable.

I am against this ballroom. NO ONE has asked for one, as Donald is LYING. He ripped down OUR East Wing, WITHOUT permission and I for one did NOT approve! If the ballroom we HAD was good enough for Princess Diana, with the beautiful pink marble floor, it was fine for me...as we the people were never invited to it. It is another VANITY PROJECT FOR DONALD and I will NOT stand for it!
I wept, watching the videos that morning...literal tears coursing down my cheeks and dropping on the keyboard under my fingertips.
Razing it released dangerous toxins in the building materials from decades ago, and the entire area was exposed to it. HE NEVER EVEN SAVED SENTIMENTAL FURNISHINGS OR BUILDING ACCENTS THAT ARE FROM A LONG GONE ERA! OUR history...WE THE PEOPLE'S HISTORY! We all saw things sitting in the rubble that should have been preserved.
He ripped out the Rose Garden as well...and now we have a mini Mar-a-Cloggo with tiles by the drains with American flags on it...so HE STEPS ON THE FLAG EVERY TIME HE IS OUT THERE! He's designed it so tacky just like his pedophile property in Florida, too. He has bypassed Congress FOR EVERYTHING, and this is something CONGRESS had control over ...NOT HIM. Plus, he's made sure it dwarfs the other buildings, making appearances more important to him than actual substance...the story of maga, really. THAT IS UNACCEPTABLE...and it WILL be removed once he is gone. BE GUARANTEED OF THAT.
No point in building what 80% of the country's citizens DO NOT WANT...as it stands for EPSTEIN now.

THE BALLROOM WILL ALWAYS REPRESENT INTERNATIONAL PEDOPHILE RING, A MONEY LAUNDERING RING, A CHILD PORN RING, A CHILD TRAFFICKING RING, A SPY RING, AN ILLEGAL ARMS RING, AND INVOLVED OFFICIALS FROM AROUND THE PLANET.WE DO NOT WANT A PEDOPHILE'S AND RAPIST'S FINGERPRINT ALL OVER OUR NATION'S CAPITAL and using OUR MONEY to do it!!

We were shocked at the destruction of the East Wing of the White House. We believe that it should be rebuilt and restored in its original manner. It should complement the White House, not overpower it. We believe that the Rose Garden should be restored to its former glory also. The White House is the People's House, it does not belong to any single person, president or not. We also demand accountability. The person who ordered the destruction of the East Wing and claims he has the money to replace it with a monstrosity of a ballroom, should hand over that money to replace the original historic structure.

I am writing to express my unequivocal opposition to the proposed modernization project for the White House East Wing. As a concerned citizen and advocate for the preservation of our nation's historical heritage, I urge you to halt this project and reconsider any alterations to this irreplaceable national landmark.

The White House stands as the most recognizable symbol of American democracy and history. The East Wing, completed in 1942 during the Roosevelt administration and designed by Lorenzo Winslow, represents a significant chapter in our nation's architectural and political heritage. Any modernization that compromises its historical integrity would constitute an irreversible loss to the American people and future generations.
My opposition is grounded in three fundamental concerns:
First, the historical and architectural significance of the East Wing cannot be overstated. This structure has witnessed pivotal moments in American history and houses spaces of profound cultural importance. The architectural elements, materials, and design reflect both the era of its construction and the evolving role of the presidency. Modifications risk destroying authentic fabric that can never be replicated, regardless of how careful or well-intentioned the approach.
Second, the fiscal implications of such a project demand scrutiny. Taxpayer dollars should not fund unnecessary alterations to a building that has served its function admirably for over eight decades. At a time when Americans face economic challenges, spending significant public funds on modernization rather than essential preservation raises serious questions about priorities. Any claimed necessity for updates should be accompanied by transparent cost-benefit analyses and exploration of minimal-intervention alternatives.
Third, a project of this magnitude affecting our nation's most important residence requires robust public oversight and input. The White House belongs to all Americans, and decisions about its modification should not be made behind closed doors. There has been insufficient public disclosure about the scope, necessity, and long-term implications of this project. The American people deserve full transparency about what changes are proposed, why they are deemed necessary, and what alternatives have been considered.

Since the East Wing of the White House was where the First Lady's office was located before the destruction of the wing, it should be made into the First Lady's or First Gentleman's wing with an office, and a museum installation of all the historical pictures of what used to be a beautiful rose garden before the renovation during the 45th Presidential Term. It should also include what the White House looked like before the 47th Term. Since there will be so much room for any of the offices needed that might have been neglected as staff size grew into the older building, I do believe that there should also be a meditation room for hope/joy that could be accessible to visitors of the WH as longs as the proper decorum was maintained. Perhaps, the Secret Service / FBI also needs an office to co-ordinate with local LEOs to make them aware of when they are arriving or when ICE anticipates being there

This ballroom is a slap in the face to every single United States citizen struggling each and every day to survive. This is a waste and should never have been started. The East Wing was demolished before any citizen had a say. It is supposed to be "our" house, not the president's.

Lastly, this administration will go down in history forever as the most grossly corrupt, incompetent, and imbecilic to ever lead a nation, let alone the USA. tRump and his sycophant GOP have done their best to do the the United States what it did to the East Wing - destroy it without any consideration to the ones who own it. The White House is owned by the citizens of the United States of America. The President is a temporary resident. It is not his home to do as he pleases. Permanent remodels of this historic building should not made without the explicit consent of the people's representatives, i.e. Congress. These remodels should also not be paid for by private donations which render the appearance of wealthy people trying to curry favor.

Last year's destruction of the East Wing without any prior notice to the country or its elected representatives was an illegal act, in my opinion. Continuing on with this project to build a gaudy, Rococo-style, distinctly un-American ballroom should not happen without a full hearing by Congress and the American people.

The rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House should remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.

The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.

When you tear down a portion of a structure without a rebuilding plan, funding, or public support, you made a giant mistake. The White House does not need a giant ballroom to host gala events, wrestling matches, car races, nor does it need to be painted gold or decorated with gaudy (ugly) gold decorations. A gala event can be easily facilitated in a temporary outdoor tent or at one of the various convention locations around D.C. Rebuild the East Wing to the original configuration, replant the rose garden, and stop wasting MY taxpayer money.

As our "President" has seen fit to bypass rules and regulations ALREADY in place by tearing down the East Wing WITHOUT permission (as well as renaming the Kennedy Center and proposing a "Trump Arch") it seems to be a mute point to even have a hearing that the results of he won't obey or feel obligated to comply with.
That said, however, my public comment in this matter will be as such:
"A sitting President who, in his first year, has attacked our U.S. Constitution so blatantly, instilled excessive and unnecessary tariffs on our allies and enemies, continues with lies daily regarding voter fraud, verbally abuses and condemns former presidents, and has decimated many institutions by eliminating funding to such worthy causes as PBS and dozens of others, will build the Trump-East Wing Ballroom to glorify his image irrespective of the necessity for it to begin with.
"At a cost initially estimated at $250 million that has risen to $400 million, the American people will pay for it out of tax dollars so that Presidente Trump can entertain his business cronies and carpetbaggers at dinner parties catered and paid for, again, by the American people.
"Oh, there'll be the occasional foreign dignitary, with the expected "White House Dinner" but they'll be far and few between his personal use of it for private functions.
"A scaled-down 'replacement' of the East Wing, large enough for a few hundred guests, has always been adequate and easier to protect security-wise for the occasional luncheon or dinner.
"It needs to be built alongside the White House as it was with, of course, improvements necessary for the 21st century as opposed to the one torn down. An operational kitchen attached, sufficient restroom facilities, wifi, stage w/lighting-sound for occasional performances or guest speaker presentations.
"I'm sure my thoughts are felt and being expressed by more people than merely me.
Signed

Modernizing the White House is important for security and safety reasons. However, destroying the entire East wing in order to decorate the interior in gold and marble is not.

The White House is the PEOPLES house. Not everyone in this Country has a millionaires income. A remodel should reflect a design in keeping with the original building, not a phony opulent palace.

The only organization who has the knowledge and expertise of doing such a remodel, has never been asked for their input. The National Trust of Historic Preservation is the ONLY such organization who should be consulted regarding the design, decor and furnishings. Its what they do...they assist private individuals and historic commercial building owners with remodels and updating of historic properties. They are the experts.

Please do not allow the current "monarch" to have his way with this project. He has no respect for history, no expertise and no commitment to seeing that the project reflects the entire population of this Country. Thank you for allowing me to state my opinion.

The scale of the ballroom is way off what is appropriate for being attached to the White House, our long beloved people's house. If there is a need for a HUGH ballroom with bathroom facilities it should be sited elsewhere, possibly in a compound where it would be easy to provide the level of security required.
I am very distressed that this project was implemented without going through the review process required for historic structures. The process was carefully formulated to maintain scale and attention to historic and architectural details.

National Capital Planning Commission,

I strongly opposed the demolition of the White House East Wing and the proposal to replace it with an oversized ballroom wholly incompatible with the character, scale, and meaning of the People's House.

In a single day, a contributing component of a National Historic Landmark was removed while bypassing the level of transparency, documentation, and public engagement required for any other nationally significant property in the United States. The absence of a complete public review undermines both the legitimacy of the action and the stewardship standards the federal government expects of every other property owner in the country.

For fifteen years, I worked for the National Trust for Historic Preservation. I witnessed severely deteriorated buildings—many in far worse condition than described for the East Wing—carefully stabilized, documented, and restored. Claims of structural necessity must be supported through established preservation review processes, not used as justification to circumvent them. The proper procedures exist precisely to verify conditions and develop solutions that protect both safety and historic integrity.

The White House is not merely a residence or an event venue; it is a civic symbol belonging to the American public. The East Wing held particular cultural significance as the professional and ceremonial workspace of First Ladies and their staff. In this place, women exercised influence, advanced national initiatives, and shaped public life. Its removal without meaningful documentation or interpretation erases a physical setting tied to that legacy and diminishes the historical narrative represented on the site.

Regardless of one's politics, the stewardship of nationally significant places must be guided by continuity, the rule of law, and respect for institutional memory—not personal vision. Alterations of this magnitude must meet the highest preservation standards and remain subordinate to the historic architecture they affect. A ballroom of monumental scale risks overwhelming the White House rather than complementing it.

Because the demolition has already occurred, I request that the Commission require the following:

1) Full disclosure of what architectural elements, materials, and artifacts from the East Wing were salvaged.

2) Documentation of where those materials are currently stored and how they will be preserved.

3) A binding commitment that any new construction will interpret and honor the historic role of the East Wing, particularly the contributions of First Ladies and their staff.

4) Design review ensuring the replacement structure remains architecturally subordinate to the White House in massing, scale, and character.

The White House does not belong to a single administration. It is a shared national inheritance, and each generation is obligated to pass it forward with its meaning intact. I urge the Commission to exercise to the best of its ability and its authority to ensure that whatever replaces the East Wing respects the history that stood there and the public that owns it.

Respectfully,

Jason Loyd Clement

"Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision."

Too late. It's too late. The East Wing was demolished without any input from the public, from the citizens our government and our president are supposed to work for. It was already destroyed, much the same as the formerly beloved Rose Garden was destroyed. Much the same as how the president has gilded the White House, the People's House, until it looks like a tacky porn set, and all to stroke the president's ego.

I don't want a ballroom. WE THE PEOPLE don't want a ballroom. We want the damage repaired. It's too late to make it like it was before Trump destroyed it, of course. But all efforts should be made to restore it as much as possible. If Trump needs a ballroom, let him build it at Mar-A-Lago. If Trump wants to gild his home, then he should do it to HIS home, not the People's House.

In these politically divided times, and in view of numerous clearly hasty, careless, and possibly illegal acts committed by our aged President and members of his administration, I believe any and all decisions made concerning this project going forward should be overseen by a bipartisan Congressional committee and experts selected by such, with regard to security, utility, aesthetics, and historical integrity. I have seen no such assurance given by this Administration this is being done. Security concerns remain paramount, but should not be used as an excuse to rush ahead with something ignoring those other factors. Better to build something temporary but secure while all needs are carefully weighed and met for future generations here (and around the world) to view our People's White House with pride and respect.

Submitted: I respectfully urge that the rebuilding of the East Wing of the White House remain consistent with the historic scale, character, and architectural integrity of the existing structure and the broader White House complex. Any reconstruction should honor the original intent and visual continuity of this nationally significant site, ensuring that additions or modifications are harmonious rather than expansive or stylistically incongruous.

At the same time, it is both appropriate and necessary that the East Wing be brought fully into compliance with current safety standards and accessibility requirements, including ADA guidelines. Modernizing the building to ensure safety, inclusivity, and functionality is an essential responsibility and should be accomplished in a way that is sensitive to the historic context.

The East Wing has long served practical and ceremonial roles, including providing workspace for the Office of the First Spouse and associated staff. Any redesign should continue to accommodate these essential functions, ensuring that necessary offices and support spaces are included within the plan.

If event or gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be thoughtfully designed within the existing footprint of the East Wing. Such space should reflect restraint and dignity, avoiding unnecessary expansion or overly ornate features. The White House is a symbol of democratic governance and shared national heritage—it should not be treated or presented as a palace.

Above all, the White House belongs to the American people. Any changes to its structures should reflect stewardship, respect for history, and a commitment to preserving its character for future generations.

Thank you for your consideration.

First. The title of this project is misleading. The country is presented with a fait accompli. Trump destroyed the East Wing with no authority to do so and now we're having input. The process should have been reversed. He should be held morally, financially, and legally responsible for destruction of public property. He is in fact the domestic terrorist. Putting that aside, I do not think private funding is the appropriate source of funding to correct this. Private funding only allows Trump to continue his grift. Furthermore, Alll Plans for the rebuild should be part of a public referendum. After all, the White House is the people's house. He is treating the White House as his private property that he plans to never vacate.

The demolition of the beautiful East Wing was not a project approved by the people or even by Congress. It is appalling that this president destroyed history and intended to erect a ridiculously huge ballroom. Again, Congress and the people did not approve this!! Please legislate the East Wing will be rebuilt to its similar, beautiful state!!

This hideous proposal must be stopped. It is an assault on the American people. One deranged man should not be able to destroy one of the most sacred structures in America's history. The structure is grotesque and massive, completely out of scale with what's left of the White House, grounds, and surrounding structures. Stop it and make the Trump Administration build back the East Wing the way it was.

Dear Members-
I was very distressed that the East Wing was illegally demolished. My recommendation is that the East Wing be rebuilt as closely as possible to what it was before the illegal demolition. The person who ordered the demolition needs to pay for the rebuilding.

It should be returned to the dimensions and design it was originally - no gaudy gold or tacky, oversized and inappropriate dimensions.

The president is a temporary resident in OUR house, the people’s house. It was completely outrageous and unacceptable that the East Wing was leveled to the ground without going through proper channels. This was a deliberate attempt to strong arm the process to fit one man’s agenda. An agenda of ego and arrogance that WE the PEOPLE will not tolerate.

The East Wing must be restored and fully at the expense of those who initiated and completed the destruction.

The scale, massing, and volume of the building is not in keeping with the character of the White House. As the "People's House," this addition does not represent a benefit to the public, but more an extravagent/ostentatious facility for wealthy and high-ranking attendees. The White House's plain neo-classical design displays humility in contrast to its role as the world's super power. That is in keeping with the values our country was founded upon.

In brief, this is an abomination that need to be abandoned or course-corrected immediately.

Dear Committee;
I fully support the expansion of the East Wing Ballroom onto the White House. It's time for the White House to be able to entertain and host foreign and American guests in a proper and dignified ball room rather than outdoor tents every time; with the recent freeze and cold in the DC area which lasted 3 weeks, entertaining in the White House would not even be possible in the winter months.

This Administration is well versed in construction projects so the project should go smoothly and from what I gather is being generously supported by individual donors not the taxpayer.

Dear Members of the Architectural Review Board,

I write to formally express my opposition to the proposed ballroom addition associated with the East Wing of the White House.

The East Wing occupies a unique role within the White House complex. Its scale, architectural restraint, and functional clarity contribute to a carefully balanced composition that respects both the historic core of the White House and the surrounding landscape. A large-scale ballroom, by its very nature, introduces concerns related to scale, visual dominance, and programmatic incongruity that risk undermining this balance.

While the need for event and gathering space is understandable, the introduction of a permanent ballroom structure represents a substantial departure from the East Wing's historic purpose and architectural language. Such an addition would likely introduce disproportionate volume and shift the character of the East Wing from supportive and deferential to visually assertive—an outcome inconsistent with long-standing preservation principles.

Historic stewardship of the White House complex has traditionally emphasized minimal intervention, reversibility where possible, and a clear distinction between historic fabric and modern necessity. A ballroom addition appears to conflict with these principles by prioritizing programmatic expansion over preservation of scale, proportion, and contextual harmony.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge the Board to withhold approval of the proposed ballroom and to consider alternative solutions that meet functional needs without compromising the architectural integrity and historic significance of the East Wing.

Thank you for your careful consideration and for your continued commitment to safeguarding one of the nation's most important architectural and cultural landmarks.

Respectfully,

To Whom It May Concern:

The White House, in which a President may live for 4 to 8 years, is known as the people's house. It's historic and that history is meant to be preserved. Not diminished. Not made irrelevent by any restorations or modernizations.

It may well be that new underground security features are needed. It may well be that a larger facility for gatherings is needed. But in addressing those needs, size of the ballroom should not be such that it diminishes the actual White House that carries with it the fundamental symbolism of the duly elected leader of our Constitutional Republic.

The proposed ballroom dwarfs the White House, It makes it look small and irrelevent. It should not be approved. Public input and thought should have gone into this project long before the East Wing was demolished. We should not make the same mistake in allowing a gaudy, tacky building to replace it. Redo the designs. Make the ballroom more proportional to the overall structure. Seek historical and thoughtful input to assure that the people's house remains just that, rather than some repulsive, grandiose structure.

Sincerely,
Paula Bussard

Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure.
There is no need for a large scale ballroom at the White House. DC offers many venues if a larger space is needed.
Create a multiple purpose East Wing with an office for the First Lady and a multi purpose area for functions.
The decor should reflect the original style of the building, it should not include gold flourishes just to look expensive.

The size of the proposed ballroom does not fit the scale of the White House and will dwarf what is arguable the most significant historic site in the United States. This massive construction project will permanently alter the proportions of the area in a negative way. The White House has been home to the President of the United States since 1800. The White House and its positioning in this area is a symbol of the United States, and with a huge boxy ballroom crowding the White House and dwarfing its silhouette, this will ruin the appearance of the area.

This “addition” is clearly a vanity project, out of proportion to the existing White House. It is garish, in poor taste and violates the simplicity, the restraint, of the existing White House. There is corruption as well, as we don’t know who is funding it, where the funds are or went. The White House certainly needs updating, but it does not need a ballroom so large it dwarfs the existing structure. It is funded with corruption, an abomination, one man’s vanity project. He is an occupant, not the owner, of the people’s house.

And while you’re at it, how do we stop this absurd Arc de Triomphe, once again aiming to dwarf the existing architecture, and block the view of Lincoln.

First of all Trump can't destroy first before getting input from the proper oversights. Don't know why he was able to start destructing the wing to start with. Secondly, it's The American People's house and of historic significance so we need to preserve the essence of the era. We also need to document and archive what is currently there. Thirdly, make sure the private money he's collecting actually goes to the project instead of in his own pockets. And do not call it the Trump Wing! It's the Easy Wing. I oppose the massive scale of the project and want to see square footage of full structure (reported to be 22,000 sq feet) reduced by 30%, closer to 15,000 sq feet, including the ballroom seating reported to be 1,000 people to be reduced to 600 as maximum seated capacity. REASON: I believe building a massive entertainment ballroom increases it as a potential target, especially if filled with highly prominent attendees which would require massive annual increases in security expenditures. The White House represents our official seat of government and is a symbol of American values, not a new venue for expensive parties to reward political donors nor for use as a showcase of power or world domination. Additionally I cringe to think how it might be decorated, such as heavily dripping with gold opulence which Trump apparently prefers. The new wing should be elegant and be-fitting of American ideals and values, which rules out making it look like an Imperial Palace. Thank you for letting citizens like me give our opinion. We hope you will not ignore our comments, but will include them in the decisions made.

The demolition and alterations to the East Wing that already occurred did not go through the appropriate approval channels. Major changes to a historic public building require proper authorization, oversight, and transparency. That process was not followed.
The President should be personally responsible for covering the full cost of restoring the East Wing to its prior condition. This must include all demolition work already completed, all reconstruction costs, and any related expenses. None of these costs should be charged to taxpayers.
Public funds must not be used to correct unauthorized actions. Full financial accountability is necessary, along with transparency regarding the work performed and confirmation that all workers have been paid fully and fairly by this admin, not the taxpayer.

The recent unapproved removal of the East Wing of the White House, known as the People's House, is a serious and troubling action. The White House is a national symbol that belongs to the American people, not to any single administration. Altering its historic structure without proper approval undermines transparency, accountability, and respect for our shared heritage.

Our history should be preserved, not erased to satisfy the inflated ego of one administration. The proposed ballroom project is unnecessary and does not justify dismantling a historic portion of this landmark. Preservation of national treasures must take precedence over personal legacy projects.

The East Wing should be rebuilt as it stood, restoring the integrity of this historic site and reaffirming that the People's House reflects the will and history of the people it represents.

I didn't see the "ballroom" specifically listed on the Project list but I'd like to say that the ballroom shouldn't eclipse the rest of the White House. It should blend seamlessly with the rest of the building. The project should be approved by the normal channels for adhering to historical norms. It should not look like a royal palace and the project should not be approved by one person, meaning the current president. The White House is the People's house, not "owned" by any one administration and thus the administration should not be making the sole decisions on the project, even if that delays the building until the current administration has left. I am appalled that the East Wing was demolished without any formal discussion, plan or process and if it could be put back the way it was, it would be my choice!

I have studied the various renderings of the proposed new East Wing of the White House. From no vantage point are these changes harmonious with the existing White House structure and design. The scale of the new East Wing is jarringly out of proportion to the existing structure and substantially diminishes the original White House itself. The decorations of the proposed structure are ponderous and heavily earth bound lacking the grace and simplicity of the existing structures, White House and West Wing. Although decorations seem to emulate Greco-Roman design even these ancient sources were able to achieve a lightness of design that the proposed structure lacks. Further, we have been provided no information as to the interior decorations. The current president’s attachment to ornate gold decorations is imperial and un-American. I fear the interior design of any structure undertaken without substantial oversight will be crassly over done.

In addition, the cost of the proposed structure appears to be unknown since the estimate has more than doubled since it was first proposed. It is extremely disturbing that the President proposes to fund this project through private donations, providing the appearance of quid pro quo bargaining. He seems to be unaware of whose property this really is.

Granted the current White House lacks a large gathering space, but I believe the US has the talent and knowledge to create such a space in a form that is complementary to existing structures within a budget reviewed and appropriated by Congress. Such a project should never be funded in private and secret. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this.

The White House which has been home to presidents since 1800, is a historic landmark and symbol of democracy, also the people's house. The east wing was deliberately torn down without the consent or approval by Congress or the people. At this current stage, the historic landmark has already been permanently altered. Plans to replace the east wing with an unnecessary 90,000 square foot ballroom overshadowing and exceeding the 55,000 square foot executive residence does not respect the historic scale of the White House grounds. The changes and additions past presidents have made respected the original scale, architectural style and function of the residence. The East Wing must be restored to it's original state, funded not by the people, but by those responsible for destroying it.

While I am in favor of modernizing the East Wing, I am not in favor of the size of the project nor the lack of transparency and following of the law regarding any changes to the White House. The scale of the new East Wing, which will include an extremely large ballroom, should be in architectural symmetry with the White House structure itself. It should not overpower the original structure. These are historical buildings that need tremendous oversight in planning and carrying out of plans for construction. The laws regarding construction and/or changes to these historical buildings are written so that mistakes that cannot be undone do not happen. One person cannot arbitrarily decide what this historic building can look like. There also needs to be transparency regarding the cost of the project, how it is being paid for, and how long it will take to complete. All phases of the project should be shared with the American public.

The latest rendering I saw in an article on CNN.com, the new East Wing lacks a any proportionality. According to the article, the Ballroom is 22k sq ft, the whole building is 89k sq ft. The stated restrictions for this rebuild I would assume will stand, and I am encouraged that this is finally being implemented.
Additional or larger event space/s could be created elsewhere and this wing should be reconstructed as closely to the original as possible. The bunker that is supposedly the focus of this administration could be enlarged below ground while restoring the asthetic balance of the wing.

The ball room is a ridiculous idea. No one even dances anymore. The one proposed is an eye sore and waste of money and space. Even if Trump has it paid for with “donations” the US tax payer will be paying to keep a 90,000 sq ft room maintained and kept secure. If he insists on building a ball room it should be much smaller. You should never have more than 300 people at a ball, anyway.

Trump should be personally sued for destroying the East Wing and made to rebuild what he destroyed.

Because The White House is “the peoples’ house” it should be regarded as a sacred, untouchable monument to our history and legacy… alterations of this scale and scope should not be approved and I’m frankly shocked anyone wanted to do this in the first place. We should protect our historical buildings and I can’t imagine anyone needing an addition of that size when the building has stood for as long as it has and worked just fine for all previous residents.

I am an environmental designer by trade and constantly draw inspiration from historical architecture and details- this is part of the fabric of our design legacy. While I understand each administration wanting to add to the tapestry of the White House aesthetic, I think major construction and building alterations should be off the table for all.

Please protect this House. Build a ballroom in a new building that can serve its own purpose down the street… future generations of US citizens deserve to have their history protected.

The opinion of the NCPC should have been solicited prior to destroying an entire wing of one of the most significant historic buildings in the country. George Washington chose James Hoban's design for the executive mansion because of its elegance and restraint. Thomas Jefferson hid all the necessary workrooms behind subtle colonnades. Teddy Roosevelt and Howard Taft wisely placed new offices at the ends of the colonnades where they would not detract from Hoban's building.
When Franklin Roosevelt needed a much larger West Wing, Eric Gugler nearly tripled the building's size, but no one could tell from outside. Even Harry Truman's controversial balcony compliments the original design. Twice Congress has rebuilt the White House in its own image. Why? Because it's the right building to represent who our President is…a dignified representative of the people.
The proposed ballroom is not a necessary addition but an overwhelming, out-of-place monument. Its size and grandiosity is a message, not a necessity. Regardless of who pays for it, it does not belong on the grounds of the People’s House.

The White House is not just a functioning workplace. It is a rare, living historic interior whose power comes from its scale, its restraint, and the way its rooms were shaped to carry the nation’s civic rituals over time.

Preservation is not opposition to progress. Modernization is necessary when it strengthens safety, accessibility, and long-term stewardship. But adding a new ballroom to the East Wing is not a neutral upgrade. It is a fundamental change to the historic profile and meaning of the building, turning an irreplaceable landmark into something more like a venue than a carefully layered work of public architecture.

We should invest in the White House by maintaining it, restoring it, and adapting it with care. We should not expand it in ways that permanently alter its character. Once the scale and silhouette are changed, they cannot be “unbuilt,” and the loss is generational.

I do believe if modernizations like electrical, security and more efficient appliances are needed this should be done. Modest changes are always needed. However, this is the peoples house, not the sitting presidents. I find it disgraceful to the history of our nation for one to come in and, without permission, destroy the east wing. There is no need for a ballroom. Just as there was no need to remove the rose garden and build an outside venue. All building changes should have and should be voted on and passed through the preservation department. Again, this is not the sitting presidents home. He is a guest, not the owner to do as he pleases. The proposed ballroom is completely out of scale with the historic treasure that is our White House. At 90,000 sq ft, it dwarfs the 55,000 sq ft executive residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.
Also, this is a very bad symbol for the House that is supposed to be the residence of the people's president; a House that was intentionally built to modest scale to distinguish the president of the US from the ruling classes in Europe. Only the ultra-rich feel they need a ballroom as part of their residence. The US does NOT want the image of being governed by oligarchs and billionaires, of returning to the Gilded age when we were controlled by Robber Barons.
By all means, modernize the East Wing. But respect the historic intent of White House as a modest residence. Keep changes in scale with the original structured. Leave the ballroom out of the plans.

Donald Trump can certainly build whatever bunker he needs for safety and security below ground, but what appears above must not overwhelm the original White House architecture. Making major changes to the White House without complying with any approval procedures—and even demolishing parts of it—was a shame and a crime. Those who did this should pay to restore the White House to historic but renovated conditions. The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is.

The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and restrained aesthetic design.

The White House is the people’s house.

The proposed $400 million White House East Wing ballroom, funded by private donors, is opposed due to concerns over unchecked executive power, destruction of historic structures, and lack of congressional oversight. This is a "vanity project" that compromises the historic design of the People's House for lavishness.

- Congress must authorize significant changes to federal property and this is yet another abuse of presidential authority by Trump without legislative approval.
- The project involves demolishing parts of the East Wing, desecrating a significant historical site that belongs to the people.
- Funded by private, wealthy donors, the project is another example of corruption and conflicts of interest in the Trump administration.
- The massive scale is inappropriate for the White House. It is unnecessary and contrasts with the democratic, humble intent of the founders.
- This is an attempt to bypass necessary, transparent, and legally mandated public reviews.
- The lavish renovations during times of economic hardship are completely inappropriate. Trump was hired to lower the cost of living for Americans, yet has done nothing to help with that.

I am opposed to the efforts by the current Administration to rush through the destruction and rebuilding of the East Wing without following the established legal process. The legal processes are designed to protect the historic resources and ensure architectural integrity and design.

I am also opposed to the designs that have emerged that show gross aggrandizement of the East Wing so that it would, if built, dwarf the White House. We don't need such spaces like they had in 18th Century Europe for aristocratic led governments.

Finally, it appears that the fund raising is also tainted and designed to bypass appropriation controls by Congress and to curry favor with the President.

We collectively need to block and redirect these efforts into the existing legal processes to ensure coordination among all the stakeholders and protection of our historic resources.

Even the title is alarming. I lived in a National Historic Landmark for 15 years and served on the local Historic District Commission for most of that time. Scale is one of the most important guidelines for preservationists. This hasty and unlawful addition blows those guidelines right out of the water with absolutely no input or guidance from the people charged with protecting our National Historic Landmarks. The destruction of the East Wing, with no warning or permission was horrific enough, but it is up to the American people to stand up and make sure that its replacement is proportional in scale and design and not a cancerous growth nearly twice the size of the original structure.

As an American citizen I am here to express my disdain for politicians thinking they need a gigantic ballroom while most Americans are struggling to keep their heads above water. That said, here are my feelings on the East Wing Modernization Project - Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style, update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes, i.e. approval, before starting any project.

I firmly believe that the East Wing of The People's House should be fully restored to its original beauty. It is an integral part of our nation's history. It is NOT Donald Trump's home! Once that is completed, our White House will return to its simple grandeur and will be a proper representation of what we the people espouse....simplicity, history and a welcoming to all.

Since the wreckage has been done, my primary concern is the style of the interior. The White House is the .”peoples house”and the decor should be reflective of “we the People”. GAUDY GOLD EMBELLISHMENTS REFLECT ROYALTY and the White House is. To a Palace. Approving Trump design only means that a greater cost will be incurred to eliminate the distasteful nature of his presence.

As you know, the White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people. It is stewarded by the National Park Service. It has been home to our presidents since 1800 and even set afire by the British during the War of 1812. It is perhaps the most significant historic site in the United States. And again, belongs to ALL Americans. Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to be heard and to help shape decisions that affect our shared national heritage. And such places should not be bulldozed in the middle of the night without prior input from the appropriate entities.

This is a legally required federal review process, and public participation is essential. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must be reviewed by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), and receive congressional approval. These safeguards exist to ensure transparency, accountability, and meaningful public input.

Yet it is obvious that Congress and the Courts have no say at this time what happens to our national treasures.

Public input should occur before construction makes the outcome irreversible. As National Trust President and CEO Carol Quillen has stated: “The American people deserve an opportunity to provide comment and shape the project.”

Thank you for the opportunity to address my concerns.

I understand that additional event space is needed at the White House. We can't keep hosting diplomats in tented pavilions. But the White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people, not Trump. Trump destroyed the historic East Wing of the White House without proper authorization or architectural review! (Where did he find contractors willing to destroy the building without clearance?!).

His proposed plans for a ballroom would exceed the size of the executive mansion, and do not respect the historic scale and design of the White House itself. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. Trump's plan is a grotesque tribute to himself that likely will be slathered in tacky "gold" gilt.

Please get control of this debacle!

The East Wing should never have been torn down without proper review processes happening first. However, here we are. I agree with the statement "Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure." The current proposed ballroom at 90,000 square feet is nearly twice the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. This is not acceptable.

We need a review leading to requirements of what needs the East Wing Ballroom is expected to serve and what functions it needs to provide. Next would come a design that meets those requirements with a boundary of under 50,000 square feet. Finally we need a funding mechanism that is protected from overt corruption and openly transparent to the public. Then would come a bidding process that follows standard government procedures and practice. At that point construction should begin to repair and remediate the damage done.

I write in opposition to the current plan for a 90,000 sq ft ballroom attached to the White House where the East Wing once stood.

I think having a ball room attached to the structure is a bad idea from the standpoint of both architectural aesthetics and, more importantly, security. The number of people who could fit into the new structure would greatly burden Secret Service especially if they were to have an at-capacity group at an event.

I think repurposing the William Tecumseh Sherman memorial park is a far better location, it has access on all four sides for limousines and emergency vehicles, it would get rid of a memorial to a truly awful American. Having the ballroom in a separate structure would free the designers from the constraints of massing, size and design itself, it would make it possible to build a secure bunker underground where the East wing once stood, but that is not visible. The relocation of the ballroom to Sherman Park (which could be renamed the Trump Ballroom Park) would make it possible to build a small tunnel to drive Potus and Flotus the short distance to the ballroom.

It would also greatly reduce the enormous opposition to changing the White House complex, while still being part of it.

I hope you will take my suggestions under consideration. As currently proposed, I would vote not to proceed at all.
Thank you in advance for your attention.

Dear Commission Members,

I write today to ask that you not turn the East Wing Modernization Project into another front in our nation's culture wars.

Any president has the prerogative to make changes to the White House. President Trump has not only embarked on this construction project but has raised the funds to pay for it. He seeks to address the long-standing problem that the White House is not equipped to handle very large state dinners inside the building.

Of course the White House belongs to the people of the United States, but I do not know of any construction project that was approved by a plebiscite.

It may be wise to ask that Congress weigh in on the project by a date certain, but anything more than that risks turning this project into a national referendum on President Trump, which would be an abuse of power.

The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people a home for our presidents since 1800. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive congressional approval.

While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

The American people are to be given an opportunity to provide comment and shape the project since they are the rightful owners. The project itself was not vetted by the proper channels or by the American people. The East Wing was destroyed in violation of the law. And the plans as drawn are not appropriate, not in line with current requirements, and not approved by the majority of the American people. And that includes me.

Dear NCPC, please move to restore the East Wing of the White House to its former historical beauty, size, and relevance. It was the people's main entry where we were welcomed to the White House, and where our First Ladies had their offices. The current plan to build a garish ballroom for elite guests is out of touch with its original intent and purpose, and its construction will no doubt appeal to fragile egos. But those in charge of its razing were wrecking balls of ignorance without regard to design or cultural significance. The new addition will not only overshadow the White House itself in size, but the millions of dollars to build it are frivolous and wasteful. How one accomplished the demolition of the East Wing on a whim without any review or approval of a historical committee or public outreach was concerning to me. I would understand the need to refurbish, restore, and redesign the East Wing as needed, maintaining its exterior appearance and elegance, but to see it destroyed and in rubbles is heartbreaking. 1. The proposed ballroom strikes me as profoundly unnecessary and reflective of personal ego rather than public purpose.
2. The dismantling or alteration of the East Wing at individual discretion, particularly for something as opaque in purpose as a ballroom, is deeply troubling.
3. I am unsettled by the unknown elements that may exist beneath this newly prioritized dance floor. This concern reaches beyond structural or financial issues and touches something more fundamental about transparency and trust.
4. The level of hubris, conceit, and apparent disregard for the people of the United States is difficult to reconcile with the responsibilities of public service.
5. Decisions of this magnitude cannot be undone. The rashness, short-sightedness, and self-focused nature of this course of action are beyond my understanding.

Any changes to historic structures owned collectively by the people of the United States should take into account the original structure and not dominate or subsume it. Scale and design should match that of the original structure and meld well with the architecture in the greater area, including hardscaping and landscaping.

I have significant concerns about this project-not only did it begin without following any of the appropriate legal channels- but it also disregards the wishes of the American public. This project is an unnecessary destruction of a beautiful historic area to create a gaudy unnecessary ballroom. The public has not requested this change and will not benefit from a giant gaudy ballroom the way the public benefited from the prior east wing. I urge you to not approve the project or to insist upon a major change in scope one that honors the history of the space and does not create such a wasteful thing as a giant ballroom. The White House should be a place of distinction, history, work and the public. Its primary purpose is as a house of government not an event venue.

1. It is unnecessary. The money is best used elsewhere.

2. It is ostentatious, Seeing it, people will draw the conclusion that the American people also have this self serving trait.

3. It disrupts the symmetry of the White House, which is visually pleasing, and fits with the landscape.

4. It will always remind people of the deplorable ideals of the man who ordered it built: flash over substance, misuse of money (that he didn't earn), ignoring laws put into place for all citizens to uphold. If he is true to form, and he doesn't pay the workers, it will be a public statement against the honest work of American citizens.

I am writing to express my serious concerns about the current construction plans for the White House. Very careful consideration should be given to any changes made to an historical landmark of such importance. The White House is one of the most important historic buildings in the United States. As stated in the 'Design Guidelines for the White House and President's Park' (1997), issued by the National Park Service: "The White House and President's Park are first and foremost a public trust, an important part of our national heritage." While I can understand there may be reasons that the White House may have evolving needs given it has undergone various exterior and interior modifications since construction began in 1792, the demolition of the East Wing and proposed ballroom in the modernization project will be the first major change to its exterior appearance in the last 83 years (since the East Wing in its current form was built in 1942). Therefore, such a significant change to a historic building of this import should follow a rigorous and deliberate design and review process. I agree with the American Institute of Architects (AIA) and ask that any significant modification to the White House follow these criteria: 1) establish a qualifications-based architect selection process, 2) enact a rigorous historic preservation review, 3) prioritize transparency and public accountability, 4) consider "proportionality" and "design harmony", and 5) leverage collaboration and expertise across the architecture profession. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on an issue that will have such a profound effect on this most important historic landmark.

I'm very concerned that the East Wing was demolished without an opportunity for input from the public, design professionals, and historical preservationists. That should never have happened, but given where we are now, it is likewise imperative that this project be driven by the interests of the public. Currently, the project seems to be a vanity project driven by an autocratic President and a small group of wealthy corporate funders. This is the antithesis of how "the people's house" should be renovated. Please stop the project immediately and put it back on track as a public-spirited endeavor.

The absurdities and gross malfeasance involved in the president's unilateral and unauthorized decision to destroy the East Wing, the Rose Garden, historic memorial trees, and the grounds are too numerous to recount.

As for the expensive and uninspiring warehouse of a room he wants to have built, it beggars belief that the capital city lacks ANY sufficient event space that could be rented and secured and therefore a third of the presidential residence must be sacrificed to create a big empty party room. I assure you that any number of hotels have ballrooms to rent, we didn't need to remove the First Lady's office to build our own.

This project is without purpose or merit. It was enacted by a man who promised that the East Wing would not be damaged in the slightest before he authorized the wing's destruction. At this point, the best that can be done is to cover it over with topsoil and grass seed and wait for a competent leader to delegate a commission to design new offices for the President's spouse.

I am strongly opposed to current plans for the "Trump ballroom". Based on artist renderings that have been released, it will completely dwarf the main part of the White House and will be a gaudy eyesore inside and out.

Obviously, now that the old East Wing has been destroyed (without any public on meant and with a total lack of transparency) something needs to be put in its place, but it should be something that fits in with the historical period and architecture and aesthetics of the White House site.

I also have significant concerns about the questionable funding for the project. While I don't think that taxpayers should have to pay for Trump's vanity projects, the idea that all of these private companies are donating money to it to curry favor and or even buy pardons from Trump is the antithesis of American ideals and ethics. I really don't know how you can use private money for this project and not have significant conflict of interest for the company or for the Trump administration. At the very least I think all foreign entities and any organization that has business before, with, or relating to, the Trump administration should be banned from donating.

Americans are counting on your committee and the legal system to save DC's beauty, prestige, and respectfulness.

I am opposed to the project facetiously called the "East Wing Modernization Project". It was never presented to nor approved by Congress. It is an unnecessary and complete waste of unapproved funds better spent on what Americans need (not on 47's vanity), including Medicaid, affordable health care, affordable housing, affordable food, affordable education, and Medicare for all. Americans do not need a new gilded (or plain, for that matter) ballroom. The Rose Gardens and East Wing were historical icons that didn't need fixing without public input. It also should not be funded by Trump's billionaire minions.

I agree with the former president of the American Institute of Architects, William Bates, that the 90K square foot ballroom will - in my words - grotesquely overwhelm the rest of the White House. I understand that there is perhaps need for a proper space for this sort of function, but decidely not something that disfigures one of the most symbolic buildings in the world. It is the White House that should reign supreme in our vision and mental images, not a ballroom.

The White House does not need an exceedingly large ballroom. It is not a hotel or convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space nearby (I believe it is in the Commerce Center), and a large space at the National Building Museum.

The White House is the People's House, not a palace. It was deliberately designed with modest dimensions and a restrained style. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is historic, and symmetrical.

The occupant of the White House is not a king; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, regardless of who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be reconstructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape to the West wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. It should not be larger than what was there, especially not larger than the White House so as to not overwhelm it. There should first be planning review by the appropriate historic groups that are designated for that purpose. If it is determined that the East Wing should have a ballroom, it should be made to fit the original size, with graceful but appropriate design, consistent with the rest of the White House.

Also, please restore Jackie's beautiful Rose Garden.

Thank you for giving us an opportunity to comment on this.

alterations to the White House by former Presidents that were essentially a need and additional outdoor beautification projects were also added. Nothing as extreme and outrageously planned as this East Wing Project for reason of personal greed and inconsideracy of the Peoples rights. While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

I understand the project is supposed to be privately funded but the operation and maintenance will be the responsibility of the American people. I don’t agree with this future bill for a space of the proposed size that is not needed. I also believe public funds will be needed to complete a project of this size and complexity.

Waste of public funds and degrades the respect for the White House. The White House is not intended to be the party house but the home of democracy and conducting the serious business of running a Nation State.

I strenuously object to the currently proposed design of the east wing of the White House.
I was the project leader for the renovation of the Wyoming State Capitol complex, a project that has earned numerous prestigious awards. Key to the success of the Wyoming project was recognizing that adjoining and nearby structures needed to be architecturally subordinate to the historical Capitol building.
These same principles must also apply to the White House.
The currently proposed ballroom addition does not respect the historic White House. Instead of being subordinate to the White House, it actually dominates the historic building.
A complete redesign of the East Wing is required to preserve the architectural and historic importance of the White House.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

I worked in Washington D.C. for thirteen years. For five years my office was on the seventh floor of 1440 New York Avenue, on the west side overlooking the White House grounds. Clients, family and other visitors were excited and inspired by this view of the Peoples' House, visible beyond the East Wing. This was a landscape for all Americans, a reflection of our heritage. It sickens me to envision how Trump has desecrated this space. No living president should erect (or rename) a monument to himself. No monstrous "ballroom" should be allowed to shadow the White House. The ego-driven "renovation" proposal is contrary to American values, sound planning practices, acceptable architectural standards, and simple good taste. It would be a monument to corruption and cronyism.
I am President of McKee Bridge Historical Society. This nonprofit's primary mission is to preserve a 109-year-old wooden covered bridge in the Upper Applegate Valley in Jackson County, Oregon. This bridge may be an inconsequential relic in comparison to the now-lost East Wing, but Trump's destructive and corrupt treatment of the White House has solidified my resolve to maintain this bridge and its heritage for today's and tomorrow's Americans - and foreign visitors, should we manage to stop repulsing them.
I ask the National Capital Planning Commission to ensure that Trump's demolition is repaired with an appropriate, anti-idolatrous structure that serves The People, not an autocrat.

I was heartbroken to see the East Wing demolished without any consideration of historic preservation or proper permitting. Nonetheless, something will be rebuilt and it should be at a scale that does not dwarf or compete in size to the current White House, nor serve to aggrandize any individual. It should not be slathered in gilded bric-a-brac, but have architecture that is consistent with the current White House to reflect the dignity of our non-monarchical democracy and history. Dear Members of the Commission,

I write regarding the demolition of the East Wing of the White House and the proposed replacement construction associated with the ballroom expansion.

The White House is not only a working seat of government. It is a National Historic Landmark and an enduring symbol of the American republic. For more than two centuries, its architectural presence has reflected continuity, restraint, and civic order.

The power of the White House derives from its neoclassical language, its measured proportions, symmetry, and clear hierarchy. These architectural principles are rooted in the traditions that early Americans associated with republican government and democratic stability. The Executive Residence remains the visual and symbolic center of that composition.

If the East Wing has been removed, its reconstruction should faithfully replicate its prior footprint, height, façade articulation, materials, and relationship to the historic core. Replacement construction must preserve the established architectural hierarchy of the complex and remain clearly subordinate to the Executive Residence in scale and massing.

A 90,000-square-foot expansion that rivals or exceeds the scale of the Executive Residence risks altering the visual balance that has defined the White House for generations. Changes of this magnitude require extraordinary care to ensure that the historic character of the complex is not overshadowed or redefined.

The White House does not belong to any single administration. It belongs, symbolically and historically, to the American people. Alterations may occur, but they should honor the architectural continuity and civic meaning that have long defined this landmark.

With that in mind, I respectfully urge the Commission to require that:

1. The exterior appearance of the East Wing be reconstructed to match its previous form with documented accuracy.

2. All historic documentation and measured surveys be used to guide reconstruction.

3. Any new ballroom structure remain visually and physically subordinate to the Executive Residence.

4. A complete and transparent public record of review and compliance be made readily accessible.

The architectural character of the White House is part of the nation's civic inheritance. Reconstruction should ensure that future generations recognize in it the same balance, proportion, and dignity that have long symbolized American self-government.

Respectfully,

Lynda Costello

A project of this scale is out of balance with the existing structure and should be scaled down to match the architectural look of the existing White House. The ballroom should not exceed the size of the existing residence at approximately 55,000 sq ft.

No other modifications to the White House (i.e. renovation of the West Wing to “balance out” the oversize ballroom) should be undertaken in order to increase the size of the ballroom, as it would remove the original integrity and history of the White House structure.

The planned and initiated conversion of the East Wing of the White House is a violation of the duty of care that every President until the current one has adopted regarding protecting the People's property. The White House belongs to the American People and is lent to a current President with the understanding and trust that the occupant will respect and maintain the property as any tenant would treat a rental property. Violation of this trust should invoke termination of the lease. Given this, I am firmly opposed to the violent destruction the current President has done to my property and, at least, no further desecration of the property should be permitted and the current tenant should be evicted as soon as practicable.

Dear Commission,
Foremost, I am a purist when it comes to historic architecture and the law. The East Wing was torn down with no Commission or Park Service oversight and that should be addressed first. The President was granted unprecedented immunity by the Supreme Court, but not following regulations and laws should be considered a violation of his oath of office and be exempt from that immunity ruling. Personally, I would like to require Mr. Trump to rebuild the East Wing to historic specification with his personal funds before a ballroom plan is even considered. Of course, that will never happen.
Therefore, my realistic view is that any event space should not be directly attached to the WH but should be separated by an abbreviated wing similar in style to the former East Wing. 90,000 sf is much too large. It should be more in the realm of 45,000 sf and have a slightly lower elevation than the original mansion. The excessive fenestration in the Trump design does not fit with the climate of D.C. Perhaps, instead, a series of glass doors could lead to a modest shrub enclosed courtyard for events in warmer weather. No gold ornamentation on the walls, this is not the court of Louis XIV!
Most of all, this addition should be built with TAXPAYER money and NOT private, political donations.
Thank you for your consideration of my submission.
Respectfully,
Gail Lauermann

I agree that it's important to be the best host possible to all visitors to our nation's beautiful capital, both foreign and domestic. However I strongly believe that this should be done within the nation's means, and with sensitivity to the plight of those struggling throughout the country. There are many who would argue that we are currently in an economic boom with the Dow higher than ever. But from out here in the community it's clear that the boom is only happening over our heads. It's unconscionable for the elite in government to dance and feast on the backs of the people who are paying our taxes in hopes of jobs, healthcare, and social safety nets for veterans, the elderly, and the disabled. You'd have to be intentionally obtuse not to see the White House ballroom expansion is just another gilded temple to our current president's ego. And as someone who deals daily with the bureaucracy of building codes and permitting, I'm actually offended that the administration thinks they can bypass all the required processes to make such impactful and expensive changes to the People's House. I appeal to the committee to rein in these excesses and demand a thoughtful, safe, and carefully budgeted expansion. Not this travesty.

I feel the East Wing of The White House should be put back the way it was before Donald Trump went into office. If improvements need to be made or it needs to be somewhat larger, then this needs to be decided by Congress and the National Parks and Recreation Services. The proposed ballroom is far to garish and expensive. The taxpayers of this country should not be expected to shoulder the expense of a building that isn't wanted or needed.

I remember touring the White House in the 1970's as a older teen. Seeing the place where important decisions were made affected me profoundly. In that historic place so much history had happened. There were incredible stories about each and every part of the White House that I toured. When I heard that part of east wing was demolished my heart broke. The White House is a major part of American history and should be preserved for generations to come. The White House belongs to the people of the United States and I was appalled that it was damaged by someone who seems to not care about our history or its landmarks. Please restore the White House back to its original state for American history's sake. Build your ballroom elsewhere. Thank you!

Given that the East Wing was destroyed without prior review or approval, it should be restored as it was prior to the razing, at the expense of the person who authorized the destruction.

That is similar to what would happen here if a homeowner built an unpermitted structure on their own property; the structure would be razed at the owner's expense.

Do we really need a 90,000 sq ft ballroom? No this is not what the people of the US need. The cost and the "need" is not warranted. Our nation needs our East Wing back. That project was not requested. Not necessary. Our money needs to be spent on quality of life for all. Not one selfish person. The ballroom will not improve the White House. Our White House was regal. Not gaudy. If NCPC has the right to stop this project, please do. We need to stop the madness. Do not allow a tasteless over priced, over sized ballroom. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and only loaned to sitting presidents.

In that regard, the East Wing should be restored to its former state before it was so carelessly destroyed. This includes its exterior dimensions and architectural style as well as updating all wiring and making it handicap accessible where possible.

Past processes should be followed for any needed but historically sensitive modifications.

If a ballroom is needed, it should be built elsewhere in the city so as not to dwarf and overwhelm the White House, a beautiful structure that should remain as is architecturally.

Please do not allow special interest groups to influence or pay for the rebuilding.

The White House, as a National Historic Landmark and National Park, is not owned by whoever happens to be the president.

It is owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service.

The sitting president has no legal authority to make permanent changes to one of the nation's most visible and historic building, much less demolish or repurpose a whole wing, without due process and submitting plans for review.

It is outrageous that this has been allowed to happen. We hope the NCPC can stop the construction of the planned ballroom before it begins, and preserve what remains of the White House for future generations.

As a citizen of the United States I was appalled to see the mindless destruction of The East Wing of the Whitehouse. This was done without proper notice or congressional approval and without contents being properly archived. The proposed new ‘Ballroom’ will be an albatross in the people’s city.

The only proper solution is to rebuild the East wing, as similar to the original as possible. Let this be a lesson, going forward, that these public buildings belong to all of us. The residents there are not royalty. They are tenants, and must follow the rules set by their landlords, ‘we the people’.

The overreach of this project is astounding and in violation of several laws, including:

National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA): Critics allege that a full Environmental Impact Statement was not issued prior to the demolition.

National Historic Preservation Act: The project is accused of destroying a historically significant site without required oversight.

Property Clause of the U.S. Constitution: The lawsuit argues that Congress did not authorize the construction of the new ballroom.

Freedom of Information Act (FOIA): Public Citizen filed a lawsuit claiming the Department of the Interior failed to release construction contracts, violating public records laws.

There is also no addressing the construction funding being outside of legal standards for oversight and amounting to potential political influence peddling.

The overreach and lawlessness of this administration must be reigned in and investigated. This can only come from Congress as there is no apparent self regulation coming from administration officials who took an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution and the laws of the United States.

The people elected to govern this country should be held to the highest standards in all things, not use their position to break rules. If updates

Not only was the project begun without following the process required for any changes to our White House, there has been no regard to the overall integration of this wing with the aesthetics of the White House as a whole structure. If a larger space was needed to welcome people to our country, such as state dinners, perhaps a separate building at another location would've been more appropriate. I want the East Wing to be restored to its former footprint. The scale and design of the proposal are excessive and out of proportion with its surroundings, and threaten to overshadow the White House itself. The White House should remain the visual centerpiece of the executive branch. This proposal is deeply at odds with the dignity and restraint that should characterize government architecture in our democracy. It's gaudy aesthetic, as visualized in the Oval Office currently, is offensive, projecting an image of extravagance and excess that does not reflect the American people, now or ever. National Planning Commission Members;
I am writing to express my distress regarding the most recent renderings of the proposed East Wing Modernization Project. I find the proposed construction to be hugely out of proportion to the existing structure. I also do not believe the new construction is sufficiently similar in style. What is being proposed, if in fact such a large space is genuinely needed, would be much more visually appealing as an entirely separate structure erected at a significant distance from the current structure.

I realize that the White House as my generation (Baby Boomers) has always known it is the result of change and additions over time. Many things change, Heraclitus was right about that, but the great landmarks of the world (The Acropolis, Versailles, Buckingham Palace, Notre Dame, etc.) have not. Let's think a moment about Notre Dame. After it was so severely damaged in that catastrophic fire, it was NOT demolished; it was NOT re-envisioned; it was REBUILT! Furthermore, it was rebuilt using the same craftsmanship as the original. When our own White House was burnt by the British, we didn't knock it down. We REPAIRED and REBUILT! The East Wing is not just a building. It is not just concrete and plaster and paint. It is AMERICAN HISTORY! The East Wing was torn down CONTRARY to proper procedures and reviews. PLEASE RESTORE WHAT WAS (literally) TORN AWAY FROM US! The White House is OUR house; the People's House; we want it back!
Thank you for your attention. Now please do the right thing and RESTORE THE EAST WING!

It is so sad and infuriating to see what POTUS is doing to the White House, a federal property, without following the statues governing federal property real estate REGARDLESS of funding sources. Private financing does not eliminate these legal obligations. The NHPA mandates review for federal undertakings affecting historic properties. This is NOT Mar-a-Lago. This is "owned" by the federal govt thus it requires assessment of effects on historic properties, consultation with preservation officials and stakeholders, and public comment opportunities. Demolition without this review would violate federal law. This raises urgent questions, in my eyes, about legal compliance and whether the work can be stopped. Even with private funding, which I am dubious about, appropriation issues arise if federal resources like staff time, utilities or security support the project. Congressional oversight through the Govt Accountability Office could investigate compliance. Unfortunately at this time litigation is the only realistic option with POTUS.

The East Wing demolition presents clear violations of federal property law, historic preservation requirements and planning review processes. The property remains federal and the laws remain binding, regardless of public funding. The resolution in this matter will establish important precedent about whether statutory protections for federal historic property can be effectively enforced against executive branch projects or whether presidential determination can override them in practice if not the law.

I am writing to express my profound sadness and concern over the demolition of the East Wing. I never imagined I would see such a significant and symbolic part of this historic building removed.

For generations, this building has represented the endurance of our democracy and the shared history of the American people. Its architectural beauty and historical presence have stood as a reminder that our nation values tradition, continuity, and respect for the past. The East Wing was not merely a structure—it was part of the story our country tells about itself.

I am deeply troubled by the manner in which this demolition occurred. Major decisions affecting nationally significant landmarks should be transparent, subject to public dialogue, and appropriately authorized. Many Americans, myself included, believe that such a consequential action should have involved broader consultation and clear public accountability.

At a time when our country faces many challenges, I believe our focus should be on preserving the institutions and symbols that unite us. A ballroom or modernization effort cannot replace the historic character and meaning that was lost.

I respectfully ask that future decisions regarding historic government buildings prioritize preservation, transparency, and public trust. Our national landmarks belong to the American people, and their stewardship carries great responsibility.

Thank you for your time and for your service.

Writing to say that first of all, it's outrageous that this administration was allowed to tear down the East Wing without any permission and now, no punishment.

Since it's too late, I propose replacing it exactly the way it was. Do any modernization the wing might need, but it must be returned to it's original footprint and scale.

Secondly, how do you propose to stop this administration from going ahead anyway with the gilded monstrosity that Trump wants to build? He ignores all laws and the Constitution, so how are you going to get him to listen to you?

This is a monstrosity that ruins the White House compound. The original East Wing had many historic features and we do not know if they were properly preserved before the non-approved destruction of it. The proposed replacement dwarfs the original executive mansion and distorts the scale of the building. While a large space to host is needed, it should have been constructed as a separate annex on the White House compound. The proposed building is not consistent with the design and scale of the original East Wing building and throws off the balance and symmetry of the entire building.

I am concerned about the stairs on the South Elevation I have seen in most of the renderings for the Ballroom addition. What is their purpose? It appears as though they lead to the South Lawn, but I don't see any indication of a driveway or parking lot I haven't been able to determine where the door to the stairs would begin from the interior renderings. The proportions of the stairway seem strange and there no indication of handrails. The detailing throughout the project does not seem to follow Classical American design precedent. The entire design seems rushed and not well thought out.

I AM OPPOSED to this project. The White House has been a symbol of democracy around the world. Tarnishing it by tearing down sections to add massive structures to stroke ONE PERSON'S EGO is preposterous. While the existing dining area may be small it's historical and all who dine there understand the importance. Creating a massive dining hall would take away from that intimate touch of The United States of America.

Public Comment Opposing Proposed White House Ballroom Construction

I submit this comment in strong opposition to the proposed 90,000-square-foot ballroom project at the White House associated with Donald Trump.

This project raises significant concerns regarding preservation law, governmental process, fiscal responsibility, and national priorities.

1. Circumvention of Historic Preservation Review
The demolition of the existing East Wing structure reportedly occurred without proper prior notification to the National Trust for Historic Preservation or completion of required preservation review procedures.

The White House is not merely an executive residence — it is one of the most historically significant structures in the United States.
Any structural alteration demands transparent review, architectural justification, and preservation oversight.
Proceeding first and reviewing later undermines decades of bipartisan historic preservation policy and sets a dangerous precedent for future administrations.

2. Unverified Funding Claims
Public statements claim the ballroom will be funded entirely through private donations and will not use taxpayer money.

However:

• No binding funding guarantees have been publicly documented
• Security, staffing, infrastructure, and long-term maintenance inevitably become public expenses
• Federal property alterations carry ongoing taxpayer obligations regardless of initial funding source

A project of this scale cannot realistically avoid permanent public cost exposure.

3. Absence of Congressional Authorization
Major structural modifications to a federally owned, historically protected national symbol require

Congressional awareness and approval.

Without clear authorization, the project risks violating the constitutional separation of powers concerning federal property and appropriations authority.

4. Misalignment With National Priorities
The United States faces significant challenges:

• Infrastructure modernization
• Veteran care
• National debt
• Border and security concerns
• Disaster preparedness
• Public health readiness

Constructing a ceremonial ballroom does not serve an operational governmental necessity and cannot reasonably be justified as a national priority.

Historic preservation resources and executive attention should not be diverted toward prestige construction while critical national functions remain underfunded.

5. Precedent and Institutional Integrity
Allowing large-scale architectural alteration of the White House without rigorous review establishes a precedent that future administrations — of any political party — may exploit.

The White House belongs to the American people, not to any temporary occupant.
Preservation standards must therefore remain stronger than political preference.

Requested Action

I respectfully request:

1. Immediate suspension of the project
2. Full architectural and historical impact review
3. Transparent cost accounting including lifetime public expense
4. Formal Congressional oversight before any construction authorization
5. Preservation compliance review under federal historic protection standards

Until these conditions are met, the project should not proceed.

Conclusion

This issue is not about aesthetics or politics — it is about stewardship.
The White House is a national trust held for future generations.
Altering it without proper process diminishes both the building and the institutions it represents.

For these reasons, I strongly oppose approval of the proposed ballroom construction.

The destruction of the historic East Wing of the White House without permitting or any oversight was horrific. I watched from Europe as the East Wing was destroyed. It was akin to watching our democracy being demolished — no oversight, no plan, no public input — nothing except the ego of a narcissist president.

I am ashamed and aghast that the building could be destroyed with no thought of its historic merit. It also sends a strong signal that the role of the First Lady, who historically had her office in the East Wing, isn't relevant. It destroyed all of the historic moments that happened in that structure before we had a First Lady who, as she has signaled, "Really Doesn't Care". Eleanor Roosevelt is rolling in her grave.

To build a structure that dwarfs the White House is irresponsible and a waste of taxpayer money.

If the president really wanted an event space, and really wanted to create jobs, he could rent space at any of the hotels or convention centers in the DC area.

Other people who live in historic buildings have to submit plans and await approval. Why does this president think he is above the law? The Supreme Court wrongly gave him immunity. It's up to We The People to take back power and reconstruct the East Wing to its historic structure.

Please stop this project. It takes away from the grandeur and simplicity of the White House;the destruction of the East Wing has already unbalanced the symmetry of the White House and displaced the working administrative space needed for the White House to function; it prioritizes a social space that could occur anywhere in Washington D.C. for state social functions rather than the priority of the "people's house" that the White House has always been. It impacts the visual impact of the Washington monument. It creates security issues with this space so close to a walkway.

This is a travesty against an American icon and diminishes one of the most powerful symbols of our nation and its history.

Stop this project before even more irreparable harm is done to our White House for the aggrandizement of this vain president.

Rebuild the East Wing of the People's House and restore its symmetry. Please, do not allow the beauty of the People's House to be destroyed by the building of an oversized, grotesque "ballroom" that, in reality, is an ego-driven monument to the temporary resident of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, DC.

The Citizens of the United States own and maintain the White House, aka the People's House, not the occupant who illegally demolished the East Wing; therefore, the full cost of the restoration should be billed to Donald J. Trump as he is the party who violated the law when he demolished it.

The addition could disrupt the original design elements that have been preserved for generations, diminishing the unique character that makes the White House a symbol of American heritage. Rather than altering the structure, efforts should focus on maintaining and restoring the existing features to honor the legacy and history of this treasured building.

Restore the exterior & interior to original dimensions, architectural style & footprint. The floor plan should be identical to the original east wing of the White House with modifications allowed only to update wiring, plumbing, etc. to code and make interior ADA accessible. Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes. No gold decorations. Surrounding landscaping: the Kennedy rose garden, should also be restored to its original state.
No outside interest money should be used to fund the project.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.
The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.
The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.
A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.
I copied the above and pasted here because I think it is beautifully written and completely accurate. I will add that the current plan for a ball room is atrocious. It is completely off scale and looks horrible. The people do not want a cheap tacky looking monstrosity at the People's House. The East Wing of the White House above sub levels should be restored to its original footprint with interior restored to its original floor plan, or similar (to accommodate some modernization features). Restoration can accommodate updating electrical and plumbing features, including wiring for upgraded internet and the like. The wing should be finished with decor that is similar to the destroyed East Wing, not the gaudy and cheap looking gold leaf doodads the current administration favors, since much of this part of the people's house is seen by the public, whether in person or by video/photos/in person. Sub levels can be modified to accommodate current and potential future security needs as they are not public areas.

As an observer of the USA from the outside (UK) and as someone passionate about American history, the destruction of the historic East Wing has distressed me.
The dishonest builders “trick” of demolish first so it is a fair accompli is an underhand ruse not worthy of the President of The United States.
Even if the East Wing could be reconstructed as a faithful replica of its original self it would never again resonate with the history of all the great people who have lived and walked within its walls.
The newly proposed ballroom is massively over scale and would dwarf the primary building.
In 1984 our King (then the Prince of Wales) famously criticised the proposed modern extension to London's National Gallery, calling it "a monstrous carbuncle on the face of a much-loved and elegant friend”. The White House is a much loved and elegant friend to all Americans and this vanity project should not be allowed to go through.

New plans should be submitted that are both more in scale with the White House and more in line with the wishes of the American people.

A consensus from various designers on how to create a structure of dignity and NOT gross ostentatious design..

An appearance of a structure that is a continuation of the White House rather than an added structure ex NOT a modernistic behemoth!

I have done historic renovations to code and to strict historically sensitive parameters using like materials, scale and details, colors, proportion, in order to modernize in use but keep same feeling and intent as original builders envisioned. I have also had to submit plans, drawings, material lists, budget, etc. to a planning commission in order to be approved and if not approved, back to the drawing board and if violated, a fine, tear down, at one's own cost.
I propose the violation of this tear down be noted, and the perpetrator punished by hefty fine. The east wing should not be grotesquely larger than the entire White House. We should not even have to discuss this 'renovation', as it is not needed and not approved, by design or fiscally.
if a modernization is needed, the original should be re-built with updated electrical and accessibility codes, but sensitivity to proportion and materials should be restored, no gold filigree.
it is criminal destruction of property what has happened, this is a national park and symbol, owned by the people of the United States, not one resident.

Today, I write to formally express my strong opposition to the "East Wing Modernization/White House Ballroom" project and to advocate for the immediate restoration of the East Wing to its traditional aesthetic and functional design.

I am deeply saddened and, frankly, angered by the decision to move forward with the demolition of portions of the East Wing before seeking substantial public input. This action was a breach of public trust! The decision to alter a national landmark of this magnitude without proper consultation or transparent review is a profound overstep. As a citizen, it is distressing to see historical structures dismantled behind closed doors, bypassing the very public whose heritage those walls represent.
The White House is a living museum, and the East Wing has historically served as a space of elegant restraint. My concerns remain focused on:
• Historical Authenticity: High-capacity modern ballrooms belong in hotels, not in the Executive Mansion. Replacing classic proportions with such a project diminishes the unique residential character of the White House.
• Irreplaceable Loss: Architectural trends are fleeting, but the history contained in the East Wing's previous design was permanent. Demolition has stripped away layers of the American story that cannot be easily replicated.

I urge you to halt further construction and pivot toward a restoration plan that honors the East Wing's previous look, one that respects both the craftsmanship of the past and the right of the American public to be consulted on the future of their most iconic residence.

Suggestions for the East Wing Modernization Project include:

Follow original footprint and architectural design to ensure symmetry to the entire exterior structure.

Update interior to current codes making sure to include access for all persons.

Decorate the interior to reflect its unique history using historic furnishings in a tasteful way.

Include professional looking flower and kitchen gardens in final landscaping design.

In a city as large as Washington DC is there are already large facilities that could be utilized as a ballroom when the need for one arises. Not sure how often an onsite ballroom would be used. Support your local community.

Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure.
Make it balanced visually and conform to the original style of the main house. Keep both the interior and exterior design tasteful and of classic design, with NO gold filigree plastered ANY where.
Make both interior and exterior entrances/interior design/restrooms, etc. ADA accessible/compliant.
Follow past process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.
If a ballroom is deemed absolutely necessary (for some unfathomable reason), please make sure it does not extend past the previous/current footprint.

I not only believe, I feel in my heart that the White House is the peoples' house.
I've felt what I think is a special connection to the building ever since seeing old, old photographs of it from during the Lincoln administration as I paged through some of my parents' books when I was in elementary school.
Fast forward eight or ten years, and we visited the capitol on spring break. We saw Mount Vernon, congressional office buildings, inside the capitol, and we toured the White House! I still have the photos I took of President John F. Kennedy and former First Lady Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy. A couple of years later, I was able to visit Washington, D.C. again with Close Up. I was able to sit in the House chamber in the upper gallery, and to go down into the basement of the capitol to see the catafalque they use when someone lies in state.
By this time, I had read about President John F. Kennedy, and even more about First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy's historical restorations of the White House and about different designs and periods of furniture. A guard at the White House even took my picture with the north portico in the background.

Considering this background, and more that has developed as I've seen photos of places in the White House (like the central hallway and the stairs going up to the residence) that are dear to me (like when President Joe Biden and First Lady Dr. Jill Biden instituted the official White House Menorah)... Anyway, considering all the connections
I have to and all the emotional attachments I have to the peoples' house, I think it is monstrous, tantamount to psychological warfare, what the guy who wears orange makeup has done to our house. The thing is, I've also read and heard that he likes chaos; he thrives on it, so I think the best thing to do is to tie this decimation up in research and discussion until 11:00 a.m. on January 20, 2029, and then declare and affirm that the White House should be restored to its form as of January 10, 2017.

Then call on citizens across the U.S.A. to come and clean and pray and smudge -- there are thousands of us waiting for this-- and bless and re-consecrate the White House, and then start the machines and the crews rebuilding and restoring 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW to exactly how it looked (Rose Garden included, thank you) two weeks before President Barack Obama left office. At 1:30 p.m. on January 20, 2029, I think you should open the gates to the peoples' house and let people in to pray and smudge and even start digging and start carrying authentic materials to commence rebuilding and restoring our house.

The White House, including the East Wing, the Oval Office, and the Rose Garden, all at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, should be restored to their form as of January 10, 2017.
The guy in the orange makeup and the too-long tie should be discouraged from staying in the residence, from spending too much time at the complex at all, and, by the Grace of G*d, from desecrating the structure any further.

I am all for a complete and thorough historical restoration of the buildings and grounds at 1600 Pennsylvania NW in Washington, D.C. I look forward to visiting it in its restored condition and hopefully to living a lifelong dream of at least seeing the Oval Office and maybe being invited to a function, even a dinner in the East Room.

I think a complete and historical restoration of the property is important to restoring the U.S.A because many people identify with the White House as the people's house and a sign of the strength and dignity of America.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

I am against the new White House ballroom because it is historically, aesthetically, and financially impractical. It will overpower the existing Executive Mansion. Construction needs to be approved by a process, not on a whim by a president ... and its financing should be controlled by Congress and also be transparent. The donor system of funding seems more like bribes than anything else and as we've seen it also means there is no cap on costs since the price of the ballroom has doubled in the last few months.

Restore the east wing as it was historically accurate with upgrades for function and efficiency and make Trump pay for it! The destruction was unprecedented and criminal in nature. The American people did not ask for or need a giant ballroom or any monument to Trump. It is obviously just another con job from this criminal to enrich and enshrine himself.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. It should be designed by an Architectural entity that has extensive experience in the re-construction of historically significant structures, applying current code and ADA upgrades.
I see restoring the Rose Garden as an important part of the recovery process of the People's House.

The current proposal to build a ballroom in the East Wing is reproachable because the East Wing should never have been demolished in the first place without a proper review of the proposed plans ahead of time. There was no demand or need shown for a ballroom prior to the demolition. There is still no justification for an unnecessary display of excess in a time when so many people are going without. The only proper course of action is rebuilding the East Wing to its prior floor plan.

Not even permanently altered - destroyed. Please keep in mind the historic value of the White House and replace what was destroyed. Not with something gaudy and self-serving, as the current administration seems to favor. Something befitting the history and grandeur of the White House, not the whimsy of the current occupants that will have to be fixed once they are ousted. Please let someone with an actual background in this work design the structure, not a political appointee. When I first learned of the plans for a new East Wing for the White House, I didn't have a knee-jerk response. Though I have warm memories of visiting the White House as a youth, and passing through that very East Wing, I believe that architecture is a living thing that sometimes must adapt to the needs of the day. However, I also believe -- even more strongly -- that one of the cardinal rules of architecture (and of painting, and music, and any other art) is that the elements of a composition should work harmoniously, in proper scale and proportion -- and the proposed ballroom doesn't. It would, instead, turn the White House itself into a wing -- the People's House reduced to being an appendage of this new Greco-Roman temple built to honor . . . whom exactly? It all feels very unamerican to me, and very Albert Speer. I urge you to recommend against the project in its current form.

It should be similar in design, height, and placement to the the original to maintain the symmetry of the entire Georgian-style structure. If it is going to include a ballroom, that's fine as long as it fits into the original footprint and design. I can understand the need to upgrade the plumbing, wiring, etc or the building to modern codes. A better designed visitor entry would be nice too. However there is no way construction should cost $200 million or more; the price keeps rising. Why? Subject: Comment on the East Wing Modernization Project – Proposed Ballroom Addition

Dear Commissioners,

As a member of the public who values the preservation of the historic federal core, I am writing to oppose the proposed 90,000\u8209 -square\u8209 -foot ballroom addition to the White House. The scale of this project far exceeds functional need. Industry standards indicate that a ballroom for roughly 1,000 occupants typically requires 12,000–20,000 square feet, making the proposed facility approximately five times larger than necessary. This raises serious concerns about proportionality and programmatic justification.

A structure of this magnitude would significantly alter the historic character, spatial relationships, and viewsheds of one of the nation's most important landmarks. It may also set a precedent for further large\u8209 -scale expansion within the White House campus, gradually eroding the integrity of the federal precinct.

Based on NCPC's review priorities—appropriate scale, protection of historic resources, and minimizing adverse impacts—the project appears inconsistent with several core Commission criteria. I also urge the Commission to request greater transparency regarding funding. If contributions are collected through a charitable organization, donors may receive tax deductions, effectively shifting part of the financial burden to the public.

For these reasons, I respectfully request that NCPC require a clear demonstration of need, a reduced footprint, transparent funding details, and a full alternatives analysis before considering approval.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Sincerely,
Jeff Crum

As a registered architect I find the demolition of the East Wing and the proposed replacement without proper approvals or the knowledge of the public or the Commission a crime. The proposed ballroom is out of scale with the existing White House and creates a huge imbalance in the design, particularly given that it will house a ballroom as opposed to the more important functions of The People’s House as the residence and offices of the President. There is no disguising that the project is solely intended to gratify the ego of President Trump, and the actions of this Administration with regard to the underhanded pursuit of this vanity project outside of the public’s view and knowledge and review of the Commission is entirely

No ballroom should replace the former east wing.
The size of the proposed ballroom would dwarf the White House and detract from the balance of the buildings.
Also a proposed ballroom of that size is not needed for any state event.

This is a poor use of public funds and a visual eyesore as planned.

Against the new ballroom.

+The planned ballroom is excessive and not in keeping with the architectural style of the White House.

+ The large size does justify the few times it might be used for state occasions.

+ The hasty and perhaps illegal destruction of the East Wing should not be rewarded with anything other than a rebuilding of the original structure..

Thank you. Brad Cochrane

The WhiteHouse is a Living Museum. Any significant structural expansion risks altering the neoclassical proportions designed by James Hoban and the historical layers added by McKim, Mead, and White. The White House grounds (the Ellipse and South Lawn) are iconic greenspaces. In an era of remote connectivity and off- site venues, a physical expansion may be an archaic solution. The White House belongs to the American people and the ages. We are the temporary stewards of this site, and we should prioritize its preservation over contemporary convenience. I urge the Committee to seek alternative, non-invasive solutions for event management.

I am against the new White House ballroom because it is historically, aesthetically, and financially impractical. Its ridiculous size essentially overpowers the existing Executive Mansion. Construction needs to be approved using the processes in place, not because a president decides on a whim that he needs a golden ballroom. Its financing should be controlled by Congress and transparent as well. The donor system of funding should not be permitted, as it turns what could be a proper construction project into a transaction between billionaires and presidential/ administrative favor. Besides being totally illegal (no congressional approval), the optics are horrible! Yet another example of Trump doing whatever he wants with pure disregard for long-standing, legal policies and procedures. He already illegally/improperly ruined/eliminated the historically significant Rose Garden; this Ballroom project cannot possibly be permitted to continue! The White House is the people's house, not Trump's house!

I am completely against what has been done to the east wing. This is not Donald Trump‘s house. This is the People’s house. I demand the following:

1 -Restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style to its pre-demolition appearance

2 - Update wiring etc. and make interior ADA accessible where possible.

3 - If a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city, with the appropriate approvals and reviews

The White House is the people’s house and is a place of historical and national significance. As such it must be preserved.

While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure.

I was dismayed when I read that the President demolished the East Wing of the White House to put in a ballroom. I find that extremely tacky. The President should be billed for the damage he inflicted on the White House and he should be required to pay the bill and return the East Wing to back to what it was before he ruined it. He should also be prosecuted for damaging a historical building.

This project was introduced to the citizens of the US as an outsized sketch-up model of a desired "ballroom" followed by the immediate demolition of the historic East Wing. No serious plans, no review, and irreversible destruction of a structure that has been a part of the White House for generations. Therefore, I am highly suspicious of this proposal, and especially of the current administration's willingness to abide by reasonable standards of oversight for this project. Furthermore, funding has been promised but not verified.

Therefore, it is essential that the commission receive a fully detailed architectural design that can be evaluated for size, aesthetics and cost before any further work is done on this project. Similarly, it needs a clear financial plan, which can be verified and controlled via standard, government practice (not funded by the president's personal slush fund). Finally, if the project goes forward, it need detailed oversight, both physical and financial. Trump has a long history of not paying his construction bills, leaving structures bankrupt and unfinished. That must not happen here.

Bottom line: there needs to be a concrete, verifiable plan. It needs to meet size and aesthetic standards (the proposed size seems entirely too large). And it needs to be properly funded as a serious government project, not as a way to collect personal gifts from rich donors.

While typically section 107 would apply, The White House is exempt and therefore The President of the US, President Donald Trump, does not need to submit plans for authorization to the National Park Service. His plan is being done to match the existing historical elements of the current building and will ultimately save tax payers money in the future with its use on the grounds of the White House for events.

Construction needs to be approved by a process, not on a whim by a president. Moreover, its financing should be controlled by Congress and also be transparent. The donor system of funding is another pathway for bribes and courting favor than anything else. It also means there is no cap on costs since the price of the ballroom has doubled in the last few months— it seems to expand as the donations/bribes come in.

We need something proportional, controlled by professional and mandated review committees, outside of the whims of the current office holder of the presidency, and invulnerable to possible corruption.

To the NCPC,
The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is plenty of public space available nearby that can be utilized.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. The occupant of the White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure while meeting modern safety and fire codes. The design should be tasteful and elegant, without any gold embellishments. Paintings and artwork should be neutral landscapes, seascapes, and other subjects that reflect the unique topography and nature of the United States. No portraits of any kind of the current occupant. No hidden tributes in the carpeting, wallpaper, or other designs of the current occupant. The East Wing is not a theme park.

The only major change should be making it ADA accessible both exterior and interior, eliminating entrance stairs in favor of ramps, wide doorways, ADA restrooms, and elevators able to hold more than one wheelchair at a time.

And on a separate note, remove the bar-like patio and restore the Jacqueline Kennedy rose garden without the Trump name attached to it.

Thank you,
Rose Ann Hirsch

The destruction of the East Wing is deplorable. The wing should be returned to it's former state with actual modifications that would update bit to include access for thedisabled, upgraded wiring, plumbing and security and cost saving efficiencies.
No gold toned accessories, but tasteful with a proper bid to former first ladies.
Absolutely no ballroom is needed.
And since "he" had all those donations to modernize the building, he can pay for it without any input to what is done.
And hold him accountable for violating the law by tearing done the historic East Wing.

To the National Capital Planning Commission,

I am writing to formally submit my comments regarding the East Wing Modernization project (NCPC File No. 8733). As a taxpayer, I strongly oppose the construction of the proposed state ballroom and the modernization plan as currently outlined.

My opposition is based on the following concerns:

Misallocation of Public Resources: I believe this project represents a significant waste of taxpayer money. At a time when the nation faces numerous critical infrastructure and social needs, allocating funds toward an elite ceremonial space is an inappropriate use of public resources.

Misplaced Priorities: The prioritization of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom over more pressing national projects signals a disconnect between the government’s agenda and the actual needs of the American people.

Representation of the Public Will: This project does not reflect the will of the people. Government spending should prioritize essential services and infrastructure that benefit the general public, rather than expanding luxury facilities within the White House complex.

I urge the Commission to take these concerns into account during the review process and to prioritize fiscal responsibility and the broader public interest over this expansion.

I'm disgusted by the massive vanity project that is the new "ballroom" and horrified at how he ignored all procedure, laws, requirements, and regulations to do what he wants and build a giant facility with his name on it. It needs to be illegal for any individual, entity, corporation, etc. to "donate" money to build a federal facility as such a "donation" just looks like a bribe to the president. Such private funds for construction certainly do not exempt the facility from all the procedures and regulations and Congressional approval. This must be stopped. Every nickel of "donation" need to be spent rebuilding the East Wing that was destroyed.

Hello,
The East Wing should compliment and not detract/distract from the White House. The project that President Trump has posited is, IMHO, way too extreme to be considered. it overpowers and overshadows that White House and that should never happen. Consideration must obviously be taken in regard to the size needed to accomplish the number of people that usually attend such a function as a Grand Ball. I don't think a 2 story building that diminishes the White House stature is a good choice. I think it should be 1-story, perhaps, there is a basement area?

The addition should resonate with the style, character and color of the White House. It should be awe inspiring but not garish-enough of the gold ornaments, it is garish!!. It should be representative of ALL Americans; every culture, race, religion, sex, creed, etc. It should be worthy of its place; there should be a palpable presence felt, like the Viet Nam Memorial. I think it would be nice to include an outside area with beautiful trees and flowering shrubs and maybe some formal garden areas with flowers of the seasons, a fountain/reflection pond would be nice.

I am angry as an American that President Trump took it upon himself to destroy a piece of history that will no longer belong to the American people without even asking them! I have never seen the East Wing and it definitely has its own history and this needs to be incorporated into the new building. He had no right to do this without going through the proper process that you are now doing....getting input from the people who own these buildings....the American People and NOT President. Trump.

It should be obvious to all who gaze upon the future building that this is obviously an American building, for the American people and not a shrine to President Trump. There should not be anything partisan about this project whatsoever! It is a place of gathering, of coming together as a People to experience joy, love, friendship and common experiences. It should express to non-Americans the pride we take as Nation of immigrants, of a people who are generous, of good will and who firmly believe in Democracy and the Freedoms we hold so dear. "Through great power comes great responsibility." (Spider Man). I'd love to see this saying or some powerful statement above the entrance...maybe etched in Granite to remind all who enter, this is what America stands for. We all seem to need reminders these days. Thank you for stopping the project and making everyone go through the proper channels, asking the American people, including me, for our opinion.

The grotesque attempt at gaudy, useless co-opting of the space formerly dedicated to the presidential spouse for the purpose of self-aggrandizement aside, overshadowing the main mansion with an edifice as decorative ans stylish as a church gymnasium would be an affront worse than the Canadian sacking and burning during the war of 1812.

Why anyone would consider this for a moment longer than an eyeblink is a mystery to me. The plans should be rejected out of hand and the space would be better left wrecked and razed as a more fitting monument to a Trump presidency.

All of the government buildings in Washington DC belong to THE PEOPLE. Before significant changes are made to the Capitol, theremust be a period of discussing ideas, reasons for the changes, and probable results of proceeding with any changes being considered. President Trump is attempting to shift our national governance system to authoritarianism, rather than a democracy. The destruction of the East Wing was performed with no respect for THE PEOPLE or our shared history. The plan to build an opulent ballroom is completely counter to the spirit and the monuments of democracy. NO KINGS. No trappings of monarchy. Do not allow the rebuilding of the East Wing until historical experts and other upholders of our democracy have made suggestions for how to transform this terrible destruction into a part of the building that shows respect for a democratic government that celebrates all of the many positive aspects of our history, as well as the times when we went off course. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park which is owned by the American people and stewarded by the National Park Service. U.S. presidents have lived there during their terms since 1800. It is the most significant historic site in the United States.
It is required that the public have an opportunity to express their thoughts prior to any nationally significant places are permanently altered. Public opinion should be considered to help shape decisions that affect our shared national heritage. This is a legally required federal review process, and public participation is essential.
Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must be reviewed by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), and receive congressional approval prior to any changes being made. These safeguards exist to ensure transparency, accountability, and meaningful public input.
Public input must occur before construction makes the outcome irreversible. As National Trust President and CEO Carol Quillen has stated: “The American people deserve an opportunity to provide comment and shape the project.”
Donald Trump failed to follow proper procedure and acted as a dictator by destroying the East Wing of the White House. His plan for an oversized expensive ballroom is completely unacceptable. He must be required to pay for the damage he has done and the East Wing should be rebuilt as it was at Trump's expense.

Aside from the American people being lied to about the project, after seeing the published plans and sketches I can only say the style and size of the planned ballroom is incongruous with the historic White House. It is ridiculously large in dimensions and height and should not go forward in its current form. I have further concerns about the funding sources for this project not being transparent . The lack of transparency is cause for concern.

I can't begin to express my fury at this project. The scale and scope of the proposed building is completely out of bounds with the historic nature of The People's House. I am not opposed to modernization projects that improve the physical infrastructure of the White House complex. But this is not that. The nation does not need a gilded ballroom, and certainly not one of the size of this proposal. Furthermore, the rushed nature is an insult to the American people and incompatible with how a democracy builds our public spaces.

Any project that so profoundly changes the nature of our capital should undergo rigorous public comment and review, be open to architectural proposals, and be authorized by Congress and paid for with public funds that are fully audited and accounted for.

The East Wing obviously needs to be replaced, after the mindless bulldozing of the historic structure. But it needs to be done in a way that honors our nation and democratic ideals, not the whims of the temporary resident of the White House.

Allowing this to continue will just result in his continuing his hideous undertakings without being held accountable. Even though they have claimed to have reduced the height by removing the pediment, it still overshadows the White House. The design is Donald Trump's view of what is appropriate - not abiding by the design of the structure that represents the PEOPLE'S HOUSE - NOT Donald Trump's house. I understand that there is a precedence for renovations. This was a demolition initiated to bypass proper procedures. I believe it needs to be rebuilt as was initially in place, returning to the original plan of accessing unbearable ballroom through the east wing, and reducing its size to the original unapproved proposal. Or they can put this ugly ballroom on the south side. If there is no room - so be it.

The excuse that this MUST continue now is due to national security of the underground bunker is ludicrous. That was a choice that Donald Trump and his administration decided, without constitutional approval through congress, realizing there wouldn't be a bunker for the duration of this unconstitutional project.

This hideous design, internal and external, is visual pollution. That is an environmental impact that is unacceptable to the government that is suppose to be by the people and for the people.

The White House is the people's house. It is the privilege of each president to occupy the people's house.

The enormous ballroom as proposed is aesthetically incompatible and will dwarf the Executive Mansion.

While the current occupant of the White House is saying that the project will not cost American taxpayers anything, I believe that funding the project from wealthy individual and corporate donors is an open door for bribery and corruption. It is an opaque process controlled only by the current occupant and his allies.

Any design and construction process should be controlled by Congress (as the people's representatives) and should be transparent. It should also be of a scale and design compatible with the existing structure.

It’s a bit of a stretch to call it the East Wing Modernization Project. The East Wing was demolished without permission by the current administration. The administration plans to build an atrocity in its place. Good luck stopping it. The White House belongs to the citizens of the United States, not to an individual. It is historic. It is beloved. It must be respected, not wrecked. The Commission must go on record as absolutely opposing any further desecration of the building or of the grounds on which it stands (beautiful, healthy old trees were butchered to make room for new construction).

Release the Epstein files. Hold all perpetrators acvountable. Put the East Wing back, and while you're at it, restore Jackie Kennedy's beloved rose garden, take Rump's tacky flagpoles away and give us back our decorum and good taste.

Restore it to it's original footprint and historical use, to include restoring the Rose Garden. Modernize it as is necessary to bring it up to today's code standards, to include all ADA guidelines to ensure safety and inclusivity in a way that maintains the historic context of what was originally built before being destroyed without input from the people. This is the people's house and each president dwells in it temporarily.
Any redesign of the east wing should be done with keeping in mind the past functions of the wing, and designing it to be used as such once again.
If a ceremonial gathering space is deemed necessary, it should be designed and contained within the original footprint while so keeping space for what was once the original function of the east wing. If a ceremonial space is designed, restraint should be used, design should be in keeping with the original history of the building and inclusive of all past history, the key word here, inclusive. The White House is a symbol of shared national heritage and democratic governance. It should not be ornate, ordained with gold, or made to look like a palace.
The White House, The People's House, belongs to the people and should respect stewardship and our history, be inclusive and welcome to us all.
Thank you for your attention to this matter.

When it is to be rebuilt, it should be by funds from all Americans. It is improper for it to be funded by private donations, it risks the appearance of bribery. Public input is critical, it is not the president’s decision. All plans should be submitted to, and funded by, Congress.

It's an emotionally stunted form of ego masturbation. Construction needs to be approved by a process, not by a president, financing needs to be controlled by Congress, and funding also needs to be transparent. The East Wing does need to be rebuilt and modernized to accommodate the federal employees who must have the closest access to the president. There does not need to be a "ballroom." We are a nation of, by and for the people and the people need adequate space for workers who will meet their needs not gilded rooms in which leaders party. Recently, the White House has become over gilded and ostentatious to the point of nausea. Rebuilding this area of the building should be practical, forward thinking regarding electrical, electronic, plumbing and any other needs that should be hidden in the walls, with adequate heating and cooling systems. It should be simply done providing a background for work areas daily and for seasonal decoration that reflects the strong, caring nature of the American people. KISS (keep it simple stupid) was good enough for 250 years, it is good enough to move into the future.

Against THIS! The East Wing, was a significant part of White House history. The demolition erased a "significant piece of history," including the site of the family movie theater and the dedicated office spaces for the First Lady and her staff.
The demolition and replacement of this space effectively erased the physical legacy of women's contributions to the presidency.

The proposed $400 million, 90,000-square-foot, two-level ballroom project is too massive, with the potential to overwhelm the White House itself. Critics argued it disrupted the carefully balanced, smaller-scale, and lower design of the original East and West Wings.
oppose the tearing down of the East Wing to make way for the new ballroom. This a "gaudy" personal project that took a "wrecking ball to tradition," distracting from other, more pressing national matters.

And I add concerns regarding the handling of potential asbestos in the 1940s-era structure during the demolition process.

If a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city.

Incorporate a Constitution, Bill of Rights, and Declaration of Independence Hall. Require all future president's to read them (out loud). No one should be able to enter that building without having viewed and reflected on them. Call it "Citizen's Hall."

As a first area of concern, the East Wing Modernization Project is not an appropriate name for the destruction of a historical landmark. The East Wing Reconstruction Project is closer to truth. Secondly, I would strongly urge the committee to restore the East Wing Ballrooom and Rose Garden to its former dimensions and architectural design. I have been extremely disappointed in the destruction of a historic landmark and the subsequent poorly thought out plans to replace the structure. Until such time that the public, requests, votes, on and adopts new plans, the only course of action is to rebuild what was destroyed as it was previous to 2025 and start the process fresh. I further believe that the people who destroyed this historic building should be prosecuted for trying to bypass the regulations pertaining to remodeling and or renovations of a historic landmark.

I think the East wing should never have been destroyed in the first place. It destroyed a lot of history. At this point, however, I don’t think a 9000 sq ft ballroom is going to do much to serve the public, and I feel that it will dwarf the White House. Even if private donations pay for it, surely there will be cost overruns that will be paid for by taxpayers. Even if not, it will be expensive to maintain while being of use to a very small select number of people. If Trump gets away with this, next he’ll demolish the Kennedy Center and rebuild it to his taste. His taste is not in line with the vast majority of most Americans, and any major projects done to his taste will be expensive, but will most certainly have to be redone by whoever follows hi.

Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800.
This review is also required under federal law. Major construction projects in Washington, D.C. must undergo review by the NCPC and the Commission of Fine Arts, comply with the National Environmental Policy Act, and receive congressional approval. None of this happened as required, Trump just hired people and had the East Wing destroyed without thought of the people of the United States and their wishes and expectations. He literally destroyed part of the United States history. And the Kennedy Center was set as a living memorial for JFK.
While expanded event space may be needed, additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. At 90,000 square feet, the proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the 55,000-square-foot Executive Residence. Additions to historic properties should be compatible in scale and subordinate to the original structure. The expectations of the people are that the White House, the monuments and areas that surround it are an almost sacred site. Not a piece of real estate to be molded into some one's idea of what they like. The White House is "the PEOPLE'S House". The current president just "resides" there during their tenure. If the president is unhappy with his accommodations he should be able to make minor changes to his living residence only. Quite a bit of what was destroyed were gifts from other countries as well as a part of a National Park. All renovations of any part of that area should and by law DOES require permission to change. Not to mention as the colonnade has been changed it is an insult to any and all previous presidents.

Hello:
To call it the "East Wing Modernization Project" is an insult to millions of Americans and people from around the world as we watched as the man in the White House destroyed an iconic piece of history when he demolished the East Wing WITHOUT going through proper channels. I am appalled by his actions and do NOT want a ballroom built on the White House grounds. His love of gaudiness, desire to put his name on everything and the fact that nobody outside of the administration asked for a ballroom is enough for the Commission to say NO! He has turned the White House into nothing short of a brothel with all the gold he's got hanging on the walls. Please, in the name of all that is decent, REJECT his request to build a ballroom and force him to rebuild the East Wing. I have visited the White House numerous times and I am devastated by what he's done to it. I implore you to stop the ballroom and force him to rebuild East Wing 2 like the original. I am a firm NO to building a ballroom.

I believe that it is extremely important that any new construction on the White House grounds, and specifically at the site where the East Wing was egregiously destroyed, must be compatible in design and scale with the rest of the building. Further, its decor should be tasteful and classic, able to be "dressed up or down" to suit whatever occasion is being celebrated, or gathering is taking place. It must NOT dwarf the rest of the White House, clash with the rest of the White House and other nearby structures in design, and must not be gaudily decorated in ostentatious fashion. Such decor would, in my opinion, limit its usefulness while adding to its cost, and serve no constructive purpose.

I think it is very important that the architects, contractors, designers, and decorators be persons experienced in working in historical districts, and keeping new construction compatible. They should be vetted by people not directly involved in the current administration. Maybe it would be possible to get some past WH inhabitants on a committee - Caroline Kennedy, some of the Bush family, maybe a representative from each of the first families that still have someone living who lived there. From what I've read, they seem to have a general reverance for the place. I don't think we should have any more concrete rose gardens or an enormous, gaudy, "golden ballroom".

Rebuild the former East Wing in the same style and scale as it was, but install functional updates that bring it up to code/modern standards that may not have been possible in the former structure. Remove all signage and gold filigree throughout the White House. Remove the plaques of the “Presidential Gallery” in the corridor, and install an appropriate photograph for Joe Biden. Restore the Rose Garden.

Like so many Americans, I was shocked by the sudden demolition of the East Wing of the White House. The plans that I've seen for the replacement structure do not appear to comply with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards as the scale of the proposed new ballroom wing overwhelms the historic core of the White House. I hope that the process can slow down so a thoughtful plan that is thoroughly vetted can be developed.

The East Wing was illegally demolished. It should be restored as much as possible to its original state visually, with upgrades to wiring, plumbing, and construction materials to meet modern building codes. Any funds that were pledged to pay for the ballroom should be used for the restoration. If those funds don't materialize then the Trump Organization should bear the cost of the restoration.

The People's House does not need entertainment space. This is a temporary residence for the sitting President. It is not a palace. It is not one man's DIY project. This building should represent all Americans and all of American history. The destruction of the East Wing without the consent of Congress and review of the National Historical Society was wrong and can never be undone but it does not have to be rebuilt as a gaudy, tasteless room.

The White House is The People's House. It is a sacred trust. Any President is a temporary occupant of the house and should serve as a steward. I understand that aspects of the house need to be modernized from time to time. Any such modernization, however, should always put highest priority on historic preservation. Improvements should maintain pleasing proportions of the White House as a whole, and the interior should blend smoothly with the White House's existing interior. Decisions about the White House should always be guided by the National Capital Planning Commission - an organization created to keep these priorities front and center for the American People. As a public asset and historic treasure, the entire process should be public. White House operations and preservation are not and never should be a private sector enterprise.

I am strongly opposed to this project as planned by Mr. Trump. I believe the East Wing should be rebuilt as it was. As a part of our history, it should never have been demolished. I suggest it be rebuilt as it was. A ballroom is inappropriate for the people's house, and it's inappropriate to use my taxpayer dollars to create a playground for the ultra rich and powerful.

I suggest the East Wing be rebuilt as it was, using Mr. Trump's personal funds.

Thank you.

Trump's vanity project is outrageous, tacky, and absolutely unacceptable. He has already turned the White House into a gaudy, gold-encrusted embarrassment. This enormous ballroom idea needs to be stopped. He has destroyed the East Wing, the beautiful Rose Garden, and essentially all of the the humble class of the entire White House. I hope that whoever is elected after him will restore the building back to it's classic beauty. But as for the ballroom, please do not let it happen. The size and tacky interior design that are planned is not what the American people want. We want the White House to be the People's house, not some attempted copy of other oligarch's residences throughout the world. It's truly awful what he's done to a once tasteful and elegant residence. Bigger isn't always better. And all that gold just looks atrocious.

The proposed size of this ballroom addition will dwarf the White House and West wing. The proportions will be totally out of whack. The White House Is an historical building, a major representation of our country, readily recognizable around the globe. Altering it so substantially is an assault on its historic significance. While the desire for an entertainment space has been expressed over several administrations, none have tried to alter the White House grounds in such a major way. A reconstruction of the original East Wing look and size (matching the West Wing) with a ballroom in that space would be a better idea.

I appreciate the opportunity to share my thoughts on the proposed addition to the White House.

The White House is not a random building. It's a historic landmark, a symbol of the presidency, one that belongs to the American people. Any proposed additions must respect its historic scale, architectural integrity, landscape setting, and symbolic importance. A 90K sq ft ballroom exceeding the size of the White House will overwhelm the original structure and will shift the visual and historic focus away from the White House itself.

Additions to nationally significant historic landmarks should be subordinate to the original structure, compatible in scale, and harmonious in design. The priority must be preservation of the historic core, not expansion that alters its character.

The East Wing should be restored to its original proportions and architectural intent rather than expanded. If an event space is necessary, it can be built elsewhere in a way that does not compromise the historic fabric or prominence of the White House. The design must be dignified, timeless, and architecturally compatible. Not oversized, ostentatious, or stylistically disconnected from the existing structure.

I also strongly encourage full restoration of the Rose Garden as envisioned during Jacqueline Kennedy's tenure, preserving its historic landscape design and cultural significance.

Major alterations to nationally significant landmarks require thoughtfulness, restraint, transparency, and deep respect for history. We the people deserve preservation first, expansion second.

Thank you.

This whole project is an abomination. The White House is the people house. Any huge changes, such as demolishing a wing and replacing it with an even larger wing, need public review. Such changes need to be publicly funded.

I cannot give more of a comment than this, as the renovation plans are not available to the public. Since the plans are not public, I do not see how you can consider submissions like this the legally mandated "public comments."

Proposed East Wing Project footprint and scale dwarfs significantly what is left of the historic White House structures therefore dwarfing the significance of the actual White House and west wing area. This should not be allowed as the ballroom is not the heart of the United States Presidential wing of our government, the White House is. The east wing should be replaced with appropriate scale and footprint structure with similar and historically appropriate scale facade and materials.

Good Morning,

I want to express my extreme displeasure with the proposed scale of the East Wing Modernization project. While the People's House clearly needs a larger event space, the gigantic proposed building would be a travesty.

The original building was specifically designed to NOT be a palace. It was supposed to represent the people. Building an addition that is so much larger than the main building draws the attention away from the People's House and it's purpose.

Esthetically, the structure should be in proportion and simple. It should not challenge the White House as the tallest building on the campus.

Frankly, this project must be stopped as the actions taken so far by the administration are illegal and violate every process and procedure that insures the continuity of the People's House.

Thank you for your consideration.

I strongly oppose building the proposed ballroom on the site of the former East Wing. The size of the project is gargantuan - far too big for the site. The proposed Whie House East Wing Modernization Project, as designed, will dwarf the White House, which should be the main focus of the property. The proposed WWMC is out of character with the original White House property, There is no need to build a ballroom the size and scope of the EWMP. There are many other facilities and hotels in the Washington DC area that can accommodate and more appropriate to holding large gatherings. The former East Wing facility either should be rebuilt, using modern design concepts in the same size and scale of the former East Wing. The huge size and design of the proposed EWMP diminishes the elegance and historic architecture of the original White House; it is totally inconsistent with the basic tenets of American architectural and historic preservation. The proposed design and construction of the proposed EWMC is totally inconsistent with the holistic approach that is rooted in the basic tenets of L'Enfant's design of both highlighting and preserving the historic precepts is Washington DC's acritude. Simply put, the EWMP is an architectural abomination that should be rejected. The East Wing property must be rebuilt with a structure that is the size and scale of the previous structure that will ensure and protect the historic character of the White House.

The East Wing should be rebuilt in the same manner as the original. Modernize as needed but it should fit with the look and size of the rest of the White House. As proposed, the ballroom would completely overshadow the White House. It is said that a ballroom is needed -- aren't there other places in Washington, DC that can be used instead of building a new structure? It has also been said that it could be used for future presidential inaugurations -- this would limit who could attend the event and take away the ability of many to be part of the celebration.

The building, as proposed, is too large, overly ornate (I guess gaudy would be the correct word) and will be under utilized. Does it really need to be so large? Do we really need space for 999 people? Just who are we trying to impress? How much of the time would this building just sit there, unused, and wasting money to maintain? The claims are that it will be built at no cost to the taxpayer (which I really doubt) but who will maintain the building, provide security, provide utilities etc for the building? This will not be inexpensive.

Proper procedures to do the construction were not followed. It is my understanding, President Trump does not have the authority to do any of the work he has done -- paving over the Rose Garden, adding flagpoles, remodeling various areas of the White House, building a ballroom etc. Why has this been allowed and why hasn't anyone intervened? Don't the contractors have to get building permits for the work done? Isn't there supposed to be oversight from Congress? Doesn't the National Park Service have to be involved with all these changes?

In my opinion, this is a total waste of time and money. Rebuild the East Wing, updated as necessary, and find someplace else to host the few times a larger space is needed.

Will the bunker hold 999 billionaire persons and Diplomats? I don't think so. Will the bunker hold 499 persons? I don't think so. Is there parking around the White House for all these persons? If we're actually going to put a ballroom THAT big in that location, I suggest, just put it all underground (maybe with some skylights for some natural lighting, and/or stairways leading to the surface in different places). Otherwise it would just overwhelm the rest of the White House. Next to the ballroom would be the well-publicized bunker. Then on top, rebuild the East Wing looking essentially the same as it did on the exterior, but with a updated interior. This may cost more, but would preserve the view we all know and have become accustomed to.

While asking for statements after the East Wing has already been abolished seems somewhat pointless, I hope that there will be consideration to rebuild the wing in a way that preserves its formerly unique character and footprint, mimicking what was already there but updating as needed for utilities and security. This means working from the footprint as it was before it was torn down, without unnecessary expansion. This means keeping the symmetry and balance between the East Wing and the rest of the White House complex. This means restoring gardens and walkways that were removed. This means keeping the purpose of the East Wing in line with its traditional uses. I understand the need for a large entertainment space, but this should not be accomplished at the expense of the destruction of everything that was symbolic and historic in the East Wing. And, please, no reliance on gaudy faux-European decor such as an overuse of gold!

"The East Wing was a portion of the White House complex in Washington, D.C. that was built in 1902, significantly expanded in 1942, and demolished in 2025."
To modernize the East Wing it would need to be still standing. The request for input from the people should have been requested before anything was done. But that didn't happen.
We also don't need a ballroom. That opens the door to people who usually wouldn't pass the security requirements to enter the White House access, creating security threats and concerns. This isn't England or France in the guilded age, we don't have a monarchy, we don't need a monarch's ballroom.
The original wing needs to be rebuilt, to code, as it was at the cost of those who didn't adhere to standards, rules and regulations. Those people have made TONS of money (illegally) off this country while sitting in office, so they can pay to fix the messes they made.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian

The occupant of The White House is not a King. The chief executive, whose job is to serve the people of the United States of America, lives in The White House as a TEMPORARY guest. Having any office holder making such drastic and unnecessary modifications to the People's House is tantamount to having a tenant conducting a demolition remodel of a rented house without the property owner's knowledge or consent.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure, subject to established structural, safety, and accessibility requirements. What has happened to the East Wing is a travesty! It should be modernized to provide offices for First Ladies, Staff, WH Ofc of Legilative Affairs and miliary offices as before. The bunker probably needs some safety upgrades. The Family theater and Ceremonial areas should be rebuilt. The size of the building should remain COMPLEMENTARY to the size of the White House and not be a giant, tacky montrosity. If a ballroom is necessary, maybe some of the areas can be converted into multiuse rooms that make a larger area when necessary. It seems ridiculous to have a giant room that only used occasionally. Decoration should tasteful without excessive metallic geegaws. And most importantly, the person who tore it down without permission, should pay for it.

Trump illegally knocked down the East Wing and I do not support the construction of a ball room. The White House is for the people and not the oligarchy. The East Wing should be reconstructed with public funds to a similar footprint and function.

I am writing to you to object to the East Wing Modernization project. As A citizen and historic preservationist I can tell you that this project has not followed proper development procedures, has not followed safety procedures, and from a design perspective is a bad idea. The planning and execution of the project has not been done legally and the historic East Wing of the White House was demolished without a proper permit. This is the People's House, not the property of the President, and any modifications should've gone through the proper procedures in order to develop the project. Furthermore, project has not followed safety procedures, in that the demolition to place and proper precautions against contamination of the environment, and workers against asbestos, and other hazards were not taken. Finally, from a design perspective, the planned ball room is completely out of proportion with the existing original, White House and the West Wing. As planned, the ballroom would be a historic blunder and all oversight and historic preservation bodies with authority over this project should reject it. The administration must go back to the drawing board and design a restored East Wing that compliments the existing historic White House that follows proper procedures and gather public input in support of a better design. Thank you for your consideration.

The demolition of the East Wing ignoring proper procedures was an offense to the American people. The White House is the People's House. Any sitting President is just a temporary resident and should not be allowed to make radical changes to Our House.
This project should restore the exterior dimensions and architectural style of the East Wing, update wiring, plumbing, and other infrastructure, and make the interior ADA accessible where possible. You should follow past processes for making needed but historically sensitive changes.
If a ballroom is needed, construct it elsewhere in the city. The People do not need a gilded ballroom.

Hello - I am a 77 yr old resident of Warwick, RI. I have been a docent for 15 years and then office manager at one of the earliest trading posts in Rhode Island. This work has taken me to many historic conferences and affiliations at historic sites in local towns on both sides of Narragansett Bay and in Providence, RI. I am also an active member of a historic nonprofit in RI and have not only been on the Board of Trustees but written grants on behalf of this 160 yr old building: The Handicraft Club.
My education and appreciation for historically correct architecture has brought me in contact with many preservation specialists in Newport, Providence, and other important sites and properties throughout our state. I deeply respect our historical preservation consultants who carefully blend modern additions to pure historical spaces. I recommend a thorough inspection and consultation take place for the East Wing Modernization Project.

Were you consulted before the demolition occurred? Shouldn't you have input into all changes, including demolition? It seems that the demolition just happened practically overnight, without oversight or permission. Our government buildings should not be subjected to the whims of anyone who holds the office of President. No one, not even the President, should be permitted to make major changes to National Historical buildings. You should have a non-partisan committee exploring and approving any major changes--a committee that does not answer to the President. This ballroom is an unneeded, unwanted replacement for the East Wing and plans for it should be stopped.

A 90,000 square foot ballroom is NOT needed! It would dwarf the existing White House structure. In the 249 years that America has existed, all presidents prior to the 47th never saw a need for such a huge ballroom! There is no need now. It is an ego project! No tax dollars should go to building it.
I think the East Wing should be rebuilt as it was prior to being illegally knocked down. Also, you should look into what happened to furnishings and art work that were in the East Wing prior to its unlawful demolition.

At a time of staggering wealth inequality, inflation, and tariffs illegally imposed on the US by a man who thinks he is a monarch, this (also illegal) change to the east wing of the White House--which belongs to the citizens of the United States of America, not the sitting president--is a slap in the face.
It's disgusting.
The man sitting in the White House has only ever sought after his own financial gain and destruction of others. Since he has taken charge, the US has become a laughing stock of the world, and this attempt (including the illegal demolition of the previous east wing) to "modernize" something that did not need modernizing, is dystopian as hell. The sitting president cannot unilaterally decide to make changes to a building demarcated as a historical site, among all the other things he cannot unilaterally decide.
The US was founded on the guiding principle that we refuse monarchy, and this greedy, gluttonous attempt to remodel a significant historical site is insulting and sullies the very memory of the site itself. Scum like him, and his entire family, should never have been allowed in The People's House.

The outright ignoring of process and law involved in the destruction of a historical building was appalling.
The proposed design ignores design and architetectural scale principals in an intolerable way. This isn't a modernization project, it's a vanity edifice to a criminal. Anything other than an updated version of what was there should not be permitted.

Since the East Wing was demolished illegally and with no review, there should be no ballroom allowed to be built by the individual responsible for the destruction of a cherished building. There has been little discussion of plans and what has been revealed has changed repeatedly. Because of the haphazard destruction of the East Wing I would recommend getting other options before proceeding with construction of an unneeded ballroom.

I am against the new White House ballroom because it is historically, aesthetically, and financially impractical, essentially overpowering the existing Executive Mansion. Construction needs to be approved by a process, not on a whim by a president ... and its financing should be controlled by Congress and also be transparent. The donor system of funding seems more like bribes than anything else and as we've seen it also means there is no cap on costs since the price of the ballroom has doubled in the last few months. Thank you.

Restore the East Wing with the original exterior, upgrade the interior to meet ADA and other current building code requirements. Forget the silly ballroom on the White House grounds. If one is needed, find other space in the district which can be developed for that purpose which can be available for all federal agencies to use. But, for goodness sake forget the proposed ballroom that would be bigger than the White House.

Our country is a relatively new nation. We have no ancient castles or royal palaces. The White House is our closest residence to be considered a regal national home. It is a special house on "loan" to each of our elected Presidents. The White House, along with the other Capital buildings, belong equally to the people of the United States. No one person, not even the President, has the right to demolish or change parts of the White House without the permission of the people. As a sacred and protected structure, there are specific procedures for rennovations and changes to the White House. This means no President is above the law nor are they able to ignore the rules and procedures. I implore this committee to protect "our" White House and keep it for the people and future generations. This means changes should only be made to maintain the structure or improve it for greater public benefit or access. Tearing down existing historic sections in order to engrandize the White House for an individual President, especially one who consistently demonstrates that he cares little for the historical significance of the White House or any other historic building, goes against the very essence of the White House.

The East Wing should be re-built to the EXACT specifications it was before it was demolished with updated electrical, plumbing, ADA compliance etc.

There is no need for a huge ballroom. Absolutely ridiculous.

The President should only be allowed to personalize the family's living quarters and the Oval Office. The rest of the WH should be off limits. It should all be handled by the National Capital Planning Commission.

The Kennedy Rose Garden should be rebuilt to its former glory. Absolutely shameful that is was paved over.

Since the East Wing project was started without proper permitting, etc. The POTUS should be fined and have to pay to rebuild.

The hallway/area where the portraits are hung with the ridiculous comments under them that he wrote should be removed.

The entire WH should be off limits to the President with regard to remodeling, painting, refurbishing etc. (with the exception of his personal living space). It is a museum and belongs to the people of the United States.

Thank you for this opportunity for citizen input. I do not think the East Wing must be rebuilt exactly as it was. However, it should be improved and be in harmony architecturally & historically with the rest of the White House and meet the highest building standards for beauty, functionality, and safety. As to whether it should return to offices, or a ballroom, or some other public space, prioritizing needs & functionality & efficiency are most important. The White House and its grounds are a relatively small space. No one is going to get all their wishes on this renovation. Please consider including some contribution from each state, territory, & Indian nation. Perhaps as simple as soil placed in the foundation or granite plaques around the exposed outer foundation. I am writing to oppose the proposed construction of a 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House complex as part of the East Wing Modernization Project. The White House is one of the most significant historic sites in the United States and belongs to the American people. Altering this landmark with a massive new addition risks permanently changing its historic character, setting a troubling precedent for future alterations to nationally significant sites.

While modernization and accessibility improvements are important, such a large-scale addition should be carefully reconsidered. The White House's historic integrity, architectural harmony, and symbolic meaning are central to its role in our national identity. A ballroom of this size will overshadow the historic space and compromise the original design intent of the building and grounds.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission and other reviewing bodies to explore alternatives that preserve the historic fabric of the White House, minimize visual and structural impacts, and ensure full transparency and public engagement. Major changes to our shared heritage should be approached with the utmost caution and respect for preservation principles.

Thank you for providing an opportunity for public input on this important matter.

Sincerely,
Chris Cromwell

I'm writing as an American citizen from Utah who was appalled by the demolition of the historic East Wing of the White House--it's very unlikely that it can be rebuilt in the same footprint, style, and memory that many of us had who visited and worked there for a time. While I can sympathize with the idea of building a bomb-proof bunker for the President and many of his staff and family underneath the East Wing, I believe the cost is absurdly elevated, and it is hidden by a ghastly, gawdy, obscene 90,000sq foot ballroom. I oppose such a ballroom on several grounds, but the most important one is that it is not needed. And claiming that it is being paid for by wealthy corporate donors doesn't justify its cost, nor uselessness.

If it is decided by powers above me that a ballroom is appropriate, for aesthetic reasons I propose it be kept within these guidelines:
A--it match the same size and footprint as the West Wing
B--it match the architectural style (Georgian/Colonial?)
C--that private donations, if accepted, do not have any influence on ANY aspect of the East Wing's rebuilding
D--the offices of the First Lady and staff be rebuild, posthaste
E--that no mention or credit be given to Donald Trump for his demolition, ideas, plans, or reconstruction of the East Wing.
F-- that Any placards, website descriptions, White House guide narrations, etc., explicitly reference the illegal demolition of the East Wing, and that Mr. Trump was not justified in doing so simply because he was the President.

With best regards,

Firstly, the fact that this project was launched and demolition occurred with no recognition of the legal public process is absolutely appalling! I truly hope public input at this point is taken seriously and reflected in the final product. This is not President Trump's building alone. It belongs to us all. It's not apparent why a facility couldn't have been built elsewhere so as to not demolish the existing building. Facilities and uses lost with the demolition need to be restored appropriately, including the Rose Garden.

The project's exterior should match the scale and architectural style of the remaining structure. The building should be comfortable to not an homage to Trump with the use of gold, which is unnecessary and architecturally gaudy. It should convey warmth but not opulence. The building should be required to follow all building code requirements for access and egress. As the public was not invited to comment on the need and design prior to it started, I do not support the use of public funds, especially when so may Americans are experiencing hardships.

The information provided on the website does not provide adequate detail of what is planned. More information needs to be shared.

I understand that there are needs for renovation and modernization, but what is proposed is excessive and unnecessary. If this president wants to make garish changes to his property, fine. But this building does not belong to him. He is merely a temporary occupant. This will be too tall, too big, and generally too much. Overkill. As a federal building, it should not be a monument to his ego.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical. The occupant of The White House works for us and lives there as our temporary guest and should not be able to rebuild it to their own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. It should be modernized to meet code, but maintain its ability to function as the office space and headquarters for the First Lady (or Gentleman) and their staff. The East Wing has served us well as the center for their projects, social, and ceremonial duties as it has for 100+ years, distinct from the West Wing, which is the President's seat.

Many First Ladies have developed policies from the East Wing including Carter’s mental health initiatives, Laura Bush’s literacy campaign, Michelle Obama’s promoting Let's Move to target childhood obesity, and Melania Trump backed Be Best, which advocates for children's wellbeing. For 100+ years first Ladies of the White House made big strides in the East Wing and the importance of those initiatives should not be taken for granted. First Ladies (or future First Gentlemen) should have a place to continue to partner with the present in service to the American people and have a professional space to do that, however they may be willing.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those if needed.

I am concerned that anyone who cares for or owns a historic property would show such little concern for it's preservation or the laws established to protect such properties. I lived in a historic district in Canal Winchester, Ohio. We were required to follow strict regulations, which at times, required us to use more expensive materials and to attend various meetings prior to projects to determine whether guidelines would be followed. While sometimes being an inconvenience it was a necessary inconvenience required to make sure the historic value of our community was preserved. It is obvious that it is now impossible to protect the historic value of the East Wing of The White House, the people's house, but it is essential that those responsible for its destruction and outright disregard for the regulations protecting such properties should be held accountable. If anything, the East Wing should be rebuilt as it originally existed. Thank you for allowing me to provide my input.

Modernization does not equal total and complete destruction. What has been done is vandalism on a grand scale, akin to the Taliban blowing up the giant, ancient Buddha statues in Afghanistan. The destruction of the east wing was done illegally, illogically, uneconomically, and for the purposes of graft/corruption/money-laundering/bribery in addition to possibly building Russian spy technology into the White House.

The White House DOES NOT belong to the current occupant of it. The White House belongs to the people. You DO NOT have our permission to destroy our property in order to build a tacky, overpriced, over-gilded effigy to the 1880s.

You do have to rebuild it as it was, with better materials (no asbestos, for example), better infrastructure, and no Russian interference or money from "donors".

To the Members of the National Capital Planning Commission:

I write to express my vehement opposition to the unauthorized demolition of the White House East Wing and the construction of President Trump's proposed ballroom. This project represents an egregious violation of the public trust and a profound disrespect for the American people's patrimony.

The White House Belongs to the American People, Not Donald Trump:
The White House is a globally recognized symbol of American ideals, and it belongs to every American citizen, and not to any single occupant. Donald Trump is a temporary resident of the People's House, serving at the pleasure of the voters. He has no right to demolish a historic wing of our nation's most iconic building to satisfy his personal vanity. The White House is not Trump's private Mar-a-Lago estate; it is a public trust that must be preserved for future generations.

Historic Destruction Without Legal Authority:
The East Wing that Trump demolished without proper authorization held irreplaceable historical significance. Significantly expanded during Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidency in 1942, it served as the home of the First Lady's office since Rosalynn Carter's time and contained the Family Theater, East Garden Room, and the beloved Jacqueline Kennedy Garden. This was the first lady's domain, the only place she had to really call her own. While it's clear that First Lady Melania Trump doesn't care about First Lady spaces (or responsibilities, for that matter), Trump callously dismissed this space as insignificant. Yet it hosted weddings, state functions, and intimate moments of American presidential history for more than a century.

The demolition proceeded without an extensive public review process, bypassing the legally required consultations with both the National Capital Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts. No president is legally allowed to tear down portions of the White House without any review whatsoever: not Trump, not any predecessor. This action was unlawful and contemptuous of established preservation protocols.

A Ballroom for Personal Aggrandizement, Not Public Service:
Trump's stated justification—that he needs a larger venue for state dinners—is transparently self-serving. The proposed 90,000-square-foot structure is an exercise in personal aggrandizement, not a legitimate enhancement of presidential functions. This ostentatious monument to Trump's ego has no place on the grounds of the People's House. The office of the President of the United States demands dignity, restraint, and respect for tradition. These are qualities utterly absent from this gaudy, oversized vanity project.

Private Funding Creates Dangerous Conflicts of Interest:
The claim that this $300-400 million project will be funded entirely by private donors is deeply troubling. Donors include charitable organizations, sports team owners, tech companies, media companies and billionaires, yet the administration has refused to disclose individual contribution amounts. When private interests fund presidential infrastructure, the president becomes beholden to those donors rather than to the American public. This arrangement invites corruption and undermines the independence of the executive office.

Moreover, any underground security infrastructure would ultimately be paid for by taxpayers, not private donors. This means the American people are footing the bill for portions of this project without any say in the matter.

Lack of Transparency Regarding Underground Construction:
Multiple reports indicate that the Presidential Emergency Operations Center bunker beneath the East Wing was dismantled during demolition, with plans for a classified replacement. Military involvement in what is ostensibly a ballroom project raises serious questions about the true scope and purpose of this construction. The extraordinary cost (approximately $3,333 per square foot, far exceeding normal high-end construction rates) suggests substantial underground infrastructure work beyond a simple event space.

The American people have a right to know what is being built beneath the White House in their name. If military-grade bunkers, data centers, or other classified facilities are under construction, Congress and the public deserve full transparency about costs, scope, and funding sources. The NCPC must not approve any plans that lack complete disclosure of underground construction details.

I urge the National Capital Planning Commission to:

REJECT any proposed plans for this ballroom project until full environmental and historical impact assessments are completed and made public;

REQUIRE complete transparency regarding all aspects of construction, including detailed specifications and costs for any underground facilities, bunkers, or infrastructure;

DEMAND full disclosure of all donor identities and contribution amounts before any approval is considered;

INSIST that any costs borne by taxpayers be clearly identified and subject to Congressional appropriation and oversight;

UPHOLD the public interest by refusing to rubber-stamp a project that serves one man's ego at the expense of American history and democratic accountability.

The White House belongs to the American people. We did not consent to this destruction, we do not support this vanity project, and we demand that our public servants protect our national heritage from further desecration.

Respectfully but firmly submitted,

Jessica Fuller

President Trump's proposed ballroom design is abominable. He destroyed the old east wing without authorization and now is proposing a building dramatically out of scope and proportion. The ballroom, as presented, would dwarf the White House and dominate the views from all angles. If a ballroom is truly needed, build something architecturally appropriate.

In addition, doing this all behind the back of the American people by raising dark money is insulting. This is the "people's house" not a monument to a would-be king.

There are many reasons the East Wing should not have been demolished - violation of preservation law, lack of notification to Congress - and the ballroom should not be built. It's out of scale with the historic appearance of the White House.

But to me the most important reason is that it's the people's house. President Trump is a temporary resident. It isn't one of his real estate properties to do with whatever he likes. His idea that Presidents have wanted a huge ballroom for the last 150 years is just ridiculous. I've been alive since Eisenhower was in office and not one President ever mentioned a ballroom. They all had more important concerns.

I urge you to stop this illegal, ego-driven project. Our tax dollars will be paying for the maintenance of this monstrosity for years to come even if private funds are raised to construct it to begin with.

Thank you for this opportunity to comment.

To Whom It May Concern:

The recent modernization efforts in the East Wing of the White House represent a devastating blow to the historic architecture of the People's House. This building does not belong to any one administration, it belongs to the American people. Its walls, corridors, and rooms carry generations of history that deserve protection, not unilateral alteration.

Major structural changes were undertaken without clear Congressional approval and without meaningful public input. For a property of such national significance, this lack of transparency is unacceptable. The White House is not a private estate to be redesigned at will, it is a public trust, and decisions that fundamentally alter its character must involve the public and their elected representatives.

Beyond the moral obligation to preserve national heritage, there is a serious legal question at stake. The White House is federally owned public property, and its preservation is guided by long-standing statutory frameworks intended to protect historic assets. Laws such as the National Historic Preservation Act establish procedures to ensure that alterations to historic properties are carefully reviewed, documented, and subjected to oversight. Circumventing transparent review processes, or failing to consult appropriate preservation authorities, undermines the legal safeguards designed to prevent precisely this kind of irreversible loss.

Equally troubling is the apparent absence of meaningful consultation with historical preservation experts and organizations, including the White House Historical Association, whose mission is to preserve and educate the public about the People's House's architectural and cultural legacy. Any significant modification to such a historic structure should involve historians, preservation architects, and established historical societies to ensure that changes do not erase or permanently damage elements of national significance.

The justification that the White House "needs" a gargantuan ballroom or large-scale expansion ignores a more pressing responsibility: preservation. The priority should be restoring what was destroyed, down to the last brick, not expanding or modernizing at the expense of historic integrity. Architectural heritage, once erased, cannot be authentically recreated.

This was not simply a design choice; it was the destruction of public property at the highest level. Those responsible for authorizing and executing these changes should be held accountable. If legal review determines that statutory preservation obligations were bypassed or violated, and I can assure you they were, appropriate remedies should be pursued. Furthermore, the current Administration should bear the financial responsibility for restoring the East Wing to its prior condition, rather than placing that burden on taxpayers.

The American people deserve stewardship, not spectacle. The White House must remain a symbol of continuity, history, and respect for the nation it represents. Safeguarding that legacy is not optional, it is a constitutional, legal, and moral obligation owed to every generation, past, present, and future.

Best,

I am against the ballroom planned for this project. It would be an eyesore of epic proportions and not in keeping with the architectural elegance of the White House. The only way to describe this project is "tacky". I also believe the damage already done to the East Wing should be paid for by the person who ignored the fact he did not own the property and desecrated it anyway.

The White House is the People's House and therefore does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station also has a lovely and large space.

The White House is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he/she works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. They should not be able to rebuild it to their own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I am distraught by the illegal demolition of the historic east wing of the Whitehouse. Any rebuilding should be to scale of existing executive residence potion of the Whitehouse and it should be styled to match the rest of the property. None of this gold bullshit! It should be classy and refined. The exterior spaces should be gardened and not paved over like some outdoor food court! Trump had no business tearing down the people's house, please use good historical taste as your guidelines to replace what was stolen from the American people.

The East Wing and the White House are historic buildings and should be matched in style. The East Wing should be subordinate (smaller than) and in pleasing proportions to the original structure of the residence. There should still be an entrance for the people too. Most of us will never be able to attend an event in a ballroom, and I think this would be a gross tacky addition to the White House. Please reign in the scope of the project, or even return the East Wing to what it was before it was improperly demolished.

The White House Ballroom does not belong to this President. It belongs to "We the People." This country should not be so arrogant as to have an overly opulent "golden" historically destroying place for seating nearly 1000 people, and costing $400,000,000. This nation is hurting. This nation has lost faith in its government, been defrauded, been degraded, been shamed by this administration so much and now this man is continuing his plans to rewrite our history and build one to celebrate himself.

The occupant of The White House works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it. He has already changed a Lincoln bathroom and turned everything gold and gaudy. Who knows what else he has done behind closed doors.

If the current occupant does indeed have 300 million for a new ballroom, that money should be diverted to build a new East Wing to replace the East Wing that was demolished. (not use our tax dollars). It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

A side note: Please don't approve the building of an Arch. Also, monitor restoration of the Kenney Center before he takes it down to the studs.

A large event space at the White House is probably useful. However, decorating it like an 18th century ballroom is not needed! Gilt and gold trimmings should remain in the 18th century as expressions of the excesses of the times. They do not belong in the White House!

I wish that the East Wing of the White House had not been demolished. Whatever Trump wants, he does (if he can get away with it). In this case, he hurriedly demolished the East Wing before anyone could tell him that he could not do this without comment or permission from certain agencies. He knew better, but he did it anyway.
I agree with the National Trust of Historic Preservation's objections of his plan. One of the objections: the ballroom's large size would make the White House look insignificant.
He plans to make the ballroom look predominantly yellow, perhaps with gold like his Oval Office and toilet. This is Kitsch, the opposite of Kunst ("art" in German). The building would look even more tasteless if he puts his name on it (like he did with the Kennedy Center).
I do not know what should be done as a replacement for the vacant space where the East Wing once stood. I leave the decision to an architect who would design something that is sensitive to the architecture of the White House. The National Trust would need to approve the design, and I know that it has good taste.

Everything that Donald Trump has done to the West Wing is indicative of the waste and tasteless design that he intends for the East Wing replacement, the design is not in keeping with the design integrity of the White House, the scale is over powering and the look is indicative of the Russian authoritarian style that he wallows in. He's destroyed the Oval office, the East wing and we can only guess at the destruction that's occurred within the White House itself. He needs to be held accountable for the destruction of the East Wing and he should not be at all involved in the design, design approval, material selection or approval for the replacement of the east wing. If we had a First Lady that did something for the United states like previous first ladies then we would have a need for an office space and its dependent facilities, the East Wing should be replaced with a comparable space for future First Ladies/gentlemen that serve the country at the side of their spouse. The previous East Wing appeared to have enough space to accommodate dining and dancing from the videos and pictures I've seen and would have been sufficient to serve the purpose.

I believe that a committee of reputable designers, architects and historic preservationists should be involved in the process and the sizing and design of the building should be compatible with the existing structures.
Please stop this wholesale destruction of our nations capital and it's associated historic structures.

The East Wing Modernization Project is a great misnomer. It is not a project - the term implies that it has been well-planned, has adequate justification, has merit, and as undertaken by the U.S. government, has merit. This "project" has none of these features. In addition, it was not undertaken as a "modernization", rather as a sop to ego. There is absolutely no justification for this endeavor, and the demolition of the historic wing is a gross injustice. I live in a historic house, and I would not be able to demolish part of the house with justifying it to my muncipality. But the demolition was undertaken without any review, with the assumption that the addition would then have to be built. I'd rather see a hole in the ground as a memorial than to build the monstrosity that has been planned.

I truly wish the destruction of the East Wing had not taken place. This belongs to the people of the United States and should be treated with respect by the president and his family who reside there during their term in office.

I wish the East wing could be restored to its original structure and decor. I also would like to see the Rose Garden restored. It is one thing to repair a structure if needs it but destroying and removing the history of it is not acceptable.
Thank you for taking the time to listen to my thoughts on this subject.

The White House is the temporary Residence of our elected President. As such, modifications should be reviewed by a Committee elected by the public, but in a timely manner to allow the temporary resident to perform minor modifications, if needed. Minor modifications might be a new garden, tennis court, covered walkway, technical updates, etc

I do not believe we need a 90,000 sq ft ballroom in the residence. This is not a Palace. There are many other event spaces available in Washington DC. I feel a ballroom with seating for about 400 persons, staff and catering is sufficient.

Exteriors and Interiors should match existing architecture. Please do not allow garish gold decorations.

I have no problem with modernizing the interior and providing updated security and technology.

I agree 100% with the concerns about the ballroom dwarfing and overwhelming the White House building. Regardless of the fact that the elevation of this addition will be the same as the White House, the scale of this ballroom is seriously out of proportion. I do not think that 38-40 ft ceilings are needed, so I would cast my vote to scale this building down. Making the elevation lower than the White House also preserves the historic significance of that building as the enduring symbol of our democracy. If it seating capacity was reduced to 750 people instead of 1000, this would still meet the needs of the administration for state functions. In closing I encourage the committee to hold your position and not be swayed by someone's self - aggrandizement initiatives.

I was a government purchasing agent for most of my career. I know that what was done to our beloved Whitehouse was not done following the Federal Acquisition Regulations. The East Wing should never have been allowed to be torn down without public input and appropriate hearings. The People did not need a new ballroom added. The entirety of its purpose was for the use of people that have enough money to go build their own ballrooms. I personally do not believe there was ever a "private donor" funding the demolition and rebuild of the East Wing. I do however believe that President Trump should be required to submit the full cost of the remediation and rebuild of the East Wing at his own personal expense, since he did not have the appropriate approvals to tear it down. The People should not be expected to fix his gross misuse of his position with our tax dollars. I believe it should be restored to its prior condition and use rather than having the additional expense of conducting new solicitations for architectural drawings for a different structure. The original architectural drawings and plans can be updated for code changes and reused. The only new solicitation then required would be for a new General Contractor. I also don't know how you can call it an "East Wing Modernization Project" when there is no East Wing left. This is not Modernization, this is a full on remediation of damages and restructure of a destroyed building. Someone should give this link to President Trump and ask him to acquaint himself with the FAR regulations followed by every other government employee in this country. He should not be an acception to the rule of law. https://www.acquisition.gov/browse/index/far

This ballroom is nothing more than a shallow vanity project to amuse a small man. The White House is not a luxury resort or a private estate; it is a historic symbol of American democracy. The extravagant proposed ballroom is out of step with the White House's purpose and symbolism, and risks turning a public institution into a stage for spectacle. Altering such an iconic building for the sake of opulence undermines its architectural and historical integrity. In short, the proposal feels unnecessary, tone-deaf, and out of step with what the presidency is supposed to represent.

It is also unimaginably tone-deaf and, frankly, disgusting for the President of the United States to build a $300 million ballroom when many Americans are forced to work multiple jobs to get by, unable to afford to buy a home, et cetera.

Along those same lines, the construction of this would be a massive waste of taxpayer dollars if publicly funded. However, if the project is in fact funded by private donations as Trump claims it will be, that raises ethical and legal concerns. Private funding for a federal property like the White House would likely sidestep normal Congressional oversight, especially considering the blatant disregard this administration has shown for our system of checks and balance thus far. From an ethical standpoint, what influence would these donors gain?

Finally, imagine the the precedent of altering an iconic and significant landmark for nonessential expansion!

The NCPC has an obligation to protect this symbol of America. I strongly encourage you to take that obligation seriously and stop this project from moving forward.

The proposed 90,000 sq. ft. addition is entirely too large for the site, and definitely not needed. Whoever is providing the funding is irrelevant. The project should not be approved at this scale.

It is disrespectful to our citizens that the prior structure was removed without permission from the proper authorities.

Given that there is now a gaping hole and the underground elements have been destroyed, no doubt something must be done. A more modest structure than that proposed, ideally smaller than 55,000 sq. ft., should be designed and built.

The White House exemplifies the most glorious parts of America and its history – the peaceful transition to power that a democracy requires. By tearing down parts of the White House, without public comment and without the review of historians is to tear apart what we as a country have built. No one person or president should be able to so drastically change The People's House.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical

The occupant of The White House is not a King; he works for us and lives there as our temporary guest. He should not be able to rebuild it to his own tastes, no matter who is paying for it. Because the current occupant chose to unilaterally demolish this functional wing of the White House, he should be forced to at least partially pay for the now-required reconstruction.

Due to the current President actions, a new East Wing is required to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It must be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, in order to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. It once served as a functional gathering entrance for White House tours, operational office space, and apparently also housed the White House bunker. I would imagine that all of those functions are critically necessary.

If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom rather than serve in the capacity previously required, so be it--but it must be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I OPPOSE the proposed addition of a 90,000 square foot ball room to the White House for these reasons:
First, it would unbalance the symmetry of the White House structure. The 1904 kept a balance between left and right wings. This is my primary aesthetic reason.
Second, sketches that I've seen do NOT reflect the style of the period in which the White House was constructed. The proposed structure appears "out-of-place".
Third, such a massive "ballroom" reminds me of King Louis XIV's Palace of Versailles. Trump should not to be remembered as a monarch.
Fourth, the "donations" of construction funds by private corporations appear no more than a way of purchasing favors ("bribes") from Trump and his administration. Such favors would include: courts and agencies overlooking or dismissing wrong doing of donor corporations and their executives; obtaining access to information not otherwise available to the public that would give the donors ("bribers") an advantage over their competitors.
Finally, it would perpetuate corporate purchase of access to officials that no private citizen has. It would be, in essence, a place for private meetings and celebrations of those who are increasingly controlling lives of ordinary citizens and small businesses.

It is unbelievable that the East Wing was demolished. It violated norms & consent procedures.
The White House belongs to the nation. Not whoever is temporarily living there. It also has historical significance as an icon of this country.
The proposed addition was too big, being larger than the rest of the property. It was to be a monument to the donors with their names carved into its walls.
This project should be shut down immediately. The bunker be damned.
The costs of replacing the torn down structure should be born by the person who illegally tore it down.

I would like to see the East Wing designed in a fashion parallel to the West Wing, so that the building maintains the iconic profile it has had for decades. It is critically important for the White House to remain an accessible and "first among citizens" type of structure, rather than develop a palace-like feeling. This remains the People's House, and it needs to reflect that spirit.

Modernization should include ADA accessibility, technological and security updates, increased energy efficiency and innovative construction materials to demonstrate American ingenuity. It would be wonderful if it pursued LEED certification - I'm not certain that's possible for a portion of a building.

If the majority of public input supports a ballroom, it should remain within the size and scope to make parallel to the West Wing. It should be tasteful and reflect a modern sensibility toward egalitarian entertaining, not imposing or palatial. I personally support using a different building for ballroom purposes - I believe that a ballroom sends the wrong message for a building designed to house a working Presidential administration and living space of the First Family. However, a larger space for important state events may be sensible. Perhaps a space that could be both an auditorium and a larger-than-currently-available dinner setting would be more appropriate. It does seem important to provide working spaces for the First Spouse - that is typically quite a demanding job, and I think failure to plan ahead just because the current First Lady is not in residence would be a grave error.

Thank you for soliciting public comment on this important change to one of our most treasured historic places. I travel to DC frequently and try to go by the White House every time, and it always brings a shiver of pride and a lump in my throat. It is a regal yet welcoming building, with a rich history, and I hope you will work to both improve and restore it in a way that honors our heritage as a nation of, by and for the people.

Where was the COMMENT PERIOD before the historic East Wing was DESTROYED? I am NOT IN FAVOR of ANY ball room project no matter HOW it is funded. The EAST WING AS IT STOOD SHOULD BE RECONSTRUCTED as closely as possible to the original structure, and the person who illegally tore it down should be made to PAY for it's replacement and fibed for the illegal razing. As it is now the gaping hole stands as a monument to the arrogance and stupidity of the person who ordered the destruction, it is emblematic of his other projects and he is like a bull in a china shop-- no scruples about destroying the People's House, where he is a short term tenant. Where are the items that were IN the East wing- the paintings, sculptures, carpets, etc? Where any historic elements saved. Or was it just carelessly bulldozed, all the historic trees clear cut? For shame. The world now looks at us and shakes their collective heads at our insanity.

NO BALLROOM. RESTORE THE EAST WING. PREVENT ANY FURTHER DESTRUCTION TO OUR HISTORIC SITES.

While I can understand the need for a large reception area, destroying history, and decades old trees (oaks) all without a thought to historical significance is unacceptable. Lying to the nation that the original house "won't be touched" is unacceptable.

Additionally, all the gaudy "accents" added everywhere is a sign of a lack of seriousness. The Rose Garden could have been modified from all lawn to pavers with lawn strips, keeping the natural element while making the space more functional.

It's well past time to halt all the decorating and renovation nonsense. Let's modernize the People's House with thoughtful planning to preserve history while also addressing a need.

Hello-

I strongly object to the construction of anything over and above recreating a duplicate of the East Wing with the necessary upgrades for code requirements. The White House does not need a "ballroom" for that many people to be in the building together for security and superfluous entertainment reasons. Lavish entertainment with the required security measures paid for and in place are an unnecessary expense for taxpayers who apparently don't deserve health insurance, SNAP food security assistance or fully funded Medicare and Medicaid. This notion is a slap in the face to all Americans that the current POTUS feels he should flaunt his opulent lifestyle on our tax dollars as people are left to suffer for lack of services any first world country provides its citizens. "Conspicuous Consumption" is not a good look for a responsible government. He should have been stopped from carrying out any kind of destruction long before now. It is astonishingly disrespectful to the American people that this public comment period is happening after the historic East Wing has been demolished. The White House is not one of Mr. Trump's tacky casinos or golf courses; it belongs to the people. His proposed design is impractical, gaudy, and tasteless. In addition, it was never made clear what about the previous structure needed to be changed--except that it didn't have Mr. Trump's name on it, perhaps. It is normal for Presidents and their families to redecorate and renovate the White House to better meet their needs, but it is not normal to take a wrecking ball to it.

The proposed design should be scrapped, and replaced with a tasteful and functional design that matches, as closely as is practical, the footprint of the previous structure, and harmonizes with the existing architectural style. Make the best of this destruction by designing the new structure with accessibility in mind, and up-to-date communications infrastructure, plus flexibility to adapt to rapid technological change.

In the interest of fairness, Mr. Trump can be allotted one bucket of gold paint, to deploy as he chooses, provided it is used in such a way as to be removed without structural damage by the next president who is not a short-fingered vulgarian. In this way, Mr. Trump can exercise his...unique personal taste, while recieving a useful reminder that, like all Presidents, he is a short-term occupant of the People's House.

Furthermore, Mr. Trump should not be allowed to get away with wasting the people's money on pointless vanity projects. There is an official budget for White House redecoration; he has expended it, and now he's done. I suggest that the Commission explore avenues for requiring Mr Trump to repair the damage with some fraction of the funds that he has corruptly gained from foriegn leaders and swindled out of his own voters, but if there is no legal mechanism for doing so, at least stop making us, the people, pay for it.

In the larger view, of course, what Mr. Trump has done to the White House is utterly insignificant in comparison to what he has done, and is still doing, to the reputation of the United States abroad, to the national and global economies, and to the faith of the people of the United States in the rule of law. But we can each only do the work that is in front of us, and the part that is front of you is the White House. Dig deep, call upon the strength and courage of the long line of Ameican patriots in whose footsteps you walk every day, and do the work.

First, the upgrades need to occur.

Second, the style of the addition (if there is one) should blend with the architectural design on the White House.

Third, there is absolutely no reason for this large of a ballroom. Half the size should be more than sufficient.

Fourth, half of monies already collected and all that come in the future. These monies need to be spent on actually helping our veterans. It's shocking that a ballroom takes precedence over the men and women that fought for our country.

It was a terrible idea to tear out the rose garden, and it is a terrible idea to build this huge ballroom. Please do not build it and please replace the ballroom. And since it was done without the legally required approval of Congress, please charge the restorationnot to public dollars, but Donald Trump‘s personal account.

While I can see the need for a sizable space to entertain foreign dignitaries and other important visitors to the White House, I feel the proposed size should be reduced significantly. Realistically, how often will the president need a space for 1000 people? And 40' walls? A waste of space and expensive to heat and maintain. I think that the space would feel uncomfortable and cavernous to a party of 100 - 300 people which i would guess to be a more average size crowd. Esthetically, I agree that the size should be smaller than the White House residence and in proper proportion to the site. While incorporating modern amenities, the historic nature of the site should determine the basic design elements.

I am disgusted by the sudden demolition of the White House East Wing and the construction of a gargantuan, gaudy ballroom. The White House is not the personal property of any president to do what he or, hopely, she wants to do with it. It is "The People's House" and the president is merely a temporary tenant in historic public housing.
The demolition of the East Wing without proper approvals and public comment was a desecration of property belonging to ALL American people.
I believe that the East Wing should be rebuild in the same style as it was with all the appropriate improvements to the space and plans for the ridiculous ballroom should be eliminated. It is unwanted and being paid for by people looking to ingratiate themselves with the president.
Sincerely,
Michele Kuhn

I oppose the proposed 90,000 square foot ballroom addition to the White House on the grounds of historic preservation and architectural integrity.

The White House is a nationally significant historic structure whose design reflects the principles of balance, proportion, and restraint central to early American civic architecture. Preservation standards require that additions to landmark buildings be compatible, differentiated, and subordinate to the original structure. A ballroom of this scale risks overwhelming the Executive Residence and disrupting its carefully maintained hierarchy.

The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties emphasize that new construction should not destroy historic materials, features, or spatial relationships that characterize a property. A 90,000 square foot expansion raises serious concerns about visual dominance, site impact, and long-term integrity.

This building belongs to the American people. Its architectural meaning must be protected through disciplined stewardship, not enlarged to accommodate spectacle. Any alteration should honor preservation principles and ensure that future generations inherit an undiminished symbol of democratic continuity.
Respectfully submitted

To the committee:
As a U.S. citizen and voter, I am horrified and appalled by the genuine disrespect the current administration.has for history, ethics, and values of America. The president had no right to tear down the East Wing to build a glorified monument to his tacky bad taste and then to name it after himself. No right. He has the ethics and morals of an alleycat, but should know, as a builder, there are rules and protocols to follow and they do apply to him and his administration.
In conclusion, construction of his ballroom should stop immediately, and his personal wealth be fined and charged with complete restitution. He will inevitability file suit if you take such actions; your countersuit should place legal costs upon him personally.
Please, it is necessary to do the right thing to restore and make whole the People's House.

Opportunity to save the East Wing and update or modernize its use has passed. The East Wing is gone. However, in keeping with historic preservation standards and accepted practice and in order to restore the historic appearance of the White House and its surroundings, the exterior can and should be recreated on the original footprint. The interior can then be finished as a ballroom with appropriate offices, restrooms, etc, but within the original volume of the East Wing as it stood before its demolition.

I feel this project should never have been started without having a complete plan in place and authorized through appropriate channels. I consider it pandering to a president who only cares about power, money and appearances. Also, there needs to be more transparency about who is funding this project. The estimated price is over 3 billion dollars. As the existing structure is already demolished and will need reconstruction, I am hoping the plan will be scaled down in size so as not to dwarf the more important building, the White House. This President will only be in office for another 3 years and will not even fully benefit from this project. As an American representing the middle class it is hard to understand spending over 3 million dollars on a ballroom with gold gilded ceiling's that will only entertain those with power and wealth. This project is only for a president who needs to have power and recognition and praise. This is not for the American people.

It is horrifying that the historic East Wing of OUR beloved White House was destroyed in a night without our consent. I'm a US Citizen, a voter, and lover of historical buildings and architecture. Please incorporate my input into the design for this "renovation ".
1. Rebuild the East Wing to the exact same structure it was prior to this demolition.
2. Build new ballroom - if Congress agrees that we actually need one - on government land, not on the site of any current buildings or gardens.
3. Refurnish the East Wing in period appropriate decor and furnishings. No extra garish or tacky gold plated anything anywhere.
4. Dig up the concrete patio at the Rose Garden and restore it to the beautiful garden that Jackie Kennedy had created. The patio is ugly and stupid.
5. Put necessary guiderails in place to prevent criminally horrible debacles like this one that destroyed a beautiful piece of history on one moron's whims.

I think the primary goal should be to restore the east wing with updates that make it even more sustainable annd safe and also I would love to see the rose garden back again.

The White House, the People's House, does not need a ballroom. It is neither a hotel nor a convention center; DC has plenty of those. There is public space available nearby (I believe it's the Commerce Building) and the central space at the National Building Museum is huge. Union Station has a lovely and large space.

The White House, the People's House, is not a Palace. It was deliberately designed and built with modest dimensions and restrained aesthetics. Visitors to DC are often surprised at how small it is. The Georgian style is intentionally symmetrical.

This is not a home for a monarch, it's a temporary home for our leader, at the most 8 years. He or she should not be able to rebuild it to their own tastes, no matter who is paying for it.

A new East Wing should be constructed to replace the East Wing that was demolished. It should be similar in size, shape, and placement to the West Wing, to maintain the symmetry of the entire structure. If it is determined that the East Wing should house a ballroom, so be it--but it should be made to fit into the original footprint and design.

I am opposed to this entire project. The tearing down of the past structure without cause or approval was reprehensible. Since this is a historical structure, that should be considered when making any kind of renovations. The taxpayers should not be stuck paying for this when citizens are struggling to pay for healthcare, food, and essentials. Donations should be used to now repair the White House. Most importantly, the new structure should match the history of the current White House, not a new modern structure. It needs to be a cohesive building.

Though security in our world is a growing concern, presidential inaugurations should be as open as possible to the general public and located outside the Capitol building, the site where laws are passed. This is symbolic but very important to us as a country.
Democracy is not about comfort and convenience but about standing together as individuals for the benefit of the whole.
The executive branch, in theory, should enact the will of Congress, which should represent the will of the people.
Presidential inaugurations should not be confined to the White House ballroom, away from the Capitol steps.

This project stems from an entirely selfish and individual need, not that of the country or its' people. In seeking to turn the White House from the People's House into his own, President Trump has systematically re-written and even destroyed history. There was no need to destroy the East Wing- it was not crumbling, unsafe, or unused. As a citizen that had been there the December prior for the Holiday Decorations, I can attest that it was completely safe and showed no signs of needing to be destroyed. Furthermore, the creation of an ostentatious ballroom that does not match the rest of the decor is both selfish and unwarranted. The White House is the people's house and the President wants a ballroom for himself and his own business dealings. I am certain that the purpose of the ballroom is not to invite the nation's everyday people in for events, but rather the one percent, who already have that access to the President and many other events and ballrooms. At a time when our country is heavily divided, economically, racially, ethnically, and politically, a new ballroom in the East Wing should be the lowest of priorities for the budget and resources. That money should go into programs and agencies that help the people, as a government for the people I would expect this to be a given. We shouldn't have to tell our government how to prioritize its' people, but here we are. Leave the East Wing alone, stop wasting money.

Dear Commissioners,

I am an architect and have been practicing for over 35 years, including on renovation projects for significant cultural landmarks and additions to historical and culturally significant buildings.
I would like to share a few observations on the proposed East Wing Modernization Project. I recently was able to view the renderings which were previewed to the National Capital Planning Commission on February 11, 2026, and which were just made public. I have what, I hope the Commission will agree, I consider serious concerns about the size and scale of the proposed addition.

My comments are summarized below:
1. The size of the proposed addition is out of proportion with the existing main White House building. Its mass will dwarf that of the main residence building. The effect will be that the central residence would no longer the focus and fulcrum of the composition of the White House complex.

2. The proposed addition extends too far to the south. It extends further south than the facades of the adjacent buildings to the east and to the west. At minimum, the position of the facade should defer to and align with its neighbors. The two adjacent blocks serve to define and frame the park of the south lawn and foreground the composition of the Residence. The proposed misalignment will detract from the framing effect of the two adjacent blocks.

3. The large mass and the over extension to the south also physically alters the symmetry and balance of the south lawn and the south lawn driveway. The proposed mass will displace the east side of the oval driveway by pinching it towards the center. The symmetry of the lawn is lost and the width of the park in front of the white house is reduced by over 25% creating the effect that the White House Residence is no longer centered on the space of the south lawn. I would think that the integrity of the form of the central lawn space would take precedent over what will be essentially a service building of secondary importance.

4. My most significant concern is the detrimental impact that the proposed mass will have to the public's experience of the master plan for the original urban layout of Washington. The diagonal avenues of the DC city grid were originally laid out to visually connect and to provide long views to the various monuments around the city. Most significant of these are the long diagonal views towards the Capitol Building, The White House, and the major monuments arranged around the cruciform plan of the National Mall. The diagonal connections serve as a representation of the Union of States and physical manifestation of the genius of the checks and balance of powers in our government. The proposed addition extends so far south that the view of the White House along the visual axis from the Capitol along Pennsylvania Avenue will be blocked. The visual connection between the South Portico of the White House and the Capitol will be lost. This may seem to some as a small detail, but I would argue that it is extremely significant. It would effectively memorialize the political break in our current politics. The symbolic link of interconnectedness between the Executive Branch and the Legislative Branch will literally and symbolically be broken.

I would humbly request that the commission consider these comments, and, at the very least, require the proponents to show existing conditions against the proposed scheme to demonstrate the before and after conditions of the site to make clear to all the potential impact of this project to our shared experience of the City. If this project were to be executed in its current form, I feel that it will become a scar on the beautiful form of our Capital City and will further prevent the city plan from serving as the shared didactic tool that it is, reminding us about what is unique and special about our American system of government. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
R. Craig Mutter, AIA

I strongly object to the construction of a 90,000 sq ft Ballroom on the East Wing demolition site. It would be totally out of scale and design to the White House. The size and gilding are pompous and arrogant in comparison with the human and restrained design of the historic white house. The problem is what to do now that the East Wing has been demolished? The current occupant is only temporary. It is not his property. It belongs to the people of the United States, and we should have been consulted prior to any demolition of an entire wing of the White House..

Additionally, restore the Jacqueline Kennedy Rose Garden.

First and foremost, please stop the madness. Please do not allow the razing of any other parts of the White House. Protect this national symbol.

Second, please do not allow additions to the West Wing or the main White House. Maintain the historic size, proportion, styling of these national treasures.

Third, the scale and styling of whatever plan is selected to replace the East Wing should maintain the approximate dimensions and height of the former east wing. The new addition should maintain the balance and proportion between the existing West Wing and the main White House.

A ballroom is unnecessary, and a 90,000 sq ft ballroom as proposed is a grotesque symbol of excess and poor taste. However, if we want to build one as the replacement for the lost East Wing, let’s make sure it blends into the existing architecture of this treasured historic site.

I object to the construction of Pres. Trump's proposed ballroom for a number of reasons: (1) It is financed by ultra-wealthy people who expect, if they have not already received, favors from the president; (2) even though financed by the ultra wealthy, it will ultimately be taxpayers who pay for its upkeep--or for its eventual demolition; (3) the 90,000 sq ft structure will dwarf and detract from the elegance of the 55,000 sq ft residence--architecturally, it makes no sense; (4) a lavish ballroom is inconsistent with the ideals on which our country was founded--historically, it makes no sense; (5) the White House is supposed to be "the people's house," yet few of us everyday folks will ever get to attend an event in the ballroom--but you can be sure, our tax dollars will be used to cover the cost of lavish events there; (6) the ballroom is just another attempt of Donald Trump to place his brand on our nation (think Trump-Kenney Center, Trump Rx, Trump Accounts); (7) the Trump administration did not follow the rules--indeed, they broke the rules, they demolished the East Wing before they even got permission to do so; and (8) the designation "East Wing Modernization Project" is itself a misnomer; a more honest project name is "Donald Trump Glorification Project." It's often said, "it's easier to get forgiveness than to get permission." Perhaps that's what Donald Trump is counting on. Permission is required for a reason. Do not forgive the administration's failure to follow the rules. Say NO, ABSOLUTELY NOT to this monstrosity.

Upgrading to modern standards is acceptable but wiping out a piece of history is wrong. The White House is an extremely important building to America, and it makes no sense that on the 250th birthday of this country that one man has decided to tear down the east wing and do whatever he feels like with it. The building is America's, it's not Trump's. The Public, protectors of historical buildings, and other departments need to be involved in decisions about this building, and now that he has already destroyed a huge part of it, it needs to be rebuilt as similarly to the original as possible. Right now this isn't a modernization project, it's a significant remodel of the white house, and it shouldn't be legal for him to have moved forward with it without any collaboration with others. This project needs to be stopped and people that actually care about our country and history need to take it over and do what they can do repair what he has done, and include an event space in a way that makes sense within the building. If that's not possible then another building should be created for it rather than completely disfiguring the white house. Trump should not be making decisions about the look and fate of the white house.

Short of rebuilding the original East Wing as it was, while meeting current building codes, the new structure should be built to the same exterior dimensions and architectural style.
Follow the established process for making needed but historically sensitive changes.
The People don't really need a ballroom, but if taco wants one so bad, he can have one built elsewhere in DC. I bet there are a couple of filled landfills that could be donated to the cause.
The White House is the people's house, the People don't want/need/care for a gaudy ballroom.

No ballroom glorifying the current occupant of the White House and restore everything that was demolished in a fit of ego. This should never have happened.

Should be restored as nearly as possible to the original. Should not be so large as to diminish the rest of the White House- the people's house. Should be done tastefully- not all the gold that is in the oval office. That is not modernization. Rather it is a throwback to the Renaissance and reeks of kings and kingdom.

The People’s House East Wing should be rebuilt with the same architecture but including any necessary up to date features like wiring, plumbing etc.
If a ballroom is necessary, it should be in scale with the White House and contain murals of our beautiful National Parks. That’s Americas gold.
All the artificial gold leaf should be removed. The cement/marble patio should be removed and the rose garden replanted.

I strongly oppose the proposed ballroom project at the White House. At a time when many Americans are struggling with rising costs, housing insecurity, healthcare challenges, and underfunded public services, investing public resources in an expansion of ceremonial space reflects deeply misplaced priorities. Our elected officials and government leaders are public servants — they work for the American people, not above them. This project sends the wrong message about what matters most and does not reflect the urgent needs or values of the people they are meant to serve.

Construction projects on federally owned historical structures should comply with the established policies, laws, and principles. The people of The United States deserve clarity, transparency, fairness, and professional integrity in those persons we have entrusted to represent the best interests of ALL Americans.

The President stated that more space was needed at the White House to host Presidential functions, which should mean State dinners and similar national functions. The intent of changing or expanding the White House should be for events that benefit the American people, not just the current occupant of the White House. The current administration also claims that there is a national security risk to pausing construction: that risk would not exist if the original structure still existed, or if proper procedures and proper design/planning had been accomplished.. The NCPC and the NPS will certainly partner with other agencies to ensure that national security considerations will be included during both construction and the final design of any additional structure.

The White House is a national symbol of dignity and solid constancy. Its classical architecture inspires pride and respect. And it should remain a tasteful, stately, architecturally beautiful symbol of balance and steadfastness. It should be designed and constructed to last for many many years in our democratic republic.

I trust the National Capital Planning Commission's existing policies and rules to ensure a thorough and well-considered review of the historical significance, the architectural soundness and aesthetics, and future maintenance and modification of new construction.

This project should not be a vanity project for one ego, it belongs to all the American people. Any additions or modifications should serve the greater interests of the people - like security for our elected officials, safety and security of our government employees, highly amenable housing for the Presidential family, and a hospitable venue for entertaining domestic and state visitors on official business.

Furthermore, it is ugly. It has no aesthetic value. Its style does not complement the neoclassical style of the White House.
The public was not given the opportunity to comment BEFORE our beautiful White House was desecrated. And neither was Congress.

The fact that the East Wing was torn down without the correct permissions granted from the US people is an outrage. To erect a gaudy, gigantic, and unnecessary ballroom in its place is an abomination. The American aesthetic is NOT to mimic the royal palaces of Europe. We did not fight a war for independence just to end up emulating our original oppressors. The space needs to be carefully considered and utilized as multi-purpose. The last thing the people of the US need to see is an insanely expensive construction project that then sits empty for most of the year.
As I live in Alaska, I shall likely never see the White House any time soon. However, that building represents all of the US, not just the ultra wealthy.

When our sons were 10 and 14 we took them to Washington DC and one of the highlights of our trip was a visit to the White House.
The historical significance of the "People's House" was overwhelming and awe inspiring and to cherish the memory of it, we bought that year's ornament for our Christmas Tree!
I'm saddened by the move of the Trump Administration to damage the architectural integrity, scale and proportion of the White House complex.

It is difficult to know where to begin and what all to focus on with these comments. Some adjustments to the East Wing would be understandable, but the current administration's plan is unreasonable, ridiculously over the top, an insult to the nation's history, and quite likely being built on a system of our government being bought and paid for with favors being done in return. Any addition to the White House, which is supposedly the People's House, should compliment the beauty of the current buildings. A flashy ballroom is not what our People's House is about.

Additions must respect the historic scale and design of the White House. The proposed ballroom would exceed the size of the Executive Residence by almost double, dwarfing it and looking like an eyesore—a giant box. If event space is needed that is that large, it should be built elsewhere. It is a disgrace that the East Wing was demolished without warning—without going through the legal process. It is not the president's private property. It belongs to the taxpayers. It should be rebuilt as it was in style and scale, but with necessary modernization at the expense of mr. trump.

Because it serves as a welcoming place for the entire country, I suggest the East Wing not be used entirely as a ballroom. That is far too large and sends the wrong message. It should be warm and welcoming and not filled with gold-colored inlays and furniture and other extravagances that can depict a monarchy government.

Instead, the entire space can be made to section off for large events as needed. Make it functional for staff and media; visible to the public. Updated technology. Incorporate the 50 states somehow to show unity (murals) and countries to show alliances.

Perhaps an upper level for visitors, including the general public--not just visiting dignitaries and administration members.

I'm a former public school social studies teacher, a genealogist and historian by training. I am also a national parks aficionado and have had the privilege of volunteering at a national park for over four years. I have had the wonderful opportunity to tour the White House when I was in college. I'm very taken aback and how President Trump has treated the White House. It is not HIS house, it is the "people's house" and has been in the National Park Service's stewardship. It is also a historical building. I have a friend who bought a historical home, had to follow many rules and laws regarding its renovation as she returned it to its glory from the apartment building it had been turned into. The disrespect shown to the meaning of that building, the fact that it is the "people's house", many rules and laws have been flouted.
All construction (or destruction) should be halted completely. All laws and regulations in regards to the White House need to be strictly followed in this instance. This is not a pet project of the president's, this is something that is happening to a cherished historical building. Please halt all of this completely!

Hello,

I am writing to share my thoughts on the East Wing Modernization Project. While understanding that buildings age and invariably need repairs and upgrades, there is a line between that and completely destroying history. This building has been a focal point of American pride for centuries. It needs to be treated accordingly.

As for the overall building, there is no reason a wing of such a grand building as the White House should overshadow the primary building. This wing should be smaller than the main house in height and overall footprint. It should be planned, built and maintained with future generations in mind.

From design to materials to final product, this should be something that can be shared with the American people for generations to share. Even if it isn't publicly accessible, this should be a building that considers future needs. It should be built of sustainable material with the spectacular workmanship we Americans love to deliver.

This should be built in such a way that it needs neither upgrades nor major repairs for years to come. This is a house of American Pride and it should remain that way. This property is already impressive, there is no need to overdo it. The quality and care of its design will be obvious.

Thank you for your time,
Vicki

I think the East Wing should have never been torn down and this type of project should never occur without approval of the American people. The White House belongs to no one person, therefore, no one man is entitled to destroy an part of the historical building. The idea of building what was first presented as "necessary" is the opinion of no majority of citizens.

Before this type of project is even started; exact plans, costs, and approval of a nonpartisan committee must be required. Before any destruction or construction, funding must be secured and 75% in place (not just a verbal statement) before the initial preparation can begin. Fund raising cannot come with benefit to contributors. Design must complement existing historical buildings in area. Must not outshine, overshadow, overwhelm, the White House.

Proportion the final cost per citizen and then ask how many shares each citizen is willing to cover. I for one cannot afford to renovate or add on to the house I live in.

No one can benefit from donating to the cost of this project!

I am a retired teacher who took many field trips to Washington DC with 8th grade classes. Some of my students could not afford the cost of the trip but we always made sure funding was available to support these students. Why? Because we, as a school district, thought this was a crucial part of their 8th grade experience as American history was the focus of study in the social studies curriculum. We also thought students may only get this experience one time in their life.

As an educator you don't always know how school experiences may affect kids' lives later. But you do know they will most likely participate in the workings of our government. Be it voting, paying taxes, or applying for benefits.

The history of our great country is centralized in DC. The museums, the government offices, the Capitol, the White House. Any change to these structures deserves careful consideration. They are not mere buildings but represent significant parts of our story as a country. I can recall watching the students eyeing the White House for the first time. They were in awe. They wanted to get closer but our schedule prohibited a second look. It wasn't the beauty of the building but the significance of its occupants.

Many student groups tour DC. Hopefully many remember the structures they saw. Our country's history is embedded inside the walls and inside the minds of our youth.

Any additions done should respect, reflect and complement the architectural design of the current White House. The White House East Wing should be restored to its original look on the outside - along with the once beautiful Rose Garden. If the inside can accommodate a ballroom in the dimensions of the original East Wing, so be it. Otherwise a ballroom should be build off site or another venue used for large meetings.

Priorities should be considered. Veterans who are homeless need to have available shelter, food, and healthcare. The White House would not exist without our veterans. Improving existing and functional space for the Presidents and foreign visitors should fall far below the priority of working to help our veterans.

The destruction of the East Wing was illegal and devastating for the american people. The plans I have seen for the ballroom are way too big and overwhelms the rest of the Whitehouse. A bipartisan congressional committee should have a say in the plans. The president should not be able to soley decide on what happens to the People's House.

I totally oppose the destruction of OUR White House's East Wing and the planned rebuilding of it into a glorified Trump ballroom. He has no authority to do what he has already done to the People's House nor to proceed. The damage done is unforgivable, but please prevent him from doing more. It is illegal and unconscionable, and definitely for his own personal glorification and not for his country. Thank you.

Proposal to construct a 90,000-square-foot ballroom addition to the White House complex.

The plan would significantly reshape part of the East Wing, replacing existing office space with a lavish new ballroom. Critics and architectural observers have already condemned the proposal as an "abomination," warning that it threatens America's architectural and historical legacy. The centerpiece—a Mar-a-Lago–style ballroom—has raised particular concern among heritage experts, who fear the loss of original design elements associated with past presidencies.

Former President Donald Trump has stated that the estimated $200 million cost will be fully covered by private donors and claims that no federal funds will be used, noting that he personally contributed. Reported donors include foundations, business leaders, and patriotic alumni groups, with a special fund established to manage the contributions.

Despite these assurances, serious questions remain. Observers have expressed concern about whether donors may expect favors in return and whether future maintenance and repairs—particularly for high-end finishes—could ultimately fall to taxpayers. Critics warn that hidden public costs may surface over time.

I am deeply troubled by this proposal. At a moment when American soldiers and working families are struggling, spending hundreds of millions on a ballroom feels profoundly out of step with national priorities. While the project is described as privately funded, the long-term financial and ethical implications for taxpayers cannot be ignored.

The White House is the People's House. The East Wing should never have been torn down. The proposed ballroom is a monstrosity that will destroy the esthetics of the Whtie House. It is too large, too ostentatious and a building meant to appease one person's ego. We do not need a gaudy ballroom at our White House. It is a highly offensive project and must be stopped. It is a travesty that the demolition of the East Wing was allowed to proceed, and that there is no plan, blueprint, or even architect to replace it.

The White House is not Mar-a-lago, it is only the home and office for the President, First Lady, et al. on an interim basis, for the duration of Trump's final term.

This is a historic building, part of the national heritage, not to be treated so blithely.

It is not the home of a king, so a gilded ballroom entertaining space is only proposed to salve the ego of a malignant narcissist.

Proper consultation and actual plans must be provided.

I am a 76 year old woman who was born and lived all of my life in the United States of America. Having grown up in the immediate aftermath of World War II, I became very interested in History, especially since my father served in the Army for the entire war.

I have been privileged to visit Washington D.C. on numerous occasions often leading school groups. Our nation’s capital with all of its monuments tells the story of our history! There is a good reason we have a Commisson to oversee these projects. The White House belongs to the people and to our history. No one person deserves the power to do as he/she chooses! Our public buildings and monuments provide a common understanding of our country’s development.

Studying History as a youth I could never understand how Hitler became so powerful. After watching what is occurring in the U.S. in the last year I do. Please DO NOT LET THAT HAPPEN HERE!

Preserving history is a responsibility of our leaders and Trump has failed miserably. I am appalled by what has happened and the only way to ensure that the project conforms to both law and responsibility and the public should have their voices heard. No 90,000 square foot ballroom should be constructed as a monument to Trump. It is not necessary and should not happen. I am opposed to any plan Trump has for a golden farce of a travesty. First, thank you for accepting public comments on a project of this magnitude rather than flatly allowing the President to destroy the White House.

The proposed ballroom, or East Wing Modernization Project as you are referring to it, is an ABOMINATION! A 90,000-sf building that will DWARF the White House forever should NOT be allowed! The White House SHOULD be the outstanding feature on the property and there should not be a MASSIVE structure attached to it.

The whole concept is just baffling. There are MANY facilities in D.C. capable of holding 1,000 people, why not just hold the events there? From what I understand we are only talking about maybe one event a year that can't be accommodated in the White House itself. DESTROYING our National Treasure for those VERY few RARE occasions when the White House isn't large enough just doesn't make sense.

In summary, either continue using tents or move to another venue, don't destroy the White House.

Thank you, and I hope common sense prevails,

I am truly appalled at the Trump Administration's demolition of the historic East Wing without ANY consultation with the Architect of the Capitol or any consideration of asbestos mitigation.

While upgrades to the bunker underneath may have needed to be done there is a protocol to follow BEFORE a complete demolition of the above ground structure was done, AND proposals for any above ground replacement SHOULD have been submitted to public comment.

The intention of the Trump Administration seems to be to put Home Depot fake gilded tacky ornamentation more suited to an 18th Century French or Russian monarch on everything that is supposed to be for the PEOPLE. The PEOPLE's White House is not owned by its current occupant but by the entirety of the citizens of the US.

It was physically and psychologically painful to watch where greats had walked destroyed for a gilded ballroom. I assume it cannot be put back and so much of our shared history is nothing but rubble now. That is bad enough, but the proposed ballroom should never be allowed to dwarf the White House. It is where revered leaders have lived and we owe it to them to honor that residence and not diminish it by having a grotesque, gargantuan ballroom overshadow it. Please do not permit the construction of the Ballroom next to the White House. It is ugly, with all of the Gold Flashy decor. The White House has always been a building that reflected the American architecture, like early Americana. Similar to Williamsburg, Virgina, and Alexander, Virginia. Do not allow one president make such changes that I believe most Americans detest.

If possible, I would require President Trump or whoever was providing the funding for the Ballroom, to restore the West Wing to its original architecture. In the reconstruction of the restored West Wing, the modernization of electronics and safe bunkers could be built at the lower level to meet the needs of current security.

I am a concerned citizen, and feel that the President has exceeded his authority by tearing down the structure and civil penalties of some kind should be assessed against whoever signed the contracts for the destruction and removal of the West Wing, and the architects that designed and authorized the construction without proper authority. American taxpayers should not be responsible for paying for the restoration of the West Wing.

Ballrooms already exist at many venues throughout Washington, DC. For National Security Reasons, an extended ballroom should not be a part of the People's House where the First Family resides. I am terribly saddened that the People's House has been damaged beyond repair with the destruction of the East Wing. There was no necessity for the East Wing to be torn down. A 90,000 square foot ballroom is not necessary and money being considered for this room would be better spent in funding the VA, SNAP or other social programs that will benefit all Americans, rather than further inflating one person's ego.

I am opposed to the modernization project because it is completely unnecessary (we do not need a ballroom that towers over the White House). Guests to the White House have always been accommodated properly and will continue to be. Our heritage dictates that the People's House be modest and humble not ostentatious and garish.
I am also opposed to the cost, the manner in which the current president destroyed the East Wing without any input from the American people, and the damage the ballroom will do to the overall aesthetics of the White House.
Most importantly, before any architectural plans are drawn up to fix the mess currently there, the American people should have the opportunity to suggest or comment on the plans. The decision to destroy and build on the publicly owned property of the White House and Capitol grounds should NEVER be in the hands on one person.

Do not allow special interests to “take over” the funding of this important project. The current president should bear much (or all) of the cost of the renovations, as he had the East wing demolished with prior approval or authorization.
Also, a new rose garden should be established, with the historical species of roses planted there. Newer species of American roses and hybrids should be in luded as well.
Also, a hall of documents including copies of the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights should be incorporated into the new design, perhaps in an alcove leading from the main building to the East wing. They would serve as a reminder to the occupants, staff and visitors of the history of our nation and it’s progress.

I strongly support the proposal to construct a ballroom - that replaces the east wing of the white house. Our nation needs a large appropriately designed space conveniently located in the capital where our nation can sponsor large-scale events and banquets. This is an important part of diplomacy and the new ballroom can help meet that need plus meet the needs for other domestic events. President Trump's fast track construction schedule is a sound business practice as it will keep the overall price down by shaving years off of the typical government sponsored building project schedule. It is exemplary that the President has sufficient private donations to complete the project without impacting Federal taxes. I would suggest that a funding site (a foundation) be established that enables the average citizen to participate in the project through voluntary financial donations - It would be nice to compile a list of "National Ballroom Foundation" charter members who financially contributed - this could be another element of our nations'

250th anniversary celebration. I assume the East Wing Modernization Project is the national ballroom!

"Before nationally significant places are permanently altered, the public deserves an opportunity to help shape the decision. The White House is a National Historic Landmark and National Park, owned by the American people and home to our presidents since 1800.
This review is also required under federal law."

If this review is required under federal law, then it would seem to me that someone broke the law in having demolished the East Wing before this review happened. The White House is often referred to as "the People's House" and is owned by the American people, not one man. Any President is a temporary resident and should be respectful of the laws concerning National Historic Landmarks and National Parks. I believe the East Wing should be restored to its previous dimensions and using the same architectural style as the rest of the White House. I believe no special interest groups should be paying for the restoration and believe that the person who tore it down should pay for all restoration and modernization, including any needed ADA accessibility accommodations, with their personal funds since that person made the unilateral decision to tear it down without permission. Tax payers should not have to pay for this person's brazen attack on the People's House.
The White House does not need a bigger event space as most of the taxpayers won't be invited to any of the parties that are hosted there anyway. Instead, making updates for modernization and accessibility, reinstating the Kennedy Rose Garden, and removal of any gaudy gold filigree should occur instead. That would be the right thing to do so everyone who visits to can enjoy it. Public Comment

As a former White House Director of Events for the Clinton Administration, I believe deeply in the power of the People's House—both figuratively and literally. The White House is more than a residence or workplace; it is a living symbol of our democracy and shared history for all.

While I understand that thoughtful expansion and modernization is necessary to meet evolving operational needs, I was opposed to the destruction within the East Wing. That chapter now behind us, I respectfully urge that the East Wing Expansion be designed in a manner that is compatible in scale, proportion, and character, and clearly subordinate to the original structure.

Historic stewardship requires restraint. Additions should support and preserve the architectural integrity and symbolic prominence of the original building, not compete with or overwhelm it.

I respectfully request that the current plan be rescaled and revised to reflect these longstanding preservation principles.

With respect,
Laura Schwartz

I am no architect or designer but it seems that, as a subject that is of interest to the entire country, the design of this project should be carried out by professional designers and architects. Several reasons: 1) I do not trust the man who has instigated this to do the work with the best interests of the NPS in mind, 2) given his age, it is unlikely that he will be around to see the project to its completion, 3) I don't trust him to settle on a planned design and stick to it. He has a history of poor methods and enormous over runs in completions.

Let those who have the training and the proven capabilities handle this for the US citizenry, to what ever final form it may take.

The way in which he began this is ample proof that he can not be trusted with historical US property.

This project should be halted immediately. Mr Trump did not go through proper channels to have this project approved. It is not his house to do with as he wishes. It belongs to the American People and we have entrusted the various non-profit and governmental entities to manage the property for us.

IF private donations have been made to fund this project, those should have gone through the proper entities for distribution. Large donations for a project accepted, without authority, by the President may result in political influence by some wealthy individuals and businesses.

Until Mr. Trump has submitted this project through the proper channels and it has been properly and fairly financed, and approved, all construction should be stopped.

Additionally, Mr. Trump should make restitution for the damage he has already done to the White House.

The proposals for the East Wing that have been made public thus far, are far out of scale with the rest of the White House. Visually, it will take away from the beauty of the original house. I question the need for a ballroom big enough for 999 people. In the decades leading up to today, the largest indoor events at the White House tended to be State Dinners and these were accommodated by the White House as it existed prior to the recent demolition. The State dinners also don't occur very frequently. Inaugural balls are larger but only occur once every 4 years and are accommodated around town in various venues. The current President seems to do most of his entertaining at his private clubs, so I'm very unclear why we need such a large venue when the current occupant of the White House won't be in office to enjoy it and can take care of his parties elsewhere.

I oppose the proposed White House ballroom because it makes little sense historically, visually, or fiscally, and would overwhelm the scale and character of the Executive Mansion. Major alterations of this kind should go through a formal approval process rather than being driven by a single president's impulse, and any funding should be subject to congressional oversight and full public transparency. Relying on private donors to pay for it raises serious ethical concerns and effectively removes any meaningful cost controls—as evidenced by the fact that the projected price has already doubled in a matter of months.

To whom it may concern, I do not see a need for a 90,000 sq foot ballroom added to the White House. We support the East Wing to be rebuilt to match the scale of the West Wing and to house the offices that were in the original East Wing. The construction to be done to the current building codes and ADA accessibility. Design and construction to be overseen by the National Capital planning Commission. I also do not think that this project should be paid by private investors or business'. Seems like it would be a proprietary grift to those involved. This is the people's house, not a building owned by big corporations. If a ballroom is necessary find a location off White House property. This is a residence and working house for our government. If it is absolutely necessary a much smaller and to scale of the original home should designed.

I would also like to request that you please restore the original Rose garden and respect its original intent. Remove the nasty photos and nasty comments of previous past presidents on the breezeway.

The focus of the buildings should be on the White House as a living residence and working space for the person holding the office, their family, and the people who need to work closely with the President.

Thank for for your attention to my concerns,

Sincerely, Chris. Clarke

I urge the Commission to disapprove the East Wing Modernization Project until it complies with the existing procedure and review requirements. To do otherwise would encourage this administration to continue to break the law with little or no adverse consequences. I further implore the Commission to fully expose the donor and donor amounts given to this project and to explore what the donor will receive in return. As for the design itself, the project should be compatible with the existing surrounding architecture and be comparable to the humbleness that the Founders envisioned for the presidential grounds. The destruction of the East Wing was a deliberate attempt by the current tenant to force the creation of a gilded monument to himself that will most likely bear his name. This is the people's house. Your commission must represent the voice of the people in establishing the right balance and the proper oversight of all funding of the East Wing Modernization Project, not the impatience of it's current occupant.

I would like to see the East Wing of the White House restored to it’s original footprint and style. It would be preferable to increase the square footage to equal that of the West Wing.
The ballroom included in this design could be made larger, but not in any way obstructing the view of the main residence.
I would like to see the current President pay for these modifications, as he saw fit to demolish the previous East wing without prior approval or consent. Any monies raised from third parties should be returned to them, so as not to exert outside influence over the building itself.
Also, a rose garden of sorts would be a nice addition, to replace the one so carelessly removed. Perhaps it could consist of two separate gardens, one on either side of a walkway leading to the East wing. Or a garden bordering the front or back of the White House. Hopefully someone can obtain cuttings of the original roses that were planted in Jackie Kennedy’s rose garden.

The People’s House is a national treasure, and needs to be respected and honored.

I am convinced that the currently proposed plans for the "modernization" of the East Wing will turn one of the nation's culturally iconic buildings into a gaudy, tacky, classless Vegas-style showpiece, rather than the dignified, tasteful space it deserves.

The current plan should be scrapped in favor of something more in keeping with the status of the rest of this national landmark. And it should be approved by more than just the current incumbent.

I strongly object to the tearing down of the East Wing of the White House to make way for a ballroom. Modernization of the East Wing would have been appropriate if it was no longer functioning properly.

A ballroom is unnecessary; the idea of building one attached to the White House, one that would dwarf the historic and iconic building, is an affront to all of us as Americans, the true owners of the peoples’ house.

I sincerely hope to see a functional East Wing restored, with an exterior that echoes what was there before.

I would like to see traditional architectural design that meshes with the rest of the White House. The ballroom interior should be not flashy with gold everywhere but have an interior design that is sophisticated and makes use of antique paintings that are already stored at the White House.

I don’t believe that the ballroom should be built as big as it has been planned and perhaps should also restore some function of the previous East Wing.

The East Wing needs to be restored to it's most recent condition prior to bulldozing. There is no need for a lavish ball room to overwhelm the space and change the historic appearance of the White House. This is the people's house and we do not need some gigantic ballroom - there needs to functional space for the work of the White House so updating and modernizing is fine. Destroying the building for a vanity project is certainly not maintaining the historic look of this most significant building.

No more gold please - it is so tacky.

No. Personally I think he should pay to reconstruct the east wing and put it all back the way it was. There is already a ballroom that has been sufficient for other presidents.

But if he must have a new ballroom, the plans must be approved by NCPC or the national park service or whoever is in charge of the "People's House". He should not be allowed to do things without approval and it certainly can't be the size that the plans seem to show. Larger than the existing structure is just NUTS.

The East Wing of the White House should be reconstructed immediately. Calling this a modernization project is a farce. This is not asbestos abatement, this is not installing running water, electricity or indoor plumbing. This was the razing of history, this was a fart in the face of everyday Americans. This is taking a house that is the symbol of the American people, a symbol of all are created equal and decimating it to make way for a room that only exists in mansions and palaces. A ballroom is the symbol of the rich, of nobles and royals--and Now corruption. There is a reason we the People had a House as our seat of government-- and not a White Mansion or White Palace. The White House is a place of government and should not be "modernized" to host parties and dances for billionaires. The only ball room at our nation's capital that id support would be a pit of bouncy balls for children.

EAST WING MODERMIZATION PROJECT!?? East Wing DESTRUCTION Project!!!

1."Demolishing the historic East Wing for this 90,000-square-foot, 1,000-person capacity project was a shameful destruction of American heritage for an unnecessary, garish space".

2. "This new ballroom looks like an 'airport hangar' that completely violates the visual harmony of the original White House design, creating an 'ostentatious' look."

3. "The lack of proper public review and oversight BEFORE the demolition process is more than concerning."

4. "Building a massive, private,, and costly, as noted by some on Facebook, entertainment space while the country faces economic pressure is, not only tone-deaf, but frivolous and a waste of money.

5. Private entities are funding a vanity project for President Trump. Let them be generous to the poor and hungry in this country - of which there are PLENTY.

This is beyond outrageous. The idea that a sitting President could authorize the demolition of part of the White House without meaningful oversight is deeply disturbing.

If this was done without proper authorization and review, it is not just bad judgment — it is a violation of public trust. The White House is not a private property to redesign at will. It belongs to the American people, and any alteration to it should be subject to strict process and transparency.

No President is a monarch. No President is above the law. Acting unilaterally, without accountability, is exactly the kind of behavior our system of government was designed to prevent.

I strongly oppose any unauthorized changes to the East Wing. It should be restored to its original state — and if improper actions were taken, President Trump should be personally responsible for covering the full cost of restoring the damage, not taxpayers. The American people should not be footing the bill for reckless decisions.

This project must be halted immediately, and there must be a full investigation into how this was allowed to happen.

I am so heartbroken as a lover of our Nation's history to see the entire East Wing demolished with almost zero notice. Projects of this magnitude should be planned carefully and with the full participation of constituents like the White House Historical Association, so that at the very least, plans could be made to conserve artifacts from the building. They should also be involved so that any addition is done in good taste, and is in full compliment to the iconic White House itself. The process up to this point has been done with no input at all, which is repugnant and an insult to our democratic National nature. I am writing to oppose the East Wing Modernization Project as proposed. It is out of scale with the White House and not compatible with the historical proportions or style. At this point since the original East Wing has been destroyed without public input or permission from various agencies, there does need to be some reconstruction of the East Wing - and it would be appropriate for it to include a larger entertainment space for official White House functions. But a grand ballroom of the scale and size proposed is not necessary for those functions. A new East Wing Corridor with necessary rooms and offices could be built to match the current West Wing - and yes, an entertainment space could be included that would be in good taste, match the current architecture of the White House and be much, much smaller so that it would be in good taste and not overshadow the historical White House in its size and style. I agree with the National Preservation of the Historic Trust and the National Park Service that the project as it is currently being decided on is not a good one and should not be accepted. Moreover, the building may or may not be funded by private donors, but the future upkeep and maintenance will be paid for by the taxpayers, so they should indeed have some say in this.

As an American citizen, I was horrified to see images of the East Wing of the White House demolished in October 2025. This historic building belongs to the American people, not the sitting president. It was incredibly disrepectful of the Trump administration to literally destroy history without even bothering to get approval from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, let alone ask for public input from the American people before unilaterally making this irreversible decision. The new East Wing will dwarf the main White House, destroying the symmetry and detracting from the focus on the main part of this institution. Literally no one except President Trump saw the need for an enormous and garish ballroom, but he unilaterally destroyed the existing structure in order to build one. The fact that this building is being made with donations from private individuals and companies is extremely concerning as well, demonstrating one (of many) examples of pay-to-play influence and bribery in this administration. No president should be beholden to private donors. The president's job is to serve the American people, not his own ego.

Any "modernization" of the White House and its associated buildings must be in keeping with the scale of building as it was prior to the unauthorized demolition which took place in 2025.

The White House is of tremendous, frankly incalculable, historical value to this nation and its people. A modest change that accommodates a larger gathering than can be held in the state dining room may have value, but not at the expense of the integrity of the White House as it has stood for the nearly 8 decades since the Truman Balcony was added in 1948.

The first step must be to replicate that which was ripped off the east wing to undo the damage that has been done. Then, allow architects and historians to work together to develop a thoughtful, appropriate plan for a complementary building which would seat more than the 140 guests that can currently be accommodated by the State Dining Room.

Under no circumstances should the 90,000 square foot proposal put forth by the current Administration be moved forward. It is utterly too large, dwarfing the White House itself.

Respectfully,
Colleen Carnevale

I was fortunate to visit the White House as a US citizen in 2016 for the Christmas decorations, and it was so wonderful to approach the White House. I would feel sorry for future visitors to approach a ballroom. It's about the White House, not a ballroom.

As a realtor, Donald Trump must know that if you move into a home you do not own and completely demolish it, you either pay big bucks for repairing the damage or you are liable to be prosecuted.
What he also seems to have forgotten is that the White House does not belong to him. It belongs to the American people and he lives there as a guest and servant of the people. If he really thought the building needed improvements, he ought to have had the decency to submit a proposal for the project to Congress. He had no right to demolish the people's house without Congressional approval and he should be made to compensate for the criminal damage he has caused.
The prospect of having Donald Trump preside over this project is particularly distressing because of his obsession with golden baubles. The man seems to think that the golden rule is a matter of interior decoration. He dreams of turning the people's house into a vulgar imitation of Versailles. He has no sense of generosity, no sense of compassion for his fellow citizens or the democratic institutions of this country. He is only interested in building some gaudy edifice as a demonstration of his personal dominance over the people he is supposed to be serving, The very idea of pouring a river of money into the construction of a ball room when the homeless population in the is country is annually increasing, is simply obscene.
Though I doubt that this hero of the Evangelical right has read the Bible, somebody should remind him of the passage where Jesus says that nobody should have two coats as long as there is anybody who does not have one coat. The same goes for property. Nobdy should be building a ballroom as long as there are American citizens with no roof over their heads.
The president boasts that the taxpayers will not have to pay for the ballroom because there are so many private contributors. In other words, the project is a dandy way of inviting gifts from anybody who wants to curry favor with the boss.
This project is totally corrupt and stunningly arrogant. The president should be required to restore the East Wing to its original dimensions as soon as possible.

The People's House, the White House, is a cherished piece of American history. As such, it is just a TEMPORARY home and office space for the President and their family. Although events are held there, it IS NOT primarily an event venue and was never meant to be. IT IS NOT a ballroom, hotel, or convention center. It should NEVER be treated as such. If the President must have more space for official dinners, etc., that doesn't require 90k sq ft! This is NOT a palace, though. If a ballroom has to be accommodated, it should be sized appropriately to the House, and not be the primary concern of the REPAIRS that must now be undertaken to clean up after this Administration.

The White House IS NOT Maralago. I am personally offended by the ostentatious display of gold and labels everywhere—such poor taste, this isn't Russia!

The East Wing must be restored to its original footprint, design, and facade. If upgrades need to be made to infrastructure or the PEOC, then make them. But the end result should be a RESTORED White House and Rose Garden. If the current residents think it's too small, please encourage them to trim their invitation lists. Or, they are welcome to leave. There are MANY large venues already available in DC to hold giant events. The current residents can party and dance in those venues to their hearts content.

PS— Someone please tell Melania that flats work better than spike heels when hosting/attending events in the restored Rose Garden.

Thank you for your attention to this matter! ;-)

The White House is The People's House. Not many of us have our own ballroom, especially one that can hold 1,000 guests. I understand the need for the President to be able to entertain leaders from around the world. However, this is clearly overkill and a vanity project for the world's most fragile ego. With people struggling to pay their bills and government services being slashed, I find the idea of this monstrosity to be abhorent and cruel. And the destruction of the East Wing without oversite is yet another example of the abuse of power and the woeful disregard this president has for the law and the disconnect from the American people. This plan needs to be trimmed down and the costs scrutinized with a fine comb.

As a member of the American Institute of Architects I want to reiterate the comments made by the Institute to the Committee for the Preservation of the White House:

The White House is not a private building and its renovations should not be funded privately. The historic edifice at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue is the People's House, a national treasure and an enduring symbol of our democracy. Any modifications to it—especially modifications of this magnitude—should reflect the importance, scale, and symbolic weight of the White House itself.

The design process also must rise to the significance of the building and to the importance of the proposed alterations. Any material changes to this historic landmark must strictly adhere to established federal processes for public buildings. To that end, we strongly encourage the following:

1. Qualifications-Based Selection Process
The Committee for the Preservation of the White House has a proud history of leadership in stewardship and preservation to maintain and improve the White House for future generations. While the proposed extension will be privately funded, given the magnitude of the project and the symbolism the White House carries for all Americans, we strongly urge a Qualifications-Based Selection (QBS) process to identify the most qualified architect or design team for this project. Adherence to the QBS process is the recommended approach for all public projects of national significance and will ensure the selection of professionals who possess the expertise necessary to balance the White House's architectural heritage with the functional requirements of a 21st-century presidency. We also encourage a robust, public-facing interdisciplinary feedback process—inviting input from preservation specialists, engineers, security experts such as the Secret Service, and sustainability advisors to address the full scope and complexity of the project.

2. Historic-Preservation Review
A rigorous historic-preservation review is critical to guarantee harmony with James Hoban's neoclassical style and protection of historic sightlines, such as Pennsylvania Avenue and Lafayette Square. Strict adherence to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards (HABS/HAER/HALS) is essential to the safeguarding of the White House architectural legacy. It is critical that the Committee ensures that these standards are rigorously applied.

3. Transparency and Public Accountability
Private funding must not bypass the care and deliberation required for proposing and constructing new additions or making such significant material changes to the White House. Given the White House's symbolic importance, the design and decision-making processes must be transparent and open to public input. Providing public clarity on the funding, procurement, and design selection processes will signal the administration's commitment to accountability and the stewardship of the White House while easing public concerns about the changes being proposed to this national landmark.

4. Proportionality and Design Harmony
The proposed 90,000-square-foot addition raises concerns regarding scale and balance. The design absolutely must harmonize with the White House's existing architectural proportions while preserving its role as both a national museum for the people, and the functional seat of power representative of the people. We urge careful consideration of adjustments that would align the proposed additions more closely with the White House's historic character.

5. Collaboration and Expertise
The AIA offers its full assistance and expertise to ensure that the project fulfills its goals while adhering to current, best preservation practices, and AIA's Framework for Design Excellence. In the spirit of transparency and openness to public feedback, we are ready to support and provide guidance on design criteria, energy efficiency, resiliency, and the fundamental and overarching balance of progress and preservation.

This is not a modernization project. It is a vanity project. Donald Trump is looking to leave a legacy of his Presidency in the form of buildings, not in the form of productive policy. The East Wing should never have been demolished without prior approval of both the National Trust and the American public.

The East Wing should not be taller, wider etc than the main building. It should be returned to its original state. The bunker underneath should also remain the same size as it was. American taxpayers should be reimbursed for every penny of the costs.

The East Wing was torn down without proper permits or review. It should be rebuilt as close to the original plan as possible. Private oligarch donations for the Ballroom should be used to re-build the East Wing.

The East Wing should be rebuilt exactly as it was before this destructive act was undertaken. While it will no longer be the original historic structure, what was intended in the original design will be preserved. And most importantly, it will represent the People not it would be King. We do not want to memorialize an authoritarian government in the structure of the White House, one of our most precious national treasures.

Respectfully submitted,

This project is an abomination that never should have happened. It should be stopped in its tracks and the white house should be restored to its former grandeur. There should also be an accountability for having demolished the east wing without proper permission.

Ballroom comment

As an American citizen invested in the stewardship of our national heritage, I urge reconsideration of the East Wing Modernization and State Ballroom project as currently planned. My concerns are rooted in a patriotic commitment to transparency, fiscal responsibility, and the preservation of our shared history as a nation..

The demolished East Wing represented more than a century of American history. While the White House has evolved throughout out that time, this project proceeded with unprecedented haste—demolition occurred within three months of the announcement, before comprehensive public review. Our national landmarks deserve deliberate, thoughtful processes that honor their significance to all Americans, not just current occupants.
